Hockey rules are merely an academic matter for most Peterborough fans these rinkless winters but Billy Westwick of the Ottawa Journal has been digging into a few of the changes and his remarks should be of interest, even if we have little hockey of our own at which to look. Says the Ottawa scribe: "Last season if a player of the attacking team preceded the puck carrier over the opposing blue line, there was no whistle if it seemed likely the defending team could make an interception and break away on their own. This season the rule calls for a whistle the moment the puck has crossed the opposing blue line if another member of the attacking team has preceded it into the defending zone. Other changes leave a great deal to the judgment of the officials. In one instance an attacking player may not shoot from his own side of the centre red line unless the shot is on the net. In that case a goal would count, but an icing whistle results if the puck passes the penalty shot line and no goal is scored."

* * * * * *

"However, the puck can still be sent forward from any spot in the attacking team's territory and drift down over the opposition's penalty shot line without a whistle if, in the opinion of the referee, it is a well intended pass and there is reasonable chance of the receiver taking it," continues Br'er Westwick. "It is strictly up to the official to judge on such occasions whether or not it was a legitimate pass attempt and not merely dumping the puck into the opposition's territory to get rid of it. Another change requires the receiver taking a pass from his defence zone on his own side of the centre red line. Last year the receiver could follow the rubber over the centre line and take it there, but this season he must touch it or carry it over the centre stripe except, of course, if the pass is delivered from outside the attacking side's blue line. The icing rule leaves a great deal to the judgment of the referees. If, on such an occasion, a member of the defending side has a chance to play the puck and doesn't, the play is not stopped. This is another instance where it is left strictly to the officials' discretion."

An Important Meeting

The meeting of the executive of the Peterborough hockey club and other citizens who are interested in the promotion of hockey among the youngsters to be held tomorrow Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock in the Duffus' board room should be largely attended. There is a considerable amount of spade work to be done in getting a juvenile loop launched and it is important that the preliminaries should be cleaned up as soon as possible. For one thing the city's parks committee and its staff are anxious to know just what rink accommodation will be required for hockey, what hours the teams will want to use the cushions and other information of the same sort for it is impossible to arrange the winter schedule satisfactorily until the data is available. While it is not expected that the games will be started until after the Christmas holidays, much preliminary work will have to be done and it will be necessary to get at it without any further delay. It is hoped that other service clubs will have been heard from before Thursday's meeting so that the financial position may become clear.

Boston Bruins, thanks to the scoring punch of the Typhoon line of Ken Smith, Frank Mario and Billy Cupulo who fired four goals, turned back the New York Rangers last night 7 to 5 and are now only three points behind the Toronto Leafs and the Detroit Red Wings who are tied for second place. The Bruins are apparently going places in spite of a bad start. The Plaque is awarded annually in memory of Eddie Neil, Associated Press Boxing Writer and War Correspondent who lost his life in 1938 while covering the Spanish Revolution.

Of these 113 were no-decision affairs and eight were exhibitions Of the others Leonard won 71 by knockouts, grabbed the decision in 21, fought one draw, and lost three by knockouts and one on a foul.

Sports Editor At Hamilton Passes At 62

His death came on the day this city was digging itself out of one of the worst snowstorms in history—a day which prevented the white-haired editor from coming down to his office.

Although in failing health for the last few years, he had not been ill and reported for work daily to write his column, the "Sport Trail."

He was well-known throughout Canada as a booster of sport and had a large following. He telephoned his office early yesterday morning, but did not come in because of the tie-up in transportation facilities.

Born at Port Hope, Ont., he left his native town at an early age for Toronto, where he was employed with the old Toronto World.

Several years later, he left the Queen City to take up residence here and his first position was Sports Editor with the now-defunct Hamilton Herald. He remained as sports writer until 1911 and then took over the position of advertising manager.

He joined the staff of the Spectator as Sports Editor in 1913 and held the position up to his death.

Next to J. P. Fitzgerald, Sports Editor of the Evening Telegram, he was the oldest sports writer in Canada in point of service.

Horse Lover

A great lover of horses, he was for many years a timer at the Windsor race tracks and later acted as Judge at the Hamilton tracks.

One of his first moves after coming to Hamilton was to raise a fund to send William Sherring of Hamilton to the Olympic Games in Greece in 1906 and his efforts were rewarded when the young athlete won the marathon race.

During the First Great War he acted as matchmaker for the boxing shows staged by the Canadian Rifles Regiment.

Mr. McMullen also was interested in other sports and in 1931 he was president of the old Canadian Professional Baseball League.

He originated the column "Ezra Reckles," which ran every Saturday for many years in the Spectator.

His only survivor, a sister, Mrs. Pete Melson, lives at Port Hope.

SPORTS - Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

This week's card in the Ladies' Basketball League, incidentally the last games until the New Year, should provide one of the best programs of the season for the Friday night fans at the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium. First place in the senior division will be at stake when the Transports and St. John's outfits clash in the 7:45 o'clock game. At present the Saints are half a game in front of last year's champs but a win for the latter would reverse the situation, putting Transport half a game to the good. The first the two teams met this season the Saints nosed out last season's winners by the narrow margin of one basket and the game was the most exciting and incidentally the most rugged of the whole campaign. There is every reason to expect a similar clash Friday night. In the junior game two of the new teams, Quakers and Westclox, will tangle and with both in search of their first win that should be another even affair, with the teams apparently well-matched and likely to stage a lively battle for the decision. This double-header will be the last fixtures in the loop until Friday, January 5, as it is considered impossible to carry on during the holiday weeks.

* * * * * *

The hectic race in the Ladies' Five Pin League continues as hot as ever and the Outboard Marines and Westclox who have been deadlocked at the top of the column for weeks are still tied for first place while the Merry Macs who have been in third slot all along are clinging tenaciously to that position. All three leaders won three games in Monday night's play, the Outboard Marines registering a clean sweep at the expense of the Corvettes, the Westclox taking all three games from the Five V's and the Merry Macs cleaning up on the Arcos. The League is enjoying a good season and on the whole the scores have been fairly high. Monday night for example both the Outboards and the Westclox team climbed above the 3,000 mark and those outfits are consistently around that figure. Incidentally there is a familiar appearance to softball fans about that Westclox lineup which consists of Aggie Anderson, Isobel Bullock, Marg Hawthorne and Norma Whetung of the Big Bens' softball team and Marg Selkirk of the Aircraft club.

The awards will be presented at the Writers' annual dinner the week of Jan. 21, 1945.

HOPE FOR HIM—This time Bob Hope isn't being funny. Through the Foster Parents' Plan for War Children, the big chuckle-and-laugh man has "adopted" 8-year-old Maurice Le Bruchecke, whose father is a prisoner of war. The boy was evacuated from Paris by Abbe Noe, parish priest, to Normandy.

Sports Editor At Hamilton Passes At 62

His death came on the day this city was digging itself out of one of the worst snowstorms in history—a day which prevented the white-haired editor from coming down to his office.

Although in failing health for the last few years, he had not been ill and reported for work daily to write his column, the "Sport Trail."

He was well-known throughout Canada as a booster of sport and had a large following. He telephoned his office early yesterday morning, but did not come in because of the tie-up in transportation facilities.

Born at Port Hope, Ont., he left his native town at an early age for Toronto, where he was employed with the old Toronto World.

Several years later, he left the Queen City to take up residence here and his first position was Sports Editor with the now-defunct Hamilton Herald. He remained as sports writer until 1911 and then took over the position of advertising manager.

He joined the staff of the Spectator as Sports Editor in 1913 and held the position up to his death.

Next to J. P. Fitzgerald, Sports Editor of the Evening Telegram, he was the oldest sports writer in Canada in point of service.

Horse Lover

A great lover of horses, he was for many years a timer at the Windsor race tracks and later acted as Judge at the Hamilton tracks.

One of his first moves after coming to Hamilton was to raise a fund to send William Sherring of Hamilton to the Olympic Games in Greece in 1906 and his efforts were rewarded when the young athlete won the marathon race.

During the First Great War he acted as matchmaker for the boxing shows staged by the Canadian Rifles Regiment.

Mr. McMullen also was interested in other sports and in 1931 he was president of the old Canadian Professional Baseball League.

He originated the column "Ezra Reckles," which ran every Saturday for many years in the Spectator.

His only survivor, a sister, Mrs. Pete Melson, lives at Port Hope.

Veteran Rod Lorrain played stand-out hockey for the Volants, and accounted for the only two shots that beat Goalie Gerry McNeil.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Dec. 13 — (CP). — There has been plenty of talk and speculation about how athletes now in the service are going to fit into big league competition when they are rehabilitated, but Jimmy Dykes Chicago White Sox manager, has a slant on the idea that has plenty of meat in it.

In an interview with Bill Gaynon of the Niagara Falls Evening Review Jimmy aired his opinion that baseball players who have been in the thick of the fighting are going to find it nearly impossible to get back into the game. His idea is that, besides the constant nervous strain active servicemen have to undergo, they also lose their split-second co-ordination and timing that means so much to a ball player. He lists Hank Greenberg and Bobby Feller as two who probably never will get back to the heights, even if the war were to end very soon.

Players who have been stationed in camps, either on this side of the water or in some foreign posting, won't have so much difficulty, he contends, because they are able to get in quite a bit of ball in any case.

in camps, eithier on this side ofem

It's an interesting argument anyway, although Jimmy will find any number of opponents who will argue just the opposite—however, it's certainly safe to say that any player—in baseball or other sports—will have less chance to get back to the top of the heap after several years away from the game, especially if he's under the strain of combat duty.

Inflation:

Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll reports that the preliminary boys and former club fighters around Montreal are getting quite hoity-toity. They used to fight for beans at the small club shows, but when the promoters began staging big shows at the Forum, with Johnny Greco, Dave Castilloux and others of similar calibre. The boys drew big purses for preliminary bouts. Now they won't fight for a mere $40 a bout, Dink says, and they are cracking the lid right off the cauliflower ceiling.

Incidentally:

Learning that Danny Webb, clever Montreal fisticuffer, had been suspended in Britain, thus spoiling his chances for bouts worth about $4,500, J. P. Fitzgerald of the Toronto Telegram wanted to know "when Webb finds all that time from Army duties." That's a fair question....Tony Allan, veteran sport writer with the Winnipeg Tribune, has taken over Herb Manning's column, "One Man's Opinion."....Jimmy Pinteo, the Halifax goalie who tried out with Boston Bruins, has come home again. They say he was good enough for a spot with Boston Olympics, but preferred to try again with Bruins next year....Wally Stanowski, still waiting clarification of his military standing, has gone back to Winnipeg to get straightened away. He explained his failure to get on the ice with Toronto Maple Leafs last week to the fact he was out of condition. Which is the peak of something or other, thinks Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle, since Stanowski for 2 years has been P.T. instructor with the R.C.A.F.

Boston Bruins Relying On Typhoon Line

By BOB NIELSEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

A couple of weeks ago a rival National Hockey League coach opined that Boston Bruins would be tough to beat "from here in," and ever since Art Ross men have been faithfully bearing out that forecast. They gave it added support last night by out-punching the New York Rangers for a 7-5 triumph, their sixth in the last nine games.

Heroes of the Boston victory with the ageing Herb Cain were a free-wheeling trio of youngsters, Frank Mario, Ken Smith, and Bill Dupolo, the "Typhoon Line" which is proving game by game to be much more than one of Manager Ross' picturesque expressions.

The new unit fired four goals and picked up three assists, while Cain, league scoring champion last year, performed his specialty by converting two of Bill Cowley's neat passes. The assists stretched the Boston centre's league scoring lead to five over Toe Blake of the idle Montreal Canadiens.

The downtrodden New Yorkers put up a game battle before bowing to a three-goal Bruin outburst in the third. Boston took a 2-0 lead in the first on shots by Smith and Cain, but the Blueshirts fought from behind to knot the count three times in the second.

Phil Watson and Grant Warwick made it 2-2 before Dit Clapper shot the Bruins in front again. Wilf Thurier nullified that one and Mario gave the Rossmen their third lead. Ab Demarco deadlocked the score at 4-4 nine seconds before the period ended.

In the first half of tht finale, the typhoons gave Bruins a margin that stood up. Cupolo, Niagara Falls, Ont., native got the first from Smith at 3:42 and Smith scored his second goal of the night, with Mario helping, at 9:25.

Warwick put the Blueshirts back in the game with his second score, but Cain sewed it up with less than two minutes left.

It was Rangers fourth successive start without victory since they pulled the upset of the young season by downing Canadiens 7-5 on November 30. Defeat left them a one-game advantage over the last-place Chicago Black Hawks.

Hershey Bears Defeat Flyers

By The Canadian Press.

Hershey Bears, by a 5-1 victory over Flyers in a fast game at St. Louis last night, moved within four points of Buffalo Bisons, Eastern Division leaders in the American Hockey League.

Flyers' lone goal, on a clean shot by Freddie Hergert midway in the first period, was the first score of the game.

Bill Warwick evened the count less than six minutes later with a shot which bounced through a tangle of players in front of the Flyers' net.

Bears had complete mastery of the game from the opening of the second period. Alex Ritson gave Hershey the lead half-way through the session and Hector Pozzo clinched it with another goal three minutes later. Third period goals were scored by Harry Hilliard and Hal Cooper.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 — (AP).— Don't look for the appointment of another baseball commissioner in February when the new major league agreement is to be submitted....The big leagues couldn't very well offer the job to anyone until his duties and powers are clearly defined, and that means until the agreement has been ratified...Also the minors likely will want to have something to say about the selection this time......Although you'll hear a lot about the Giants' "old men" shooting for the pro football championship on Sunday, the Packers' roster lists just about as many 30-year-olds......And when Ken Strong, age 37, tried lugging the ball last week Steve Owen claimed there wasn't a man on the field running harder.

Sports before your eyes:

National League club owners won't get their annual free dinner at the expense of the World Series winter this year. Sam Breadon donated his Series "take" to war charities and decided that was enough.....And Bucky Harris almost didn't get invited to the managers' feat last night. It was at the last minute that someone remembered Bucky was an ex-National League pilot.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press

Bill Cowley, Boston's great centre, took a firmer grip on National Hockey League scoring leadership last night by collecting two points as Bruins defeated New York Rangers 7-5. Cowley moved five points ahead of second place Toe Blake of Canadiens. Herb Cain and Bill Jennings, Boston, each picked up two points to tie with Maurice Richard, Canadiens, for sixth place.

Ball Leaders Engaged In 3-Day Conclave

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—(AP).—The lights will be on again in 1945 for most of the 11 major league baseball clubs possessing lighting facilities in their parks.

A decision in favor of unlimited night ball is believed certain from today's joint session, in view of yesterday's decision by the National and American Leagues for unrestricted arc-light tilts. Washington, Philadelphia and St. Louis are expected to take full advantage of this ruling.

Half-hearted opposition voiced by the night-ball-curbing trio of presidents, Ed Barrow of New York Yankees, Horace Stoneham of New York Giants, and Branch Rickey of Brooklyn Dodgers, was overruled when it was pointed out that the majors, aided by unlimited night ball last season, attained the highest attendance since 1940.

The owners, however, insisted that this condition will continue only in wartime.

The joint meeting, which ends the three-day conclave, also will decide on the 33 1-3 per cent. draft-increase amendment and the territorial protection of the minor leagues proposed by the National Association. The pro football controversy, the bonus to free agents, and post-war plans.

On the heels of announcing their intention to appoint a baseball commissioner perhaps before the new season, the two league presidents, Ford Frick of the National and Will Harridge of the American, selected a 10-man commission to draw up a new major league agreement, define the commissioner's powers and clarify by-laws of the constitution.

The members making up the major league agreement committee are Alva Bradley, Cleveland; Jack Zeller, Detroit; Tom Yawkey, Boston; Don Barnes, St. Louis; Joseph Hostetler, Cleveland, secretary, and league attorney from the league, and Sam Breadon, St. Louis; Horace Stoneham, New York; Warren Giles, Cincinnati; Philip K. Wrigley, Chicago; and Branch Rickey, Brooklyn, of the National League.

The committee will report to the major league meeting in February, when the new major league agreement will be considered, and the selection of a commissioner will follow.

The trading mart figured in two deals yesterday with Chicago White Sox figuring in both transactions. They traded Shortstop Jimmy (Skeeter) Webb, for Utility Infielder Joe Orengo of Detroit Tigers.

The other deal brought Outfielder Oris Hockett from the Indians in exchange for Outfielder Ed Carnett.

Lt.-Cmdr. Benny Leonard of the U.S. Maritime Service last night was awarded the Edward J. Neil Memorial Plaque as the man who did most for boxing during 1944. The award was made by the New York Boxing Writers' Association in memory of the AP's boxing writer and war correspondent, killed in Spain in 1938. Benny Leonard retired as undefeated lightweight champ in 1925. He entered the U. S. Merchant Marine in 1942.

Walker Cochran, the San Francisco veteran, won the American three-cushion billiard championship at New York last night by defeating titleholder Willie Hoppe 50-44 in 31 innings. Cochrane was undefeated in the 10-day tournament.

It was disclosed in Washington last night that the U.S. War Department has decided to tighten up the controls on release of athletes and other prominent persons now in the American Army. Such cases hereafter will be given special consideration, following criticism over the release from service of athletic stars and stage, screen and radio notables.

C.C.F. Member At Windsor Deserts Party

WINDSOR, Dec. 13 — (CP) — A. Nelson Alles, 29, member of the Ontario Legislature for Essex North, who was elected in 1943 as a C.C.F. member, has resigned from the party, he said today.

His resignation is contained in a letter sent to E. B. Jolliffe, C.C.F. leader in Ontario. In the letter, Mr. Alles announced his intention to retain his seat in the Legislature, sitting as an Independent Labor member.

Contending that only through national unity can a sound economic future for Canada be achieved, Mr. Alles said today he believed there must be closer co-operation between all Democratic representatives of municipal, provincial and federal governments.

"In view of these facts, I believe it somewhat ridiculous to voice the C.C.F. opinion that Canada is doomed to chaos and disruption and that the Labor movement is doomed to failure unless a C.C.F. government comes into power. Such a narrow and defeatist viewpoint is dangerous to the Labor movement."

He stated his "deepest convictions" led him to disagree and he must therefore tender his resignation.

In his letter to the C.C.F. leader, Mr. Alles said that in Windsor and throughout Ontario C.C.F. policy has veered away from that of the trade unions.

He charged that political manoeuvring has led to disunity in the trade union movement.

Mr. Alles was elected to the Ontario Legislature in August, 1943, when the C.C.F. in its greatest bid for power in Ontario, elected 34 members. He defeated Dr. A. H. C. Trottier, who was sitting Liberal members, by running up 7,533 votes, to 3,003 for Dr. Trottier.

With revelling rather than with humble thanksgiving."*

War Industries To Be Abolished In Germany

By JOHN A. PARRIS, JR.
Associate Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Dec. 13 (AP)—United States proposals for controls of Germany were said by a reliable informant Tuesday call for "complete and ruthless" abolition of German war industries and the wiping out of Germany's aviation enterprises.

Other German industries would be controlled so completely that Germany could never again dominate European economy.

Ambassador John G. Winant was reported reliably to have presented the European advisory council two or more memoranda containing the American proposals as part of the Allies' plan to prevent Germany from ever again waging war. Mr. Winant was believed to have discussed the data with President Roosevelt and the state department during his recent visit to Washington.

The Americans were believed to have suggested that it should be made impossible for Germany's chemical industries to manufacture poison gas or similar weapons.

Drug Preparations

The proposals specified, however, that civilian requirements of medicines and drugs should be allowed, the informant said.

It was reported additionally provided that the whole question of Allied control of industry should be settled jointly by the United States, Britain, Russia and France.

The American plan was said to grant latitude in Germany's future textile industries, since production would be for civilian consumers.

The feeling here was that the American proposal did not go nearly so far as the plan of Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, which would have virtually wiped out German industry and made the country dependent largely upon agriculture.

Britain was understood to have presented her plans covering German industry, foreign and domestic trade.

Neither Russia nor France has submitted views. France was believed waiting until Gen. De Gaulle finished digesting his talks with Premier Marshal Stalin, so as to harmonize French proposals with those of the Soviet Union.

The European advisory council was understood already to have started discussions on the American and British plans.

German Money Of Foreign Helpers Soon To Be Without Any Value

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ
Associated Press Staff Writer

MADRID, Dec. 13—(AP)—Three little words of German have become a powerful weapon in the hands of foreign workers in Germany. They are "Lassen sie nur" and, as used by foreigners, mean "Keep the change."

Foreign workers caught behind Hitler's dwindling frontiers with no chance of getting back to their homelands, are using this phrase on street cars, at newsstands, in cafes and everywhere in Germany to express their disgust at the German cause and their conviction that German money soon will be valueless.

Judging not only from comments of neutrals or Germans reaching Spain or Stuttgart-Barcelona airliners but also from comments in the German press itself, the phrase and what it represents is beginning to get under the thickest of German hides.

Authorities have tried to stop it by ordering that the portion of a foreign worker's salary which used to be sent to his homeland be placed in German banks.

The foreigners retaliated by earning money outside their official jobs, some engaged in the lucrative black market business and others are doing extra work illegally for the Germans. With this money, they are conducting a lusty and efficient campaign against German morale.

A German reporter visiting Croat workers' camps reported "a complete disregard for the value of money" among laborers. He told his readers the Croats gambled for stakes "which were enough to frighten a German earning five times their daily salary."

The Hamburger Fremdenblatt was horrified to find even German children affected and warned parents should not give children enough money to throw about carelessly "even if it is their intention to help the children through this trying period of the war."

The "Keep the change" campaign is costing foreign workers little but apparently is making a big dent in German morale.

British Policy Said Disastrous

LONDON, Dec. 13—(CP-Reuter)—The executive of the Amalgamated Engineering Union, largest union in Britain, passed a resolution to-day describing British policy in Greece as "disastrous" and calling for its immediate reversal.

It adds "we view with grave concern the decision of the British government to use munitions and the armed forces against the resistance movement n Greece."

Nylon...

—THE WONDER YARN

YOU AND WE, of course, know of the remarkable qualities of the nylon hosiery previously available, but hosiery is only one of nylon's possible textile uses.

Ever since C-I-L's nylon plant at Kingston opened in 1942, its total output has gone into such war uses as parachute cords and canopies, glider tow ropes and other essential war materials. Meanwhile, many peacetime uses other than hosiery have indicated themselves to us.

These every day uses have become apparent because of the unique characteristics of nylon yarn. There is, for instance, its high strength and resistance to abrasion or wear. It dries quickly and preserves its original form and dimension. This extraordinary and hitherto unobtainable feature is what we call "permanent setting". That is, a peculiar chemical quality of nylon yarn permits a fabric made from it to be set to shape by the application of heat. The fabric will retain this form under all normal wearing and laundering conditions. Just what this promises to the ladies may well be imagined.

Again, because of its chemical nature, anything made from nylon is exceedingly unattractive to moths and highly resistant to mildew. The strength and elasticity of nylon enables it to be made into textile yarns of a fineness hitherto impracticable. This fine yarn will, in turn, after the war, make possible fabrics of previously unobtainable sheerness.

When nylon—child of chemical research—again becomes available for civilians, it will be released to the knitting and weaving manufacturers for a host of new and improved textile products.

ANSWER CALL

Most of the employees of Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company stayed in the plant for lunch Tuesday. Hy Wood sent out an emergency call for extra supply of food and everybody was taken care of. Mentioning service in difficulties, it was reported that Harry White called for a taxi, and Hugh Davis sent a truck in the spirit of the Message to Garcia. Industrial plants in the downtown district had dinner at hotels or restaurants. Many of the employees got together and sent out for sandwches.

LABOR SHORTAGE

G. N. Gordon denies, jokingly of course, that he was merely a kibitzer in the cafeteria expedient at the Churchill Tuesday when Bill Coros was left with only one chef and one waitress. The King's Counsel says he helped carry food. Chris Hughes removed trays of dishes back to the kitchen. Arnold Deyell from the across main street took charge of the cashier for a while. Some of the crowd poured their own coffee, and lined up at the kitchen for bowls of soup. It was an unusual expedient but every one fell in with the exigency of help.

Salvage Truck Plans To Re-cover Routes

Old man Winter and his Tuesday snow blizzard threw a monkey wrench into the opening day of salvage drive, sponsored by the Peterborough War Services Committee.

"Not much, but some" waste paper, rags, old tires and tubes were picked up Tuesday, Mrs. R. Whalon said today, adding that judging from the number of telephone calls, many people had salavge to offer. However, for those who were missed Tuesday morning, the drive will continue each morning until Friday, and might "possibly be extended into the beginning of next week".

Mrs. Whalon said that Tuesday morning, the streets which the salvage truck attempted to work on were almost entirely impassable, and that today, the truck will go back over this section to assure that everything is picked up.

Among other things that happened Tuesday, the salvage truck got stuck, and of course, the drive for the moment was abruptly ended. The Peterborough citizens are reminded that the drive, which continues today, is for the purpose of collecting as much waste paper, rags, old tires and tubes as possible for the war effort.

Theft Charge Thrown Out In Jury Trial

"Not guilty" was the verdict returned by a General Sessions of the Peace jury Tuesday afternoon before Judge S. L. Smoke, acquitting Lawrence Wilfong of a charge of theft of merchandise valued over $25 from F. H. Johnston, his former employer.

The jury deliberated approximately one hour, leaving the courtroom at three minutes past four o'clock, and returning a few minutes past five o'clock. W. J. Arthur Fair defended the accused.

Judge Smoke told the jury it was the first time during the Sessions that he did not entirely agree with a jury's verdict. However, he added that the jury members are the judges and the verdict is their responsibility.

In freeing the accused Judge Smoke said to him, "You are free to go. You are very fortunate."

During the afternoon session, Wilfong's 15-year-old son, Arthur, testified that he removed some of the articles from his house, and took them in his father's car to a garage on Stewart street, because he figured Mr. Johnston was going to take "all dad's tools", when he arrived with two policemen and a search warrant. There has been no word with his father about doing this, he swore. It was entirely his own scheme.

Young Wilfong said that his father often used his own automobile while doing night work for Mr. Johnston, as he was on 24-hour call. In answer to questions by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., he admitted he told people at the garage about the police being at his house. In connection with a number of exhibits offered by the Crown as evidence, including refrigerator parts, the boy identified several articles as belonging to his father. (These were the articles found in Wilfong's home and in the garage).

Sidney Slight, a radio repairman at Johnston's Furniture, and Electrical Sales and Service, testified for the Crown that on the day of Wilfong's departure from Johnston's employ, he heard Mr. Johnston ask Wilfong if he had any parts either in his car or anywhere else, and Wilfong replied that the only parts he had were in the truck. Mr. Slight also identified some of the parts and tools that were exhibits.

Wilfong told the jury, in answer to Mr. McElderry's questions, that some of Johnston's parts were in his house, but he stated emphatically that none of the parts were stolen.

"If you should start up in business would these exhibits here be valuable ot you?"

"If I kept them for myself they would be valuable."

During the morning, Provincial Constable Price Morris, who helped in the searching of Wilfong's home, told the jury that no objections were raised by Wilfong, and that he assisted the searchers "right through."

"Previously, Wilfong was found not guilty by a jury of a charge of theft of $16.65, from Clarence Weymark, of Havelock. He was defended in this case also by Mr. Fair.

Three-Month Term For Third Offence

Pleading guilty in police court this morning to having been drunk Tuesday and admitting two previous convictions within the year, Enos Meyette was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning to three months' imprisonment in the county jail.

"The next time you come before me as a third offender I will sentence you to the Ontario Reformatory," Magistrate Langley warned the accused.

Cuthbert Lindsay also pleaded guilty to being drunk, and on his admission that it was a second offence was fined $50 and $2.50 costs.

The alternative was a month's imprisonment.

Charged with assaulting Mrs. Frank Allore on Sherbrooke street, John Herbert Moloney was remanded for a week on bail of $200.

W. J. Arthur Fair appeared for the accused, who pleaded not guilty.

Just Out Of Jail Nabbed By Police

"I just got out Tuesday as Your Worship knows and the police are after me," Patrick Watson, Toronto, told Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court today, after he had been charged with stealing $5 from Loblaw's store.

"They don't want to let me get out of town and they will keep holding me on remands," the accused complained, after he had entered a plea of not guilty and Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., had announced that he would be unable to proceed this morning.

"The officer who investigated this matter is in London today to bring back a prisoner," the Crown Attorney explained.

Magistrate Langley remanded Watson until tomorrow for trial.

The accused who was convicted here a month ago on a charge of shop-lifting from a drugstore was arrested Tuesday by Detective John Stevenson, after a complaint had been received by the police that one of the cashiers at the Loblaw store had been short-changed.

Vegetable Men Elect Kitney

John Kitney was elected president of the Peterborough Vegetable Growers' Association at their annual meeting last night. Blocked roads reduced the attendance to ten, but the members decided to go ahead with their ordinary business.

Kitchener Johnston was elected vice-president and F. C. Paterson continues as secretary-treasurer. The immediate past president is Fred Stenson.

The association appointed a special committee composed of Norman Moncrief, F. Kitney, Herb Doig and F. Stenson to study the local market and its facilities with the intention of trying to assist the city council in its planning for a future market, and to co-operate in any way possible with the city authorities.

Harold Johnston was appointed delegate to the provincial convention, and a vote of thanks was moved by Mr. Stenson to Fred Doig for his leadership in the sale of vegetables in aid of war charities. The proceeds of the last sale were $104.

Aldermen Plan Other Uses For New Loader

Curb verdict on the street department's new snow loader which arrived just a few days ahead of the street filling blizzard was generally approval of the council's purchase.

This machine cost $7,950, but some citizen estimates of the outlay in the course of its steadily going operations Tuesday were up around $30,000. Members of the council are satisfied with every feature of this investment in road cleaning except its prospect for summer.

Alderman Dutton, chairman of the Board of Works, said an expenditure of nearly $8,000 for three months' use of the snow loader was hardly the department's idea of economic return, no matter how well the machine fitted into the job of snow removal.

It could be removed to the gravel pit, and fitted with an endless chain of buckets for loading gravel into trucks. Cost of exploiting this possibility would be $2,000 for the additional fittings.

Alderman Sullivan suggested that the chairman might enquire about the experience of other cities such as Sudbury, Niagara Falls, North Bay and so on, where machines have been in use for some time.

Other Suggestions

Alderman Dutton pointed out that the loader could also be used in taking earth away from ditch and other excavations. In other words the machine had certain versatility with minor changes in its parts.

Mayor Hamilton wants to buy a bucket shovel. "We should have had it for the last five or six years," he said.

Board of Works has on order now a power driven sidewalk snowplow of which early delivery is expected. Incidentally most of the sidewalk contractors were out early Tuesday morning and tried to do a good job in heavy snow that followed them almost as fast as they walked along.

Word has been received by Mrs. Jack Patte, 687 Water street that her son, Captain Samuel Ray Patte had died of wounds while serving with the 8th British Army in Italy.

Born in Peterborough 26 years ago, he attended the Queen Mary Public School and the Collegiate Institute graduating with his senior matriculation in June, 1935. In collegiate he took a very keen interest in the cadet corps and before graduation from that institution enlisted April 2, 1934, with the "C" Company 4th Machine Gun Battalion. In 1936 when the militia in Peterborough was re-organized Sam Patte went with the Machine Gun Company into the Prince of Wales Rangers and became connected with the signals section of the unit. On May 28th, 1940, he was commissioned and the same year qualified as a full lieutenant.

When the Training Centre in Peterborough opened Sam Patte was named to the staff. Anxious to go overseas he joined the artillery and after training at Petawawa he went overseas in January 1942 as a re-inforcement officer. He saw service in Sicily and Italy and on the field was promoted to the rank of Captain and for several months has been acting major.

Word of his being wounded was received last week and on Saturday his mother was advised that his condition was critical. On Tuesday Mrs. Patte was advised that her son had passed away.

Cash receipts at the office of City Clerk Outram last month were $1,138.60. Twenty-five marriage licenses accounted for $125. The police turned in $50 for dog tags, licenses for restaurants, dance hall, transient trader, theatre and so on amounted to $593.50. Forty-six motorists paid $1 each for traffic misdemeanors, and the city's "take" in police court fines was $254.46. The rest of the $424.10 goes to the Provincial Treasurer. Of the 96 births in November fifty-seven were of women residents of the city, and thirty-nine non-resident. Four babies were born of unmarried mothers.

Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E. Gift To Aid Victims Of Robot Bombs

Robot bombs again attacked the southeastern part of Britain Monday night, causing some damage and casualties. Coming at a time when there was some reason to hope that the worst part of this terror was over for people who had been under the strain of attacks from the air for about five years, those affected would be sorely hit, and specially with the season of Christmas less than two weeks distant.

What a prospect for their celebrations of this great day, and what fortitude they will need to assist them to rise above their present difficulties, for even the most patriotic ardor they may have would hardly be entirely shock proof to an ordeal of this type.

To help such people as these is a Heaven-given opportunity that also has a patriotism to the well-being of one's fellow Empire citizens involved. As such it should find a responsive note in the hearts of all both from a loyalty and humanitarian standpoint.

In this, the members of the Otonabee Chapter, IODE, have displayed these same qualities on quite a number of occasions in a substantial manner, under the leadership of both their former and present Regents, thereby demonstrating in a practical manner those objects for which they are associated together.

This is once again brought to mind through a fine donation of $100 recorded in their name today, towards the special donation now being raised by the fund to send over for Christmas, a most welcome assist towards this city and district effort which is much appreciated.

More Havelock Gifts.

Through the untiring interest by Miss Minnie Williams, fund representative in the town of Havelock, another three gifts from this nearby centre are reported today, all of whom have been associated with former Christmas donations of the fund in a like manner.

These include the members of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church, who are credited with $11, the Women's Association of the United Church, and the Havelock Women's Institute, all of them illustrating the devoted interest and work that has been shown by the members of the fair sex in this great struggle for liberty and freedom, in addition to the traditional place they hold in the hearts of all for their part in the celebration of Christmas Day itself.

The Peterborough Horticultural Society has also shown on many an occasion their interest in the fund, it being only a short while ago that they were represented in these columns with a gift of $20 which had accrued through members not taking up their premiums, which form a part of their annual memberships.

By this same means, a further gift of $10.50 has now been made possible when the final returns for the last season had been tabulated, which was forwarded by W. C. Wilks, their secretary, accompanied by a letter expressing good wishes for the reaching of the full objective for this Christmas donation, which also was much appreciated.

Centreville Sunday School.

All Sunday schools mark the happy season of Christmas in some form or other, this in itself having some bearing on the true significance it holds for all people adhering to the Christian faith, and without which it yould be of no value.

From the same Christian standpoint, there could hardly seem to be a more appropriate way in which they could celebrate this recurring anniversary, than by giving of their substance to help the boys and girls of other Sunday schools also have something with which to celebrate too, particularly when their lot is not cast upon such pleasant ways as those in this country enjoy.

A gift of $12 is listed from the Centreville Presbyterian Church, to carry this same Christmas message of joy to the boys and girls in Britain, whom the misfortunes of war have afflicted through the loss of their homes, and all that this means at this season of the year.

The Golden Link Rebekah Lodge No. 81 have also responded to this appeal in order that the children in Britain may have something for Christmas, their gift of $5 also being listed today.

Railway Asks Leniency On Walk Plan

Dave Bell, C.N.R. agent, wrote the council one of those "for goodness sake be reasonable" letters, and not one of the aldermen objected to its minor note of protest. The council recently asked the C.N.R. "to construct a proper pedestrian crossing on the south side of Wolfe street at Bethune street." That refers to the extension of the new walk laid in front of the pastics building of C.G.E. between Stewart and Bethune streets.

Mr. Bell's note was to the effect that the city's walk was laid three or four months ago, that winter was now here, and that generally in such circumstances the railway would appreciate consideration to the extent of notification at least about the same time the city was at work on a sidewalk that was bound eventually to involve the C.N.R.

A recent letter from the Western Clock Company regarding reduction of the reported traffic "bottleneck" at Hunter street east and Armour Road enclosed a clipping from the Examiner captioned "Council punctilious in answering letters.

That letter and especially the enclosure carried a little sting right into the council's company for the reason that at least the members like to acknowledge all communications even the frequent letters from Mr. Harvie. That at any rate is the intent, but there was an instance of oversight, and somebody in the clock and watch plant remembered the facts and quietly insinuated the heading and first paragraph of the article from the city hall into a follow-up reminder that the bottle-neck had somehow eluded the council.

Want Survey.

Actually, Mayor Hamilton, Alderman Dutton and Mr. Parsons looked over the ground and decided that a traffic survey or count should be made to obtain the fact of traffic volume at that corner.

"I don't know that this survey has been made," Alderman Dutton frankly said. "We looked at the southwest corner and felt that some of it could be cut down and the north-east corner could also be improved."

The letter from Westclox was referred to the Board, and Alderman Bradburn moved, seconded by Alderman Dutton, that the company be informed of what had been done so far, that the first request had not been ignored, as might have seemed, and that it was being reconsidered.

Peterborough Paying For Two Elections

For the first time in its recorded history Peterborough is paying for two full-dress elections in one year. City Treasurer Shaver mentioned to the council the fact of the 1945 elections falling in December, and asked for direction as to when the accounts should be paid. "We might as well clean them up now," Alderman Cotton said, and the council thereby overtakes the financing of that phase of the municipal affairs.

Aiding Police

LONDON, Dec. 13.—(CP-Reuter).—Britain's Home Guards, who only two weeks ago stood down with the virtual end of the threat of German invasion, has offered to help London police fight an increasing crime wave in areas of the capital still blacked out. The Home Guards proposed forming vigilance committees to assist the depleted police force.

STATIONED OVERSEAS—Sgt. George McCarthy is serving overseas with the London Fusiliers. Prior to enlisting with the Prince of Wales Rangers, he worked at Canada Packers. Sgt. McCarthy is the son of Dennis McCarthy, of Peterborough.

Blocked Roads Delay Cases

Storm conditions interfered with a number of cases that were to have been heard in the police court here today.

A charge of drunken driving against Gordon Stackhouse, Norwood, laid by Provincial Constable Archie Grayling of Havelock had to be adjourned for a week. Provincial Constable Price Morris said that because of the road conditions both parties had agreed to a postponement and had telephoned him accordingly. T. J. Carley, K.C., was present to represent Stackhouse and the case was adjourned for a week.

Similar action had to be taken in a careless driving charge against Mrs. Rose Sopha, R.R. 1, Havelock. "She lives seven miles off the highway and it was impossible for her to get in today," said Provincial Constable Price Morris who had laid the charge.

Failure to bring their vehicles to a full stop before entering a through street brought fines of $3 and $2.50 costs to the following motorists when they entered written pleas of guilty: G. D. Carlisle, P. DeCarlonis, Adam Campbell, Alex Ernest Hewitt, E. Ephgrave, E. A. Hunter, Leonard John Gauld, Wm. Phillips, John G. Patton, and John Cranston.

Three Casualties

Three men from the Peterborough district have been reported casualties, Sgt. Milton Robert Morton RCAF, son R. J. Morton, Port Hope, is missing; Spr. John Edward Parker, whose wife, Mrs. Margaret H. Parker, lives at RR 1 Peterborough, is wounded; and Gnr. Garnett Pankhurst, whose wife, Mrs. Edith H. Pankhurst, lives at Madoc, is slightly injured.

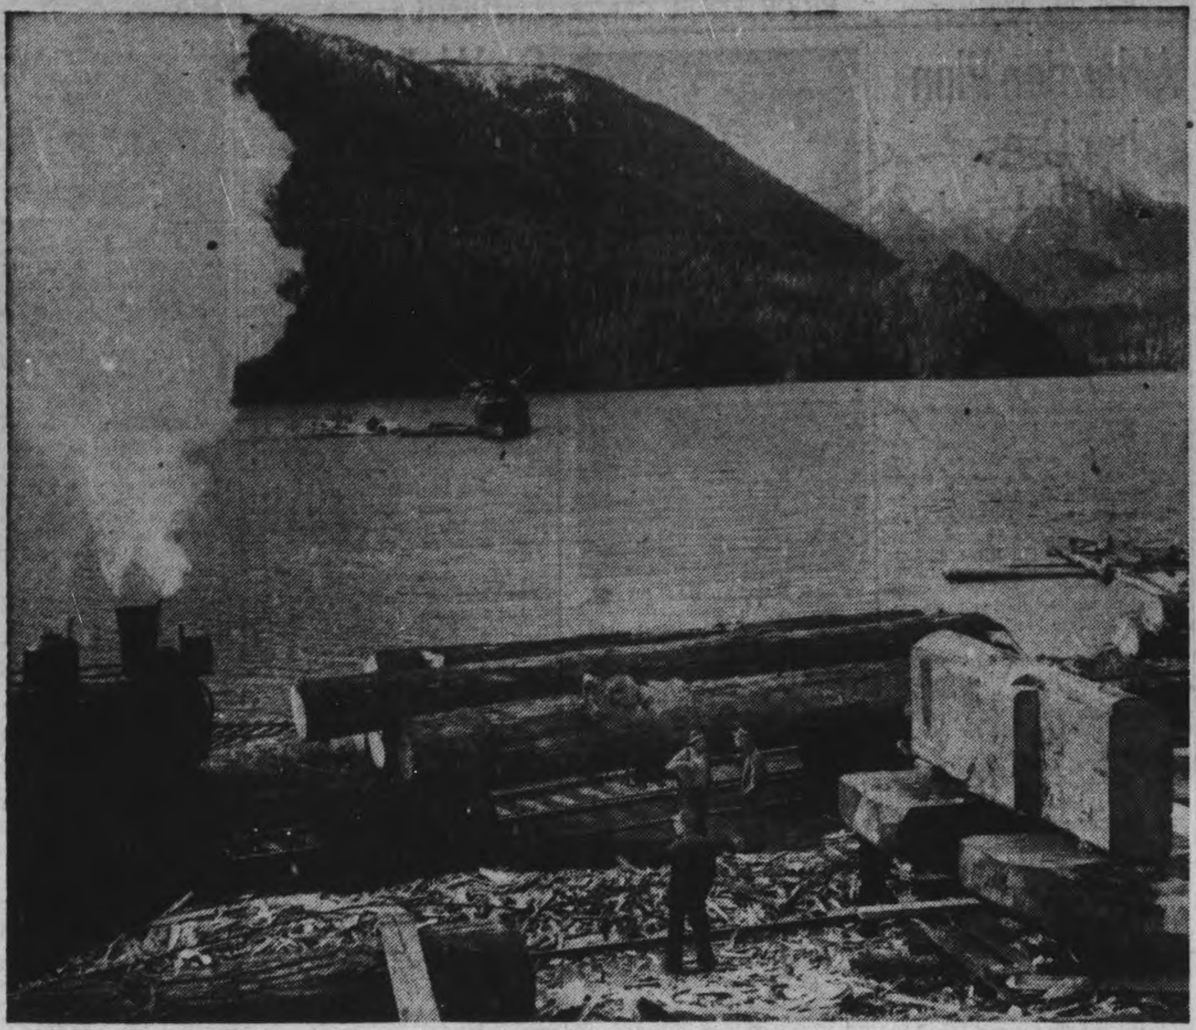
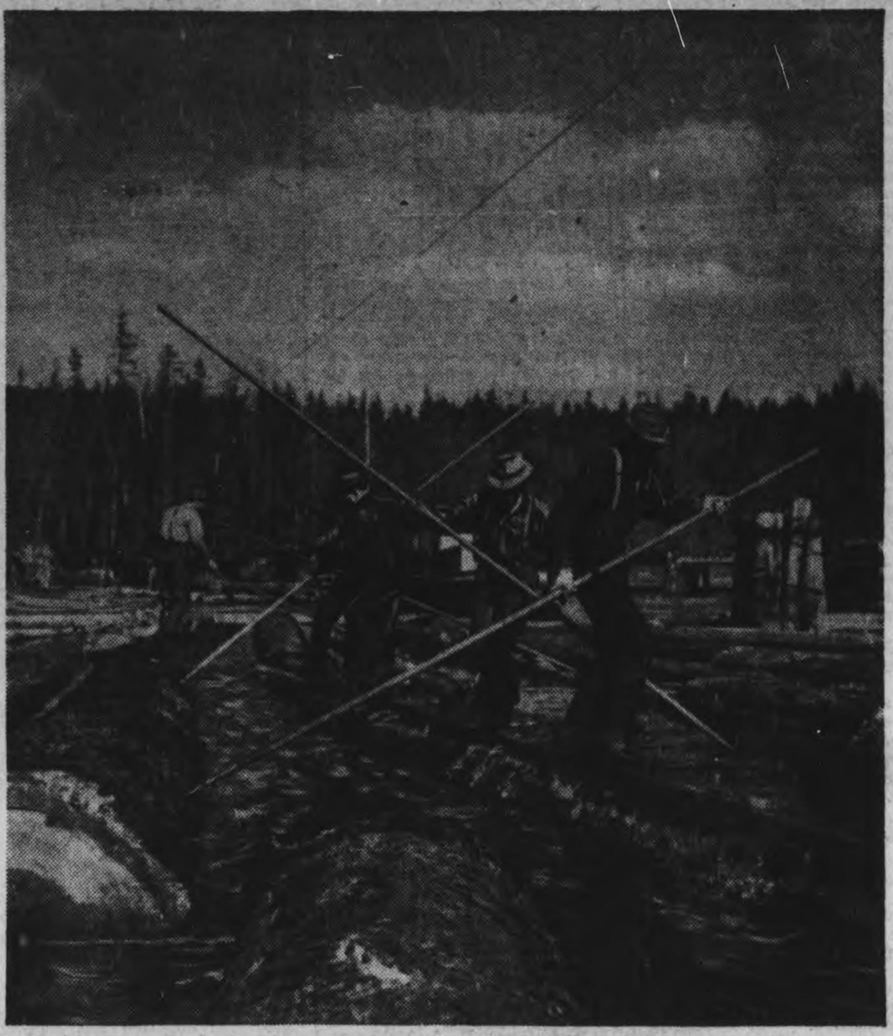
One of the Toughest Jobs on Canada's Home Front Turns Giant Spruce into Bombers





Canadian lumberjacks are striving to cut 200,000,000 feet of spruce log this year, much of it airplane Sitka spruce from Queen Charlotte Islands, just 50 miles from the Alaskan border. Train takes logs to the inlet where they are floated into huge rafts. The lumbermen daily walk five miles through bush to work.

Lumbermen work ten hours a day at muscle-building toil, are on piece work and can earn up to $15 a day, sawing and chopping seven-foot thick, 300-year-old trees. Boom men pole the mighty logs to make up a Davis raft.

Bill White starts up tree.

High riggers begin cutting.

So adept at leaping from log to log in the river or walking the whirling tree trunks are these lumber men, they can walk tightropes in best circus style.

Partner of giant Jack Crosse is Ollie Brackoos, a 38-year-old Scandinavian, 135-pound dynamo who hits blow for blow with his huge co-worker. They stick springboards in the tree bole and swing six-pound axes from this perch.

Norman Wagstaff poses beside a Sitka spruce to show the diameter. It is nine feet through, was nearly 300 feet in height, and close to 400 years old.

The top forty feet falls.

Labor Party Demands Armistice With Greece

LONDON, Dec. 13 (CP)—The Labor Party today adopted a resolution calling on the government to take steps to bring about an immediate armistice in Greece, but avoided any direct denunciation of Prime Minister Churchill's intervention policy.

After a hot fight, the resolution put forward by the party's executive committee caried by a card vote of 2,445,000 to 137,000. Approximately 1,000 delegates are attending the convention, but each represents a union of known membership.

Demands that the party break away from the government policy won thunderous applause but were beaten in the balloting after Ernest Bevin, Minister of Labor, bluntly told the delegates that the Labor ministers in the Churchill coalition government accepted full responsibility with the prime minister for British policy in Greece.

The Best Course

Mr. Bevin, head of Britain's biggest trade union—transport and general workers—said he appeared before the convention as a representative of the war cabinet, and bluntly declared:

"Whether you agree that the cabinet's judgment was right or wrong, at least it was arrived at on the basis of facts and with the sole objective of trying to the best we could to get Greece and other countries back on their feet."

He said the crisis in Greece developed because the left-wing E.L.A.S. forces broke an agreement reached with all parties in Greece to co-operate in keeping order until a free election and plebiscite could be held to decide whether the Greek people wanted a monarchy or republic.

Mr. Bevin said:

"I say to the public-boldly, I hope, because I am not going to hide anybody—that I am a party to the decisions which have been taken. Looking back I cannot bring it to my conscience that any one of the decisions was wrong. The stability of Greece is vital to the stability and ultimate settlement of the Balkans as a whole."

"The steps which have been taken in Greece are not the decision of Winston Churchill," said Bevin. "They are the decisions of the cabinet. I took part with my Labor colleagues in the whole of these discussions going over nearly four years trying to work out the best way to handle these terrifying problems that would arise at the end of the war."

Tempers of the delegates were at razor edge as Mr. Bevin spoke after Arthur Greenwood, chairman of the Labor Party's executive committee, cautioned against letting the debate develop into a "chastisement of Churchill."

"I would prefer it to be kept on the level of an attempt to champion the cause of the Greek people and their future," he said.

Cries of "freedom" came from some delegates on the floor as the discussion opened.

First criticism of the Greenwood resolution came from John Benstead, general secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, who said that while he would support it "the labor movement will not always be satisfied with milk and water resolutions."

"Why should Great Britain do all the ditry work of the world?" he asked. "Why has there not been complete gareement between America and Britain and Russia on this matter?"

"We will have to support it out of unity, but we regret the bankruptcy of our present leadership," said Lawrence Plover, representing the Miners Federation.

Mr. Benstead said labor promised in 1940 to stand behind Mr. Bevin and added "we shall do so to the bitter end."

"But we cannot be hamstrung all the time," he said.

An army captain in uniform — Raymond Blackburn — asserted British policy in Greece "has stuck in the gizzard of even big businessman Stettinius (United States secretary Edward Stettinius) and has made Moscow vomit."

The floor leader for the resolution, James Griffiths, warned that a "vote of no confidence in the government would be an indication to our labor colleagues in the cabinet to leave the government forthwith."

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, December 14

EXCITEMENT, commotion, stirring events may be the rule on this day, with a brilliant attack of major objectives or significant and far-reaching effect. While such efforts may have sound bases for hope and ideals yet there is indication of a sudden and disruptive force combining to disintegrate and disrupt. This resulting from impetuous, reckless or emotional behavior, even though the ideas may be clever, original or novel. The temptation may be in the direction of rash plunging or speculation of resources, where conservation might be the advisable course. Intentions may be laudable but hazards are too great.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves plunged in a year where extra vague speculation, reckless and groundless outlay of resources or funds may carry to the edge of unforeseen reversals, disintegration or upheavals. Though the ideas and urges may be brilliant, novel, and alluring the chances are too great for the time being, and may lead to dangers, grieveous loss and regrets. It would be wise not to plunge, indulge hunches, or to borrow or lend as fraud and treachery are imminent. Beware impetuous or erratic moves.

A child born on this day may be impulsive, tempestuous, erratic and emotional although its objectives may be praiseworthy, brilliant and kindly.

TORONTO, Dec. 13. — (CP). — Though a complete picture of the paralyzing blizzard which hit eastern, southern and western Ontario Monday and Tuesday has not yet been prepared, Dominion Meteorological officials here said the centre of the storm hit districts at the western end of Lake Ontario.

Hamilton, at the extreme western tip of the lake, had a 24-inch snowfall. Thirty-five miles east, on the south shore of the lake, St. Catharines had a snowfall of from two to five feet, while 43 miles east of Hamilton on the north short, Toronto suffered a 22½-inch fall.

Senate Delays Action On St. Lawrence Waterway

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (CP) — Action on the St. Lawrence waterway and power project was further delayed yesterday when the United States Senate, by a vote of 56 to 25, defeated an amendment which would tie the project into an omnibus rivers and harbors bill.

There had been little hope that this huge project would be authorized by the "lame duck" Congress which goes out of office next Jan. 20, but Senator George D. Aiken (Rep.-Vt.) made a valiant effort to get it through.

In leading the forces arrayed against the project Senator John H. Overton (Dem.-La.) opposed the idea of trying to make this agreement with Canada subject of a routine vote in Congress rather than a treaty which would require a two-thirds vote of the Senate.

The project, which calls for expenditure of some $280,000,000 for development of water power alone in the vicinity of Cornwall, Ont., was subject of a new agreement between Canada and the United States March 19, 1942.

Question Exists

Because an earlier treaty covering the project was defeated in the Senate after ratification by Canada's parliament, this new agreement was left for American disposal before Canada acts.

There has been a question of whether it should go through Congress as an executive agreement or a treaty and yesterday's action indicated a strong feeling against the former method of procedure.

Senator Overton also protested that Senator Aiken's amendment was brought in only at the last minute when there was no time to hold public hearings on it.

Mr. Aiken's reply to that is that few projects before Congress have been subject of more exhaustive committee hearings down through the years during which it has been periodically advanced.

The Vermont Senator today read a telegram from President Roosevelt in which the latter approved his action and urged that the project be approved as quickly as possible.

The message, answering an inquiry from Senator Aiken, said:

"Of course I want action as soon as possible on the St. Lawrence seaway. It is logical and inevitable. The quicker the better."

The amendment was lost on a non-party vote but it was noticeable that the bulk of the opponents were from the Middle West and South where opposition to the project is strongest.

It is expected a fresh effort to get Congressional approval will be initiated soon after the 79th Congress convenes in January.

JUST FOR WOMEN

By CONNIE NICHOLSON (Society Editor of The Examiner)

In this busy wartime season, the housewife is discovering that there are more drains and demands on her time and energy than ever before, and is wondering just how she can possibly keep her house in order, do her extra war work, and cram in some Christmas shopping on the side.

It's surprising how much energy simple household tasks can use in a very short time, leaving a woman fatigued and listless, with no pep or vigor for the little exacting tasks which combine to make the bulk of her daily work. Modern science has designed a great many time and energy savers for the household, and particularly the kitchen, but there are other hints and tips to be remembered which can considerably lighten daily work.

For example, not many women think that their clothes make difference to their efficiency, or the amount of energy they use, and indeed, don't think much about clothes for working around the house, except to make sure that they're not good Sunday ensembles. However, suitable clothes for work are just as vital as suitable utensils for work, and should be considered as a definite part of the necessary equipment for homemaking.

Watch Details

House dresses should be designed and fitted on free and easy lines, to allow for plenty of action, and comfortably roomy for bending and reaching. Unnecessary fatigue results from unconscious strain exerted by a dress which binds and pulls, and hampers work, as well as getting tempers on edge. A golf dress, with the action back, is an excellent type of housedress. Cotton frocks for housewear are ideal, since they are bright, light, and easily laundered.

Speaking of house dresses, particular attention should be given to the fit of the neck, shoulders and armhole seams, and here again the one who is handy with a needle can anticipate the required amount of freedom, and fit her dress accordingly. The length of sleeves is also important for comfort, with loose short sleeves being the best. Another little point which often puts a frayed edge on tempers is an apron strap which insists on slipping off her shoulder, and meandering down her arm. Aprons should be fitted with broad straps which defy and resist the temptation to slip, or narrower ones carefully clamped with a band of material across the back, sewn to each strap.

Shoes are also a vital consideration when thinking about comfort for housework. Business girls who are on their feet all day, in offices and stores, have learned from experience that comfortable shoes, with even heels of suitable heights, three-quarters to one and a half inches, are much the best for long wear. Fatigue can start at the feet and continue right up the body if not carefully checked. An uneven heel soon twists a shoe out of shape, and it consequently does not either protect the feet or properly support them, or the body. Carefully fitted shoes are the solution to this problem, and remember to change shoes when standing for long periods — feet really feel relieved and refreshed.

Shades of Carmen

The next time you see someone strolling along George street with a rose in his mouth, don't call for a strait-jacket, and resist the urge to run to the nearest policeman; just say to yourself: "Well, he's getting his quota of vitamin C for today."

Yes, although he certainly appears to be giving his imitation of Carmen, he really is maunching on a product which is one of the richest known sources of vitamin C. Rose hips, as they are called, are the small fleshy fruits which form on rose bushes after the flowers have gone, and can be eaten raw, or cooked and preserved, and still supply their vitamin value.

The hips are usually ready for gathering after the first frost, and when ripe are a vivid red color and slightly soft. They have a pleasant flavor, and can be eaten raw, chopped up in salads, sandwiches or desserts. They can be cooked also for use in jams and jellies.

More than 200 years ago, in England, recipes for rose hips were being used, and although they didn't know about vitamins, those old timers certainly knew what was good for them. Varieties which grow in western and northern districts are slightly higher in vitamin C value, while, in localities where citrus fruits are hard to obtain, rose hips are valuable for their contribution to the diet, since about two tablespoons of the juice or pulp contain approximately the same amount of vitamin C as one-half cup of tomato juice, or a small orange.

To prepare the hips for preserving, wash them, and remove the blossoms. Then cover them with boiling water and simmer until very tender. Rub them through a fine sieve, and pour into hot sterilized jars, processing them, partially sealed, for one hour, and then completing the seal.

Rose hip honey can be made by adding three-quarters of a pound of sugar to one pint of the puree, and simmering until the volume is reduced by fifty per cent. Pour into hot sterilized jars, and cover with wax. The honey is the consistency of bee's honey, and will be a delicious change to serve with waffles, or hot biscuits, keeping the family guessing, while they ask for more.

To Relieve Bad Cough Quickly, Mix This at Home

Does the Work in a Hurry. Saves Money. Easily Mixed.

Here's an old home mixture your mother probably used, and, for real results, it is still a most dependable medicine for distressing coughs. Try it once, and you'll swear by it.

It's no trouble at all. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking is needed. (Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.) Anyone can do it.

Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a 16 oz. bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of really splendid cough medicine—more than you could buy for four times the money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a family a long time. Children take it without the usual struggle.

This splendid home mixture has a three-fold action. You can feel it take hold at once. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. This explains why it gives such quick relief.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for its prompt action on throat membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

COSTUME CAMOUFLAGE—The bolero is quite the thing in evening dress circles this winter. Most women, while they enjoy the graceful line of a floor-length skirt, are prone to eschew the deep decolletage. Therefore the bolero, which does such a neat cover-up job. This gown comprises a black crepe sheath, its halter neckline and low-cut back camouflaged by the handsome white flannel bolero embroidered in jet. Warm too!—By Alice Alden.

Mission Circle Elects Officers

A fine spirit of worship prevailed throughout the Christmas meeting of the Jean Wagar Mission Circle of St. James United Church, last night, when twenty-seven members braved the storm to attend.

Christmas was the theme of the program, which opened with the playing of Christmas Carols by the pianist, Gladys Langton.

The president, Lilyan Huggins, occupied the chair and conducted the worship service "The Gift of the Wise Men". The Christmas story was read by Zetta Wood.

A responsive meditation on the same theme was carried out by four girls, Jean Hammond, Lottie Leggett, Jessie Martin and Vera Leggitt.

"Our gift of adoration and praise was the subject of an inspiring candle lighting service, emblematic of our love for those of other races, and included many familiar carols. The leader, Connie Wagar, was assisted by Jean Davis, Jessie Martin, Dorothy Martin, Gladys Meredith and Lilyan Huggins and Jeannie Cuff, who closed the service with prayer.

An introductory story of the origin of the carol was read by Jean Hammond.

Another version of the Christmas story, "The Star", was told by Connie Wagar, and illustrated by a realistic picture of the shepherd, the flock, and the star, which guided the wise men.

Reports were given by the secretary and treasurer, as well as secretaries of departments, showing the success resulting from their good work. The report of the nominating committee was presented by the convener, Jessie Martin and Rev. Mr. Craik proceeded with the election of officers for 1945 in the following slate: Advisory president, Jean Wagar; president, Lilyan Huggins; 1st vice-president, Dorothy Martin; 2nd vice-president, Jean Davis; 3rd vice-president, Olive Searles; recording secretary, Alma Hunter; corresponding secretary, Jean Hammond, treasurer, Connie Wagar.

Secretaries of departments: Christian stewardship, Vera Leggitt; temperance, Lottie Leggett; missionary monthly, Gladys Meredith; community friendship, Zetta Wood; assistant, Helen Moncrief; literature, Jessie Martin; supply, Mrs. D. Sedgwick; mite boxes, Jennie Cuff; pianist, Gladys Langton; assistant, Jennie Cuff; press, Mrs. Wagar; study book convener, the group leader for each month.

A pleasing feature of the meeting was the presentation of a life membership certificate and address to Vera Leggitt in appreciation of faithful service in the circle.

The address was read by the president Lilyan Huggins and the certificate presented by the advisory president.

Another gift was that to Mrs. Wagar, by her circle girls which included two current novels, presented on their behalf by Jessie Martin, in words of tribute. Rev. Mr. Craik offered the closing prayer and dismissed the meeting with the benediction.

A tricky Christmas contest was won by Jessie Martin and Jennie Cuff, after which refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Wagar and her committee, Misses Jean Hammond, Marion and Connie Wagar.

M. Emmerson Re-elected YPU President

Miss Margaret Emmerson was re-elected president of the St. Andrew's Young People's Union at their annual meeting, held Tuesday evening in the manse. Other members of the executive are as follows: Honorary president, Rev. Dr. E. W. The Union asked Dr. Young to announce again about the honor roll at the back of the church, in case there were names to be added to the already long list.

Homeless Waifs In Europe To Be Helped

Mrs. W. Addyman, 88 Lansdowne street, has been offficially named as the representative for the "Save the Children Fund" in Peterborough. She is planning to get the work under way as soon as possible, and has arranged for an opening tea for all interested people, to be held Friday afternoon at her home.

Admission will be a donation of a suitable article of children's clothing, a piece of material or any suitable article which could be used for the kits. The official headquarters is at 291 George street, and a display will be arranged for the window, showing the pieces most needed. Donations may be left there, and any information needed can be obtained on request.

The problem of rehabilitation after the war is causing grave concern among the peoples of the world and special committees are already discussing ways to surmount the difficulties. Certainly not the least of the rehabilitation question are the hundreds of thousands of homeless, often parentless, children, wandering aimlessly through Europe.

In many cases, they have formed themselves into bands, keeping together for mutual protection, and the comfort of being with each other. However, the plight of children throughout all of Europe is on the same serious level. The "Save the Children Fund", founded in 1920, has as its only objective, the rescuing of children in war-torn countries, and providing them with the necessities of life.

Although the Fund in concentrating today on its efforts to distribute material aid, such as food and clothing, it has a more important future objective in mind. The children will be preserved to build a new world and their faith will be renewed because of the help they have received.

The Canadian Committee of this international fund has its headquarters in Toronto, but smaller groups in many large cities across Canada are working to fill the "kits for Europe's children", the present objective of the Fund. These kits are designed for children up to the age of five years, and specifications are listed in folders distributed by the Fund.

DOROTHY DIX

SOLDIER-HUSBAND UNDULY JEALOUS

Majority Service Wives True as Steel, And Give No Cause For Gossip

DEAR MISS DIX—I have been married several years and have two children. I deeply and truly love my husband and he is a fine man and a good husband and father. I have been a good wife and mother also. But since he has gone into the service he has become jealous of me without any cause whatever, and it hurts me because he does not seem to trust me. I write him daily, tell him all the home news that I think will interest him and about everything I do, which is not very much as I do not go out dancing or to parties since he is away. My only entertainment is an occasional movie that I go to with a girl friend.

But he resents this, and his attitude is as though we were out man-hunting. It has gotten to the point where I don't know what to write him and my letters have become strange and unnatural. I love my husband and am living for the day when he can come home to stay. How can I convince him that I am being true to him and that I am worthy of his trust?

LONELY WIFE.

Jealousy Is Epidemic

ANSWER—So far as I can judge from the hundreds of letters that I get from both husbands and wives jealousy is epidemic among the married men in the service. It simply ravages them and causes far more suffering than any other of the hardships of war.

And the worst phase of the matter is that jealousy is as catching as the measles. Let one man in a regiment get it and he infects al the balance. He can't keep from talking about his symptoms and telling his suspicions of his wife, and it sets all of his buddies to wondering if their wives are not stepping out with other men or double-crossing them.

No doubt there are some wives whose husbands are overseas who are unfaithful to their husbands. That type of woman would have her affairs whether her husband was near or far, but the vast majority of service wives are as true as steel and are not only walking the straight and narrow paths, but watching their steps so that they will give no cause for gossip. And it is a poor reward for all the sacrifices they are making for their husbands not to trust them.

Surely in these times of strain and stress there is enough trouble in the world without husbands and wives adding to it by getting green-eyed.

Send Him About His Business

DEAR MISS DIX—What is a single girl to do about a young married man who pursues her all the time? This man tries to see me alone at every opportunity, but while I like him, I do not love him and I would never break up a home or marry a divorced man, I am a respectable young woman and do not want to ruin my reputation by having him make a fool of himself over me.

What can I do to make him come to his senses and see that he is wasting his time as far as I am concerned?

PUZZLED.

ANSWER — If you would put enough punch in your NOES and let him see that you mean what you say, you would certainly discourage his attentions. Somehow it seems to flatter most girls to have a married man pursue them and so they let him around them, instead of sending him about his business.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have been happily married for seventeen years until recently when my husband has fallen in love with a 19-year-old girl, who is married to a service man. My husband has brought this girl to my house and wanted me to let her live with us, but I refused and told him that he would have to choose between her or me. However, it seems that she cannot get a divorce until after the duration as her husband is in the army. So my husband has asked me to wait for him in case his love affair with the girl didn't turn out well. What shall I do?

A FAITHFUL WIFE.

ANSWER—You must not only be faithful, you must be dopey if you put up with a man like that. Tell him that the race of Patient Griseldas is extinct and that you refuse to be one of the wives who let their husbands kick them around.

Trustworthy

The word "TRUST" is sometimes associated with the idea of "combines" or "monopolies", and there are people who think that the business of a Trust Company has to do with controlling, in some mysterious way, great so-called "trusts" for the benefit of powerful vested interests.

Such a notion is as harmful as it is absurd but doubtless, in the course of time, this myth will be completely dispelled as the real nature of Trust Company services and their true value to people in all walks of life come to be more widely understood and appreciated.

Scobie Awaits Greek Reply

ATHENS, Dec. 13.—(AP).—Maj.-Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, British commander in Greece, awaited to-day the E.L.A.S. reply to his cease-firing terms amid growing indications that Leftist leaders were wavering in their determination to hold out until Premier George Papandreou would agree to quit.

Scobie's terms were presented yesterday to Miltiades Porphydrogenis, representative of the E.A.M. (National Liberation Front) and former Minister of Labor in Papandreou's cabinet, who was brought to British Headquarters in a British army vehicle.

After Porphyrogenis had departed for his own headquarters, it was reported that Svolos Tsirimokos, another former E.A.M. minister in Papandreou's cabinet, had sent a message to E.L.A.S. leaders urging them to accept Scobie's terms.

The terms laid down by Scobie provided that the E.L.A.S. forces in Attica province — which includes Athens—must lay down their arms at once and that elsewhere in Greece the E.L.A.S. must undertake to obey British orders. They were announced after Scobie had conferred with Field Marshal Alexander, Allied Mediterranean commander, who had hastened here to seek a speedy end to the hostilities.

Sporadic fighting in Athens continued throughout yesterday, and a British communique last night said E.L.A.S. snipers had filtered back into some sections of the city from which they previously had been cleared. Several large fires started by E.L.A.S. dynamiting and incendiaries burned unchecked.

R.A.F. fighter planes strafed groups of E.L.A.S. fighters trying to enter the capital.

Shortly after his conference with the E.A.M. delegate, Scobie drove through sections of the city where E.L.A.S. snipers were active, standing upright in the front seat of a scout car, to inspect forward British positions.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Cream soups are made by combining a very thin white sauce with a suitable quantity of cooked, mashed, strained vegetables, fish or meat pulp. Irradiated evaporated milk used instead of white sauce will greatly increase the food value and, if used for making the white sauce, will greatly increase the flavor. Some recipes will be given below for making delicious cream soups.

Directions For Making a Standard Cream Soup

4 cups milk, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons fat, 2 cups vegetable pulp or meat or fish pulp, salt and pepper.

1. Make a white sauce of the liquid, flour and fat.
2. Cook the vegetables or meat or fish until tender. Drain and mash through a sieve.
3. Combine the vegetable, meat or fish pulp with the white sauce.
4. Season, beat with the egg beater and serve.

Cream of Corn Soup

5 cups of corn, (fresh or canned), 5 cups of milk or part milk and part white stock, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons butter, salt and pepper, 2 egg yolks. Put the corn into a double boiler with one quart of milk and cook 20 minutes. Make a white sauce of the milk and corn, flour and fat. Add salt and pepper and cook five minutes. Rub the soup through a strainer, beat the yolks of the eggs well and add to them the remaining cup of cold milk. Stir this mixture into the soup and cook for a minute or two, stirring constantly. Beat and serve at once.

Fish Puree.

1 quart milk, 1 small onion (minced), 4 tablespoon flour, 4 tablespoons butter, 2 cups cooked fish, salt and pepper. Scald the minced onion in milk. Make a white sauce of the milk, flour and butter. Rub the cooked fish through a sieve. Combine the fish and sauce. Season and serve.

Story of Speech Told To Sorority Group

R. L. Hale, head of the English department of the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School, was guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Alpha Theta Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, in the Y.W.C.A. Mr. Hale gave a detailed and interesting account under the topic "The Story of Speech."

The speaker explained that the origin of speech itself was uncertain, but that it might be assumed that primitive man, who possessed the organs of sound and speech, learned to develop and produce sounds by imitating sounds of wild animals, the wind, and water, and so on. "However, he went on, "the history of our language is a more extensive and authentic discovery. We know that our alphabet was originally derived from the Egyptian hieroglyphs which were carried in Sinai, Phoenicia and Greece, to be picked up finally by the Romans, and gradually spread throughout all Western Europe.

Mr. Hale continued by explaining that the Greek alphabet was derived in a large part from a Semitic source, and illustrated the similarity between the Hebrew alphabet and the Greek alphabet, pointing out that while the Hebrew alphabet represented actual words, the Greek letters had absolutely no meaning, showing that language had progressed through to the Greek.

Referring to the English language, Mr. Hale said that it belonged to the Aryan group, the Aryan parent speech being divided and sub-divided into several smaller groups, with the Sanskrit-Persian group and the European group as the two main sub-headings. "The European group, in which we are most interested," he went on, "is divided into the Southern and Northern European group, the former including the Greek language as well as the Italic, (Latin, French, Rumanian), and the Celtic (Welsh, Irish, Gaelic and so on) tongues. The Northern European group includes the Germanic or Teutonic speech, from which is derived the English language."

He related briefly the history of the English language, referring to the various invasions of other peoples, with their languages, gradually combining, but keeping certain characteristics, particularly in accents. Using the blackboard to illustrate his points, he showed examples of the "borrowings" from other languages, which are still continuing.

Final arrangements were made for the Christmas party, to be held December 18 in the Y.W.C.A. Members of the Chapter will exchange Christmas presents in the form of toys, which will later be given to the Y.W. to distribute among the kiddies at their annual Christmas party. Mrs. G. S. Cameron, social sponsor and Senator Iva C. Fallis, will be extended social invitation.

The invitation to Life was in charge of Mrs. J. King. Miss Betty MacDonald read a paper "A Visit to International," while Miss Margaret Preston outlined the parliamentary procedure for Beta Sigma Phi. Mrs. M. Holt, director of the Chapter, introduced Mr. Hale, and Mrs. King moved the vote of thanks. Mrs. A. S. MacRae presided.

WHAT GUIDES THE LEAD

WHAT THE declarer accomplishes is dependent countless times on the lead—the suit chosen, the particular card of the suit and the direction of it, either up to or through certain holdings. The lead, in addition, is influenced by what is the suit or No Trump, how high it is, and what was the bidding which produced it. In the auction period, it is well for the stronger side to bear all of these factors in mind as likely to influence the action against which it must later cope.

There was the way one pair in a duplicate bid this deal. The spade 3 was led, and exactly the contract got made, with the loss of a trick each in spades and diamonds.

Some Souths answered the opening 1-Heart with 3-Clubs, though their strength was all in one suit. That bid got followed by all sorts of sequences, some resulting in contracts of 7-Clubs down two, some in 6-Clubs, and one in 6-No Trumps by North, which was set one doubled because East made the right kind of small-slam lead of the heart K. He later scored his diamond A and heart Q.

Top went to the pair which bid most conservatively. After North's 1-Heart, South bid only 2-Clubs, then North 2-Diamonds, South 3-Clubs and North 3-No Trumps. Against that East led his spade 2 —the unbid suit — especially because he apparently needed a bunch of tricks to set a mere contract for nine tricks. North got that trick with the Q and led the diamond K to knock out the A. He took the spade return, so scored two tricks in that suit, one in hearts, two in diamonds and the remainder in clubs.

Scobie Awaits Greek Reply

ATHENS, Dec. 13.—(AP).—Maj.-Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, British commander in Greece, awaited to-day the E.L.A.S. reply to his cease-firing terms amid growing indications that Leftist leaders were wavering in their determination to hold out until Premier George Papandreou would agree to quit.

Scobie's terms were presented yesterday to Miltiades Porphydrogenis, representative of the E.A.M. (National Liberation Front) and former Minister of Labor in Papandreou's cabinet, who was brought to British Headquarters in a British army vehicle.

After Porphyrogenis had departed for his own headquarters, it was reported that Svolos Tsirimokos, another former E.A.M. minister in Papandreou's cabinet, had sent a message to E.L.A.S. leaders urging them to accept Scobie's terms.

The terms laid down by Scobie provided that the E.L.A.S. forces in Attica province — which includes Athens—must lay down their arms at once and that elsewhere in Greece the E.L.A.S. must undertake to obey British orders. They were announced after Scobie had conferred with Field Marshal Alexander, Allied Mediterranean commander, who had hastened here to seek a speedy end to the hostilities.

Sporadic fighting in Athens continued throughout yesterday, and a British communique last night said E.L.A.S. snipers had filtered back into some sections of the city from which they previously had been cleared. Several large fires started by E.L.A.S. dynamiting and incendiaries burned unchecked.

R.A.F. fighter planes strafed groups of E.L.A.S. fighters trying to enter the capital.

Shortly after his conference with the E.A.M. delegate, Scobie drove through sections of the city where E.L.A.S. snipers were active, standing upright in the front seat of a scout car, to inspect forward British positions.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Cream soups are made by combining a very thin white sauce with a suitable quantity of cooked, mashed, strained vegetables, fish or meat pulp. Irradiated evaporated milk used instead of white sauce will greatly increase the food value and, if used for making the white sauce, will greatly increase the flavor. Some recipes will be given below for making delicious cream soups.

Directions For Making a Standard Cream Soup

4 cups milk, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons fat, 2 cups vegetable pulp or meat or fish pulp, salt and pepper.

1. Make a white sauce of the liquid, flour and fat.
2. Cook the vegetables or meat or fish until tender. Drain and mash through a sieve.
3. Combine the vegetable, meat or fish pulp with the white sauce.
4. Season, beat with the egg beater and serve.

Cream of Corn Soup

5 cups of corn, (fresh or canned), 5 cups of milk or part milk and part white stock, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons butter, salt and pepper, 2 egg yolks. Put the corn into a double boiler with one quart of milk and cook 20 minutes. Make a white sauce of the milk and corn, flour and fat. Add salt and pepper and cook five minutes. Rub the soup through a strainer, beat the yolks of the eggs well and add to them the remaining cup of cold milk. Stir this mixture into the soup and cook for a minute or two, stirring constantly. Beat and serve at once.

Fish Puree.

1 quart milk, 1 small onion (minced), 4 tablespoon flour, 4 tablespoons butter, 2 cups cooked fish, salt and pepper. Scald the minced onion in milk. Make a white sauce of the milk, flour and butter. Rub the cooked fish through a sieve. Combine the fish and sauce. Season and serve.

Story of Speech Told To Sorority Group

R. L. Hale, head of the English department of the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School, was guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Alpha Theta Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, in the Y.W.C.A. Mr. Hale gave a detailed and interesting account under the topic "The Story of Speech."

The speaker explained that the origin of speech itself was uncertain, but that it might be assumed that primitive man, who possessed the organs of sound and speech, learned to develop and produce sounds by imitating sounds of wild animals, the wind, and water, and so on. "However, he went on, "the history of our language is a more extensive and authentic discovery. We know that our alphabet was originally derived from the Egyptian hieroglyphs which were carried in Sinai, Phoenicia and Greece, to be picked up finally by the Romans, and gradually spread throughout all Western Europe.

Mr. Hale continued by explaining that the Greek alphabet was derived in a large part from a Semitic source, and illustrated the similarity between the Hebrew alphabet and the Greek alphabet, pointing out that while the Hebrew alphabet represented actual words, the Greek letters had absolutely no meaning, showing that language had progressed through to the Greek.

Referring to the English language, Mr. Hale said that it belonged to the Aryan group, the Aryan parent speech being divided and sub-divided into several smaller groups, with the Sanskrit-Persian group and the European group as the two main sub-headings. "The European group, in which we are most interested," he went on, "is divided into the Southern and Northern European group, the former including the Greek language as well as the Italic, (Latin, French, Rumanian), and the Celtic (Welsh, Irish, Gaelic and so on) tongues. The Northern European group includes the Germanic or Teutonic speech, from which is derived the English language."

He related briefly the history of the English language, referring to the various invasions of other peoples, with their languages, gradually combining, but keeping certain characteristics, particularly in accents. Using the blackboard to illustrate his points, he showed examples of the "borrowings" from other languages, which are still continuing.

Final arrangements were made for the Christmas party, to be held December 18 in the Y.W.C.A. Members of the Chapter will exchange Christmas presents in the form of toys, which will later be given to the Y.W. to distribute among the kiddies at their annual Christmas party. Mrs. G. S. Cameron, social sponsor and Senator Iva C. Fallis, will be extended social invitation.

The invitation to Life was in charge of Mrs. J. King. Miss Betty MacDonald read a paper "A Visit to International," while Miss Margaret Preston outlined the parliamentary procedure for Beta Sigma Phi. Mrs. M. Holt, director of the Chapter, introduced Mr. Hale, and Mrs. King moved the vote of thanks. Mrs. A. S. MacRae presided.

Senate To Vote On Waterway

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP)—An agreement was reached in the senate yesterday to vote today on the proposed St. Lawrence hydro-electric power and seaway development estimated to cost between $200,000,000 and $400,000,000.

Senator George Aiken (Rep.-Vt.), who had discussed the project for several days, introduced it as an amendment to the $600,000,000 post-war rivers and harbors bill with a promise from Senator John Overton (Dem.-La.) that there will be no motion to table it.

Senator Overton previously was prepared to make such a motion, which would not be subject to debate. Senator Aiken had held up formal offering of the amendment to get around that chance that we would be choked off.

Senators Aiken and Overton agreed to a vote on the seaway amendment not later than 3 p.m. today. When that is out of the way, the Senate can vote finally on the rivers and harbors bill on which debate was concluded last week.

Queer Situation Exists In Greece

By STEPHEN BARBER
Associated Press War Correspondent

ATHENS, Dec. 11 — (Delayed) — (AP). — The hatred that exists between the Partisans of the Greek Left and Right is causing lies, accusations and expressions of bitterness to fly about even more thickly than bullets in the battle for Athens.

The British are holding back to a great extent for fear of doing unnecessary damage, but the same cannot be said for the Greeks.

Hospitals and churches have been turned into military objectives. The Red Cross has been fired on by the E.L.A.S., and in fairness, I must say that I have seen the Red Cross abused by the Greek Civil Police.

British Tommies, who cannot be accused by political bias, have told me that hospital nurses have been discovered with grenades secreted in their blouses, "patients" have been found covered with fake bandages, and food baskets have been stuffed with ammunition.

Some authoritative quarters think there is more than one German agent at work here.

One E.L.A.S. officer who was taken prisoner, a Major Georgiades told me his battalion included 18 Italians and that in other formations there were several dozen Germans who had deserted from the Nazi army. He said that Russians with the E.L.A.S. left 16 days ago when they were ordered to do so by the Soviet Mission in Athens.

Generally, the prisoners that I have interviewed seemed cowed, bewildered and full of misinformation —presumably pumped into them to make them fight.

No Remedy Found For Cigar Shortage In Canada

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Dec. 13 — (CP) — Cigar-smokers, smack against a crisis, today had the sympathy of the prices board but there was no indication anything could be done to ease the existing shortage of stogies.

Officials said they had reports of shortages from coast to coast, with the loudest complaint about the inability to obtain the cheaper varieties. They said the prices ceiling had been applied to all types, and that while there were some new shapes and varieties on the market in the higher price ranges all had been passed on by the board and the price approved.

"The Canadian cigar shortage can be overcome in one of two ways—by breaking the price ceiling or by subsidizing the import of wrappings and some other tobacco requirements," said a board authority.

"Cigars are looked on as a luxury, and we do not propose to subsidize imports. The price ceiling has been held on essentials, and we do not propose to break it for cigars."

David Sim, tobacco administrator said that difficulties in cigar supplies started with the occupation of Sumatra and Java by the Japanese and the consequent cut-off in supplies of leaf from these countries.

Won't Raise Prices.

Cuban leaf has risen in price and the United States raised its price ceiling to meet this situation. Canada had not done so, and Canadian manufacturers ran into difficulty in producing the cheaper brands in particular under the price ceiling.

Apart from the wrappings, Canada has come close to self-sufficiency in the production of cigar tobacco, with more than 80 per cent of the leaf used in cigars taken from domestic production, compared with less than 50 per cent in 1930.

But the Canadian cigar-makers now are feeling the pinch of short production in 1943, when cigar tobacco output was 2,270,000 pounds against an estimated 4,148,000 in 1944 and 4,199,000 in 1942.

With the 1944 crop properly cured and coming on the market late next year, an improvement in the cigar situation was considered probable.

In the meantime, tobacco stores were imposing their own rations on customers, with a common limit of five six-cent cigars to a single buyer —when they were available.

Plan Control Of Germany

By FLORA LEWIS
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—(AP)—Allied officials in London now are drawing up recommendations for long-range control of Germany.

This was learned today, along with the fact that the question of economic treatment, which caused a cabinet row in Washington this fall, is being considered.

The agreement signed by representatives of the European advisory commission on military occupation plans is still being reviewed in the various capitals. There is every expectation, however, that it will be approved because Britain, Russia and the United States sanctioned the plan point by point as it was written.

This leaves the commission to go on to plan for final elimination of the Nazis, demilitarization of Germany, and controls to make it impossible for Berlin to build another war machine.

The only open question on the occupation plan is France, which did not take part in writing the agreement because she was not made a member of the commission until after it was completed.

However, Moscow reports indicate Gen. De Gaulle went into detailed discussions with Premier Stalin on plans for Germany.

The United States attitude on economic treatment of Germany now has been settled, it is understood, on the basis that German industry should be strictly controlled to prevent any possible war use, but that production can be continued to the extent that Europe needs it.

Diplomats Expect Russian Approval

LONDON, Dec. 13—(CP)—Diplomats here expect momentarily an announcement that Soviet Russia has recognized the Lublin Polish committee as the provisional government of Poland.

This Soviet-sponsored group, formally the Polish Committee of National Liberation, is in oppositios to the Polish government established here and recognized by Britain and the United States.

A Moscow dispatch, supporting the London forecast, said reports from Poland published in Moscow told of "increased agitation among Poles for quick transformation of the Polish committee into a provisional government."

Soviet Guns Pulverize City Suburbs

Anti-Tank Defences Ring Capital Air Clashes Grow

MOSCOW, Dec. 14 (AP)—Russian siege guns laid down a heavy barrage on Budapest's closest suburbs today as Soviet armored columns fought forward yard by yard, seven miles north and 10 miles east of the Hungarian capital.

Shells plastered Ujpest and Rakospalota, north of the city, and the big suburb of Kispet, east of Budapest, from positions gained with the capture of two strongholds on the heavily-fortified approaches to Pest, sector of the capital on the east banks of the Danube.

The midnight Soviet communique announced the capture of these strong points—Kisalag, seven miles northeast of Budapest, and Isaszeg, 10 miles due east, in the stepped-up drive by Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's 2nd Ukraine Army.

It was still not clear whether an all-out frontal assault on Budapest had begun, but at the rate the Russians were going it appeared that Pest itself might soon be under fire.

Front dispatches have indicated the Germans have an unusually strong ring of anti-tank defences about the capital, built largely by forced labor working around the clock under Gestapo orders. Between main points the Nazis have studded the territory with machine-guns and smaller anti-tank weapons.

Mine Fields

Red Army sappers today were reported grappling with the problem of mine fields laid ahead of the anti-tank belt by the German and Hungarian defenders.

Some of the sharpest air clashes since the siege of Sevastopol were reported taking place as the Luftwaffe sought to check the Red Army big guns with constant bombings.

With the capture of Abob in this sector the Russians were only 17 miles south of Szepsi (Moldava), a three-way road junction on the Bodva River 13 miles southeast of Kassa.

Chinese Troops Gain 210 Miles

WITH CHINESE TROOPS IN NORTH BURMA, Dec. 14—(AP).—Leading elements of the veteran 22nd Chinese Division, marching south through Burma, have occupied the village of Tonkwa, 120 air miles northeast of Mandalay and 70 miles from Lashio, where the railway from Rangoon connects with the Burma Road.

The 22nd's drive—which now has covered 210 miles—represents the deepest Allied penetration into Burma. The unit—which left Kamaing the middle of October—now is 50 miles in front of the most advanced British and Chinese forces approaching along the Mandalay railway.

Fleeing in front of the Chinese for 50 miles without pausing the Japanese finally made a stand at Shwegu on the Irrawaddy River. After a day-long battle the Japanese broke off the engagement and the chase was resumed for another 50 miles until the Chinese caught up with the enemy again at Tonkwa, which they stormed and captured.

The 22nd, part of the Chinese 6th Army, is under the command of Gen. Lee Tao.

This force now is in position to do one of four things:

1. Cut the Burma Road between Lashio and Muse.
2. Cut off the Japanese retreating before the British and Chinese along the Mandalay railway corridor.
3. Storm the Japanese stronghold on Namkham.
4. Push on toward Mandalay.

U.S. Opposes Political Moves

By FLORA LEWIS—Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14—(AP).—Authoritative United States officials declared flatly today that the United States maintains a firm stand opposed to the development of spheres of influence in Europe, and denied unqualifiedly that President Roosevelt sanctioned any Anglo-Russian agreement dividing up political interests in the Balkans. Spokesmen for the Labor Ministers in the British Coalition Cabinet had said Russia and Mr. Roosevelt had agreed that Britain undertake the "main problem of Greece."

The U.S. government has cautioned both Britain and Russia several times against allowing military agreements on zones of operations to draw boundaries of political influence, the U.S. officials asserted.

The danger that military arrangements would turn into spheres of influence is well recognized, they said.

Prime Minister Churchill, according to these highly placed officials, has assured the United States that Britain does not seek special areas of political privilege.

While Russia has not given such flat promises, it was said, Premier Stalin has given no signs of disagreement with the American position.

Despite all this, there has lately been outspoken discussion by members of Congress of what some of them call improper activity by both Britain and Russia. Senator Brooks (Rep. Ill.) said yesterday that these two are "in a race for the future balance of power on the European continent."

Britain, Russia, China and the United States all committed themselves against exclusive spheres by the Moscow declaration, in the eyes of American diplomats.

The Dumbarton Oaks document, they said, paved the way for implementation of the policy of the joint action. The world security plan does provide for regional organizations, but these come under the supervision of the International Council.

Eight Hours On Road Mother Dies In Hospital

LOCKPORT, N.Y., Dec. 14 — A mother whose six-mile trip to Lockport City Hospital over snow-blocked roads consumed eight hours died yesterday a few hours after her baby was born dead.

Efforts to get the mother, Mrs. Winifred Hammond, 28, of Gasport, to the hospital were begun Tuesday afternoon. The ambulance carrying her stalled in a drift and a county snowplow sent to free the ambulance broke down. A second snowplow extricated the ambulance.

Army Paper Lauds British Says War Effort Unmatched

PARIS, Dec. 14—(AP).—The United States army newspaper Stars and Stripes, talked back editorially yesterday to the Army and Navy journal's criticism of British war policy with a recital of Britain's war record, summing up: "We'll say the record so far is on the side of Winnie Churchill and the British.

"We are fighting this war beside them. We would like to fight the peace beside them, too."

The service paper referred to a recent Army and Navy Journal editorial which accused Britain of showing "greater preoccupation" with preserving Empire lifelines than with the defeat of Germany.

Recalling Prime Minister Churchill's Thanksgiving Day speech Stars and Stripes said the public should review the facts.

Under a photo of Mr. Churchill, the paper recalled his accession to the Prime Ministry.

"For almost two years thereafter, Britain fought the Germans almost alone. One out of every three houses in England, Scotland and Wales has felt the blast of German bombs. One out of every three Britishers...—4,500,000 of them—are in the armed services....

"The ratio of Britishers in the services is higher than ours. Battle casualties were recently reported at 563,000—12 per cent. of her strength as against five per cent. of ours. In addition, Britain has suffered 57,298 civilian dead and 78,918 wounded."

The editorial added that Britain had lost two-thirds of the shipping she had at the beginning of the war and recounted British achievements in turning out planes, tanks and guns "on reduced rations in blacked-out cities, in homes and factories never far from the sick smell of death."

These facts, said Stars and Stripes, "don't quite gee up with the Army and Navy Journal's slant on Britain's war role."

Allies Hold 14 Miles Along River

Germans Flooding Roer River Through Sluices

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Dec. 14 (CP)—The American 1st and 9th Armies have won a 14-mile stretch along the flooded Roer River from Linnich to a point 2,500 yards northwest of besieged Duren, it was announced today at Supreme Headquarters.

This placed the Americans within 20½ miles of Cologne, their nearest approach, at a point downstream from Duren, through which the river flows north toward the sea.

Twenty miles farther south, other units of the 1st Army moving along both sides of the river near its source overran a fourth hamlet, Kesternich, in an advance of a mile or more.

The 1st and 9th between them were swiftly wiping out the last stubborn German remnants west of the river in a campaign seeking to envelop the Cologne plain with its 21 muddy miles to the Rhine.

Kesternich lies east of previously taken Rollesbroich, Nickerath and Simmerath and about 3,000 yards from the Roer.

U.S. 9th Army troops 20 miles to the north sprang into action and seized the Inde River town of Vichhofen, two miles south of Julich.

For once, the 1st Army had bright sunny weather which promised help from the air in budging the stubborn Germans from their trenches and bunkers. The 1st Army was on the enemy's side of the Roer headwaters in the area four miles southeast of Monschau, and moving between the Hurtgen and Monschau forests.

Before besieged Duren, the 83rd Division advanced to the western outskirts of Gurzenich, a suburb of the city of 39,000, only a few hundred yards from the flooded river.

A lull continued along the 21st Army Group front in the north where no ground action has been reported for several days from sectors in the De Wyler Forest in Germany and along the Maas in Hol-

Jap Casualties Terrific On Leyte

GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Dec. 14—(AP)—Great numbers of Japanese were being killed in the mountains east of captured Ormoc as the Americans on Leyte put the pressure on the south end of a trap in bloody Ormoc corridor, headquarters reported today.

Other enemy troops drowned Tuesday night in a strange attempt to send three small freighters, loaded with soldiers, into Ormoc. The Japanese evidently were unaware the west Leyte port was in American hands when shore fire sent all three to the bottom.

Gen. MacArthur said enemy losses on the ground were "extraordinarily heavy" as the U.S. 7th Division, which helped take the important port Sunday, pursued scattered Japanese "fighting desperately to free themselves, over the mountain trails."

The 77th Division regrouped at Ormoc and sent patrols north to probe enemy strength to the rear of the Yamashita Line, while 32nd Division forces, which have been battling the weather as well as stubborn Japanese for weeks, maintained frontal pressure from the north.

Thousands of crack imperial troops are in the corridor, deprived of their principal reinforcement port of Ormoc. Their supplies now must come by a treacherous road from Palompon, a secondary seaport at best.

For the third successive day American planes struck at oil installations on Borneo. Refinery buildings, six large oil tanks and two reservoirs were set ablaze by fighters at Tarakan. Waterfront installations at Sandakan were effectively bombed by patrol planes, and five coastal vessels were sunk or damaged.

British Halt E.L.A.S. Drive Most Dangerous Phase Passed

By STEPHEN BARBER—Associated Press Staff Writer

ATHENS, Dec. 14 — (AP). — The drive of E.L.A.S. forces — the militia of the Leftist E.A.M. party — on the centre of Athens appeared today to have been halted and British leaders said the most dangerous phase in the 12-day turmoil apparently had passed. Heavy firing which shook the city earlier this week gave way to sporadic machine-gun bursts and the last 24 hours were the quietest of any like period since the fighting broke out between the Leftists on the one hand and Greek forces and British troops on the other Military authorities, however, banned civilians from the streets except between noon and 2 p.m.

British and Greek mountain brigade forces held an area approximately three miles square in the centre of Athens, and extended their holdings in Piraeus to about five square miles despite local ELAS attacks. Reinforcements made the British position more secure.

Rumors persisted that E.L.A.S. leaders would attempt to reach an agreement with Maj.-Gen. R. M. Scobie, British commander, and would send a representative with counter-proposals. But it was understood the British terms remained unchanged. The British demands included evacuation of Attica by the E.L.A.S., surrender of their arms and the disbandment of private armies.

Plan Fails.

British authorities expressed belief the E.L.A.S. had planned to take the centre of the city with a two-pronged drive from the northwest and southwest, and now that this had failed the Leftist leaders might have decided to seek terms.

Gen. Nicolas Placteras, who returned from abroad at the invitation of Premier George Papanderou, conferred for two hours with Papanderou.

Indications that the E.L.A.S. still were militant came from the E.L.A.S.-held Athens radio, which broadcast: "Greeks, defend your Fatherland in the towns and ports. To the barricades! Everyone is to take up arms."

These reports said the E.L.A.S.—militia of the leftist E.A.M. party—were ready to accept British terms on conditions that they would not be prosecuted as a party and that Scobie would agree to formation of a new national government headed by someone other than Premier George Papandreou. It was said the E.L.A.S. proposals would be carried to Scobie by Alexander Svolos, former leftist finance minister in Papandreou's cabinet.

(The Paris radio reported today that the Athens transmitter, now in the hands of the E.L.A.S., had broadcast a call to arms. "Greeks, defend your fatherland in the towns and ports," the call said. "To the barricades. Everyone is to take up arms.")

British troops yesterday succeeded in clearing the Kallipolis peninsula and most of Piraeus, the port of Athens, where the British-Greek naval headquarters had benn isolated.

Many Killed

Sharp fighting, however, centred around the British barracks northeast of the centre of Athens, which E.L.A.S. forces stormed early in the day. Some of the attackers penetrated the walls of the compound before they were driven back with considerable losses.

Tension continued in the Salonika and Patras areas and considerable movement of guerilla formations was

French Civilians Trapped With Huns Want Permission To Leave Ports

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE, Dec. 14 — (AP). — Maj.-Gen. Harry J. Malony, whose infantry and artillery have 50,000 Germans bottled in the French ports of Lorient and St. Nazaire, must deal quickly with the political problem of what to do with thousands of French civilians locked in with the Germans and clamoring to come out.

Under Geneva conventions an occupying army is responsible for the welfare of the civilian population within an occupied area, but the desperate food shortage in Lorient, and St. Nazaire has placed civilian health in peril. At the same time French civilians are being killed by artillery fire.

Committees representing every faction of French civil life are pleading for leniency.

Removal of the civilians would help the Germans, who therefore have taken advantage of the situation by making repeated overtures to the Americans, promising cessation of hostilities until the civilians are taken out.

Until a decision is reached the current order is "nothing goes in and nothing goes out."

Coastguard Cutters Smash Attempt At Greenland Base

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14—(AP).—Four United States coastguard cutters, operating in ice-packed Arctic waters, smashed a "determined Nazi effort" to establish fortified bases in Greenland, the Navy reported today. One German armed trawler was sunk, another captured, a third was found abandoned, 60 prisoners were taken and a radio station was captured and destroyed, the Navy said.

In addition a German bomber attack was beaten off in the series of actions which lasted from July to late October.

Three of the coastguard cutters were damaged by crushing icepacks; one, the Northwind, had to be towed 3,000 miles for repairs.

The climax of the battle through ice floes and along frozen shores came October 16 when the cutters Eastwind and Southwind captured the German armed trawler Externsteine and its crew of four officers and 30 men.

Salvo after salvo of shells flashed across the icepacks before the German craft was cornered in a pocket formed by ice floes and forced to surrender.

Twelve days before that engagement, the Eastwind, skippered by Capt. Charles W. Thomas of Long Beach, Calif., task force commander, had landed two platoons of sailors on Little Koldewey Island, 800 miles from the North Pole.

These landing parties, in a pre-

Superforts Raid Thailand Bases

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 —(AP)—Superfortresses roared across the Bay of Bengal today to hit military targets in Japanese - dominated Thailand.

The war department said a substantial force of B29s of the 20th Bomber Command mounted the attack from bases in India.

No additional details were released.

Thailand last was hit by the big bombers Nov. 27. The rail centre of Bangkok—heart of the enemy rail system radiating to Singapore, Burma and Indo-China — was struck with heavy loads of demolition bombs. All planes returned.

Superfortresses of the 20th Bomber Command first attacked the Thailand port early last June.

Today's strike came in the wake of yesterday's attack against the Japanese homeland by B29s of the twin 21st Bomber Command based on Saipan. These raiders dumped heavy bomb loads in the manufacturing area of Nagoya, one of Japan's four chief production centres. Huge fires were kindled.

At the same time the army air force raised the possibility that the aerial pincers clamped on the Japanese from east and west may be implemented by B29 blows from Aleutian bases.

An A.A.F. spokesman said existing Aleutian bases west of Umnak can accommodate "the largest aircraft we have." Umnak is about 2,000 miles from Japan. The longest reported flight of B29s to date was a 3,000-mile round trip.

EXTRA!

ROME—Strong infantry reinforcements and hundreds of tons of supplies have been flown into Athens the last two days, an Allied Air Force announcement said today.

SAIPAN, Marianas—Many direct hits ripped the Mitsubishi's big Hatsudoki aircraft factory at Nagoya and probably caused terrific damage, photographs taken of Wednesday's attack by the B29 raiders disclosed today.

Smuts Supports Action In Greece

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa, Dec. 14—(CP-Reuter).—Prime Minister Smuts in a speech here yesterday indicated the British action in Greece had his full support.

The veteran South African soldier-statesman said the British government was perfectly right in establishing law and order in Greece. The iron hand of the German conqueror had been replaced by private guerilla armies.

Field Marshal Smuts said he was profoundly concerned about the state of Europe; about the people of Europe, and their future.

"I had hoped that the end of the war in Europe would have come this year, but it seems now that it will not come until the European spring or summer," he said.

"The Russian steamroller rolls on, and it will become a race between the eastern and western armies for Berlin—if there is still a Berlin."

Quebec Parley Approved Present Action

Fiery Ernest Bevin Defends Policing Of Greece Under Labor Party Barrage

By DEWITT MACKENZIE,
Associated Press War Analyst.

Ernest Bevin, England's square-jawed Labor leader, likely has served an anxious world well by his argumentative outburst which is widely interpreted as confirming in effect that Britain and Russia are indeed in progess of establishing separate spheres of influence in liberated Europe.

To get the full significance of this explosion you must know that Mr. Bevin not only heads Britain's powful Labor party but also is Minister of Labor in Mr. Churchill's Coalition cabinet. Yesterday at a stormy session of the annual Labor conference, which challenged the Government's military intervention in the Greek imbroglio, Mr Bevin was forced into his role of cabinet minister to defend his political chief against the contention that Britain's action has been at cross purposes with her Allies.

Took Lid Off.

Mr. Bevin took the lid off. He accepted his share of responsibility for the government policy and declared that "long before this we had an agreement with Russia whereby Russia undertook the main problem of Romania and we undertook the main problem of Greece." Then he added

"This agreement was taken to Quebec, submitted to President Roosevelt and agreed to and initialed by him."

Authoritative quarters in Washington immediately declared flatly that the United States maintains a firm stand opposed to the development of spheres of influence in Europe. They denied that the President had sanctioned any Anglo-Russian agreement dividing up political interests in the Balkans.

Of course it long has appeared to many observers that Britain and Russia are manoeuvring to establish spheres of influence.

As I see it, there's nothing which can prevent the formation of spheres of influence in Europe. It may be argued they aren't necessarily bad —that they may be benificent and satisfacorty to the small nations in them. However none can gainsay that if and when one sphere of influence encroaches on another, then the sparks are bound to fly between the dominant powers.

Such a situation certainly does not guarantee that the European waters won't be troubled after war's end. However, the fact that the major powers recognize the delicacy of the postion, and are bent on avoiding clashes, perhaps affords the best security available.

Claims Agreement Broken

Charges Greek Premier Easy On Traitors

NEW YORK, Dec. 14—(CP). — A spokesman for the EAM, Losta Gavrilidis, in a speech over the "Free Greece" radio transmitted in Athens, today accused Premier George Papandreou of breaking an agreement made last May 20 in Lebanon which he said stipulated that "vile war criminals and collaborators with the occupier should be arrested and punished."

The Federal Communications Commission reported the broadcast.

"Two months after the liberation, not only had none been condemned, not only had those guilty of the destruction of the state not been arrested, but black marketeers and collaborationists were continuing to circulate freely," Gavrilidis declared.

He said that although "the dissolution of all volunteer units and the creation of a national army were discussed in Lebanon," Papandreou "sought to dissolve" only "the popular army of the ELAS." And still "keep under arms" the Greek mountain brigade and other armed groups.

C.C.F. Opposes Ilsley Plan

Would Settle Grain Debt For 17 Million

REGINA, Dec. 14— (CP).—Recent proposals by Finance Minister Ilsley for settlement of the $17,000,000 1938 Saskatchewan seed grain debt are "entirely unacceptable" to the province's C.C.F. government, "but nevertheless, give us a basis on which we can negotiate further with the Federal government," Acting Premier C. M. Fines said last night.

"On Nov. 21 Mr. Ilsley did finally agree to implement the Dominion's guarantee to the banks," said Mr. Fines, speaking in a CBC provincial political broadcast. "He did, however, at the same time stipulate certain conditions which are impossible for us to accept. He proposed that we make a cash payment immediately and that we undertake to pay off the full $17,000,000 in five equal annual instalments.

"These proposals of course, are entirely unacceptable but nevertheless do for the first time give us a basis on which we can negotiate further with the Federal government.

More Constables Needed For New Year

It was intimated at the regular meeting of the board of police commissioners, Wednesday, that at least three police constables will have to be added to the police department with the taking in of a large slice of North Monaghan.

Chief Constable John Thompson was instructed to bring in his estimates for 1945 early in the New Year and asked to recommend what addition to his force would be necessary in view of the fact that the territory to be policed will be materially larger next year.

Mayor Hamilton remarked that he could not see how it would be possible to function without three more men and Chief Thompson said that he thought that number would be needed.

"It is up to the Chief" remarked Judge S. L. Smoke, "I am prepared to support him if he recommends three men, or four, if he thinks that many necessary.

Bylaw Change

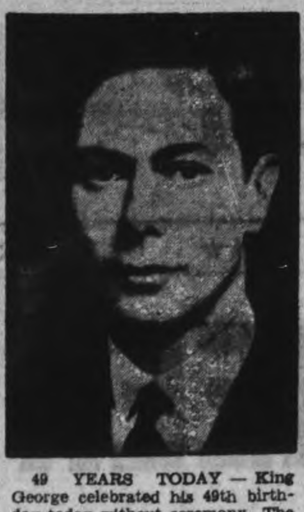
Wednesday's meeting decided to have the bicycle bylaw amended to make a new registration before next May necessary and to provide for the issuing of new licenses every three years.

It was also decided that bicycle-owners who take out licenses will be provided with a metal disc to be carried with them, in addition to the regulation license plate. The disc will replace the printed license formerly issued.

Taxi owners' licenses were granted to the following: Dominic Malo, 149 Lake street; Austin Gorman, London street; Gerald Dunford, 376 Stewart street; Harry Finnie, Charlotte street; Wesley Howell, Stewart street; Herb. Stinson, Charlotte; Hugh Davis, Harold Dunford.

A large number of taxi drivers' licenses was also approved of by the commission after having been endorsed by the police department.

Present at the meeting were Judge S. L. Smoke, chairman, and Mayor James Hamilton. Magistrate E. A. Gee, the third member, was unable to attend.



49 YEARS TODAY — King George celebrated his 49th birthday today without ceremony. The King planned to spend the day quietly, working as usual on State business. In peacetime the official celebration customarily is held in June.

Rev. F. K. Malane Honored By Parishioners

Parting tribute of esteem to Rev. F. K. Malane who leaves on Friday for his new appointment as assistant priest to Rev. Dr. P. J. Kelly of St. Michael's parish, Cobourg, were expressed to him at a largely attended meeting of parishioners of St. Peter's Cathedral and of the Knights of Columbus in the K. of C. auditorium, Simcoe street, Wednesday night.

Gifts were presented to Father Malane on behalf of the parish and its Young People's Society, and from the Knights of Columbus.

P. D. Scollard read an illuminated address, the sentiment of which was tangibly conveyed in a cheque presented by Dr. R. J. Young, Ed Ryan and P. J. Killen on behalf of the Cathedral parish. A gift foom the Knights of Columbus was presented by J. J. Doris, and from the Young People's Society by Fabian Galvin, following an address read by George Blais.

An attractive musical program included vocal solos by Miss Phyllis Cowie and Ted Collis; vocal duet by Robert Baldwin and Fabian Galvin; and a vocal quintette by Misses Eleanor Sheehy, Marie Killen, Helen Strano, Betty Houlihan and Mary Nelson.

Rev. John T. Finn, rector of the Cathedral, joined in the good wishes to Father Malane in his new duties at Cobourg, and also expressed regret in his leaving the staff of the Cathedral. Rev. Father Malane said he was deeply grateful for the kindly regard of the people of St. Peterj's and also of Knights of Columbus of which he had been chaplain.

M. H. Gainey was chairman of the evening's program.

Week's Remand Given In Victory Bond Case

Frank McLean, Toronto, charged with obtaining $200 and three $50 Victory Bonds by false pretences, asked for a remand when his case was called before Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning.

"I have sent to Toronto for some papers but owing to the inclemency of the weather I have not received any mail yet," said the accused.

McLean was remanded for a week.

There was a remand also in the case of Ellsworth Scott, former soldier, who had pleaded guilty to stealing a pension cheque.

It was explained that Magistrate Langley had expected a report from the jail physician on the man's mental condition and accordingly a postponement until next Sunday for sentence was ordered.

John A. Burnside who pleaded guilty to being drunk was fined $10 and costs.

In London, the Labor party called for an immediate armistice with the E.L.A.S. and establishment of a representative government in Athens. While adopting a resolution avoiding criticism of the government policy to date in the Greek crisis, the annual Labor party conference heard James Griffiths, spokesman for the party's executive council, declare: "We want an armistice with the E.L.A.S., not unconditional surrender."

"This means an agreement between the parties concerned," he added, "not an ultimatum. Labor will insist upon a representative government, and no government which excludes E.A.M. can be representative."

British Losses In Greece Are Very Small

London, Dec. 14 — (CP). — Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that British casualties in Greece "since our landing this year" were about 460.

In breaking down these figures, Mr. Churchill said casualties sustained by the Royal Navy, R.A.F. and military forces in Greece up to the end of November were fewer than 300 and "about 160 additional military casualties, of whom 35 were killed, must be added since that date."

Thirty-two planes and eight minor vessels had been lost during this period, he said.

The Prime Minister indicated he might deliver a national address on the Greek situation. When Daniel Kirkwood, Labor, said that he had been flooded with telegrams from workers threatening a work-stoppage protesting the government's policy in Greece, Mr. Churchill said:

"I could quite believe that Mr. Kirkwood would receive many telegrams from many parts of the country over a matter which causes so much heart searching. I gave a long account of this matter to the House the other day, and I may take occasion to give some further account to the country.

Case Laid Before House

"But we have laid our case very fully before the House. It was also discussed very fully and freely at the parliamentary conference yesterday and I have nothing at this moment to add to what has been said."

He said the British government had received no indication from any of the Dominion governments that they dissented from actions taken in Greece.

A flurry was caused when Seymour Cocks, Labor, asked the Prime Minister "how long this government intends to go on with this policy of murdering our Greek comrades?"

Other members cried "shame" and "withdraw", and Mr. Cocks shouted back at them. Mr. Churchill made no reference to the uproar.

The Prime Minister later was drawn into a discussion of Count Carlo Sforza's assertions that he had urged the retention of King Victor Emmanuel in Italy.

Ivor Thomas, Labor, repeated Sforza's statement and asked how this conformed "with the Prime Minister's oft-repeated assurance that His Majesty's government had no desire to interfere in constitutional matters affecting Italy."

Mr Churchill replied:

"That is not so at all. I gave a full account to the House when I explained that we thought it better to go on with the King Victor-Marshal Badoglio regime until the military situation had got into a better condition, and we did go on for some considerable time; the results not being unsatisfactory as far as our armies were concerned.

"I said nothing in my conversation with Count Sforza which I had not already made clear as being the policy of His Majesty's government at that time."

Not Discuss Monarch

Earlier Mr. Churchill said in reply to another Labor question that he told Sforza he welcomes "assurance given to the United States government in his letter to Mr. Berle (Adolf Berle, then Assistant Secretary of State), which I read to the House on Dec. 6, that matters of internal policy including the Monarchy should be adjourned until Italy was free; As regards the future that would be for the Italian people to decide."

Mr. Thomas asked whether Sforza had not made a distinction between the institutional question of monarchy and the personal question of the King "whom he had never promised any support."

Mr Churchill responded: :

"He certainly expressed animus against King Victor Emmanuel, with whom he had a very lengthy and not at all unnatural disagreement, but the statement I made to him was within the line of the stateen I made at the time publicly to parliament. I did not speak two languages in these matters."

dawn attack, captured a German radio and weather station with its three officers and nine men and lange quantities of scientific and weather equipment.

Apparently, the navy said, three separate expeditions had been sent to Greenland by the Germans. One was captured Sept. 1, after 70-mile chase through the ice floes. The chase ended in the scuttling of a German armed trawler. The crew of eight officers, headed by a full commander, and 20 men were taken prisoner.

Chases Plane.

The cutter Storis beat off a German bombing attack while the Northland was pursuing the enemy trawler.

Coastguard and army planes, the Navy said, also participated in providing aircover for the cutters and aiding in reconnaissance.

Several land actions came during the series of engagements. Among them was the landing of a party of army and coastguardsmen on Shannon Island.

But the Germans had fled when the party reached the fortified German base. Instruments were smashed, but a large stock of gasoline, food and ammunition was found in ice caves.

The abandoned trawler was located by the Northland while moving through heavily packed ice. A 155-foot armed vessel, she had been crushed in the ice. An explosion had ripped out her hull and she had been afire. It was evident, the Navy said, that the German crew had fled on the ice pack for some time after abandoning ship.

1,400 Men Work To Clear Toronto Streets

TORONTO, Dec. 14 — (CP). — In an effort to return to normal conditions quickly, snow-clearing operations continued unabated today over a wide section of Southern Ontario which was buried under a heavy blanket of snow in one of the worst storms in history last Tuesday.

In Toronto, where more than 22 inches of snow fell between 5:15 a.m. on Monday and 8:30 p.m. on Tuesday completely tying up the transportation systems, authorities announced it would be two or three days before normal service could be restored.

The storm was responsible for the death of 24 persons, 17 of them in Toronto, and generally tied up business and industry. Many meetings and other functions were cancelled. There were three deaths in Hamilton and one each in Richmond Hill, Campbellford, Brantford, and Woodstock. Three others are missing, two in Toronto and one in Kingston.

In the general dislocation of daily life which the storm wrought the chief sufferers were the transportation systems, which only now are beginning to resume schedules.

In Toronto street cars generally had resumed operations on all lines but bus routes in some districts still were not being served.

All but essential vehicular traffic has been banned from the Toronto streets. Trains and inter-city buses were operating, although officials said a number were off schedule.

A total of 1,400 men worked yesterday attempting to clear huge piles of snow from Toronto's main streets. The clearing is costing more than $12,000 a day, and it has been estimated the total cost will range from $100,000 to $150,000.

Only a few milk and bread trucks are operating in Toronto, delivering goods to fire halls and retail stores, and ambulances will not venture on to side streets except for emergencies.

Some Toronto hospitals last night reported shortages of fresh fruit, but there was no acute condition. Most major war plants resumed full production to-day.

land, where the 1st Canadian and British 2nd Armies are marking time.

The Germans appeared to be withdrawing artillery to deeper positions behind Saarlautern and Dillingen, indicating they expected a forced withdrawal deeper into the defences which extend 30 miles to the Rhine.

Nine miles southeast of the shell-wrecked Saarland capital of Saarbrucken, the Germans knocked out a footbridge at Habkirchen but failed to dislodge the 35th Division from its latest foothold in Germany.

Fight at Bridge.

The U.S. 7th Army plunged clear through another section of the old Maginot Line north-west of Bitche to Kapelenhof, 3½ miles from the south-east corner of the Saarland and 12 miles south of the shelled Palatinate city of Zweibrucken.

The 7th Army at points was two miles or so from the frontier and was still fighting around the blown bridge at Seltz, 14 miles south-west of the Rhine city of Karlsruhe.

Headquarters said the fortified towns of Schophoven, Maria-Weile, Derichsweiler, and Gey had been cleared again of the Germans. They formed a stout defence arc for Duren on the Roer, and the 1st Army was virtually at the city's gates and close to the canal in the western outskirts. All changed hands several times.

First Army operations beyond Monschau posed a potential flanking thrust to new German positions east of the Roer, where three new defence lines have been observed between that river and the Erft, flowing eight miles from Cologne and the Rhine

At Headwaters.

This headwaters section was the only place where the Americans were across the Roer. The fighting was in the northern spurs of the Eifel range, in such difficult terrain that a swing north behind the main Roer line would be a herculean achievement. Just ahead were three large dams across the Roer, the longest 900 feet at its base.

Suspicion increased that the Germans were artificially flooding the Roer through the dam sluices, for the river rose three feet in three days on the 9th Army front between Julich and Linnich.

Lt.-Gen. Simpson's 9th Army struck after two weeks of comparative lull in the campaign for conquest of the Cologne plain. The newly-captured Vlochofen is on the Inde River, an affluent of the Roer, two miles south of besieged Julich. The village is a mile from the Roer itself.

Before the 1st and 9th Army fronts, medium, light and fighter-bombers attacked fortified towns. Particularly hit were railyards at Euskirchen (pop. 14,500) and Zulpich (3,500), both ahead of the south wing of the 1st Army. Spearheads are 16 miles from Euskirchen and 10 from Zulpich.

All along the front before Cologne, 21 miles from the nearest Americans, Germans west of the Roer were being mopped up. The bulk of the Germans are behind the river in hastily-dug trenches, started when the Americans shattered the Siegfried Line in October in the Aachen area.

Gains 3 Miles

The 7th Army closing upon the Palatinate through the rolling country, studded with fortifications, of northern Alsace, advanced up to three miles. Captured were Baerenthal and Reyers-Willer the latter only 1¼ miles from Bitche, one of the strongest forts in the Maginot Line.

Seventh Army units advancing up the Sauer Valley north of Haguenau are scarcely two miles from the Palatinate and closing hard upon the fortress town of Wissembourg in a valley leading to the Rhenish plain.

(A London broadcast said the 7th Army had reached the Rhine beyond Seltz and was shelling Germany across the river).

Field Marshal Montgomery's British and Canadian armies in Holland and the northwestern tip of Germany remained inactive in one of the most prolonged lulls of the entire campaign on the Western Front, a dispatch from the Marshal's headquarters said.

The Waal (Rhine) River receded slightly in the Nijmegen area, where breached dikes have inundated more than 30 square miles, some under four feet of water.

Fred Goodfellow Heads Conservationists

Fred Goodfellow, well-known plumber, was elected president of the Peterborough Fish and Game Association Wednesday evening, at the annual meeting, held in Paragon Hall. This year, practically a new slate of officers was elected.

Mr. Goodfellow succeeds Charles Kingan to the presidency, who has served in that capacity for six years. While he withdrew his name from the president list of nominations this year, Mr. Kingan will remain as an executive committee member.

Robert McCabe was chosen first vice-president, and George English was elected second vice-president.

FRED GOODFELLOW

The secretary-treasurer's post went to R. Hayden for another term and the following members were elected to the executive committee: B. Payne, C. Clarke, G. Baker, W. Davidson, Charles Kingan, F. Marshall, S. Tripp, E. Brown, C. Pilon and Pete McGillen.

Along with Mr. Kingan, F. Barrett, a veteran member, also removed his name from the list of nominees for president.

It was decided that a notice by mail should be sent to all members for all general meetings, and that an executive meeting will be called as soon as possible. A general meeting will be called about the middle of January, it was decided.

Tax Subsidy Cut

TORONTO, Dec. 14— (CP).—A Toronto paper said to-day it has learned that the Ontario Government's two-mill municipal subsidy will be cut to one mill in 1945. The paper said this results from the Government's policy of assisting municipalities with educational costs. Details of the education assistance plan were outlined in a broadcast by Premier Drew last night.

The two-mill subsidy has been paid to all municipalities on the basis of their ratable assessment.

Roseneath Correspondent Snowbound Compares Village Plight To Old Poem

ROSENEATH, Dec. 14—(ENS)—Roseneath and the surrounding district might well have been the setting for Whittiers "Snow Bound." Roseneath was marooned the greater part of Tuesday for, "all night long the storm roared on: the morning broke without a sun."

Cobourg and Hastings mail stages, Brisbin's transport and the Roseneath-Cobourg school bus did not leave the village.

Misses Helen Weir and Clarice Atkinson, teachers of Roseneath school held an all-day session with ten pupils. Two teams and sleighs, and two cutters and horses straggled into the village near evening.

However although people could not go out into the world they were not thrown on their own resources for entertainment, as were those characters in Snow Bound, when, "we sped the time with stories old, wrought puzzles out, and riddles told. Our father rode again his ride on Memphremagag's wooded side. Our mother while she turned her wheel, or run the new-knit stocking heel, recalling in her fitting phrase the story of her early days, .....Our uncle innocent of books, was rich in lore of fields and brooks."

Another World

No, the world came to Roseneath out of the loud speakers and they learned of storm conditions in Peterborough, Toronto, Hamilton. They were told of road conditions. They were warned to stay at home, they learned of postponed meetings. The city dweller was informed regarding food and work and warned of fire hazards. Into homes stepped the newscaster, the commentator, the comedian, concert orchestras, carol singers, even Santa, to the children's delight.

As for transportation, well, as yet transportation does not exist, and when this copy will reach the office depends on when a snow plow will get through, "For all day the gusty north wind bore the loosening drift its breath before,...in baffled rage at pane and door."

Canadians Hold Triangular RiverBridgehead

By WILLIAM BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC, Dec. 13—(delayed)—(CP Cable)—Along a firm 11,000-yard riverbank base, the Canadian bridgehead across the Lamone River—forged Sunday night — had assumed a triangular shape Tuesday, with its blunt apex on the Naviglio Canal, three miles northeast of the large inland town of Bagnacavallo.

(Today's Allied communique issued in Rome said "(Canadian) leading troops are approaching the Canale Naviglio on a wide front north of Baganacavallo.")

The left side of the triangle slopes sharply toward the turbulent Lamone which the Canadians stormed in a sudden attack which took the enemy off guard confident that their well-fortified positions on its west bank were practically impregnable. The triangle does not include Bagnacavallo on this side.

The right side takes in a long eastward slope rolling toward Mezzano on route 16—the Ravenna-Ferrara highway—7,000 yards distant.

2nd Crossing

(Allied headquarters said another Lamone crossing had been made at Mezzano and the Canadians had cleared the Germans from that road junction.)

Until the Canadians reached the Naviglio—a merchant shipping canal flowing from Faenza into Lake Comacchio due north — they met relatively light opposition. Tuesday, they advanced along this waterway, however, they met stiffer resistance and had to make another river crossing—a sort of bridgehead within a bridgehead.

This was over the Fossa Vecchia Canal which was crossed in darkness Tuesday morning.

As the Canadians neared Naviglio, machine-gun and mortar fire in the late afternoon was the heaviest in a long time. The Canadians also experienced the fire of "Moaning Minnies," German Nebelwerfers, whose shells make a moaning sound, for the first time since the San Fortunato fighting of early autumn.

The link-up of the original Lamone bridgeheads occurred during the night (Monday) and the joint spearhead thrust toward the Naviglio.

Tonight (Tuesday) Capt. Tony Falzetta of Sudbury has his men at the side of the Naviglio canal while to his left companies from other Ontario Regiments were equally firm upon it.

The enemy's perfect cross-fire had thwarted a further advance in daylight. Local gains were the extent of activity of French-speaking Canadian troops, Nova Scotia troops and Toronto Highlanders on the left flank.

Tanks mopped up the area southwest of Mezzano and men from a Manitoba regiment under Lieut. Paul Brunette of Montreal scouted the town, aided by Partisans.

Three Men Deny Accused Struck Chinese

Hum Horning in police court this morning identified Thornton Brick as the man who had punched him in the eye in front of his George street restaurant on the night of November 24 but Brick himself and three defence witnesses denied that the accused had hit the restaurant proprietor.

Brick was charged with assaulting Hum Horning, causing actual bodily harm, and was defended by W. C. Grant.

Dr. Herbert N. Young testified that he had been called to attend Hum Horning on the night of the assault and had found him suffering from a badly contused and inflamed eye and also from scrapes on his legs.

"Would you say that he had suffered actual bodily harm?" asked Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

"I would," replied Dr. Young.

Saw Struggling

Hum Horning testified that he had ordered Norman Brick, brother of the accused, out of his restaurant that night. Soon after Willie Hum, uncle of the witness, had gone out the front door of the restaurant and Hum Horning said that he saw Norman Brick strike his uncle.

Witness said that he had gone outside and had just reached the pavement when Thornton Brick who had been standing north of the door grabbed him by his arm and threw him out into the street. Hum Horning said that he started to go back toward the door and Thornton Brick had punched him in the eye. Witness said that Brick then ran south and he had followed him, grabbing Brick. The latter however had kicked himself free and started to run again when Hum Horning succeded in getting hold of him once more. This time, witness said, Thornton Brick tried to hit him with a beer bottle, got away and ran south on George street.

Denied Blow

Thornton Brick, called by the defence, denied hitting Hum Horning. He said that he and his brother had been ordered out of the restaurant that night and that he himself had been standing outside, talking to a girl when Hum Horning came out and struck his brother Norman. Brick said that he had pulled Hum Horning off his brother but had not struck him.

To Mr. McElderry, Thornton Brick admitted that he had been in trouble in connection with the restaurant before and had had to pay for damage done to a show case.

Fred Revoy, Jr., and Pat Bianco who said they watched the affair from opposite the restaurant said they had seen Hum Horning strike Norman Brick and that all Thornton Brick did was to pull the complainant off his brother.

Norman Brick's evidence corroborated that of the other defence witnesses. He said that Hum Horning had struck him "and for a small man I would say he packs quite a punch."

The court adjourned at this stage for luncheon.

Cobourg Council Approves Ballot Recount

COBOURG, Dec. 14 — (ENS) — Cobourg town council at its meeting on Tuesday night decided to have a scrutiny of the ballots in connection with the defeat at the polls of a by-law to give the Cobourg Lumber Company a fixed assessment. The by-law was defeated by only two votes.

Mayor Jack Burnet declared that in spite of the fact that it had been clearly indicated that the by-law was for a fixed assessment only on the new sawmill and not on the houses which the company proposed building on its property, there were many who thought that the fixed assessment would apply to both sawmill and houses.

Councillor Alan Field suggested that, due to the small minority by which it was defeated, council direct that a scrutiny of the votes be made before Judge J. C. M. German.

In reply to a query from Councillor Reuben Jackson as to whether or not the Cobourg Lumber Company had asked for a recount, the mayor replied that it had not.

Mayor Jack Burnet, who was defeated for the post of 1945 mayor at the recent elections, pointed out that he could hardly be accused of angling for votes if he now referred to an enquiry by an industrial firm. The mayor handed a letter to the council from a firm which stated that in view of a possibility of free trade between Canada and the United States after the war, the company had decided to postpone any negotiations in regard to locating a new factory. Until the government had declared itself in regard to post-war trade, the company was taking no action but would inform the town of Cobourg in due course as to its decision. There were two other industrial prospects, the mayor said, but if they did locate after the war it would be in Hamilton township, not far from Cobourg.

Mayor Burnet declared that the vote against the fixed assessment by-law had not done the town any good in the eyes of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

To Repair Pier

Council received a letter from the Department of Public Works which pointed out that the Department was preparing plans and estimates for repairs to the T-pier and to the east side of the east pier out to Jerry Harris' house on the pier. The Department was willing to do this work providing the town deeded over these piers to the Department for the nominal sum of $1. This would not mean that the town would lose its harbour revenue from these piers, it was stated. The mayor said that the repairs would cost about $100,000. On motion of Councillor Alan Field it was decided to accept the offer of the Department.

HOW B-29 GUN CONTROLS WORKS—Here is a diagrammatic explanation of how an unescorted B-29 bomber can hit a Tokyo target and handle fighters by use of its central control gunnery system. First public demonstration by the American Air Forces, made at the New York convention of the National Manufacturers' Association, showed that the system functioned in combat, as follows: A gunner gets the enemy fighter in his sight and presses the trigger. In a turret several feet from the sight, guns are fired. The line of fire, however, is both ahead of and above the enemy plane which, flying at 400 miles an hour, would have moved forward 110 miles at a 30,000-foot altitude while the bullets would be travelling 800 yards. Electronic and mechanical computers take care of the windage, gravity and parallax corrections; the bullets follow these corrections, ripping apart the enemy plane. Parallax corrections are something new in aerial gunnery, constituting the distance between the gunners' sight and remotely located guns on the plane that is firing.

Lawyers Urged To Clean House

COBOURG, Dec. 14.— (ENS).— Attorney Leslie Blackwell told the lawyers of District No. 6, Ontario Federation of County and District Law Associations here on Monday night that if they were to expect any legislation benefitting their profession, the legislators would have to be convinced first that such enactments would be of general benefit to the public also. Mr. Blackwell in making this observation was speaking apropos of the discussion earlier during the day at the business session in which it was recommended that the Solicitors' Act be amended so as to protect the legal profession from the encroachments of unlicensed practitioners, such encroachments being the drawing up of wills and deeds by non-lawyers.

"Any legislation of that nature, before being passed, would be subjected to a most searching glance to see whether it represents something for the public good. It must also be remembered that in some parts of this province, lawyers are not as plentiful as in other areas and less-qualified helpers may be the only one available for such work as drawing deeds and wills. If the legal profession could be persuaded to take the long view that notary publics be maintained but not increased, I think we might have legislation restricting much legal work to qualified lawyers. Down to this day in England, anyone can prepare a will, for obvious reasons.

A plea for lawyers to regain for their profession some of the dignity and prestige which he felt had been lost during the past few years, was made by Mr. Justice Barlow in his address to the lawyers' meeting on Monday night.

"Unless we clean our own house and put it in order, we will have more and more of our cases going to arbitration boards and tribunals. Somebody is to blame for the delays in getting cases tried and disposed of. There is something wrong with our system when cases go on for such long periods. We are still living back in the horse-and-buggy days. Why is it not possible for two or three counties to have courts together, so that the expense could all be rolled into one? We are no longer dependent upon how far a horse can travel in one day as our means of transportation to courts," declared His Lordship.

Mr. Justice Barlow also suggested the judges should be classified into two sections, one for civil and one class for criminal trials, according to their qualifications, as some had shown themselves to be more suited to one kind of work than to the other.

"The public realize what is happening. Let us be leaders in reforms, and not just content to go along with the work which comes to us each day. The present Ontario government has taken a good forward step in combining several little-used county jails," Mr. Justice Barlow declared.

Supreme Court Trial Delayed By Storm

COBOURG, Dec. 14.—(ENS). — Due to the weather, there was no work done in Supreme Court Tuesday. The damage action brought by the Mill Valley Lumber Company of Oshawa against Paul Smaglinskie of Renfrew, which started Monday was stalled Tuesday due to the fact that James Maloney of Renfrew, solicitor for the defendant, was stranded by the snow storm out near Bailieboro. Mr. Maloney had gone out to Peterborough on Monday night but on starting out again for Cobourg was caught in the storm.

When the damage action started on Monday, Arthur Greer, solicitor for the plaintiff, asked that the case be sent down to the local master as to assessment of damages and evidence was accordingly called to establish whether or not there was liability before carrying out Mr. Greer's motion.

Bennett vs. Kichko, an action brought by Charles Bennett of Whitby against William Kichko and Harry Boychuk of Oshawa in connection with a mortgage foreclosure, was laid over to another court. It was expected Tuesday that it might be possible to go on with the court on Wednesday.

Education In a Changing Society

When he made his Rectorial Address at Queen's University last Friday, Dr. B. K. Sandwell chose a topic which has long been near to his heart; he spoke about the poor salaries which are paid to educationists in Canada. He has made frequent reference in the columns of Saturday Night to the fact that the higher professions are not so well paid as many of the lower ones, and that the difference in salary between a professor and a mechanic is frequently to the advantage of the mechanic. All this is true, and regrettable.

But we wonder whether Dr. Sandwell completely covered the ground when he suggested that higher pay was wanted to bring the best available men and women into educational work. We do not think that institutions of education could ever compete with industry in bidding for ability. The man or woman who is principally interested in making money can always make more in industry or in a profession than at a university.

But there is a commodity which was once supplied by university life, which is supplied no longer, and that is the deferential respect accorded to learned men. Many scholarly people are not greedy for money; they can live very happily on modest incomes. But they like to be treated as men of learning, whose opinions deserve a respectful hearing. They like to be free to express themselves as they wish, and they like to be treated as an intelligentsia, within reasonable bounds.

They no longer enjoy these privileges. To many people today the word 'professor' is a synonym for 'idiot', and it is assumed that any opinion put forward by a professional educator is necessarily impractical and foolishly idealistic. The judges in these matters are often people who are far from being uncomfortably burdened with learning, logic or experience, but if they earn a living by trade they assume airs as 'practical men' and 'experienced administrators'. Parliament has more than its share of these 'practical men' and the measure of their practicality may be taken by examining their speeches in Hansard; to them 'practical' means 'expedient', and they are not even good judges of expediency. Furthermore, the academic man of today can hardly open his mouth on public affairs without suggestions from the public that his job be taken from him, or that the government grant to the university be stopped. Is it any wonder that men who value their freedom think twice before taking up academic work?

Of course some of the blame for this rests with academic men themselves. There are those among them who are conspicuously unfitted for any sort of work, except instructing the young on a very low level. And there are those who have never advanced beyond the student age of intellect, and who never lose the undergraduate passion for revolutions, merry-go-round crusades and centrifugal ideologies. These men are not scholars, and universities should not hire them; then they would find their true medium, which is the chatauqua.

But in the Middle Ages, and even in the last century, genuine men of learning were respected by the masses; they valued that respect, it was part of their remuneration, and they guarded it jealously. Men who enjoyed that respect moulded the minds of coming generations, and they spoke with authority. Now, lacking that respect and that authority, the university teacher is a sadly depleted figure. One of the drawbacks of our particular form of democracy is its tendency to hide the individual man's deficiencies from him, and thus to discount the difference between the learned and the virtually unlettered. Is it any wonder, then, that educationists shrink in stature? Give the scholar back his gown and his place in society, and he will once again perform his double duty as servant and master.

Canadian Folklore: 1944

That popular commentator on current affairs, the Man In The Street, is always ready to express his opinions to his fellows, but he is reluctant to speak for publication, and newspapermen who want to know what he is thinking have to approach the problem by indirection. Recently the able observer who writes in the Ottawa Citizen as 'Our Own Pepys' published a list of beliefs which he says are popular among the people of Ottawa —not parliamentarians, or civil servants or pressmen, but the toilers and moilers and taxpayers—and we reproduce it here for your consideration:

That the Red Army looks eagerly forward to winter because it loves fighting in snowdrifts when the cold goes below zero.

That other white soldiers would revolt over the low pay and poor rations which Russian soldiers get, but the latter are inspired by a mystical love of the fatherland.

That Italian soldiers are the world's worst and their generals are either eccentric or ex-grand opera singers who pampered Mussolini's vanity.

That all German soldiers are sadists and are so used to ersatz food that they would not eat the genuine article if they could.

That Japanese soldiers eat rats and impale captured prisoners as a form of sport.

That the French and Belgians had all the wine, pate de foie gras and smoked ham they could consume during the occupation while the British were half-starved on bread-filled sausages and chemical powdered eggs.

That Marshal Stalin is a cynical realist and never speaks for publication except with his tongue in his cheek.

That all dinners given by the Kremlin to visiting potentates are sumptuous feasts which begin at 9 p.m. and end at 4 a.m. by which time the guests have to be carried out on stretchers.

That Mr. Churchill loves his Highland schnappes and that his cigars are always tried out on subordinates to discover whether they are lethally loaded.

That Montgomery is the greatest general of the war but inclines to queer uniforms and the keeping of strange pets.

That Mr. King is the greatest master of political manoeuvre in Canadian history but is ruthless with colleagues who cross his path.

That the King government, although it is loathed by all Canadians who live outside Quebec, is in fact the only one capable of running the war.

That Mr. Ilsley, because he rides to work on crowded street cars, is the greatest finance minister since the late Mr. Fielding.

That the Progressive Conservatives make a brave show of devotion to Mr. Bracken, but the truth is that they would get rid of him if they could do so gracefully.

That the C.C.F. has the best chance of the largest group in the next Parliament and that all this stuff about it being on the skids is just newspaper talk.

That many Liberals at heart are opposed to the government's conscription policy but toe the party line rather than endanger their indemnities.

That the winter temperature of government offices which send out appeals to the rest of us to save fuel is maintained at a steady 80 degrees.

That business and official big shots induce their stenographers to obtain liquor permits, which keeps the supply of booze to ordinary mortals short.

That there are literally thousands of people who hope the war will last because for the first time in their lives they have jobs at good pay.

That in Quebec the people are so antagonistic to wartime regulations that nobody asks for a ration coupon in the stores.

That taxes are so high these days that it is impossible for a contractor to get rich out of this war.

That dollar-a-year men, having got the inside track on the government, are now migrating back to their own businesses in readiness to take all the traffic will bear when the war lets up.

That the newspapers now have not the slightest influence on public opinion and have sold out to corporation interests.

There you have it—a considerable chunk of Canadian folklore. Each item may be heard every day in Peterborough as well as in Ottawa, and we suppose that it may be echoed in Winnipeg, Victoria and Pelvis, Sask. And as folklore is always more popular and more readily accessible than accurate information, we must assume that these beliefs have much to do with the present and future condition of our country.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The Chatham News says that Canadian girls agree that the best finishing school is matrimony. We know several who have been completely finished by it.

The late Lord Moyne, who was murdered in Cairo, left an estate of £2,000,000, not a penny of which goes to charity. The dead man's will said that he considered that his death duties and income taxes would suffice for his personal contribution toward those public services which had formerly been maintained by private philanthropy. This seems a fair way of looking at the matter; nowadays most of us tend to hang on to anything the state does not take from us.

A section of the press suggests that a high pension should go with each Victoria Cross. We disagree; the Cross was not won by a man whose chief thought was money, and a money reward would cheapen it. And it must be pointed out that we shall have plenty of people on pensions after the war without establishing a special dole for the chivalrous, who probably do not want it. There are things which cannot be valued in money, and valour is one of them.

The C.C.F.'s Nineteen Points

By J. H. GRAY

THERE is only one logical approach to the 19-point program which emerged from the Montreal convention of the C.C.F. That is the realpolitick approach of Mr. David Lewis, who said he yielded to no one in his desire for ultimate socialism, but "at the present time I am concerned with winning an election."

The Regina manifesto remains the basic blueprint of the C.C.F. It is a clear statement of the goal of the C.C.F.—"production for use and not for profit" and "nationalization of the means of production and distribution of wealth." This slogan sums up the basic program of the party, but it is not the sort of slogan which wins elections in Canada. The leaders of the party met at Montreal to work out a program which they hoped could win an election. They had in mind the adoption of a number of concrete proposals which could be laid before the electorate. The people would be told: Here is what we will do; we will do this and this and this, and in this order and by these means.

BUT it is clear from the program that emerged that the inner contradictions of the party were so great that this was not possible. The convention was forced to fall back upon the traditional method of the other political parties. Instead of clear statements of policy into which electors could sink their teeth, they produced vague generalties and some interesting contradictions.

A careful examination of the program does reveal, however, a triumph for the "realpoliticker" and the adoption of a new line. A new word has been added, and the word is "co-operative." Public ownership, or nationalization, once sufficed as a descriptive term for the C.C.F. objective. Now it is "public or co-operative ownership." Nationalization is dropped because it had no appeal. From now on the electors should be prepared for a veritable deluge of propaganda based upon "co-operatively owned" enterprises. An attempt will now be made to sell as "co-operative" what could not be sold under the old brand of "nationalization."

A RATHER substantial portion of the program falls into the "me, too" category. The party has come out in favour of a number of ideas which the present government has already developed into concrete form. Thus the plans for re-establishment of service men are but the extension of measures which have largely become established in fact. The same holds true for public works projects, housing, youth projects, agriculture in part, and in the field of foreign policy.

The C.C.F. after Montreal is the C.C.F. before Montreal as far as economic theory is concerned. It is a party of extreme economic nationalism and its whole approach is predicated upon the assumption that world trade is of no consequence, that Canada can achieve prosperity by internal adjustments of her economic machinery. This is the Regina manifesto all over again, for the C.C.F. still thinks in terms of 1932 because economic developments in the last ten years have made little impact upon the theorists.

THE C.C.F. has, in fact, become the party of arch-protection. It gives lip service to the only sound method of building agricultural prosperity—by the achievement of foreign markets. But in the next breath it comes out for the setting up of export and import boards which was the precise method used by the Nazis in their national socialism. To talk about removal of barriers to international trade one moment and recommend the establishment of import boards the next is transparent hypocrisy.

Import boards are the most effective barrier to trade yet devised. Their purpose is to restrict imports, to close the home market to foreign production and prevent competition with home-made articles. The B.C. socialists understood this very clearly when they incorporated into their program the idea of provincial import boards to control the imports from other provinces. Nowhere in the whole program is there a trace of recognition of the fact that Canada's prosperity depends upon selling her surplus natural products abroad, or that we must import the goods of other countries in order to obtain payment for our exports.

IT was once the fashion to cultivate small business and industry and to assure the public that there would be a place for free enterprise under the C.C.F. A bow is still made in this direction by the proposal to socialize "industries which are monopolistic in character or are operated to the detriment of the Canadian people." But that this is mere window-dressing is seen from the promises of socialization. The war plants are to be converted to civilian use and state or co-operatively operated. There will be state fish-packing and processing plants, manufacturing plants for agricultural implements and supplies, state-aided co-operatives of every conceivable kind, state-owned banks and other financial institutions.

IN a country such as ours, there is a place for state investment and private investment, for private ownership and public ownership, for individual enterprise and public enterprise. In order that the people obtain the greatest good from such a system, private investment must be predicated upon a belief in security. Unless the private investor believes that his investment will be reasonably secure he will not invest. This applies to the small investor with the same force it does to the large. But there will be no place for the small investor or the small enterpriser under the Montreal program, for there will be no sense of security whatever.

Converted war plant "co-operatives" will produce civilian goods which will be forced into the market through "co-operatives" which the state will organize and direct. The small town merchant, the small city merchant, the small manufacturer will be forced to compete with the state co-operatives. He will be taxed heavily at every turn, but the state stores will pay no taxes. Prices and wages will be fixed by the state. Competition of imports will be prevented by import boards. Here and there new words have been added, but the program remains unchanged.

DOING NO HARM

Pushing his way through the crowd, the burly policeman found a little man uttering strange noises.

"Wot's all this?" he demanded sternly.

"I ain't doin' no 'arm," protested the little man. "I'm only a bird imitator."

"Ho, bird imitator, are you?" said the constable. "Well, let's see you 'op it."

A POSTWAR SUGGESTION —By Thomas

Rosemary At Christmas

BUT what has become of the romantic rosemary? This was once the choicest of the Christmas decorations. According to the popular tradition it made its way into England during the first half of the fourteenth century, sent, it would seem, by he Countess of Hainault "to hir dougter Philip the quene of England", who had married Edward the Third in 1328. Accompanying the precious gift was a Latin treatise setting forth its wonderful virtues, which...at the beginning of the fifteenth century began to captivate all hearts. There is little wonder that this herb of pleasant savor was accorded a high place among the Christmas evergreens; for there was no point in the drama of life that it did not hallow. In the sixteenth century and later it could be seen in almost every woman's garden; and it was grown in great abundance. Gray-green branches were cut from the hedgerows and when hung around the rooms, or strewn on the floors, presented a pleasing contrast to the more somber greens of the holly and ivy. But it was not by its colour that rosemary found its way into the season. It was its insinuating perfume that placed it there; and because, in the words of Sir Thomas More who loved it dearly, "'tis the herb sacred to remembrance and therefore to friendship, whence a sprig of it has a dumb language". In days past people knew, though they had no psychology to explain it, that scene, far more than sight or sound, was mysteriously linked with the powers of memory. An agreeable odor will release in the mind long forgotten trains of thought as nothing else will. "Sweet scents", says Walter Savage Landor finely,

"Are the swift vehicles of still sweeter thoughts
And nurse and mellow the dull memory
That would let drop without them her best stores.
They bring me tales of Youth and tones of love"

So beside the beautiful, but scentless, holly and ivy hung from the fragrant and "memory-evoking" rosemary. The choice was instinctive, but happy; and it made a contribution to the atmosphere of the season more subtle than all the rest....It is a good deal of a mystery why rosemary was allowed to drop completely out of Christmas; for by many tender ties it seemed to be inseparably bound up with it. But it has gone. It fell by the wayside in Victorian times, with a distinct loss to the sentiment of the season. Since, however, it is not unknown in this land it might be restored. Christmas would benefit by it; for, perhaps, more than ever it is the festival of reunion and remembrance.—From "Christmas Traditions", by William Muir Auld.

The Time Not To Travel Is Here

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

EACH year about this time, since war began, railroad and other authorities have issued an earnest appeal to the public to avoid all unnecessary travel during the holiday season. During the war years, the travel periods which are slack in normal times have witnessed consistently crowded public carriers. And when Christmas and New Year's come along, it means one long headache for the transportation industry.

It is difficult to imagine anyone concerned with personal comfort taking a trip nowadays unless it was absolutely necessary, even in the off-season. During the holiday season, people who travel unnecessarily must have a wide streak of masochism in their nature. For during that season, from about the 21st of December to January 5th, almost every service man and woman in this country will be going some place or other on the special holiday leave. That alone would assure tremendously overcrowded public carriers, but that isn't all.

This holiday season will see large numbers of home defence army soldiers moving across Canada in readiness for overseas service. It will see hundreds of overseas veterans arrive home for their long service leave, and it will see hundreds of other veterans home for hospitalization. Added to this increase in military passenger traffic is the heavily increased shipments of munitions to meet the growing need on the Western Front, which will mean that no freight workers can be diverted to help out during the passenger rush.

So it will be decidedly unpleasant travelling this holiday season. But there is another and more compelling reason for refraining from travelling than lack of comfort. The public carriers of Canada are a most important part of the Canadian war machine. Every unnecessary strain placed upon them hampers the war effort; the hindrance is not noticeable in the case of an individual passenger, but in the mass it helps to clog traffic. And when we recall Premier King's warning that the "war situation is more serious than could be imagined," it would appear both wise and patriotic to think twice before taking a trip during the coming holiday season.

Mr. Churchill's 70 Years

At the age of 70, which he passed recently, Prime Minister Winston Churchill has already left a mark on history deeper and more creditable than that of his renowned ancestor, John Churchill, first Duke of Marlborough. It is obvious, of course, that there can be little indeed of John Churchill in a descendant born more than two centuries later. The Winston Churchill ancestry is interwoven with many strains, including an American one. His characteristic qualities may come from some progenitor whom history has overlooked. Whenever derived, they have made him one of this generation's great individuals: in youth restless, energetic and rebellious; in the middle years a militant crusader, moving over from the Tory to the Liberal side of the House of Commons to join Lloyd George; in stalwart old age a Conservative again, warning his countrymen against impending danger and coming like a lion to lead them in defense at the very moment when all seemed lost. The British people will never forget to be thankful to him and for him; and in this gratitude Americans and other peoples now free or fighting to be free may well join.

For it was this lion, roaring a challenge on behalf of Britain when the spear of Dunkerque was in her side, who turned the tide of war. We cannot pin our faith in freedom's victory on the accident of one outstanding man. The war would have been won even if Winston Churchill had fallen long years ago in the Sudan or South Africa. But it would not have been won so soon. It would have been won at a heavier cost. Americans, reading the long casualty lists of today, may soberly reflect that those lists would have been longer and extended over more months, and even years, if it had not been for Winston Churchill. We honour ourselves by rising to salute him today. If we helped him and the British people in their hour of need, so did they help us.—New York Times.

In These Strange Days

Maybe we're just old-fashioned. We can't help wondering what all our old constitutional theories and practices have come to when we see Mr. Mitchell Hepburn, who was returned by his constituency as an Independent, suddenly become the House leader of a party which is Liberal. Apparently, under this new doctrine, or whatever it is, Mr. Hepburn's constituents don't count. They elected him as something in particular, and to do something in particular, but when he suddenly decides to be something else and to do something else, the thought never occurs to him to consult them. More, and even more illuminating of the thing we have come to, the constituency itself is quite indifferent.

Time was when we stressed responsibility in government; gloried in its being representative; but we wonder who Mr. Hepburn is being responsible to, or who or what he represents?

We Canadians often boast that we have inherited British traditions, and especially British Parliamentary traditions. Well, we wonder whether a member of the British Parliament who was elected as an Independent would dare suddenly to join some other party and become its leader without consulting the people who elected him? He might dare it; but we don't think he would get away with it. The British know what responsible government is about.

Here in Canada, in these days, at any rate, such things don't seem to matter; we have come to a point where democracy is becoming a confused jumble, where nobody seems to care about it beyond mouthing it at service clubs, and where, alas, it is being mixed up with tendencies that seem to us dangerously Fascist. Maybe we'll get away with it—but we wonder. —Ottawa Journal.

A Bible Message

A sower went out to sow his seed, and as he sowed some fell by the wayside, and it was trodden down, and the fowls of the air devoured it.

And some fell upon a rock, but as soon as it was sprung up it withered away because it lacked moisture.

And some fell among thorns, and the thorns sprang up with it and choked it.

And others fell on good ground and sprang up and bore fruit an hundredfold. And when he had said these things he cried, He that hath ears to hear let him hear.—Luke 8: 5-8.

Unconsidered Trifles

Among the ardent feminists arrested during the suffragette movement were an elderly crusader, often in jail for the cause, and a young girl sentenced for the first time and taking it very hard. They were assigned to adjoining cells. Presently the older woman heard the youngster sobbing. She rapped energetically on the dividing wall, and called:

"There, there, don't cry! Put your trust in God—She will protect you!"

A "goofy" man had a 'cello with one single string and used to play on it for hours on end, always holding his finger in the same place. For months and months his wife had to listen to his excruciating noises. Finally, in desperation she said: "You know, I've noticed that other 'cellos have four strings, and the players move their fingers about all the time".

The man stopped his playing for a moment and said to his wife impatiently: "Of course the others have four strings and move their fingers about all the time. They are looking for the place. I've found it!"

The late Justice Holmes once declared that human beings can always come to an agreement, if they only try long enough. And he cited the conversation of two Minnesota farmers who had not seen each other for a long time.

"Hello, Axel! What have you been doing?"

"I been in the hospital".

"That's bad!"

"No, that's good. I married the nurse".

"That's good!"

"No, that's bad; she's got nine children".

"That's bad!"

"No, that's good; she's got a big house".

"That's good!"

"No, that's bad; the house burned down".

"That's bad!"

"No, that's good; she burned up with the house".

"That's good!"

"Yes, that's good!"

Contemporaries

NOT FLATTERING

The Eskimos are praised as being the most moral people of the world. The downfall of a few is attributed to their contacts with the white man, a circumstance which is not flattering to civilization.—Hamilton Sepecator.

BRITISH LABOUR DEBUNKS SOCIALISM

The nationalization of industry has always been the objective of the British Labour Party, and Herbert Morrison, as a labour leader, must have advocated it on many occasions. But Mr. Morrison has held the position of Home Secretary in the British Cabinet for some years, and his experience in framing legislation affecting business enterprise has led him away from the old-fashioned notion that the economic activities which sustain a nation can be effectively carried on by government departments.

British trade unions which have framed postwar plans for their industries have taken exactly the same view. Such powerful unions as the Iron and Steel Federation, the Printing and Kindred Trades Federation, the Boot and Shoe Operatives' Union, the Cotton and Textiles Union, the Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, the Furnishing Trades' Union, and even the Union of Post Office Workers, all agree in explicit repudiation of the idea that their industries should be run by government departments. The Post Office Union, in fact, is actively campaigning for a plan to transfer postal and telegraph services from the control of the Postmaster General and his department to a controlling body constituted on the lines of a public utility company.

This rather astonishing development is a clear indication of the revulsion in Britain against the bureaucracy of Government departments.—The Printed Word.

Aviation Meeting Sum-Up

By B. T. RICHARDSON

Summing up the Chicago conference on civil aviation, one must apply a double standard. The documents which delegates are signing Thursday, subject to formal ratification later, will not wipe out bilateral bargaining for transit and traffic rights on world airways. But they undoubtedly promote the art and safety of air navigation.

On one hand, the conference has failed; but on the other it has been a signal success. Yet its successes are locked wtihin technical annexes which only an expert understands; while its failure affects the whole world, touching on the future of Anglo-American relations and the prospects of the United Nations evolving into a durable world organization. Air commerce rights represent one of the most explosive post-war issues. Rapid and orderly development of this commerce rests upon an effective international agreement. But Britain and America failed in their first attempt to reach it.

The conference left the door open to reconciliation, and the most revelant outside development has been the State Department shake-up in Washington which removed U.S. aviation policy from the hands of A. A. Berle, chairman of the Chicago conference. Whether this foreshadows fuller American accommodation of other views on aviation, no one can say yet.

The interim organization will work ahead on both technical and political problems of aviation until 26 nations ratify the permanent convention whereon the organization will become permanent. Meanwhile the interim council will be set up in Canada—probably Montreal—a fitting gesture for the senior British Dominion, the middle power and bridge between Britain and America which missed by a fraction of history in effecting compromise in Chicago.

The new convention, either in its interim or permanent form, does not include transit or traffic rights. The nations must go out and make the best bargains they can for these. But two separate agreements, introduced at the initiative of the U.S. delegation, will permit nations:

1. To grant transit rights alone, the so-called two freedoms of innocent passage and non-traffic stops.

Or 2, grant five freedoms which include transit rights, namely, the privilege of disembarking or embarking in a foreign country and of carrying traffic between foreign countries.

Specific instructions to continue study of the problem of including air freedoms in the convention were given to the interim council, on motion of United Kingdom, seconded by United States. Other tangled issues left in the same category were control of rate, adjustment of capacity to traffic offering in order to curtail cutthroat competition, and safeguards for United Nations devastate by war.

In order to temper the cutthroat nature of bargaining for rights, the conference devised a standard form of bilateral agreements and advised all nations to use it. It would forbid discrimination and assure equality of opportunity for Allied countries.

The conference had its grotesque features, for agreement once seemed near yet it was missed by a very small margin. It was surrounded by evidence of intense lobbying by aviation interests. The American delegate and conference chairman, Mr. Berle, used frequent press conferences to convey directives on the American case in which the ideal air freedom coincided with U.S. aviation interests, and he left other delegates irritated. Washington and Madrid interjected a sour note by announcing a bilateral agreement while conference hopes for a multilateral convention had not quite died.

The new council, with 21 members, will be unweildly, but its subordinate and regional commissions may become genuine working agencies. The most conspicuous absentee will be Russia, and it was possible Russia could adhere to the relatively weak convention unless the technical standards create obstacles. Not wholly lost was Australia and New Zealand's plan for international ownership and operation of trunk lines. This was left to the council for further study. Small nations rushed to get council seats, which were decided Wednesday by secret ballot.

American and British delegations had accepted a rate control clause, but this was dropped. Rate regulation would have rested upon the obligation of each nation to deny its air space to any country which the council branded as an offender. Disappearance of this clause may be ascribed to American aversion to an international organization with authority, yet the Two and Five Freedoms agreements contain strong enforcement clauses strictly comparable to the lost rate clause. If any state grants these freedoms and suffers "injustice and hardship" at the hands of a state which "unreasonably fails to take suitable corrective action," then the offending state risks suspension by two-thirds vote of the assembly. Short of a world police force, stronger powers of enforcement are hardly possible.

The real failure of the conference was the inability to use this principle to bridge American and British differences. Differences over powers to be given to an international organization were not "fundamental," as Lord Swinton said.

Anglo-American harmony foundered on the problem of regulating the capacity of competing operators. The British held the right to escalate capacity on internation routes should be based only on traffic embarked in the homeland. The Americans held escalation should take account of traffic picked up along the route.

Both sides presented powerful arguments which reflected conflicting economic interests. The Americans argued though routes could not develop without escalation based on intermediate traffic; the British argued this would destroy regional and local services. The Americans wanted fifth freedom traffic around the world. The British suggested no formula could cover all regions.

The Canadians proposed the compromise that escalation take account of one-third of the intermediate traffic. Questions of justice would have to be enforced, but even the Americans in their air freedoms' agreements recognized this. Yet in the end the question of traffic regulation had to be left for further study. On that indecisive note, the conference ended.

Depend On Huge Snowy Owl For Weather Conditions

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Dec. 14 — (CP) — The day is coming when scientific studies and radio will make the snowy owl relatively unimportant as an indication of fur conditions in the far north—but it's still a long way off.

Resources Department officials said today the assembling of information on the animal life cycles of the north is continuing under a plan of co-operation between the government and the Oxford University Bureau of Animal Population. But, after nine years of study of the fluctuations in the numbers of various species of wild life, authorities still often depend on the owl for first information on Arctic conditions. It hurries south as soon as it finds food hard to obtain.

"We believe that in years to come, with records of plenty and scarcity in the north extending over decades and recording various factors in detail, it will be possible to be as accurate in forecasting game and fur supplies as now is possible in forecasting the weather," one authority said.

Some cycles have been roughly established. The white fox cycle from plenty through scarcity to plenty is about four years; snowshoe rabbit, about 10; Lemming, about four; snowy owl, about four; grouse, about 10;, ptarmigan, about four.

"The difficulty is that there evidently is more than one cycle," said an official. "These cycles may be due to different causes and cover different periods...

Our present studies are designed to establish as many as possible of these factors. In some cases we may be able to intervene to cut down losses, and, in any event, we eventually should be able to give adequate warning."

Information for the studies is obtained from hundreds of questionnaires sent annually by the Department of Traders, Trappers, Missions and Royal Canadian Mounted Police posts throughout the far North.

Britain, Russia Set Up Spheres

LONDON, Dec. 14—(CP).—Labor Minister Ernest Bevin gave the first definite indication today that Britain and Russia—with President Roosevelt's approval — were establishing separate spheres of influence in liberated Europe.

Replying to openly expressed contentions that Britain was acting in Greece at cross-purposes with her allies, Mr. Bevin told the annual Labor Party conference:

"Long before this we had an agreement with Russia whereby Russia undertook the main problem of Romania and we undertook the main problem of Greece."

"This agreement," Mr. Bevin said, "was taken to Quebec, submitted to President Roosevelt and agreed to and initialed by him."

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP).—At the risk of having our out-streched neck treated like a Christmas turkey's, this Dept. feels compelled to point out that the United States' college football season's two big war bond shows have failed to interest the people they were intended to reach....The Army-Navy game in Baltimore sold $58,637,000 worth of bonds and next Saturday's bond Bowl game here between Randolph Field and the 2nd Air Force has reached its quota of $79,750,000.... The figures are impressive, but the Army-Navy sale included $1,000,000 boxes and the bond Bowl quota was underwritten by "corporate interests and payroll savings groups ....They'd be buying bonds anyway and aren't the new small buyers the ones whose attention was sought....Events staged by experienced sport promoters, such as the all-star baseball games, haven't turned out that way.

Pointed Remarks.

When an observer at the recent baseball meetings noticed Branch Rickey with his arm affectionately draped over Bob Quinn's shoulders, he remarked: "There goes Bob's shirt."....And when shortstop Buddy Kerr was seen occupying the place at the head of the table while dining with a group of Giant officials, a National League manager commented: "I'll bet $20 he's a holdout."

Two soldiers from Guelph defeated opponents from Windsor in a boxing card at Petawawa last night. Pte. K. L. Garcia of the Royal City won the camp middleweight championship by out-pointing Gnr. E. Hogan of Windsor, the latter being floored three times in the three rounder. In the welterweight class, Gnr. O. Sanvid earned the title by knocking out Gnr. S. J. Stanko of Windsor.

The city council at St. Thomas yesterday granted permission to the Elgin County Horse Breeders Association to use an old city-owned race track for a revival of harness racing. The horse-men may use the plant until the site is required for residential purposes, it was stipulated.

The Silver Ball Basketball Tournament at Kitchener Y.M.C.A. during Christmas week has attracted 15 team entries including Sarnia, Windsor, London, Owen Sound, Simcoe, Brampton, Hamilton, Galt, Guelph and Stratford. Kitchener officials announced last night a second memorial trophy had been presented for competition as a tribute to FO. Robert S. Anderson, who was killed in action in 1942 over Holland. The previous trophy was in memory of Capt. Vince Stark.

Following his discharge from the R.C.A.F., for which he played hockey at Arnprior during the last two seasons, Allan Shields is slated to join Hull Volants in the Quebec Senior Hockey League. Shields was formerly with Ottawa, New York Americans and Montreal Maroons in the N.H.L.

Following litigation in Mexican courts for 10 years, Mexican government officials yesterday seized Agua Caliente racetrack and Budd Arena and turned the plant over to the Arguello family, claimants of the property. The Caliente Jockey Club has conducted a racing card on Sundays only for the last two years.

The Filarets of Rochester, N.Y., boasting the title of Women's World Basketball champions, have arranged a short tour of Western Ontario in January. They play an all-star team at Kitchener, Jan. 18 and make playing appearances in Guelph Jan. 19 and at Brantford and Hamilton Jan. 20.

Bill (Moose) Rogin, former Toronto Varsity football and basketball star, has resigned as director of physical education at Sarnia Collegiate and Vocational School after six years to take charge of the physical department of the Young Men's Hebrew Association at Toronto. He also played basketball for Assumption College and Windsor Fords.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

When the Transports and St. John's teams met in their first battle in the current campaign of the Ladies' Softball League they picked up right where they left off last spring when the Saints gave the champs the hottest kind of an argument before being nosed out in a final series that had the fans pop-eyed. The opening clash of the present season between the two outfits was just as hectic as any of the games in the playoffs last spring. St. John's finally won by 17 to 16, after the toughest kind of a struggle. The two teams meet for the second time this season tomorrow night in the opening game of the weekly double-header and with the leadership at stake it should prove a lively affair all the way. Transports can virtually tie up the race by a win while of course a victory for the Saints would cement their hold on first place. The junior game between Westclox and Quakers which is billed for 8:45 o'clock should also be a keen tussle for the teams, both of which are new this season look to be evenly matched.

The decision of the Cossa basketball group to include a bantam series this season is most decidely a step in the right direction. It will afford school coaches an opportunity to begin their training work with the youngsters almost as soon as they enter Collegiate and thus they will be able to fashion their material and build teams from the ground up. It is a system that should have very important results for it means that youngsters will learn the fundamentals of basketball at an early age and their development as they work up into the senior division should be facilitated accordingly. Probably the same plan could be worked to advantage in football and hockey, too, for the possibilities of this early training readily suggest themselves. It will be interesting to watch how the experiment works out in Collegiate basketball circles. As the thing looks now it cannot fail to be an important factor in developing and maintaining a constant stream of basketball talent in the secondary schools.

A Veteran Passes

The sudden death of Walter McMullen veteran sports editor of the Hamilton Spectator and formerly with the Hamilton Herald has removed one of the outstanding figures in sports journalism in Canada. Next to Jim Fitzgerald of the Toronto Telegram the Hamilton writer was probably the oldest sports scribe in the country. Walter McMullen wrote with authority on all kinds of Canadian sport; he knew what he was writing about and he had the confidence of the general public and particularly of the athletes about whom he wrote. His views on current sport topics were always read with respect and interest and his criticism, when he had any to offer, was never unkindly but always constructive. Walter McMullen was one of the old school in sport circles but he had the faculty of moving on with the times and was never out-moded. His sudden passing has left a gap in the ranks of the veterans that will be hard to fill. Incidentally he was a native of our own district for Port Hope was his birth-place and his only surviving relative, a sister, still lives there.

Says Billy Westwick in the Ottawa Journal sport column: Bruins are leading a movement back to a former N.H.L. habit of tagging a name on this or that forward line....For a time this practice was highly popular, though sometimes slightly nauseating when considered in the light of actual talent and performance....Happily it was abandoned by most managers, but Bruins now have a "typhoon line" which is a fearsome cognomen which may frighten some of the children around Boston but won't faze the opposition....Even such expressions as "first line" and "second line" don't make much sense any more in modern hockey.... Sammy Godin, former N.H.L. and minor league star, used to tell a good one on that subject....Few hockey players had a better sense of humor than the likeable Sam, and he liked to tell of the time he was with Canadiens in the N.H.L. and a former coach of that team drew him aside one time in Chicago and told him very confidentially not to mention it, but when Canadiens got back to Montreal Sammy would be "on the first line."...."Well," Sam would recall, "we got back to Montreal and the coach was right; I was on the first line—the first damned C.N.R. line to Windsor."

Sport In Schools

Pleading for a full resumption of sports in secondary schools, Chick Appel of the Stratford Beacon-Herald says: "It still is not perfectly clear to this column why such inter-school sport competition was not continued without a hitch, despite the fact that the number of student athletes would be greatly reduced through war service and the calibre of competition would consequently suffer. Boys attending these schools, either too young for the armed forces or rejected for military service through some minor physical defect, are entitled to have their sport, even though it may be limited in scope. When physical fitness and health improvement are being stressed by various organizations throughout the land, it does appear that one of the best ways to achieve both of these is by providing our young men and women with clean, healthful sport competition. They could be so conducted as not to hamper our all-out war effort, and would aid no little in improving the physical condition of a large number of our young people. After all, even the older folk require some form of entertainment as a relief from the constant worries of war, and if a vote of the students were taken it's a good bet that the vast majority of them would favor a return to pre-war sport competition between schools and colleges."

Toronto Maple Leafs are on the spot in the next couple of days and unless they can show more drive than they have been exhibiting in recent fixtures are liable to find themselves by Sunday not only down in third place but with the Boston Bruins biting their heels. Tonight Hap Day's gang invade Montreal and while they did succeed in knocking off the Canadiens there earlier in the season their chances of repeating the feat are not considered particularly bright. Saturday the Leafs will be back at home with their guests the troublesome Detroit Red Wings who have long had a habit of making Saturday nights in Toronto almost a complete wreck for Queen City fans. The Wings generally rise to their best hockey when they meet the Daymen in Toronto and by the same token the Leafs invariably find trouble in untracking themselves when meeting Jack Adams' hard-hitting gang. Truth is the Leafs without Schriner are not a particularly powerful squad, which offers its own criterion of the grade of professional hockey being played at the present time.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: The meeting of the executive of the Peterborough hockey club and all friends of juvenile hockey at the Duffus' board room tonight should be largely attended....This gathering should do much to get the organization of a juvenile league here well under way....Tomorrow night's double-header in the Ladies' Basketball League at the Y.W.C.A. will be the last games in the loop until Friday January 5. ....Holiday activities make the two-week postponement necessary.... Ladies' City Five Pin League will hold their annual chicken roll, always an interesting event, next Monday night....Peterborough's outdoor rink program has been knocked for a loop by this week's blizzard which has made any progress so far as making ice is concerned almost impossible... However the parks staff hope to get busy in the near future on the hockey and skating cushions.

Track Coach's Hobby Tying Flies For Fishermen

By Central Press Canadian

STATE COLLEGE, PA., Dec. 14— Winter nights in the Nittany mountains are cold and seemingly endless but, within the warm confines of his home, George Harvey finds them ideal for fly tying.

The Penn State track coach, who started fishing with his father as a boy of five, has been tying flies since he was 10—and still does it, at the rate of about a thousand a year.

A few friends share the fruits of Harvey's deft fingers but his products are, for the most part, designed exclusively for his own use. Harvey doesn't remember exactly how he got started on his hobby.

"Fly tying was new and flies were pretty expensive," he recalls, "so I decided to tie my own."

The former Lion runner, who still likes to do a turn on the track with his proteges, began teaching this fine art to students and faculty members more than 10 years ago.

Huog Bezdek, then director of athletics at Penn State, launched a class in fly casting with Harvey (a junior at college) as teacher 13 years ago. A year later, a class in fly casting was added.

Harvey, who still directs a class in fly casting each spring, was forced by the war-time shortage of equipment to halt his classes in fly tying, but during the past year has satisfied his bent for instruction by teaching his three-year-old daughter, Susie, the art of tying.

"Susie's tying is still a little erratic," pop quips, "but she's getting there gradually."

Harvey performed in cross-country and track as an undergraduate, and returned to the campus in 1942 after seven years as athletic coach at Mont Alto Forestry school, an adjunct of the college He was named duration coach when Chick Werner, peacetime mentor, accepted a commission in the Naval Reserve.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

When the Transports and St. John's teams met in their first battle in the current campaign of the Ladies' Softball League they picked up right where they left off last spring when the Saints gave the champs the hottest kind of an argument before being nosed out in a final series that had the fans pop-eyed. The opening clash of the present season between the two outfits was just as hectic as any of the games in the playoffs last spring. St. John's finally won by 17 to 16, after the toughest kind of a struggle. The two teams meet for the second time this season tomorrow night in the opening game of the weekly double-header and with the leadership at stake it should prove a lively affair all the way. Transports can virtually tie up the race by a win while of course a victory for the Saints would cement their hold on first place. The junior game between Westclox and Quakers which is billed for 8:45 o'clock should also be a keen tussle for the teams, both of which are new this season look to be evenly matched.

The decision of the Cossa basketball group to include a bantam series this season is most decidely a step in the right direction. It will afford school coaches an opportunity to begin their training work with the youngsters almost as soon as they enter Collegiate and thus they will be able to fashion their material and build teams from the ground up. It is a system that should have very important results for it means that youngsters will learn the fundamentals of basketball at an early age and their development as they work up into the senior division should be facilitated accordingly. Probably the same plan could be worked to advantage in football and hockey, too, for the possibilities of this early training readily suggest themselves. It will be interesting to watch how the experiment works out in Collegiate basketball circles. As the thing looks now it cannot fail to be an important factor in developing and maintaining a constant stream of basketball talent in the secondary schools.

A Veteran Passes

The sudden death of Walter McMullen veteran sports editor of the Hamilton Spectator and formerly with the Hamilton Herald has removed one of the outstanding figures in sports journalism in Canada. Next to Jim Fitzgerald of the Toronto Telegram the Hamilton writer was probably the oldest sports scribe in the country. Walter McMullen wrote with authority on all kinds of Canadian sport; he knew what he was writing about and he had the confidence of the general public and particularly of the athletes about whom he wrote. His views on current sport topics were always read with respect and interest and his criticism, when he had any to offer, was never unkindly but always constructive. Walter McMullen was one of the old school in sport circles but he had the faculty of moving on with the times and was never out-moded. His sudden passing has left a gap in the ranks of the veterans that will be hard to fill. Incidentally he was a native of our own district for Port Hope was his birth-place and his only surviving relative, a sister, still lives there.

Says Billy Westwick in the Ottawa Journal sport column: Bruins are leading a movement back to a former N.H.L. habit of tagging a name on this or that forward line....For a time this practice was highly popular, though sometimes slightly nauseating when considered in the light of actual talent and performance....Happily it was abandoned by most managers, but Bruins now have a "typhoon line" which is a fearsome cognomen which may frighten some of the children around Boston but won't faze the opposition....Even such expressions as "first line" and "second line" don't make much sense any more in modern hockey.... Sammy Godin, former N.H.L. and minor league star, used to tell a good one on that subject....Few hockey players had a better sense of humor than the likeable Sam, and he liked to tell of the time he was with Canadiens in the N.H.L. and a former coach of that team drew him aside one time in Chicago and told him very confidentially not to mention it, but when Canadiens got back to Montreal Sammy would be "on the first line."...."Well," Sam would recall, "we got back to Montreal and the coach was right; I was on the first line—the first damned C.N.R. line to Windsor."

Sport In Schools

Pleading for a full resumption of sports in secondary schools, Chick Appel of the Stratford Beacon-Herald says: "It still is not perfectly clear to this column why such inter-school sport competition was not continued without a hitch, despite the fact that the number of student athletes would be greatly reduced through war service and the calibre of competition would consequently suffer. Boys attending these schools, either too young for the armed forces or rejected for military service through some minor physical defect, are entitled to have their sport, even though it may be limited in scope. When physical fitness and health improvement are being stressed by various organizations throughout the land, it does appear that one of the best ways to achieve both of these is by providing our young men and women with clean, healthful sport competition. They could be so conducted as not to hamper our all-out war effort, and would aid no little in improving the physical condition of a large number of our young people. After all, even the older folk require some form of entertainment as a relief from the constant worries of war, and if a vote of the students were taken it's a good bet that the vast majority of them would favor a return to pre-war sport competition between schools and colleges."

Toronto Maple Leafs are on the spot in the next couple of days and unless they can show more drive than they have been exhibiting in recent fixtures are liable to find themselves by Sunday not only down in third place but with the Boston Bruins biting their heels. Tonight Hap Day's gang invade Montreal and while they did succeed in knocking off the Canadiens there earlier in the season their chances of repeating the feat are not considered particularly bright. Saturday the Leafs will be back at home with their guests the troublesome Detroit Red Wings who have long had a habit of making Saturday nights in Toronto almost a complete wreck for Queen City fans. The Wings generally rise to their best hockey when they meet the Daymen in Toronto and by the same token the Leafs invariably find trouble in untracking themselves when meeting Jack Adams' hard-hitting gang. Truth is the Leafs without Schriner are not a particularly powerful squad, which offers its own criterion of the grade of professional hockey being played at the present time.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: The meeting of the executive of the Peterborough hockey club and all friends of juvenile hockey at the Duffus' board room tonight should be largely attended....This gathering should do much to get the organization of a juvenile league here well under way....Tomorrow night's double-header in the Ladies' Basketball League at the Y.W.C.A. will be the last games in the loop until Friday January 5. ....Holiday activities make the two-week postponement necessary.... Ladies' City Five Pin League will hold their annual chicken roll, always an interesting event, next Monday night....Peterborough's outdoor rink program has been knocked for a loop by this week's blizzard which has made any progress so far as making ice is concerned almost impossible... However the parks staff hope to get busy in the near future on the hockey and skating cushions.

The Sports Round-Up

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP).—At the risk of having our out-streched neck treated like a Christmas turkey's, this Dept. feels compelled to point out that the United States' college football season's two big war bond shows have failed to interest the people they were intended to reach....The Army-Navy game in Baltimore sold $58,637,000 worth of bonds and next Saturday's bond Bowl game here between Randolph Field and the 2nd Air Force has reached its quota of $79,750,000.... The figures are impressive, but the Army-Navy sale included $1,000,000 boxes and the bond Bowl quota was underwritten by "corporate interests and payroll savings groups ....They'd be buying bonds anyway and aren't the new small buyers the ones whose attention was sought....Events staged by experienced sport promoters, such as the all-star baseball games, haven't turned out that way.

Pointed Remarks.

When an observer at the recent baseball meetings noticed Branch Rickey with his arm affectionately draped over Bob Quinn's shoulders, he remarked: "There goes Bob's shirt."....And when shortstop Buddy Kerr was seen occupying the place at the head of the table while dining with a group of Giant officials, a National League manager commented: "I'll bet $20 he's a holdout."

Track Coach's Hobby Tying Flies For Fishermen

By Central Press Canadian

STATE COLLEGE, PA., Dec. 14—Winter nights in the Nittany mountains are cold and seemingly endless but, within the warm confines of his home, George Harvey finds them ideal for fly tying.

The Penn State track coach, who started fishing with his father as a boy of five, has been tying flies since he was 10—and still does it, at the rate of about a thousand a year.

A few friends share the fruits of Harvey's deft fingers but his products are, for the most part, designed exclusively for his own use. Harvey doesn't remember exactly how he got started on his hobby.

"Fly tying was new and flies were pretty expensive," he recalls, "so I decided to tie my own."

The former Lion runner, who still likes to do a turn on the track with his proteges, began teaching this fine art to students and faculty members more than 10 years ago.

Huog Bezdek, then director of athletics at Penn State, launched a class in fly casting with Harvey (a junior at college) as teacher 13 years ago. A year later, a class in fly casting was added.

Harvey, who still directs a class in fly casting each spring, was forced by the war-time shortage of equipment to halt his classes in fly tying, but during the past year has satisfied his bent for instruction by teaching his three-year-old daughter, Susie, the art of tying.

"Susie's tying is still a little erratic," pop quips, "but she's getting there gradually."

Harvey performed in cross-country and track as an undergraduate, and returned to the campus in 1942 after seven years as athletic coach at Mont Alto Forestry school, an adjunct of the college He was named duration coach when Chick Werner, peacetime mentor, accepted a commission in the Naval Reserve.

Detroit And Leafs Both Have Good Home Records

By BOB NIELSEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A look at the home and road records reveals that the National Hockey League teams, with the exception of the leading Montreal Canadiens, are extremely amiable guests but highly uncharitable hosts. The Flying Frenchmen are a tough proposition anywhere.

Those same Canadiens are in a class by themselves as a road team, having won six, lost two and tied one for a winning percentage away from home of .722. This performance even tops their home record of five wins and two losses for .714 per cent.

Most pleasing to hometown fans are Detroit Red Wings, who have taken six of eight games at the Olympia, with one draw, to build up an impressive .813 percentage. Jack Adams' boys are no better than an even bet on the road, however, with a record of three victories, three defeats and a draw.

Toronto Maple Leafs, always noted as a good home team, have a 6-2, or .750 record there. Like Detroit, they are a .500 road team, with four wins and the same number of losses.

Art Ross' Bruins, who have been utilizing a recent flock of home games to effect a big improvement in their standing, have won five of eight starts in the Boston Garden for a .625 record. As visitors they are not so formidable, having only a .350 winning percentage derived from three triumphs, six losses and a tie.

New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks are losers anywhere but rate roughly three times better in familiar surroundings than before hostile crowds.

Aside from the axiom that home ice is a big help and vice versa, the moral of the statistics seems to be that the key to success lies in a good road performance.

Ban Football At Parks Expect Debate

NEW YORK, Dec. 14—(AP)—Baseball's trade winds, which generally blow strongly at the annual major and minor meetings, were a gentle zephyr at the winter convention just concluded.

Gazing into another talent-shy wartime season, the clubs for the most part decided to hang on to players now on their rosters instead of gambling on swaps, and spent their time on the legislative angles.

Of 13 resolutions passed yesterday the banning of football games at major league parks until after the final home game of the season may provide the most fuel for the hot-stove league discussions this winter.

While there's little football can do about it, National Football League Public Relations Director George Strickler said the league probably would devote part of its meeting here Monday to baseball's edict.

"I don't know what we'll do about it," Strickler said, "but if we're ever going to have our own ball parks, actions like this will hasten the day."

Acting to aid returning servicemen, the majors voted to increase the reserve list limit from 40 to 48 and the active player list from 25 to 30, with all additional players coming from the services. The optional player limit including all players, was increased from 15 to 20.

The closed period on waivers was fixed from Sept. 25 to Nov. 20 inclusive, and four days will be allowed for claiming on waivers instead of the previous 71-hour interval.

The leagues adopted Cincinnati's proposal that before a player carrying a bonus can be transferred, the club must first settle what is due him.

The committee to draft a new major league agreement will meet for the first time Jan. 5, 1945, at Chicago.

TORONTO, Dec. 14 — (CP). — Hockey talent hunters are fair game in Winnipeg these days, it seems, as the managers of local teams keep an eagle eye on any interloper who might want to snatch some promising young player out of the 'Peg. Though a closed season has been declared on the Juniors, there are still some players in other categories who might listen to the lure of the East if they aren't watched.... When he heard that "Squibbs" Walker, Toronto Maple Leaf scout, was under surveillance in the Manitoba capital, Joe O'Neill of the Owen Sound Sun-Times suggested his town might offer better hunting. "We didn't dog him around when he (Walker) was here," said Joe.

Grid glances:

Football is still a major topic of conversation in Alberta. Prof. A. W. Matthews of University of Alberta has sent out a questionnaire to see how the fans like the American game, as compared with Canadian rules. United States servicemen stationed in the West gave the fans quite a taste of their type of play this fall, so the result of the poll should be interesting.

Salute to the Moaner:

Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara pays a well-deserved tribute to Ted Reeve, former Toronto Telegram sports writer and famed athlete who has been invalided home from service in France. Ted has the saving grace of easy humor, so lacking in most sport writing of the present day and "has the priceless gift of being able to laugh at himself and his own misfortunes," says Baz.

Incidentally:

When Joe Primeau's Toronto St. Mike's downed old team-mate Charlie Conacher's Oshawa Generals, Chuck wanted to know if Joe was trying to ruin his reputation. Quoth Joe: "Not at all, Chas., just trying to get one of my own."..... The Jenkins Sisters of Schumacher in the Timmins, Ont., area, expect to get first call when there is a pairs vacancy in the professional Ice-capades cast......Edmonton is another part of the West where they don't worry about the future shortages of hockey talent. The junior and minor leagues have produced so many players the last few years, the professional scouts would do well to keep an eye on that sector of the country....George Smith veteran coach and developer of many athletes at Westmount High School in Greater Montreal area, has finally retired from active master-minding.

Buffalo Bisons Beat Providence

By The Canadian Press

While Buffalo Bisons last night strengthened their hold on first place in the eastern division of the American Hockey League by defeating Providence Reds 7-4, Hershey Bears, eastern division runners up, edged out Pittsburgh Hornets, western division second place holders, 4-3.

At Buffalo, they had reached the sixth minute of the final frame tied 4-4 when Pargeter, followed by Lewis and Kilrea, successively scored the three winning goals for Bisons.

The game was only 26 seconds old, when Paul Courteau of Providence, league leading scorer, scored. However, Halderson, Jimmy Russell and Don Webster came back for Bisons before Courteau made his second goal. Ken Kilrea and Roger Gagne traded goals in the second period and Manny Cotlow tied for the Reds early in the third stanza.

After Rossignol and Prentice scored for Pittsburgh in the first period on their home ice, Gooden, Pozzo, Cooper and O'Neil scored Hershey's four goals in the second stanza. Campeau also scored an additional point for Pittsburgh in the same period. The last frame went scoreless for all.

Two Of Family Awarded V.C.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(CP-Reuter). —Posthumous award of the Victoria Cross, the Empire's highest decoration for gallantry, to Lieut. (temporary Captain) John Niel Randle of the Royal Norfolk Regiment, was announced Monday night. The ward was for extreme bravery and self-sacrifice by Randle, of Radlett, Hertfordshire, England, in an action against Japanese forces at Kohima in Assam Province last May.

During an attack on an enemy-held ridge Capt. Randle took over command when the company commander was wounded, although himself wounded, and after the objective was captured he brought in all the wounded men. Later he charged a Japanese machine-gun post single-handed, and despite mortal wounds silenced the post with a grenade.

He became the 113th man to win the V.C. during this war, seven of them Canadians.

Capt. Randle is the second member of the same household to win the V.C. Two years ago the brother of his widow, FO. Leslie Manser of the R.A.F., won the V.C. posthumously at the age of 20 in a 1,000-bomber raid on Cologne.

At one time both Randle and Manser lived in the same house in Radlett.

William Gourlay Webster Named Liquor Chief

TORONTO, Dec. 14 — (CP) — William Gourlay Webster, 56-year-ber of the Ontario Legislature for ber of the Ontario Legis%lature for London riding, to-day was sworn in as minister without portfolio in Premier Drew's cabinet. He will also serve as Provincial Liquor Commissioner when the resignation of Victor Goggin, present commissioner, becomes effective Dec. 31.

The announcement by Premier Drew of the appointment said Mr. Webster will receive the usual $8,000 annual salary as cabinet minister and will serve as liquor commissioner without an additional remuneration.

Son of a Presbyterian minister, Mr. Webster was born in Toronto, attended High school at Orillia and graduated in civil engineering from the University of Toronto. He spent several years on exploration work and railway construction in Northern Ontario before serving overseas with the Royal Canadian Engineers.

After the war he entered the construction business in London and spent 12 years as a contractor on highway and other construction in western Ontario. In 1932 he started a small manufacturing industry in London and now is president of Webster Air Equipment Co., Ltd., which manufactures air compressors and spray painting equipment. He also operates war plants at Sarnia and St. Thomas.

Two sons have been overseas since 1940. John was taken prisoner at Dieppe and Peter is serving in Italy. He was first elected to the Legislature in the provincial election of 1943.

Men Of 4th Battery Seeking Used Radio

To make their new recreation room more cheerful for "off duty" hours, the men of the 4th (R) Battery, Heavy Anti-Aircraft, have asked the people of Peterborough to help find them a radio. Transportation for it will be arranged immediately.

Any cabinet model, even if minor repairs are necessary, will be gratefully accepted by the Battery. Undoubtedly, there are many such radios stored away in attics or cellars, and here is a chance to put one of them to work for the pleasure of the men of our reserve armed forces.

If there is anyone in Peterborough who would care to offer such a radio to the men of the Battery for their recreation room, they are requested to telephone 3808. It will be put to good use immediately, entertaining the men of the 4th (R) Battery, Heavy Anti-Aircraft, on their spare hours. Telephone 3808.

Trouble Looms In France If Gen. Charles De Gaulle's Regime Fails

By GLADWIN HILL
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Dec. 14 (AP)—More than six months after the invasion of Europe and the subsequent liberation of virtually all France, half the French people are muttering that the Communists are gaining too much headway while the other half declares trends are too reactionary and that "the Trusts" are taking hold.

Most indications are that while there is a strong left-wing current, it is far from dominant—although it has extensive possibilities for growth.

Gen. De Gaulle—who is accepted virtually without question as the present national leader—is a devout Roman Catholic, a professional soldier and certainly no Communist. There are many indications he has no party.

Gen. De Gaulle speaks in one breath of "Nationalizing"—a term never precisely defined—key French enterprises and in the next of preserving private initiative. This is not mere equivocation, since Gen. De Gaulle, a sincere and courageous man, has not hesitated to take an unpleasant bull by the horns when the need is urgent.

Compromise?

Some people think it represents moderation between the conflicting views; others that he has in mind some compromise between collectivism and individualism.

There are only two Communists among his cabinet of 20 which is running France today—and those two are in the secondary posts of health and air.

In policy, the government has shown a few leftist inclinations but not an inordinate number. Postal service, telegraph, telephones and railroads already were government activities, and government now seeks "nationalization" of such fields as power, banking, and insurance, although these still are in an exploratory stage.

National Labor Party's Future Not Very Bright

By JOHN DAUPHNEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Dec. 14— (CP)— The fate of the National Labor Party headed by Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald, United Kingdom High Commissioner to Canada, has been getting attention in the newspapers and most political writers say that its future isn't bright.

The party was created in 1931 by the late Ramsay MacDonald, the present leader's father, to accommodate those labor members of parliament who supported the National Government of the day. It is a separate party from the Labor party now in annual conference.

In the 1931 election National Labor contested 21 seats against Labor candidates and won 13; in 1935 it contested 20 seats and won eight. But since then two members have become independents—Kenneth Lindsay of Kilmarnock and Cmdr. Stephen King—all of Ormskirk; and Lichfield was lost to labor in a by-election.

Of the five seats National Labor now holds, Mr. MacDonald holds one and he has been absent in Canada several years. While it seems definite he will return to the United Kingdom political scene before long, the move is not expected for several months.

One writer has predicted that unless Mr. MacDonald gets back on the political job promptly, National Labor "will disband and will not again appear before the electors as an organized force."

The Conservative party has called a conference for the end of January and it has been announced Prime Minister Churchill, as party leader, will be the main speaker.

Recently Mr. Churchill indicated in parliament that a general election—first since 1935—will be held late next year, providing of course that Germany is defeated as expected by early summer. His January speech to the Conservatives is expected to deal primarily with political matters.

It comes amid growing feeling by politicians generally that the wartime coalition has about outlived its usefulness and that a return to party politics is imminent. Election campaigning on party lines is expected to begin shortly.

Talks between Sir Archibald Sinclair, leader of the Liberal party, and Ernest Brown, leader of the Liberal National party, have broken down and there seems no prospect of an early reunion of the two Liberal factions.

Accordingly, the Liberals will contest the coming election as an independent party while the Liberal Nationals will support Mr. Churchill's Conservatives, as announced some time ago.

150 Diphtheria Cases In One Month

By DOON CAMPBELL

BRUSSELS, Dec. 14 — (Reuter). — A warning that immunization might have to be carried out in the British Army if the incidence of diphtheria increased during the advance into Germany was given by a senior medical officer at Field Marshal Montgomery's headquarters, when the Allied Armies' "medical parliament" began its final conference today.

"Diphtheria has been increasing in Germany and Holland during recent years," he said.

"So far it has been sporadic, but it is amazing that the 150 cases last month were widely distributed, indicating a considerable carrier rate in Holland and parts of Germany.

"Conditions are bad housing and overcrowding caused by shelling, and bombing will lead to the concentration of carriers.

"As far as our army is concerned there are quite a number susceptible, and the question is: Should one immunize or not?

"If there is any chance of the outbreak spreading and becoming an epidemic in Holland and Germany, immunization may have to be considered," he concluded.

Col. W. A. Middleton, chief consultant in medicine at European theatre operations, United States Army, said the Americans had had no epidemic incidence of the disease, but the problem was particularly acute among prisoners of war.

Indicating the prevalence of diphtheria in Holland, Brig. E. Bulmer, consulting physician at 21st Army Group—of which the 1st Canadian Army is a part—said that in the Eindhoven district doctors made most of their incomes in January from treating diphtheria cases and suspected cases.

"So far," he said, "we have had about 250 cases since D-Day, which is not very bad. The figure is tending to rise, however."

There is no indication whether the Canadians were affected by diphtheria.

Trouble Looms

The Renault Motor Works, with 12,000 employees, were seized because they produced for the Germans, and the Northern Coal Mines were "requisitioned" to get coal moving.

If the De Gaulle regime keeps up national recovery apace, it seems there will be little real occasion—amid France's innate reverence for private property—for the Communists to peddle their collectivist wares. If the De Gaulle regime falls, look out for trouble.

HELP THE COAL DEALER TO Help you

Consult your dealer regarding your needs:

Your dealer has many pressing problems. Let him know how much fuel you will need to last until May 1, in addition to the amount you have in your bin. He can then organize his deliveries so that you will receive your share of fuel as it may become available.

Have your bins ready for the delivery man:

He is a busy man these days. Do everything possible to speed up his job. If you are getting both soft and hard coal separately, have the necessary spaces ready and cleared for each.

Clear all approaches to your bins:

Be sure that driveway, walk and outside steps are cleared of snow, and sanded if necessary; also clear walk and driveway. Use nearest windows. Keep inside steps cleared and free of boxes, pails, etc.

Accept whatever kind of usable fuel the dealer can supply:

Some types of coal are scarce and you can't afford to insist on specific grades or sizes as you would in normal times. Don't take a chance. Any kind of coal is preferable to none.

Take delivery when dealer can make it:

Your dealer is working with limited delivery facilities which must be used continuously throughout the winter, if every householder is to receive his share of available supplies. Don't wait, therefore, until you are almost out of fuel before permitting your dealer to replenish your bin. Let him make delivery when he can.

SAVE 1 SHOVELFUL IN 5

Ask your dealer for a copy of the Free Government Booklet "33 Ways To Save 1 Ton in 5"

It contains many helpful suggestions that will enable you to save coal by properly firing your furnace and keeping the heating system efficient. It also points to heat-stealing leaks in your house and how to prevent them.

Toronto Unit Shares In Lamone Battle

By WILLIAM BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC, Dec. 14 — (CP Cable). — Toronto infantry along with companies of a motor battalion commanded by British Columbia and French-speaking Canadian troops shared in the fighting to expand the Lamone River bridgehead established after a Sunday night crossing by the Canadians.

Once firm in their bridgeheads the Canadians on Monday quickly were making up days lost last week when they made three unsuccessful efforts to secure a permanent bridgehead on the west bank of the fast-flowing stream.

Both bridgeheads were thrusting westward and simultaneously the troops were pushing along the river bank to join the two bridgeheads.

(Allied Headquarters said Wednesday the bridgeheads had been joined in a continuous front of 6,000 yards after 24 hours of continuous fighting.)

Take 2 Bridges.

Toronto infantry contributed much to the expansion of the northern foothold established south of Highway 16, road running northwest from Canadian-captured Rimini to Ferraro. Two bridges in that sector were captured intact as the Canadians speedily clinched the initial surprise and by noon Monday they had registered a gain of almost 3 miles. The infantrymen captured 59 Germans and killed and wounded more.

Maj. George McCartney of Toronto led a company in the first break-out from the bridgehead between Borgo Di Villanov, about 7 miles north-west of Ravenna, and Borghetto, on the Lamone about a mile south of Borgo Di Villanova. Within three-quarters of an hour they had taken a main cross-roads.

Capt. Tony Falzetta of Sudbury, Ont., led his men on to about 1,000 yards past McCartney's position and seized a bridge on the Fossa Vetro Canal, bagging 30 prisoners, while troops under Capt. Herb Henry of Toronto fanned out to seize the other Fossa Vetro bridge 300 yards down stream.

Counter-attacks, including one with tanks, were repulsed and then Maj. Norman Hickling of Toronto led his men through heavy opposition toward the next canal, Fossa Vecchio, a mile ahead and paralleling the Lamone. They battled for more than an hour just 100 yards south of the canal before they were able to move up and consolidate on the banks.

19 New Members Join Keene Church

KEENE, Dec. 14—(ENS)—At the preparatory and reception service, held at Keene United church, nineteen new members were received in to the church on profession of their faith in Christ, by the minister and session. It was one of the largest classes held for some time. The Communion service on Sunday was well attended and the 19 young people took their first sacrament. The topic of the sermon was "The young people in our midst," when an appeal was made for a definite program in the training of young people for Christian leadership. The choir sang the anthem "It Is Well With Thy Soul?" with W. Drummond taking the solo part.

Canadians Use Hip Boots On Meuse Front

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN HOLLAND, Dec. 14—(CP Cable).—Amphibious war is being waged along the Maas River west of the Nijmegen salient where flooded flatlands separate the 1st Canadian Army troops from the Germans.

Bleak and wet, this inhospitable country brings out the sailor as well as the soldier in the men fighting across it. Troops on patrol wear Mae West lifebelts and hip-length rubber boots.

The treacherous, fast-flowing Maas is a constant menace that on occasion has overturned boatloads of soldiers in patrol. This is the type of country where boats are more useful than jeeps and tanks.

The German positions now are all north of the Maas River but enemy patrols frequently cross to the Canadian side, just as the Canadians make nightly sorties into enemy-held grounds.

Fort Crevecour, the Canadians' last strongpoint south of the river, was captured by the Canadians last Saturday. The fort is on an island formed where a canal from 'S Hertogenbosch divides into two arms just before reaching the Maas. A six-foot dike encircles the Napoleonic fortress which consists of half a dozen houses and slit trench positions.

Telephone Operators Sleep Downtown

TORONTO, Dec. 14—(CP)—More than 200 long-distance operators of the Bell Telephone Company who made it possible for Toronto's telephone service to be maintained despite the storm, slept downtown last night with all necessities—such as toothbrushes, nightgowns and cold cream—provided by the Army.

Army trucks hauled 135 double tier army beds and 40 single beds to the company's downtown office building.

Blame Sinatra For Wanderings Of Five Girls

MONTREAL, Dec. 14 (CP).—Five New York girls with a wanderlust, ranging in age from 10 to 17 years, were heading homeward by train today, while three fathers who came here to get them laid the whole thing to the fact the youngsters had heard Frank Sinatra was in Montreal.

"The girls were just crazy about him and when they saw in the papers that he was appearing in Montreal they decided to come up here," said the parents, adding that 'all is forgiven and we are happy to have our children back."

The girls were found huddled in Outremont freight yards by Montreal police early yesterday, after a spending spree in Montreal. They had misjudged the time of Frank Sinatra's one-night stand in Montreal by two weeks.

The girls had $1,998 in United States currency and a $100 American war bonds in their possession.

The youngsters had six valises, one hat box and another cardboard box filled with clothing. They had been missing from their New York homes since Dec. 7. Police said they had spent about $500 in Montreal.

The girls were identified by police as Helen Stribano, 10; her sister, Jeanne, 17; Frances Diperri, 15; Joan Lacusa, 13, and Concerta Livelli, 16. Police said that apparently Miss Livell had been chosen as leader of the group when they started their wanderings.

VOL. XC, No. 296 — THURSDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1944 — PRICE FOUR CENTS

Main Street Topics

BANK CLEARINGS

Bank clearing in Peterborough for the past week ending today took a decided drop, no doubt on account of the bad weather of the past two days. The total for the week amounted to $953,807, the lowest for many weeks.

CO-OPERATION

Citizens of Peterborough are showing commendable co-operation with the Fire Department by clearing snow drifts away from hydrants, Fire Chief George Gimblett observed today. This is an important help to city firefighters.

FOUR ENLISTMENTS

Four men have enlisted in the Second (Reserve) Battalion, Prince of Wales Rangers, Peterborough, during the past few weeks. They are: Clarence Wesley Parks, 548 Edison avenue; Donald M. Little, 96 Wolfe street; Bernard Wannamaker, Lakefield; and Percival H. Calberry, also of Lakefield.

SOCIAL EVENING

Despite the big snow-storm, a large number of members of the 2nd (R) Battalion, Prince of Wales Rangers, turned out Tuesday evening in the Armouries for a successful social evening. Included on the program were a boxing tournament, competition on the miniature range, and skits presented by some of the members.

SLIPPERY PLACES

Several impromptu tumbles were seen on George street Wednesday afternoon, and the cause seemed to be the slippery character of grates over sidewalk openings, when people walk on them with snow-covered shoes. Needless to say, some of the acrobatics displayed by pedestrians attempting to regain their equilibrium was definitely on the amusing side.

ACTIVE ARMY ENLISTMENTS

During the past few weeks, 12 men from Peterborough and district have enlisted in Canada's active army, it was reported today. They have proceeded to Kingston for medical inspection, and it is possible that some men may be rejected on medical grounds. They are: Donald L. Clark, Havelock; J. Hoar, 321 Simcoe street; M. Yokom, 669 Water street; John T. McNamara, Kinmount; Arthur Rose, 505 Bolivar street; John N. Dolan, Orillia; Frank L. Fleetwood, Toronto; Walter W. McAnerin, 426 Wellington street; F. J. Dunn, 406½ Sheridan street; Howard L. Gerow, Havelock; Leo S. Partridge, Castleton; and Nelson Thorald, Finch.

BATTERY COMMENDED

The enthusiasm and efficiency of the personnel of the 4th (R) Battery, Heavy Anti-Aircraft, was lauded by Col. L. W. W. Slack, M.C., V.D., Officer Commanding the 33rd Reserve Brigade, when he inspected the Battery members' parade, Monday evening.

APPOINTED TO HIGHER RANK

Sgt. O. J. Martin, of the 4th (R) Battery, Anti-Aircraft, has been appointed to the rank of provisional Second Lieutenant, it was announced today. One of the original members of the Battery, he has come up through the ranks. He is an employee of Genelco.

NO DELIVERIES

Presumably because road conditions are still bad in Toronto, both the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Express Companies have placed an embargo on shipments for Toronto and suburbs until further notice. This went into effect Wednesday and it is believed that it will be lifted as soon as the roads are cleared sufficient to allow delivery.

CHRISTMAS PROGRAM

A Christmas entertainment program and dance will be held in the Armouries Monday, December 18, for members of the 4th (R) Battery, Heavy Anti-Aircraft, their wives and children. Arrangements are going ahead now for a full evening of fun, including motion pictures, quiz contests, refreshments, demonstrations of drill, and all types of games and contests.

PLAYING CARDS NEEDED

The Navy League reports that 15,000 decks of cards are needed and in its appeal to Canadians it states that many ships are leaving port without any cards. Citizens of Peterborough who wish to contribute decks of cards may leave them at Dick Raine's store corner of Sherbrooke and Rubidge streets; The Commercial Press, 380 Water street or the Peterborough Examiner.

CHEERFUL

Big snow storms always cause a certain amount of frayed tempers, but one man whose auto was stuck for a time at the corner of Brock and Water streets Wednesday afternoon, showed that he was one for taking adverse luck with a smile. Stepping out of his car to survey the situation, he took one look at the manner in which his car was stuck, shrugged his shoulders, and smiled to a passer-by, "I love winter,...it teaches you to grin and bear it!"

CPL. W. H. CAMPBELL

W. Campbell Believed Killed

Cpl. William H. Campbell, R.C.A.F., son of Mrs. J. A. Campbell, 710 George street, who was reported missing in September, is now missing, believed killed, according to word received by his mother.

A letter from the International Red Cross, which was quoting German sources, stated that Cpl. William H. Campbell lost his life September 24. It did not give additional details. This word follows on the good news received earlier in the week that his brother, Lieut John Campbell, also missing, is now a prisoner of war in Germany.

The letter continued, saying that until further word was available, the former Western Clock Company employee, must be considered killed.

Equipment Poor

TORONTO, Dec. 14 — (CP). — The Toronto Transportation Commission in two letters to Board of Control has complained of the "pitifully inadequate" snow clearing equipment of the city. One letter said:

"Were it not for the heavy, modern equipment of your Commission traffic to-day over the streets would be at a complete standstill, with resultant serious consequences to the lives and property of the citizens."

$5 Theft Sends Man Back To Jail

Magistrate E. A. Gee found Patrick Watson, Toronto, guilty in police court this morning on a charge of having stolen $5 from Loblaw's on Tuesday and sentenced the accused to ten days in jail.

"I am giving you a break," said His Worship, "that will let you out in time for Christmas."

Magistrate Gee told the accused he would have to make restitution.

Jean Castle of the Loblaw staff, testified that Watson had purchased two packages of pudding powder in the store on Tuesday afternoon and had tendered $5 in payment for the puddings, which were sold at 19 cents.

Witness said that she had given Watson four $1 bills and 81 cents in silver as change. The accused had then produced a number of $1 bills from his pocket and placed one of them on top of the four 1's she had given him, suggesting that she give him a $5 bill in exchange.

Then he said that she might as well make it a $10 bill and handed her five one dollar bills and the original five and had left the store.

After he had gone it was decided to check the cash and it was discovered that $5 was missing.

Aroused Suspicions.

Mrs. Isobel Crary, another employee of the store, said that her attention had been drawn to Watson by his actions and conduct. She said that she had been close to Jean Castle when the puddings were being paid for and that the manner in which Watson had been shuffling the bills around made her suspicious.

Afterward the cash had been checked.

Evidence was given that the checkup of the cash revealed a shortage of $5.25.

Denied Story.

Watson in the witness box denied that he had been paid $5 too much in the Loblaw store and said that the story of the crown witnesses was "ridiculous." He said that he had not bought puddings but that his purchase had been grapes. Watson said that he had been released from the county jail that morning.

To Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C., in cross examination, he admitted that he had been convicted in Toronto on a charge of breaking and entering and that he had also been convicted here recently with attempted shop-lifting.

The accused said that he had $27 when he left county jail Tuesday morning.

"I am informed that the amount you were handed by the jailer when you came out was around $17," said the Crown Attorney.

"That was being held at the jail office but I also had $10 in bills on my person that had not been discovered," Watson said.

W. J. Arthur Fair who appeared for Watson asked for a dismissal of the charge but Magistrate Gee found the accused guilty and sentenced him to 10 days' imprisonment.

BUS QUEUES

LONDON — (CP). — Bus queues will have to continue in London until after the war because of a shortage of fuel, tires and buses. There is no manpower shortage.

School Childen From District Aid Good Cause

One of the happy feature of school life at the Christmas season, is usually the holding of some special event to mark the occasion, which is emphasized by the recess or holidays from school attendance and duty, to which the vast majority of the young folk are looking keenly forward to, at this moment.

One of the finest precepts they may be taught or guided into, is that happiness lies very much in giving happiness to others which opportunity affords in this present day to an abundance that probably was never seen before.

In contrast, many children in the British Isles as shown by correspondence from them, cannot possibly have the same prospects for a good enjoyable Christmas, such as will most likely be the happy lot of all children in this land. The horrors of war, have taken them from amidst their own homes, the circle which would be in the best position to give it to them.

There is a tradtion that grows with young folk over the annual celebration of this great event, which the passing years never diminish, and both for the sake of those who can give help in this country, and those who will receive it in Britain, nothing could be more helpful to each, than that they should participate in this goodwill at this time.

Today sees a number of schools from the District represented in a good work of this type, through the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund operating for that purpose, among which the Public School at Lakefield finds a place through a collection made by the students amounting to $11.18, which was forwarded by E. G. Sloan their principal.

Then the pupils of S.S. No. 14 Cavan made their collection of milkweed pods do a double duty in a patriotic way by giving $5 of the proceeds through Miss Eva Sheppard, their teacher to this Christmas Cheer Fund, while S.S. No. 16 Otonabee, with J. May as teacher, procured nearly half of their $5 in a similar way, the balance being made up from the Junior Red Cross Fund.

The other schools, No. 5 of Otonabee of which Mrs. L. H. Bird is the teacher, and the senior room at Queen Elizabeth School taught by L. H. Bird, also find a place in today's gifts.

All Home and School Associations have their chief connection with various Public Schools, so it would seem appropriate that the Home and School Association of Confederation School, should be also associated in today's list of receipts with a gift of $5.

Bountiful Fraternal Gift

The members of Moore Preceptory No. 13, Knights Templar last Friday evening held their annual Reunion Assembly, at which an earnest appeal on behalf of those stricken in Britain was made by two of its members. This was responded to in a generous manner, so that one of them was able to present the fine sum of $102 to the fund on behalf of all present.

With little more than one week to go, the fund still needs the sum of $2,583 to complete its objective or the Christmas donation.

Union Starts Nursery For Mothers Shopping

As a service to its members, the United Electrical Workers' Union (C.I.O.) is inaugurating a day nursery for the kiddies of shopping mothers during the Christmas shopping season. The nursery will be held at the union hall on the two Saturdays preceding Christmas and will be available commencing at 10 a.m.

In a letter to each member, the union points out that the kiddies can be left in the union hall, under the capable supervision of members of the Ladies' Auxiliary, while the mother does her shopping. Games, comics and other entertainment will be made available for the children during the absence of the mother.

It is also planned to serve tea to the mothers when they come to take their children home.

Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary who are responsible for the nursery are Mrs. F. Lundy, Mrs. P. Killen, Mrs. B. Buott, Mrs. K. Sliter, Mrs. Teasdale and Mrs. H. Pearce.

Robt. G. Cottrell Honored By Employees

A beautiful gold watch, suitably engraved, was presented to Robert G. Cottrell Wednesday evening, at a dinner meeting held in honor of his completion of fifty years in continuous loyal service with the Canadian General Electric Company in Peterborough. Mr. Cottrell, who began work there in 1894, has served that company longer than any other employee. His completion of fifty years continuous service is an occasion unique in the history of the company.

Ian F. McRae, Works Manager, presented the watch to this respected employee, expressing congratulations and best wishes, on behalf of the management.

Mr. Cottrell, whose fifty year period was actually completed last Sunday, December 10, was named the first president of the Fifty Year Club, which now has one member, Mr. Cottrell himself. R. S. Cotton, an employee of the C.G.E. here for more than 40 years, presented him with an attractive plaque, on behalf of Mr. Cottrell's many friends, which commemorates the occasion.

W. J. Swanger presented Mr. Cottrell with a pair of pipes, and Mrs. Cottrell was given roses by T. Glover.

Mr. McRae said it was the first time in his knowledge that a meeting has been held to honor and pay tribute to an employee with fifty years of continuous service to the company. He expressed his hope that more such meetings will be held to honor men and women who serve the company throughout many years.

"The relations between the company and employees is very satisfactory", Mr. McRae said.

"The company goes forward like a family; individually, we accomplish little, but together, great things can be done. The company is a family affair, interested in Canada, and interested in each other."

Supervisor of the order and stores department, where for many years Mr. Cottrell has been employed, Frank Buckland held high praise for him and Mrs. Cottrell also. Instead of making the presentation of the pipes himself, Mr. Buckland called upon Mr. Swanger, who has worked with Mr. Cottrell for many years. During the afternoon, a portrait of himself was presented Mr. Cottrell by Mr. Buckland, on behalf

Car Drivers Are Asked To Help

Alderman Dutton, chairman of the Board of Works, requested the Examiner today to appeal to the owners of motor vehicles not to park in front of the new snow loading machine.

"The men who are operating this machine cannot make the best use of it if cars and trucks get in the way," Alderman Dutton said. "The council had thought of placing temporary barricades at both ends of a block in which the loader is working. But that would entail the transport of the barricades from block to block, thereby creating another delaying factor. It was even suggested that police might tow cars from obstructing positions, but it was felt that this might antagonize persons who were not informed of what had become of their cars and trucks.

"This morning workmen were flagging traffic from both ends of sections of streets in which the machine was operating. We feel that a reasonable appeal to the people is the best way. The street cleaning effort is in their interest. They have bought the Board of Works equipment and they are paying for the day to day work.

What we are proposing is that cars be not parked in front of the approaching loading machine. They can be readily detoured to come in behind the machine and at a distance from it that will leave ample room for the city trucks to back in and load with the snow. By that means we can save time and labor, and avoid delays in the clearing of snow from the streets."

Alderman Dutton said that any one could see at a glance the direction of the loading machine's movement, and simply keep out of its way for the short time required to cover one block.

Restaurant Manager Shudders At Gift Of Roquefort Presented By Customer

Just to get it early in the record, G. N. Gordon did not say that he was bearing his gift of Roquefort cheese to the Churchill Coffee Club. He merely had it stored in the ice box, quite a big helping, with more or less the understanding that this was his contribution to the morning commissariat

"What about the customers?" Bill Coros asked as he put the blue-streaked stuff in its silver wrapping into the ice cabinet behind the counter.

"What about them?" Mr. Gordon countered. "They know good cheese."

"They'll call the Sanitary Inspector," Mr. Coros protested.

"He's off the list," Mr. Gordon answered. "Don't give him any. And if he confiscates it we'll sue him."

"But, what about the publicity?" Mr. Coros asked, spreading his hands and looking dubiously towards the ice box.

"Why if the people get to know that you're serving Roquefort look what'll it mean!"

"Sure, that's just what I say. What will it mean? Some people won't like the smell of it."

"Well, they're the kind that don't count any way. This is for the select crowd. May be you'll have to enlarge the shop."

"But we don't want any more business right now. We can't handle what we got."

Want To Keep Customers

"It might help out there, too. The crowd might do down the other side of the street for awhile and let you get some rest."

"We don't want to lost our good customers, not even the Coffee Club, good fellows. May be they might go where they don't get the best cheese, just cheap cheese without any smell to it."

And so the conversation went on, Mr. Coros looked dubiously toward the shiny segment behind the glass door, and Mr. Gordon's eyes twinkling. He even said Bill ought to give the Examiner a generous helping, and so that goes into the record.

Hope It's Popular

At any rate it is not suggested that the cheese with the striking emanation was intended for the Coffee Club. Such a gift might be misunderstood by the Club members, attendance fall off for various days, with resentment to the donor in his peripheral position.

This is merely to suggest that Mr. Coros might welcome frequent enquiries for the Gordon Roquefort, so that its presence shall be a brief embarrassment, and that with his best smile he may be able to tell the barrister— "All gone; too bad; shouldn't leave such good cheese around here."

And there'll be no further worry about the Inspector, the good graces of the Coffee Club and the goodwill of the regular customers.

I.O.D.E. Donates $50 To Fund For New Centre

Receipt of a cheque for $50 from Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E., by John E. Keyes, treasurer of the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre, was acknowledged today as grateful evidence of continuing public interest in this project.

"This fine donation gives us an opportunity to remind the public that the $75,000 voted by the ratepayers of Peterborough cannot become available to the Centre fund until we have paid in cash into the city treasury the amount of $176,000," Mr. Keyes said.

"In our campaign we received in cash and pledges an amount of $207,000. Up to the present we have actually received $150,000. Obviously it is highly important that all those who gave pledges of contributions make their payments as promised. The public can readily understand the position of the Centre, which is simply representing their own wishes and planning. If everyone does his and her part, as pledged, plans will go along as laid out at the beginning of the campaign."

Mr. Keyes also said that quite a number of citizens suggested that they would make contributions after "they saw how the bylaw fared." Since then the bylaw has carried, and the Centre committee is hoping that these citizens will not forget the virtual promises they made during the campaign.

Depend On Goodwill

"We are not in a position to go out and make another canvass of those who told us that their response would depend on the success of the bylaw," Mr. Keyes added. "We have to depend upon the goodwill of those citizens in the hope that they will participate with all the others who have already contributed or who are fulfilling their pledges.

It should be remembered, as it was emphasized during the main appeal, that the Memorial Community Centre is not just one central building for various community uses. It means more than that, and is linked with a development of additional recreation facilities that are intended for the future of Peterborough, and especially its youth of today and tomorrow."

Mr. Keyes remarked that the substantial success of the campaign to date should be an encouragement to all other citizens to do their part for the eventual accomplishment of a project which was not conceived merely as the erection of a building for all season purposes, that final achievement was based on the original financial objective which is not yet in sight.

Air Cadets To Get Post-War Attention

TORONTO, Dec. 14. — (CP). — Harold L. Garner, general manager of The Peterborough Examiner, has been appointed a Dominion director of the Air Cadet League of Canada, it was announced today. Mr. Garner, who is chairman of the league's provincial committee, said in an address to officers commanding that the Air Cadets will carry on after the war.

Plans were being made to provide a more interesting and varied program then than is possible now.

New Car Engine

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec. 14 — (AP). — Dennis Kendall, British member of Parliament, operator of what he calls "the most frequently bombed factories in England," soon will be on the way to Detroit with a model of a three-cylinder automobile engine which he claims will "revolutionize the automotive industry." The motor, he says, gets 30 per cent more efficiency from gasoline than present engines, and will operat a rear-engine-drive car which will travel 50 miles on a gallon at 60 miles an hour.

When Snowfall On Level Measured 5 Ft.

The recent heavy snow-storm, the worst for many years, provokes enquiry as to previous visitation.

Looking back through the records it is found that in March 1870 there was a fall of snow which was described at the time as being the heaviest within the memory of man. It began on Sunday March 13, then ceased and began again on Tuesday, snowed all that day and night, all Wednesday day and night and all day Thursday. Everything was blocked up, no trains running and Tuesday's mail arrived on Friday morning. On the following Saturday and Sunday it snowed again. On Sunday the churches were practically deserted. All schools were closed and business practically at a standstill. The second fall increased the depth of snow to five feet on the level and the Port Hope-Peterborough train took 16 hours to get from the former place to within one mile of here and was then derailed.

The Examiner of March 19 wrote "Snow is the order of the day—nothing but snow. Every pass, roadway and alley is blocked up. Even between the town and the Otonabee lodge is impassable. The snow is falling and the wind blowing."

There was an unfortunate aftermath to this late-in-the-season storm. It was a very early mild spring and at the end of April the rush of flood water from the back country could find no sufficient outlet and heavy local floods caused very heavy damage to property on the river banks—Dickson's Mill on the east side of the river was wrecked and a huge gap made in the dam on the west side. The Gas House was flooded 15 inches above the working floor, and, at this point the water was five feet above the normal high water level.

The lower parts of the town were flooded across to Park street, George, Aylmer, Bethune, Stewart and Rubidge streets were impassable below Dalhousie street and the floods did not subside for two weeks.

The floods cause an unfortunate accident on April 25, 1870. Samuel Dickson, owner of the mill before referred to, while trying to save his mill was swept into the water and crushed to death between the swirling logs. A native of Ireland he was a well-known and successful industrialist and a member of the Town Council.

There are other heavy snow storms recorded on March 14, 1888 and March 20, 1896.

Millbrook Flier Awarded DFC

When Flying Officer Allan Brown, R.R. 1, Millbrook, got off the train in Port Hope, Wednesday night, and was congratulated by friends at the station, he was completely bewildered because he had not yet learned that he had been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross.

The young flier who returned home from overseas just a few weeks ago, has completed his tour of operations, which involved 34 trips over enemy territory. He was the navigator and bomb-aimer on his plane.

The 24-year-old flier enlisted three years ago and has been serving overseas for 1½ years. He attended the Peterborough Collegiate and Millbrook High School and had completed his first year at the University of Toronto when he joined the R.C.A.F. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Brown, R.R. 1, Millbrook and his father is ex-reeve of Cavan township. None of the family, including the flier, know why he has been decorated.

Although F.O. Brown arrived home a short time ago, following a short visit with his family, he had to report in Ottawa, and he returned on leave from that city Wednesday. He expects to be discharged and hopes later to continue his studies at the university.

SERVING OVERSEAS — Pte. Clayton Hockaday, whose wife and two children live on Donegal street, is serving overseas. He is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hockaday of Young's Point and enlisted in August, 1942.

Blood Tests Are Recommended Before Marriage

Blood tests of the contracting parties prior to marriage, a recommendation to the Ontario Legislature by the Board of Health of Waterloo, was endorsed by the Peterborough Board last night with Alderman Dutton presiding.

The Waterloo proposal asks for legislation "making it compulsory for both parties to undergo a satisfactory blood test before the solemnization of marriage."

"I don't think any person with venereal disease should be allowed to marry," Mayor Hamilton declared.

Dr. R. A. Kelly, M.O.H., said the requirement could go even further for the welfare of the race, but he did not interject any ideas in advance of the resolution, letting it stand as one step in the fight against "V.D."

Some of the material ideas for a new health bylaw were briefly outlined, and Dr. Kelly and Sanitary Inspector MacPherson were asked to proceed with its drafting for reference to the Board. The motion by D. V. Canning was seconded by Alderman Sullivan.

Dr. Kelly suggested that the offices of the department might be removed to the Civic Hospital, a shift still fairly remote, but even then Mayor Hamilton considered it preferable to remain in the city hall. And, lest it be forgotten, Peterborough has a new city hall assured when the civic authorities decide to close in on it.

Sanitary Inspector MacPherson's casual statement that the Board of Health has twelve hundred workers under its broad supervision surprised the members. Some of the groups he listed were: dairies, bakeries, hotels and restaurants, refreshment stands, and so on, focussing attention especially on all industries and workers engaged in the dispensing of food.

Veterans Committee Formed By Union

The United Electrical Workers (C.I.O.) have announced the formation of a veterans' affairs committee to coordinate the union's work in connection with returning servicemen, it was announced early this week.

The five-man committee consists of Neville Hamblin, formerly of Genelco Ltd., now on the union staff in Hamilton; George Aldridge, Toronto, and George Ploss, Welland, all veterans of the First Great War, and L. Bonneville, Ajax, and Bob Ward, Peterborough representative of the union, veterans of the present war.

The aim of the committee will be to work in conjunction with the Canadian Legion and other bodies interested in the rehabilitation of returning servicemen to see to it that the veterans of this war receive the best possible treatment.

More than 5,000 members of the union in Canada are presently in the armed forces, and in every union contract in the country specific clauses are embodied guaranteeing these members full seniority for the time they have been absent on active service with further guarantees that they will share in any wage increases or other job advantages gained during their absence.

Two hundred members of the local union at Genelco are among the 5,000 union members in the Canadian forces.

CanuckPerforms Big Salvage Job

KANDY, Ceylon, Dec. 14 — (CP) —Major Roy Greggs of Vancouver, working knee-deep in water under torrential monsoon rains has recovered valuable equipment used by the late Maj.-Gen. Orde Wingate's Chindits at Blackpool, jungle airstrip in North Burma.

When the Chindits made their daring airborne assault last March Blackpool was miles behind the Japanese lines, but now it is behind ours. The Chindits, in abandoning the airstrip after inflicting heavy Japanese casualties and wrecking communications, left behind their heavy equipment.

Later Major Greggs, who served in France in the First Great War with the Royal Artillery and was recalled for emergency duty in this war, went to Blackpool to see what could be salvaged. He now is attached to the Indian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers.

He found broken gliders, burned out Dakota aircraft, destroyed by the Chindits before they pulled out, and other equipment in the underbrush. So he flew out to Calcutta and picked up some British and Indian fitters and a guard detachment.

For two weeks they lived in the fuselage of a wrecked plane and worked under a glider wing. Despite such difficulties as cylinders rusting in, he was able to lead a proud procession over a causeway they built across a 60-foot river. It consisted of one bulldozer, one tractor, two graders, one mechanical scoop, jeep trailers, water pumps, and lighting sets. Now all this equipment is again in use against tht Japanese.

MP's Can Have Suits Pressed At Parliament

OTTAWA, Dec 14—Members of Parliament and Senators who may wish to have their pants pressed for such occasions as a special speech or attending a reception, will be able to have their needs attended to in the main building, without leaving their offices or resorting to the "barrel" technique.

This morning a splendid new steam pants-pressing machine, four and a half feet high, four feet wide and four feet long, arrived at the rear doors of the main Parliament block and was conveyed to the tailor shop. Equipped with latest modern devices, the machine is being installed and will shortly be ready for service.

In addition to attending to the A-1 top priority ratings of House of Commons and Senate, the new machine will be used to press the trousers of the House of Commons Protective Staff and other uniformed personnel around the building.

Whale Dynamited

CAMPBELLTOWN, Argyll, Scotland, Dec. 14 — (CP-Reuter).—The "Machrihanish monster"—a giant whale left stranded on the rocks on the west side of the Mull of Kintyre after a storm last October—is no more. Royal Navy men disposed of the hulk with charges of TNT which had to be supplemented with a strong jet of water from the fire pump.

Pals Fighting In Holland Send Money To V.C. Winner's Family

By FRANK LOWE

LONDON, Dec. 14 — (CP). — The rags, bags, bottles, and bones merchant's son who won the V.C. has created a sensation in London.

There wasn't much out of the ordinary noticeable at first — Cpl. Sidney (Basher) Bates was awarded the V.C. for charging and breaking with a Bren gun a German counterattack in Normandy but never lived to receive the medal. And that was the story the newspapers told.

Family Near Destitution

However, a few days after the announcement of the award reporters tracked down the soldier's family. They found his father, mother and sister living on the fringe of respectable destitution in one of London's poorer sections.

The father, they found, made a doubtful living by buying and reselling cast-offs. Every morning he hitched a dwarf-like horse affectionately called "Blossom" to a rickety wagon and made his rounds with that familiar shout "any olragsbagsbottlesbones."

But the war cut into his business — "people are giving all their waste to salvage drives" he explained — and finally it got to the point where he was earning about $12 weekly, on a good week. Out of this he had to pay $7 to keep Blossom in working trim and the rest went to buy food and clothing for himself, his wife and his young daughter who was in school.

For the first few war years things hadn't been too tough, Mr. Bates said. True, their home, with its few bits of furniture and beloved pictures, was blitzed a couple of time — the last was when a robot bomb hit it and the church next to it and while the church has been rebuilt the Bates home is still badly smashed — but Basher was a dutiful son and sent money home regularly. This kept the family going.

Allowance Cut

But then Basher killed himself winning the V.C. and his donations stopped. The rags, bags, bottles and bones business was the sole source of income—$12 a week for a family of four, counting Blossom.

The papers played this story, giving it equal place with war news. A few editorials were written and a few influential people promised to "look into the case". But it took Basher's mates fighting in the mud of Holland to do something concrete about the situation.

These men of the Royal Norfolk Regiment, reading of the poverty of the Bates family, went to their commanding officer and said they wanted to help. And they did—raising from their meagre Army pay some $715 "which amount doesn't include what the officers donated", the O.C. announced.

Welcome Christmas Gift

That sum has been forwarded to "Basher's" family. And they will have a pleasant Christmas and an easier Winter at least.

Too, Mr. Bates is feeling more cheerful now than he has since receiving the news of his son's heroic death — his great fear when he heard of the award was that he wouldn't have suitable clothes in which to go to Buckingham Palace and receive the medal from the King. But now he has a new suit —his first in seven years.

Settle Damage Action Over Lumber Purchase

COBOURG, Dec. 14 — (ENS) — Sittings of non-jury Supreme Court concluded Wednesday with the settlement of one case.

The damage action brought by the Mill Valley Lumber Company of Oshawa against Paul Smaglinskie of Renfrew, a dispute over an agreement for sale, was settled, and the terms of the minutes of settlement were as follows:

Specific performance is decreed of delivery to plaintiff by the defendant of 250,000 feet of merchantable red pine and 45,000 feet of mill-run hardwood in accordance with prices in the contract; bill of sale to be executed and sum of $4,000 to be paid to the defendant as an advance on purchase price; lumber to be delivered not later than December 1, 1945; interest to be charged defendants on said $4,000 at 6 per cent per annum for three months from April 14, 1945; balance of purchase price to be paid 30 days after shipments when a discount of 2 per cent of the price will be allowed the plaintiff; defendant to pay at once to the plaintiff the sum of $535 as the fixed balance of costs.

Cobourg Council

Cobourg Legion wrote council asking that the building which they bought recently for a Legion Hall be exempt from all taxes except for school purposes and local improvements; referred to the Court of Revision.

Council passed a resolution proclaiming Boxing Day a public holiday. It was decided to hold the next meeting of council on December 26 and the last meeting at 10. a.m. January 2. Before the close of the meeting, Mayor Burnet told the council that all members of the Rehabilitation Committee had been appointed with the exception of the representative of the town council, which he felt should be appointed by the new council.

Nazis To Fight On After Collapse

ALSDORF, Germany, Dec. 14 — (AP)—Information from inside Germany indicates that Hitler's close followers have prepared for five years of underground warfare against the Allies after the German army collapses.

This is the picture of Gestapo Chieftain Himmler's master plan for the struggle, as pieced together from information now available from various sources.

Himmler started laying the plans for underground warfare in the last two months of 1943 and these plans now are being carried out inside Germany.

The plans are three-fold, embracing:

1. Open warfare directed from Hitler's mountain headquarters.
2. Sabotage and guerilla activity conducted by partisan bands organized by districts.
3. Propaganda warfare to be carried on by some 200,000 Nazi followers in Europe and elsewhere.

Already picked S.S. troops have been established in underground strongholds and hospitals in the Austrian, Bavarian and Italian Alpine area and it is the plan of Nazi leaders to flee to that region when the German military machine collapse comes. Only true and tried party members will be allowed to enter the strongholds.

The Nazi party already has concentrated food and munitions in the Alpine area sufficient to carry on for a long period.

Douks Continue Practice Of Nudism In Their Homes

NELSON, B.C., Dec. 14 (CP)—Apparently disregarding, or at least interrupting to suit themselves a month-old Doukhobor proclamation that the sect was abandoning nudism as a weapon of protest against authority, five members of a group which staged a futile hunger-nude strike at nearby Krestova in October are reported still to be going about undressed.

This latest outbreak is of a minor, private nature. Said to be confining themselves to their homes and the immediate neighborhood the five are protesting against the imprisonment of sect members for nude demonstrations last spring, which was the cause of the October fast led by Pete and Mary Tamelin, and it is believed they may have interpreted the proclamation as permitting private disrobing.

Meanwhile, it was learned an appeal was sent to Justice Minister St. Laurent last night requesting specialist medical care for two imprisoned Doukhobors, Mike Baeff and Mrs. Lucy Savenkoff, who are reported ill. The wire was signed by members of the Doukhobor Spiritual Community of Christ.

Baeff is in New Westminster, B.C., penitentiary and Mrs. Savenkoff is at Portsmouth, Ont. Both were sentenced for nude demonstrations in Vancouver last spring.

Aerial Surveys More Efficient, Old Methods Slow

TORONTO, Dec. 14. — Not so many years ago the new fangled idea of making land and timber surveys from the air was regarded with distrust by many people who now know they still stuck to the traditional and proved method of sending survey parties into a given area and getting the surveys made on the ground.

That distrust has pretty well vanished to-day. The reason for its disappearance is that aerial survey is faster, more accurate, and vastly more economical than the most efficient ground survey. This trinity of speed, accuracy and economy finally registered in the minds and pocketbooks of those whose business is surveys.

In the Lands and Forests Department at Queen's Park there is the aerial surveys section of the division of surveys and engineering. It consists of a couple of photographers, who are always up in the air; several draftsmen, photo plotters, a dark-room operator, and an individual who rejoices in the title of photogrametist. J. M. Bishop, who was a reconnaissance officer with the tanks in the first Great War, presides over the activities of the aerial surveys section.

The excellent detail obtained in aerial pictures is translated to equally fine maps by skilled technicians who know how to fit the strips of film together until they form a composite whole.

Finds Highway Routes.

The time-saving factor is illustrated by what an aerial survey does when the Highways Department, for example, wants to find a new route for a proposed highway. The old method was to run a survey line. If the line ran up against an impossible physical obstacle, the survey had to back up and start over. An aerial survey tells where the projected road should not go, as well as often indicating the best route.

"Men who have never set foot in an area can mark out a potential route and the land survey can follow it without deviating more than 20 feet or so from the route marked out in the photo," said Mr. Bishop. "It saves a great deal of money and time."

Fifteen years ago the Highways Department didn't think much of this aerial business. They made all their surveys on the ground. But the Department of Northern Development used the aerial cameras and liked the results. When Northern Development was merged with Lands and Forests, some good missionary work was performed by Northern Development engineers, and now the department is a convert to getting their surveys taken from above.

Reveals Timber Growth.

Timber companies in Ontario make extensive use of the aerial surveys section. They want to know the type of forest coverage in a certain area where they expect to cut timber, whether it is conifer or young growth or mature growth. And the aerial picture, looked at by a trained eye, holds nothing back. Many timber companies use aerial survey pictures made by the section, paying for the pictures on an arranged basis.

A 36-square-mile township can be photographed in two hours from the air. From the time the photos are taken until a finished type map is produced, is a matter of three or four weeks. Three survey parties of four men in each party would take a month to do what the camera does in a couple of hours and would take three months to complete the whole job. And the results would not be as good.

The aerial surveys section has a contract with a private plane company for the use of aircraft. Usually the same pilots are at the controls because they are experienced in the type of flying essential to the taking of good pictures.

The Mines Department at Queen's Park uses aerial surveys. Faults and rocky outcroppings which look promising are easily seen in the air shots.

Help to Hydro

The cameras used in the aerial surveys weigh about 35 pounds apiece and they are placed in fixed position in the plane. The equipment now used is nearing the obsolete stage, but war priorities prevent the Government from acquiring the latest type of aerial cameras.

The use of air pictures for Hydro projects is also of considerable benefit in picking out transmission line locations and sites for dams. The volume of information in an aerial survey map cannot be obtained in any other way. The Ontario Hydro Commission used aerial surveys in the Ogoki and Long Lac diversions.

The altitude flown by the camera plane is the basis of the price per square mile charged a customer. The usual altitude for timber surveys is 10,900 feet while for highways work the plane maintains a height of 8,250 feet.

Weather conditions are all-important when it comes to going aloft and taking pictures. Over the past 15 years the average number of suitable days for the taking of aerial pictures is only two days a month. But a photographer, under the right conditions, can expose enough film in a few hours to keep the survey section busy for months. In 1926, the first year records were kept, the aerial cameras plotted 3,558 square miles. In 1943, 11,980 square miles were photographed. This was the biggest year.

And yet only the fringe of Ontario's hinterland has been touched.

Says Officers 'All Loyal To Army Policy

VANCOUVER, Dec. 14 — (CP) — Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, general officer commanding-in-chief, Pacific command, last night issued a statement in which he said that officers of his command "have been in revolt but on the contrary have loyally supported the government policy of producing reinforcements for overseas."

Gen. Pearkes said his statement was issued in connection with an Ottawa article he said was published "across Canada by certain sections of the press" Nov. 24 in which reference was made to "the open revolt of B.C. army officers." He did not identify the source of the article, which was not carried by The Canadian Press.

His statement follows (110):

On Nov. 24 an article originating in Ottawa was published across Canada by certain sections of the press. Reference was made in this article to "the open revolt of B.C. army officers." A number of officers referred to at that time are now leaving this command with their units and proceeding to assembly points in eastern Canada in preparation for their dispatch overseas.

It is desirable that their names should be cleared before they leave this command. I therefore take this opportunity to state that officers of this command have never been in open revolt but on the contrary have loyally supported the government policy of producing reinforcements for overseas.

Seek Substitute For Gasoline

OTTAWA, Dec. 14.—(CP).— The National Research Council said yesterday that 37 producer gas units are being purchased for tests in the use of a substitute for gasoline motor fuel as a wartime emergency measure.

The decision followed extensive study of available fuels other than gasoline which might be used to power motor vehicles, the Research committee reporting that producer gas, alcohol and methane or propane (in some localities) offered the greatest promise. A sub-committee on producer has carried out studies in the use of producer gas made from wood waste or charcoal. In a variety of portable generators. Manufacturing costs for the preferred producer gas type selected by the Research Council are estimated at $500 a unit.

The council said it was estimated that the installation of gas producers on 10,000 trucks in Canada would give an annual saving of $20,000,000 gallons of gasoline and the provision of charcoal fuel for the producers could form part of a post-war industry.

The production of 10,000 units would require 2,500 tons of steel plate, 115 tons of copper, and 75 tons of brass, the council said. Assuming that one pound of charcoal was derived from five pounds of aiar-dry hardwood, the fuel for 10,000 units would require 775,000 tons o hardwood to be cut and carbonized annually.

ADUSTING OURSELVES TO LIFE

These Who Preserve Individuality Well Prepared to Live Alone.

WHEN we consider the importance of providing for our old age, we always think in terms of money. Money is important, but it is not enough. We have other needs that are just as great as our physical ones and unless we provide against these in our youth, we are just as miserable and unhappily dependent on others in our old age, we are just as much parasites as we would be if, when we were young and vigorous and making money, we had neglected to put aside a nest egg upon which to live when we were old.

Know How to Amuse Yourself

A long time ago Talleyrand advised everyone to learn how to play a good game of whist in youth so that they might not pass an old age of boredom. Which is to say that when we are young we should all learn how to play, and keep the play spirit alive in us against the time when we shall sit with idle hands, our work done, and yawn ourselves into the grave unless we know how to amuse ourselves.

And, little as we suspect it, we have to learn how to play when we are young. We can no more acquire the art after we are middle-aged than we can of doing the jitterbug with verve and abandon. The bones of our habits have become too stiff. In proof, whereof, observe the miserable, rich old men, who, too old to work, are doing penance on golf links and dragging about resorts, shedding tears of boredom at every step as they try to amuse themselves, and who find the days endless because they have nothing interesting to do.

How much better for them if they had played a little more and worked a little less as they went along, so that when the time came for them to retire from business they would have something pleasant to retire on.

We should cultivate as many outside interests as possible against the hour when our family ties are broken. One of the most pitiful mistakes that women make is in letting the four walls of home bound their universe, being so obsessed by their children that they have no life outside of them. Then, when their children marry and go about the business of life on their own account, the mothers are left desolate and broken-hearted.

Every woman with a grain of intelligence in her head knows that when she goes to live with her married children she is a menace to their marriage, and that she is not wanted by her in-laws. Yet, knowing this, mothers who have ample money on which to live apart inflict themselves on their children, because they have no other interest in life except their children.

How much wiser it would be if every mother would look forward to the day when her children will leave her and prepare for it by keeping alive her own individuality and her interest in all the manifold activities of this fascinating world of ours.

We should lay up beautiful memories, memories of happy hours, memories of travel, memories of those we have loved, memories of good books, memories that will fill the long hours when we sit in the twilight, with eyes too dim to read, thinking of the dear, dead days that are gone.

Begin now, while you are young, to lay up spiritual riches for your old age.

Women Urged Take Part In Elections

TORONTO, Dec. 14 — Voting and urging others to vote is not enough, Miss Margaret Hyndman, K.C., told a group of representative women met at her home yesterday to forward the "Vote as you Like, but Vote" campaign of the Voters' Information Bureau in the coming municipal election.

"Instead of organizing committees to protest the action of elected representatives, women," said Miss Hyndman, "would be more profitably engaged in helping to put up effective candidates for office and electing them. Democracy, which is rule by the will of the majority, is not working when only 39 per cent of the electors vote."

Pointing out that it is the duty of women to persuade the right type of citizens to become candidates, and to nominate such people, she urged that women attend nominations and election meetings, become acquainted with the candidates, and learn their qualifications and aims.

In 1944 election the Voters' Information Bureau had doubled the municipal vote, and she noted that the woman-vote had been trebled, but, said Miss Hyndman, only 39 per cent of those entitled to do so, voted. Elwood A. Hughes, honorary director of the Bureau, pointed out that Hamilton had a 50 per cent vote in the municipal election last week. A woman (Nora Frances Henderson) headed the poll for the Board of Control and a woman (Mrs. Anderson) had been elected to the council on her first appearance as candidate. What Hamilton had done, Mr. Hughes thought, Toronto could do.

He stated that the time between nominations, filing of qualifications, and election day was short, but promised that his Bureau, sponsored by the Board of Trade, hoped to hold a "blitz information on candidates" in these few days.

"Thousands of voters," he said, "do not know who or what the candidates on the ballot papers are. Our job will be to get the information and by advertising and other means, disseminate it. We will make no suggestions on who to vote for; that will be up to the electors."

Of Interest to Women

A LADY WEARING BROWN—Brown has always been a subtle choice for the well-dressed evening, and although color is definitely the coming enthusiasm, brown remains high style for the present. Many women will find that a good, rich dark brown does more for them than black by night... despite the fact that black may be their very best daytime choice —By Prunella Wood.

THE STARS SAY ....

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, December 15

A PARTICULARLY lively and strenuous day is forecast from the current astral configurations. While things will move at a heightened tempo, with travel, change, new arrangements, or understandings of legal or tacit implications, yet there is little definite promise of profitable or enhanced financial status. The tendency is toward extravagant, rash or unwise outlay, even on brilliant plans or contacts, which are subject to peril. Such temptations might possibly be in conjunction with festivities, romance, social or domestic celebrations.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of lively and exciting moving about, or change, in travel, communications, writings or new affiliations in business, domestic, affectional or professional contacts The proclivity is to speculate or splurge in such direction, with unwarranted show, generosity. With prudence and care there might be much enjoyment and happiness, with preferments or promotion for clever work. With wisdom in legal matters or writings loss may be averted.

A child born on this day may have bright ideas, much talent and ambition in professional lines, but its generous and friendly nature may lean to the financially unprofitable side.

Názi Christmas To Be Dreary Toys Missing

By EDWIN SHANKE
Associated Press Staff Writer.

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 14— (AP).—Germany's sixth successive wartime Christmas promises to be the dreariest of them all.

"The Christmas spirit can't be found in Germany," says the German-controlled Scandinavian Telegraph Bureau in a dispatch from Berlin. "One doesn't seeany Christmas trees as in other years, no Christmas decorations in the stores. All Germans know that 1944 will be the gloomiest Christmas."

This statement is largely borne out by dispatches from Swedish correspondents, which indicate that military reverses, wartime shortages, and distress caused by Allied air raids have combined to present a depressing picture.

For the first time since the start of the war, children evacuated from bombed areas must spend Christmas away from their parents by a government order which has destroyed the whole meaning of the day as a family festival in Germany. Instead the children will be comforted by an autographed gift picture of Adolf Hitler and a bankbook with a few Reichsmarks.

In former years children were permitted to visit their parents or vice-versa during the holidays. That is out of the question this year, the Government has explained, because of the strain placed upon transportation facilities by the Allied air attacks and "the serious military situation."

There are no toys in the stores, say Swedish correspondents. Instead parents are told how to make trinkets for children out of scraps of wood and paper. In fact, the German press declares, everything which belongs to Christmas in the way of decorations and playthings must be made at home.

Presentation Made To Rev. J. Lynch

Parishioners of Immaculate Conception Church gathered at the Immaculate Conception School on Wednesday evening to honor Rev. J. Lynch who is leaving the parish to assume his new duties as assistant at St. Joseph's Church in Bracebridge.

Kearney, Peter McGillen, T. Anthony, and James McCormick. Presentation of a purse was made by William Moher.

On behalf of the Catholic Women's League, Mrs. J. Garvey extended her best wishes, and a presentation was made by Mrs. Geraldine Kennedy. A presentation was also made by the choir. During the evening Mrs. D. Campanaro sang 'My Prayer' and 'Smilin' Through' accompanied by Miss M. McCabe at the piano. Rev. J. Killen, representing Monsignor F. J. O'Sullivan who was unavoidably absent, acted as chairman.

Doll Draw Made At Auxiliary

The gratifying totals of $85.20 for a draw on two Scotch dolls, $15,30 for a draw on a pair of pillow cases, and $16.60 from a sale of articles in the market, were announced at the regular meeting of the Navy Auxiliary, Wednesday evening in the Y.W.C.A.

The draws were made by Lieut. Muriel Robertson, C. W. A. C., the guest speaker, and winners were as follows: Scotch boy Mrs. F. White; Scotch girl Marie Wells of Udora; pillow cases Mrs. F. Merrett, Mrs. F. D. Craig reported that 642 ditty bags had been sent out to Peterborough boys and girls serving with Canada's navy and in the merchant marine. Mrs. F. Merrett presided.

Lieut Robertson a recruiting officer for the C. W. A. C. outlined to the meeting the formation and duties of the Canadian Women's Army Corps and gave details of the life and recreation of the C. W. A. C.'s. She said that the spirit of the girls was much the same as that found in dormitories of boarding schools, and that they all loved their work and their army life.

Concluding her talk, Lieut. Robertson stressed the immediate need for 5,000 more recruits to swell the ranks of the 17,000 C. W. A. C.'s already rendering such a valuable service to their country. She urged the members that when they heard the recruiting question being discussed, to give the real fact, and urge young women to join up and help replace a man to take his place with the first Canadian Army overseas.

An entertaining musical program was enjoyed. Several solos were sung, interspersed with community singing of Christmas carols. Solos were sung by Mrs. A. Mackey, Mrs. D. Campanero and Mrs. F. Board and Miss M. McCabe and Miss M. Flowers were at the piano, while Mrs. P. Hooper accompanied on the violin. Mrs. Hotston was in charge.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. W. Wheeler, assisted by several members of the Auxiliary. Mrs. W. E. Conway moved the vote of thanks to Lieut. Robertson, and Mrs. Merrett thanked those taking part in the program. On display were a great number of letters from boys who had received their ditty bags.

Hymn Book Given To Mrs. E. Beavis

The presentation of a hymn book, with her name beautifuly engraved in gold on the cover, was made to Mrs. E. Beavis, leader of the Ever Awake Bible Class of St. James' United Church, at their December meeting, Tuesday evening. Mrs. B. McNaughton, 275 Romaine street, was hostess for the occasion, when Mrs. Beavis received her token of appreciation from members of the class.

Brown; assistant secertary, Mrs. D. Traynor; treasurer, Mrs. G. Hutchison; devotional, Miss Zetta Wood; Sunshine box, Mrs. E. Maudsley; holiday box, Mrs. A. Fallis; social, Mrs. B. Callahan, Mrs. C. The program included readings by Mrs. T. Busby and Mrs. R. Dunlop, while Mrs. Hutchinson read the Scripture and Mrs. Monks led in prayer. Mrs. Traynor gave a special Christmas prayer, and Mrs. Beavis gave a reading, "Going Home at Christmas."

St. Paul's Holds Primary Party

Santa Claus made another of his appearances at the Christmas party for the beginners and primary departments of St. Paul's Sunday school, Wednesday afternoon. About 150 excited children gaily sang "Jingle Bells" as Santa entered, to distribute gifts to everyone from a brightly decorated Christmas tree.

In addition to the children, about 65 adults were present, and were received by Mrs. R. Ross. Supper was served to everyone, with Mrs. Haggerman and Miss M. Parker convening the arrangements, assisted by the teachers and several parents. A singsong of Christmas carols was also enjoyed. Among the guests were Rev. Samuel Johnston and Mrs. Johnston and their baby.

Women Demand Better Homes

LONDON, Dec. 14—(CP)—Women have been called upon to play a big party in the war and intend to insist on a big part in the coming peace, especially in regard to planning of homes, spokesmen for women's organiztaions indicated at the fifth session of the London Women's Parliament.

"The government has called us out at all hours of the day and night to clean railway carriages, to cook grub in the canteens and to work in aircraft factories," said Mrs. E. E. Langford.

"And after the war we intend to have some say in the kind of Britain we want. One thing we want is better housing. We don't want the kind of homes where, if you open the front door, you get blown out the back door."

Mrs. Jean Cameron, mother of two who works in the same aircraft factory as her husband, said space should be the first consideration in new home. The kitchen should be a real "work-place" with at least two drain boards, adequate refrigerator space, and finished with damp-and-heat-resisting paint.

All the women at the conference represented women's associations.

Mrs. J. Fanning Class President

Mrs. J. Douglas, Water street, was hostess for the December meeting of the Co-workers Bible Class of George Street United Church, when the election of officers was conducted, and annual reports of various secretaries were presented.

Mrs. James Brown presided for the election, which resulted as follows: Teacher, Mrs. James Brown; president, Mrs. J. Fanning; past president, Mrs. F. Burnham; first vice-president, Mrs. J. Spencer; second vice-president, Miss A. Brock; secretary, Mrs. A. Harrison; treasurer, Mrs. J. Spencer; secretary of finance, Mrs. E. Dormer; King's band, Mrs. J. Douglas; telephone, Mrs. H. Strong; members, Mrs. E. Dormer; flowers, Mrs. C. E. Wiley, program, Miss A. Brock; pianist and devotional, Mrs. J. C. Wood; press secretary, Mrs. A. Harrison; auditors, Mrs. J. Fanning and Mrs. J. C. Wood.

The teacher, Mrs Brown, was presented with a gift by Mrs. Wood, on behalf of the members, as a token of appreciation for her service. During the social hour following the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess.

Rev. J. Hodgson Addresses WMS

Rev. J. L. Hodgson, taking as his text "If I Had Not Come," presented an inspirational Christmas message to members of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church, at their December meeting Tuesday afternoon in the church parlors.

An impressive candle light service was taken by Miss T. Mathers, Mrs. W. Fanjoy and Mrs. W. Edmondson, and Mrs. H. A. Mitchell sang a solo. The meeting was opened with the singing of a Christmas carol, and closed with prayer by the president, Mrs. H. T. Rehill. Rerfreshments were served, and a friendly half hour enjoyed.

Reforms Outlined For Dominion

An outline of the conditions existing in Canada today, and the changes and reforms necessary to make a happy and prosperous people after the war, were given to a meeting of C.C.F. women by Mrs. J. S. Woodsworth of Toronto, prominent in C.C.F. work for many years. Mrs. J. W. E. Thomas, 548 Weller street, was hostess for the gathering, Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Woodsworth explained that society did not require any responsibility from the very rich men who controlled the life of most Canadians, since they controlled wages, and they determined the standard of living. "They constitute the invisible government of Canada" she went on, "and yet have no sense of their responsibility to the economy of the country."

She continued by discussing the housing problem across Canada, the growing juvenile delinquency, and the health problem, and the question of education. The stress of the effects of these questions was laid on their effects on the home life in Canada and the consequent effect upon the lives of Canada's youth. Mrs. Woodsworth also quoted figures which showed that in the period from 1931 to 1935, 100,000 infants of one year or less died, while in a corresponding number of years, 1914 to 1918, 60,000 men died in the First World War. Pointing out the marvellous work done in New Zealand and Sweden, Mrs. Woodsworth urged that people awaken, and try to cut down this mortality rate, which is the highest in white peoples in the British Empire.

Avoid Duties

She felt that if Canadians knew and recognized the facts, they would insist on being allowed to be more active in the planning of the destiny of their country. "However," she went on, "we too often claim our rights as citizens, but do not think of our duties as citizens." She said that it was the responsibility of every citizen to become acquainted with the facts, and to form conclusions and plan his actions.

The speaker thought that Canada had been too long in the same path, "Change means life for the world, and is the great principle which runs through all life," she went on. She explained that she had joined the C.C.F. because it offered a new way of life, with broader, brighter outlooks for the people. She urged that the human values should not be buried and repressed, and that a social consciousness should be encouragde. "Everyone can take part in this great feeling of companionship," she concluded, "which will encompass not only Canada but the whole community of nations, for that is what we will have to have if the world is to live in peace."

Tea was served during the afternoon, with Mrs. W. Johnson pouring tea, and Mrs. J. Johnson and Mrs. W. Higgins assisting in serving.

Makes Fortune From 13th Book

WESTERLAND, Devon, Dec. 14—(CP)—Elizabeth Goudge is a superstitious author who made a fortune on her 13th book. "Green Dolphin Country," written after she wrote 12 children's stories and novels which had only mediocre success, brought $125,000 from the Louis B. Mayer film company.

Miss Goudge, 44, said she had never intended to write for "the flicks" and never went to the movies—"but I'll go to see this one!"

Daughter of a theology professor, she wrote a child's tale, "The Fairy's Baby," at 18 and has written steadily since then. "But I was always superstitious and never thought my 13th book would be my best."

Background for "Green Dolphin Country" was taken from stories her mother told her about the Channel Islands of 100 years ago.

Auxiliary Elects 1945 Officers

Mrs. M. Montgomery was re-elected president of the Evening Branch of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Anglican Church, at their regular meeting in the parish hall.

Other members of the executive are as follows: Honorary president, Mrs. E. Conway; vice-president, Miss Agnes Stout; secretary, Mrs. E. E. Young; treasurer, Miss Adelle Milburn; Dorcas secretary, Mrs. B. Ottewell; assistant Dorcas secretaries, Mrs. W. B. Copperthwaite and Miss E. Clementi; Extra-Cent-a-Day fund Mrs. F. Marshall; united thankoffering fund, Miss Vida Foote; literature, Miss M. Lancaster; visiting committee, Mrs. J. Bell, Mrs. W. E. Franks and Mrs. E. Boyer.

Members decided that due to the Christmas season, there would be no further meetings until January the eighth. Refreshments were served with Mrs. K. E. Lewis, Mrs Boyer and Mrs. J. Bell as hostesses.

When Christmas Party Is Given By Young Hostesses

By MARY MOORE

Adult party plans at our house are being gradually abandoned because party propaganda by my two favorite tyrants is so rampant.

I asked them what they wanted me to serve at their Christmas party (every friend in both their schools and the neighbouhood is invited evidently.) The following is Marianne's final draft of the menu—and I'm giving it to you this week because Christmas dinner plans will fill all available space next—so please clip this.

Children's Christmas Party Menu

Creamed Turkey or Creamed Salmon on Patty Shells or Toast Points
Peanut Butter Sandwiches
Celery Curls and Paper-thin Slices
Carrots Chilled on Cracked Ice
Raspberry Jello or Junket
Party Cocoa (see recipe)
Gingerbread Boy Cookies

These things have been chosen after much deliberation—which included scratching of heads, calling up girl friends to see what they liked best, locating the gingerbread cookie cutter and wondering if our china cocoa pot would hold enough.

The only help you might need is with the cookies and the cocoa.

Soft Ginger Cookies

Three-quarters cup white sugar, ½ cup molasses, ¾ cup melted shortening, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon ginger, 2 teaspons vinegar, 1 beaten egg, 2 teaspoons soda in 1 cup sour or butter milk, about 3 cups unsifted flour. Sift dry ingredients; mix all other ingredients and sift dry ingredients into them. Make into firm dough, roll out to about ¼-inch thickness and cut out with gingerbread cookie cutter. Sprinkle with sugar through sifter, press in raisin eye and nose, and mouth, and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. until golden brown. These must be well up in the oven or bottoms will brown too quickly

Party Cocoa (2 Quarts)

Eight level tablespoons good quality breakfast cocoa, 8 level tablespoons sugar, 2 quarts whole milk, halved marshmallows. Mix cocoa and sugar together dry, and add about ¾ cup cold milk, and when nearly boiling pour cocoa paste into it, stirring well. Heat nearly to boiling, beating it to make it foamy and serve into cups. Place a half marshmallow in each cup of cocoa and serve immediately.

LACE AND LEATHER—There's seemingly no end to the fascinating fabric partnerships possible in the world of fashion. Now, Helene Garnell teams up lovely lace and leather for one of the season's most attractive hats. It is a sailor of pale pink suede, its brim covered with a ruffle of delicate brown lace. The brown tones with the dress of brilliant brown satin, with matching mitts designed by the milliner especially to show off the marquise ring and bracelet, a Van Cleef and Arpels creation.—By Alice Alden.

THE ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Could you please give me a recipe for almond icing, also the thin icing which is put on the top of the almond paste. Mother used to use icing sugar and water in some quantity or other.

Then too I'd like a recipe for almond paste made with sweet potato. I've heard of this used in a ribbon sandwich—one layer paste and one layer peanut butter. It's very good! At least so I hear. Would this sweet potato-almond paste be good enough for Christmas cake?

Here's a recipe of mine which is nice—you may have it already.

Pecan Butterballs

One-half cup butter, 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 2 tablespoons strained honey, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon vanilla extract, 1 cup finely chopped pecans, or brazil nuts, powdered sugar. Cream butter. Stir in honey. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Chill 1 hour. Form into balls the size of a small walnut. Bake on greased baking sheet at 300 deg. Fahr. for 35 to 40 minutes or until delicately brown. Roll at once in powdered sugar. Cool and roll again in the sugar. Makes about 26.—M.I.J.

ANSWER: Thanks so much for those Pecan Butterballs. They are indeed a delicacy. See elsewhere on page recipe for Vanilla Crescents, which are similar in texture.

Almond Paste.

One-half pound icing sugar, ½ lb. blanched almonds put through grinder until very small and smooth, 2 egg whites, beaten, ¼ teaspoon salt. After putting almonds through finest knife of grinder about 4 times, mix them with remaining ingredients. If too stiff the mixture may be softened with a very little orange flower water or lemon juice, but not much can be safely used. Let stand 24 hours before shaping.

The white frosting best to put over almond paste is

Fondant Glaze

Two cups granulated sugar, ⅛ teaspoon cream of tartar, 1 cup hot water, confectioners' sugar. Combine granulated sugar, cream of tartar, and water in a saucepan and cook over low heat stirring, until sugar is dissolved. Cook gently to 226 deg. F. or to a thin syrup. Cool until lukewarm (110 deg. F.), then add enough confectioners' sugar to make of consistency to pour over cake. Any that drips off cake may be retrieved and used again.

Sweet Potato Almond Paste

(I cannot recommend this very highly, for when it is applied to the cake it has a tendency to dissolve). One-half cup boiled, mashed, cold sweet potato, 1 lb. icing sugar, enough almond flavoring to suit your taste. Work all ingredients together until smooth and of consistency to roll out—if too soft add more sugar; if too hard add a little butter or cream.

QUESTION: As it is getting near Christmas, I would like some pointers about roasting the turkey—a 10 or 12-lb. one. Usually I rub it over with butter and flour and is it best to start it breast up or down? I use an electric stove, and for very quick oven, that is for drop cookies, etc., it must be set at 425 deg. F. What should oven be set at on the start and how long before lowering the heat and how much? How about basting? It lets heat out of the oven. How much water in the roaster? How many hours for long slow roasting?—One of Your Steady Readers.

ANSWER:

Roast Turkey

A 10-15-lb. turkey requires 20 min. per lb. at 300 deg. Fahr. in uncovered roaster, with no water in pan. That is if your turkey weighs 12 lbs. it requires 4 hours at 300 deg. Fahr. throughout. Start with breast side up and do not turn. Cover with butter or cooking oil, and sprinkle with flour mixed with salt. Turkey does not require basting, but if you want to baste it mix butter with boiling water and baste about every ½ hour.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

A filling for cream pie can be used in so many ways. This same filling may be used, with the addition of bananas, oranges, chocolate, nuts, raisins, dates or cocoanut, and people would never dream that the real filling of these pies was the same. I will give you the recipe for the cream filling, and tell you how to make several different pies from the one recipe.

Cream Pie

1 cup hot milk, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, ¼ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 egg yolks, or a whole egg, a teaspoon vanilla. Scald the milk. Mix the cornstarch, sugar, salt, and add hot milk slowly. Cook for 20 minutes over hot water. Beat the egg yolks and add slowly, stirring rapidly. Cool and add vanilla. Pour in baked crust.

Variations of Cream Pie

Banana or Orange Pie: Slice fruit into baked crust and cover with cream pie filling. Cover top with meringue, made from two egg whites and two tablespoons powdered sugar. Brown in a slow oven (350 or 350 degrees F).

Chocolate Pie: Use only seven-eighths of a tablespoon of corn starch. Add two tablespons grated chocolate and two tablespoons sugar, just before removing cream pie filling from the stove. Beat well. Cover with meringue made as in banana or orange pie above.

Nut and Raisin Pie: Stir one cup of chopped nuts or raisins or half a cup of each combined, into the filling and sprinkle a few nuts and raisins over the top.

Date Pie: Add one cup of chopped dates to the cream filling and cover with meringue.

Butterscotch Pie

1½ cups milk, 1 cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons powdered sugar. Heat a cup of milk with the sugar, until the sugar is free from lumps. Mix cornstarch, ½ cup milk, egg yolks, and add to the mixture slowly. Cook in double boiler until thick and continue to cook for 10 minutes longer. Remove from fire, add butter, cool and put in baked pastry shell. Cover with meringue made from the stiffly-beaten egg whites and powdered sugar. Brown in a slow oven.

As a variation, cover the top of the pie with halves of marshmallows, instead of the meringue and brown in the oven. In this case use one whole egg instead of two yolks.

of the employees of the order and stores department.

Representing some C.G.E. employees, R. S. Cotton offered his best wishes for continued good health and every success. "You are the first man of the Peterborough Works with fifty years of faithful, continuous years of service completed. You have attained something to be proud of."

Speaking on behalf of the Mutual Benefit Association, the largest organization within the C.G.E., Alf. Day conveyed the respect and best wishes of the members, and congratulated Mr. Cottrell on his completion of a half-century of service. Mr. Cottrell, he said, is one of the few remaining charter members of the organization.

Many Send Greetings

David Menzies, Sr., congratulated Mr. Cottrell on behalf of the Foreman's Association, and told the meeting that, "I am sure you will agree with me when I say Mr. Cottrell is a man to be proud of."

T. Miller paid tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Cottrell on behalf of the Social and Athletic Club.

Alex Kirkcaldy, representing the Quarter Century Club, termed Mr. Cottrell "an honest man, and a good man to know", offering his best wishes and congratulations.

Greetings and congratulations to Mr. Cottrell were read by Mr. McRae, from Branch 52, Canadian Legion, George Gimblett; 93rd Battalion and Ex-C.G.E. Servicemen's Association; D. C. Durland, president of the Canadian General Electric Company, and E. K. N. Wedd, manager of the purchasing department of the C.G.E. in Toronto.

It was an evening to reminisce. Many of the employees present had been with the C.G.E. more than 40 years, and it is probable that certain events throughout those years passed in review before them, as they saw their friend and fellow worker honored. Reminiscing about the past, coupled with hopes and best wishes for the future was seen in many faces.

Mr. McRae introduced 18 members of the C.G.E. who have served for more than 40 continuous years, and only one, Ott. Cranfield, was unable to attend: They are: Perce Fuller, Joseph Reynolds, Rollie Craig, Miss A. M. Collins, Robert Martin, Arnold Prest, Walter Hughes, Jack J. McCabe, James Simons, A. M. Doris, Frank Kearney, Walter Killingbeck, Fred Somerville, James Price, Robert Starr, Thomas Byers, and Robert S. Cotton.

Of these employees, Mr. Fuller and Mr. Reynolds both began work the same day and have the same number of years of service. Miss Collins has 45 years of service to the company, and Arnold Prest once retired but returned to the company.

Mr. McRae expressed his appreciation of their faithful years of service, and said he hoped they would become members in the 50 Year Club.

Among the special guests, were E. G. Patterson, former Works Manager, and L. D. W. Magie, former chief engineer of the Peterborough plant.

Mr. Cottrell was born in Kent, England, and came to Canada as a boy in 1882. As a boy, he was active in hockey, lacrosse and soccer circles. He served overseas during the last war.

Before coming to Peterborough, he was employed in Detroit, New York, Montreal, Chicago and Toronto. His first work in Peterborough was with the old Brass Department, and in 1903, he became about half of the production department under Bill Brundrett. He later transferred to the Stores Department as general storekeeper and has been in that department ever since.

He resides at 351 McDonnel street, and has one daughter, Mrs. R. S. Allin, whose husband, Acting Lieut.-Col. Robert Allin, is Officer Commanding the Prince of Wales Rangers.

Nurse Reports Busy Month Lists 152 Cases

In her monthly report, Miss Mary Ross, superintendent of the Victorian Order of Nurses, told the Board that 152 cases was the case load for November, 57 being new admissions.

She mentioned that one delivery was attended, and observed that from a survey of the figures of other V.O.N. branches, that V.O.N. was being called to few home deliveries. Six night calls were made. She explained that two talks on V.O.N. work had been given, one to a group of women from St. Paul's Church, and the other to the senior group of the Catholic Women's League.

She also told of a playlet arranged and presented by Miss H. Furlong, assisted by three student nurses from Nicholls Hospital, demonstrating the challenge to the nurse of the chronic patient. Two points emphasized were: that the patient was a human being, and the question arose as to what the nurse could do to make his life happier, and help prevent him from becoming a burden not only to himself but to those with whom he lived; and although there might be no actual teaching as far as the patient was concerned, continuous teaching opportunities arose, applicable to other members of the family.

Concluding her report, Miss Ross said that she was sure that there were still people sick in their own home who were not receiving professional care. She felt that the V.O.N. had a responsibility regarding the provision of prenatal care and follow-up visits to mother and baby which could not be ignored, even though an increased staff to allow for the care might be needed.

She also spoke of the fact that several patients had mistaken ideas about the Order, particularly regarding the chargeable and non-chargeable visits. She said that these misunderstandings should be cleared up as soon as possible, since the Health Insurance in the offing, and the probability of greater use being made of the V.O.N. service would complicate and confuse even further.

She read excerpts from an article by Dr. Read, president of the Sherbrooke branch of the V.O.N. He told of tributes paid to the order, and quoted Dr. R. P. Vivian, who said that the voluntary organization was invaluable in its pioneering in the field of public health. He thought that in the future there would be need of close collaboration between Government health services and these voluntary organizations.

Plans for the annual meeting in January were discussed, and a nominating committee, consisting of Mrs. F. Lynch, Miss R. Young, and J. A. Bradshaw, Dr. E. W. Young and J. E. Girven was named. It was announced that Miss Ruth Kirkpatrick, a graduate of Hamilton General Hospital, had been appointed as the fourth nurse on the staff, and that she was planning to take a post graduate course in public health next fall. Alderman James Dutton presided.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

KILL THE MAIN THREAT

IF THE PARTNER of the opening bidder makes two successive bids of the same suit, and the first one winds up in a game at No Trumps, the main threat assailing your side is the dummy's long suit. Leading it at the start is usually the worst thing you can do, giving the declarer a start in his timing. Striking at the most likely side entry, which otherwise may be used to score eventually established remainders of that suit, is the most hopeful effort you can make to kill its threat.

| West | North / South | East |
| | ♠ A 10 9 8 4 2♥ J 6 4♦ K 7♣ 8 4 | |
| ♠ Q J 6 5 3♥ 9 8♦ A 6 2♣ J 5 3 | N / W E / S | ♠ K♥ 10 7 5 3♦ Q 10 9 3♣ K 10 9 6 |
| | ♠ 7♥ A K Q 2♦ J 8 5 4♣ A Q 7 2 | |

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♥ | Pass | 1 ♠ | Pass |
| 2 ♣ | Pass | 2 ♠ | Pass |
| 2 NT | Pass | 3 NT | |

Listening to that bidding, wouldn't you say North probably had a rather ordinary spade suit of five or six cards, neither very strong nor very weak, and that he had a likely high card trick for a probable side entry, plus maybe a slightly possible other entry to help his partner use the spade suit at No Trumps? Otherwise, wouldn't he probably have bid 3-Spades on his third turn?

If you deduce that he probably had such a likely side entry, where would be the expected place for it? Wouldn't diamonds be the most likely? The suit his partner did not bid?

If West had reckoned that way, he would not have worried about the standard risk of leading an ace against No Trump from a short unbid suit, the danger that it might give the declarer an extra trick. Here the danger was a high diamond in dummy. The A followed by another diamond would have made it impossible for South to get more than one trick in spades, and so would have beaten him.

But West, following hide-bound tables in certain kinds of books, opened his long suit, the spade 5, just what South would have hoped. The A won, dropped the K, and was followed by the 10 to the J. Now came back the diamond 2 to the K, the spade 9 to the Q, diamond A, diamond Q, diamond 10 to the J and heart 2 to the J to run enough spades to assure South his game.

C.C.F. President Asks Alles To Give Up Seat

WINDSOR, Dec. 14 — (CP) — The resignation of A. Nelson Alles from the Ontario Legislature as member for Essex North was asked today by Alcide LeBlanc, president of the C.C.F. Riding Association, following Mr. Alles' resignation from the C.C.F. party.

Announcing his resignation yesterday, Mr. Alles said he would retain his seat in the legislature as an Independent Labor member. He was elected C.C.F. member in the 1943 provincial election.

Mr. LeBlanc with the unanimous approval of the Windsor C.C.F. district council asked that Mr. Alles present himself to Essex North voters for approval or disapproval of his action.

Mr. LeBlanc said that shortly after his election the member's friendliness toward the Labor Progressive party caused C.C.F. members of his constituency such concern that he was suspended by unanimous vote at a riding meeting called to inquire into the situation. The member later was reinstated.

Canada To Lead Fostering World Harmony

TORONTO, Dec. 14 (CP)—Walton Cole, news manager of Reuters, British news agency, said in an address today to the Empire Club of Toronto that "Canada is cast for a leadership role" in bringing about better understanding among the nations of the world after the war.

Canada "is absolutely uncompromised in any sphere," he said. "Perhaps all Canadians do not realize her full emergence. She has a mighty big foot in the camp of the great powers and also a mighty big foot in the camp of the small powers. In both camps she enjoys respect and you know as well as I that it is to Canada that many countries of contrasting geographical positions and cultures are looking today.

"It is to Canada too that men of vision look for an enlightened.... lead that will enable an irritable world in a turbulent transition period to get things in proper perspective. Canada need have no complexes and with the virility that is characteristically hers, she must fulfill a role that I believe destiny intended. By simply standing her ground she cannot help but do this."

Use Logic

In a reference to American-British and Canadian-British understanding, Mr. Cole said the solution was for the common citizens of Canada, the United States and Britain "to find out the other fellow's point of view and assess things in the light of logic and common sense."

"These Londoners feel, as do their counterparts in Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg or anywhere else, that war and the cancerous growths that provoke war are the certain expendables of this war....They and millions like them in Britain and elsewhere are a foundation which is 100 per cent solid, in that it represents the desire to have a real understanding that will bring a day to us soon when the standards of twentieth century civilization can be a world heritage."

The wartime scene in London has been pictured for Canadians "by guts and by absolute brilliance in descriptive writing" by "that magnificent corps of correspondents of The Canadian Press." They and other newspapermen have seen London aflame and have seen its people die and suffer.

Organized Labor In Canada Striving For High Place In Post-War Period

By JACK WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, Dec. 14 — (CP). — Organized labor in Canada, its membership soaring to new heights, this year turned to the post-war period and, through efforts to solidify the position of its unions and the formulation of post-war programs, moved to consolidate its wartime gains.

Throughout the movement there became apparent a determination to gain for labor a more important place in the Canadian structure than it held before the war.

In this effort the unions kept prominently before them an invitation from Reconstruction Minister Howe, extended at the annual convention of the Trades and Labor Congress, for labor to share with Government and management the responsibility of meeting post-war problems.

Some of labor's wartime gains received formal recognition during the year. The Federal Labor Code, which introduces compulsory collective bargaining, became effective early in the year. While this is a purely wartime measure, action by a majority of the provinces in making applicable to all occuptions under their jurisdiction has been taken by labor as an indication the principles of the Code will outlive the war period.

Trend Toward Recognition.

Coupled with this has been a tendency to conciliation boards and by employers to give increased recognition to contract clauses which introduce union shop terms which require all employees to join the recognised union within a specified time.

Even wider recognition was gained for the maintenance-of-membership plan through which those employees who belong to the union must continue their membership for life of the agreement.

Such measures as these are being eagerly sought by unions to assure security for the organizations in the post-war period. So extensive has the effort to obtain agreements of this type become, that disputes during the year centred more about union status than wages.

The strike record for the first 10 months of 1944 was down 82 per cent from the corresponding period of 1943.

Up to October 31 the time loss this year amounted to 485,924 man-working days. This resulted from 172 strikes in which 74,391 workers were involved. For the same period last year there were 358 strikes involving 165,866 workers with a loss of 885,262 man-working days.

Recent Labor Department figures placed the membership in Canadian labor organizations at 664,535 at December 31, 1943, which represents an increase of 85 per cent compared with 1939. During 1944 there have been further increases and it now is unofficially estimated that close to 750,000 Canadian workers belong to some union.

Couldn't Raise Arms Above Head, Pains Were So Sharp

Syntona Brings First Relief To Nearby Resident After Months of Suffering; Had Rheumatic Pains in Joints and Muscles; Backache and Constipation.

"It was almost impossible for me to raise my arms above my head due to the terrible sharp pains in my arms and shoulders," said Mr. Michael Dewan, well-known farmer of Ettrock, Ontario, in a recent report.

"For many months I had suffered from severe rheumatic pains and soreness all through my joints and muscles. At times I was simply unable to do my work. At night the pain was so bad I couldn't sleep. My back ached all the time and I had to get up several times each night to relieve my kidneys. I was badly constipated and had frequent stomach upsets. There was a lot of gas in my stomach after meals and I'd belch up bits of sour, undigested food.

"My condition kept getting worse in spite of everything I took, but I had been reading a lot about Syntona helping other people and a few weeks ago I made up my mind to try it. The first thing I noticed was that my bowels began moving regularly and I wasn't having any gas, sourness or belching after meals. Then gradually the pains began to go away. So, I kept on taking it and now I am like a different person. The soreness has gone out of my joints and muscles and I have no trouble with backache. I am able to sleep soundly through the night and get up mornings feeling good and rested and ready for a hard day's work.

"I only wish I could tell everyone suffering as I did, about Syntona. It's a great medicine."

Syntona is made from 12 of Nature's finest herbs and roots. It acts on stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels...aids in the elimination of excess acid and poisonous waste matter from the system and improves assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

If you, who read this, suffer as Mr. Dewan did, come to Elliott's Drug Store, Peterborough, and find out how Syntona will help you, too. —(Advt.)

Superior German Forces Fail To Budge Canadians

By WILLIAM BOSS—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS ON THE ADRIATIC, Dec. 13 — (Delayed)—(CP Cable). — Canadian forces, exploiting their achievement in crossing the Lamone River last Sunday night, have established a tight bridgehead on the west side of the Naviglio Canal, and tonight a furious battle raged as crack German forces sought to drive the Canadians back.

The bridgehead over this canal which runs northward from Faenza into Lake Comacchio was won Tuesday night. The situation was tense until noon today (Wednesday) when British Columbia tanks joined New Brunswick and Ontario infantrymen. These foot-soldiers had been hard pressed since early morning when the first strong German thrusts were initiated.

Despite almost overwhelming odds, the Maritimers refused to draw in the perimeter of their territory by one inch, remaining magnificently firm against the enemy's Tiger and Panther tanks, self-propelled guns and infantry.

Farther to the right, downstream along the Naviglio which roughly parallels the Lamone in its course toward Lake Comacchio and the sea, two other Canadian regiments were forced back from a canal bridgehead early this (Wednesday) morning after firing their ammunition to the last round.

Meanwhile the Canadians corps hold all the ground between the Naviglio and the Lamone, bounded by highway 16—the Ravenna-Ferrara highway—on the right, and a line drawn from a point two miles north of Bagnacavallo on the Naviglio south to Boncellino on the Lamone River. Bagnacavallo is 12 miles west of Ravenna; Boncellino three miles south of Bagnacavallo.

Manitoba tanks are fanning out to the right of Route 16, mopping up the flatlands to the south of Lake Comacchio.

Seize Bridgehead

The bridgehead across the Naviglio nearest to Bagnacavallo was seized Tuesday night by New Brunswick infantrymen under Maj. Lloyd Watling, Chatham, N.B., and Capt. Don Smith of St. Johns, Que. It was speedily reinforced by other troops led by Capt. Chad Haining of Newcastle, N.B.

While the opposition was heavy the Maritimers took it in their stride.

Companies from an Eastern Ontario Regiment passed through, taking up positions on the right and completing the compact bridgehead. Much credit for the success of the initial establishment goes to gunners under Maj. G. A. Rutherford of Westmount, Que., who boxed off the area preceding and during the operation.

Almost immediately two major armored counter-attacks developed, supported by infantry.

Ontario troops on the right of the New Brunswickers, despite the tough going, gave ground only

Allied Leaders' Meet Postponed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 — (AP). — There will be no Churchill-Roosevelt-Stalin conference before the end of January, it was learned today.

Despite reports to the contrary and problems in need of adjustment, February probably is the earliest that the Big Three of the United Nations can assemble.

That is the present judgement, not only of United States State Department and British spokesmen in Washington, but also of a high-ranking official who would have a hand in advance arrangements.

It contrasts sharply with London talk of an imminent meeting. Supporting it are these facts:

President Roosevelt has arranged

Huns Won't Pay War Prisoners

LONDON, Dec. 15 — (CP)—The German government has stopped sending special monthly allowances to war prisoners in Britain, it was learned today.

With the end of this novel Nazi "bonus" plan, thousands who maintained their defiant arrogance long after their capture now have agreed to work on the land for cigaret money. Some are so meek they are allowed out without military guards.

Under the Geneva convention of rules for war, commissioned officers are paid by their captors and this is charged against their own country. There is no provision for paying other soldiers, however.

The enemy instituted a "bonus plan" whereby non-commissioned officers were sent $5 a month and others $3 monthly, shortly after D-Day. The funds estimated at about [illegible]000,000 a month were transmitted through Switzerland.

With the number of German prisoners growing rapidly, the German government recently stopped sending the allowances, apparently because it had run out of foreign currency.

Subsidy A Temporary Plan
Was Made To Reduce Education Costs

TORONTO, Dec. 14—(CP).—Premier Drew said last night the one-mill payment to Ontario municipalities in 1944, amounting to $3,500,000, was a temporary measure designed to remain in effect until such time as the government's plan to assume 50 per cent. of the gross cost of education was ready and will be abolished in 1945.

The subsidy was put into effect by the Drew government about a year ago.

"The subsidy was the only method by which the government could make a distribution to the councils with the object of reducing the costs of education.

"It was paid to municipal councils until such time as the government was in a position to make payments direct to school boards. We are now in that position."

Notices will go out to all school boards in Ontario today informing them of the government's plan to take over 50 per cent. of the over-all cost of education.

Sixth Allied Army Enters Reich
Bavaria Entered Near Karlsruhe Industrial Section

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer.

PARIS, Dec. 15 — (AP). — The U.S. 7th Army, becoming the sixth Allied Army to invade Germany, drove two spearheads to-day over the boundary near the fortress city of Wissembourg and near Scheibenhard.

The crossing at Scheibenhard was only 3½ miles west of the eastern-most tip of France and 35 miles south of Mannheim and Ludwigshafen. This was the easternmost point Allied Armies have reached in North-west Europe.

The 7th was the fourth American Army to trample German soil. It crossed the frontier exactly four months after wading ashore on the French Riviera 425 airline miles to the south, but much farther as it wound through the mountains of southern and eastern France.

Fighting Subsides.

The 1st and 9th Armies, first to break into Germany, were drawn up along the Roer River 15 miles beyond Aachen where the Siegfried Line was first broken in September. The bitter fighting appeared to be subsiding.

The 3rd Army, which crashed into the industrial Saarland last month, was hacking its way slowly forward in the first works of the Siegfried fortifications on the 7th Army's left.

A 1st Canadian Army spearhead is thrust into Germany east of Nijmegen, Holland, but no action as reported to-day from that sector or elsewhere British and Canadian sector in Holland.

The Siegfried Line was being shelled at perhaps its weakest points. The Germans said artillery was cratering Karlsruhe itself. American divisions charged to within two miles of Wissembourg on the border, a natural invasion gateway into the Bavarian palatinate and key to the flat German land between the Eifel range and the Bienwald forest. That French fortress town is 16 miles west of the Rhine.

Advances ranged up to seven miles. More than a dozen French towns fell.

Gen. Hermann Balck, commander of German Army Group G, rushed reinforcements to his buffeted 1st and 19th armies. He also tried to relieve pressure by reinforcing the 600-square-mile pocket around Colmar south of Strasbourg.

His Allied counterpart, Lt.-Gen. Devers, threatened envelopment of the Palatinate and the Saarland to the west from the rear. Devers' 14 or more French and American divisions stood on or near the Rhine for 105 miles from Switzerland to the border town of Lauterbourg, against which the Americans were charging.

Athens Battle See-Saws; Election Likely

By STEPHEN BARBER
Associated Press Staff Writer.

ATHENS, Dec. 15 — (AP). — Left-Wing E.L.A.S.— the militia of the E.A.M. Party— hammered British defensive positions with fresh artillery and rifle fire to-day in fluctuating, rain-soaked fighting.

Unofficial reports persisted that word was awaited from King George of Greece on proposals that the Archbishop of Athens become temporary Regent.

The Archbishop was believed ready to attempt formation of a government acceptable to all parties, pending a plebiscite to decide whether the country is to remain a monarchy or become a republic. However, in Athens there was no indication that King George would agree to the plan. The King is in London.

Infiltrating E.L.A.S. entered Omonia Square during the night, laid teller mines and engaged in a brief skirmish with British parachute troops before withdrawing. British Headquarters said they retired before the mines were properly laid, and the explosives were later cleared.

British Arrive.

Further progress was reported by British reinforcements in Piraeus, the Port of Athens, where the neck of the main peninsula has been secured.

British reinforcements, including tanks and artillery, continued to reach the Athens area, and Maj.-Gen. Ronald Scobie was believed to consider the military situation improving.

Three additional classes of Greek militiamen were called to the colors to-day by Premier George Papandreau as Athens remained a battleground despite attempts to negotiate an end to the strife.

Jap Losses On Leyte Total 82,554
Americans Lose 10,409 In All 2,176 Listed Killed

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Dec. 15 — (AP). — The first 55 days of American invasion of the central Philippines cost Japan 82,554 casualties — 1,500 a day — Gen. MacArthur estimated today as the campaign on Leyte pressed ahead despite bitter resistance.

An American carrier raid on Luzon Island, which wiped out 91 enemy planes, and three fresh attacks on Iwo Jima in the Volcano Islands, were reported simultaneous by Admiral Nimitz at Pearl Harbor.

MacArthur gave American casualties for the Philippines invasion up to the middle of the week as 10,409—2,176 killed, 7,976 wounded and 257 missing. The Japanese thus are losing eight men for every American.

MacArthur's figures, covering the Leyte and Samar Island fighting, listed 33,801 abandoned Japanese dead, some 30,000 drowned in the smashing of 10 reinforcement convoys, 253 prisoners and an estimated 18,500 dead inside enemy lines.

Seize Depots

The 77th Division driving north from Ormoc, seaport on Western Leyte captured last Sunday, seized the enemy's main supply depots one mile from the city after severe fighting, the Friday communique said. The 32nd Division maintained pressure at the north of the Ormoc corridor, where thousands of crack enemy troops are bottled up.

In the navy raid on Luzon, 77 Japanese planes were destroyed on the ground and 14 in combat as the carrier aircraft raked airdromes and shipping in the Manila area and elsewhere.

Iwo Jima was raided Sunday, Monday and Tuesday by land-based heavy bombers and fighters, all of which returned despite heavy anti-aircraft fire. Iwa Jima is an important base on the B29 route between Saipan and Tokyo.

Haha Jima, 650 miles south of Tokyo, was bombed Sunday, and other bombers hit tiny Maruc Island, 1,000 miles southeast of Tokyo, Monday.

Petroleum installations on Borneo were set aflame for the fourth straight day. Two coastal vessels were sunk there.

"Our beer pump," said Charles. "You can have it," chuckled the judge.*

Farmers Score New Records Under Handicap

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Dec. 15—(CP).—As far as the Agriculture Department is concerned, Canada and her allies can call the Canadian farmer the best Santa Claus that ever filled a bulging stocking.

For, officials said today, 1944 in many ways has been the kind of year they always want and seldom get, a year of pleasant surprises after hard uncertainties. For instance, they were anxious about drought conditions in some eastern sections, but the rain came when it was needed in most areas. They were concerned about feed reserves, but now there are sufficient.

Authorities said that the Canadian farmer in 1944 often did not mean a stalwart man with corded muscles. With 400,000 men and 100,000 women gone from the farm to the armed services or war industries, the Canadian farmer frequently was a man whose years had earned him rest or a child who should have more time to play.

Short Of Help.

The triumphant figures showed what the farmers, young and old, strong and tired, had achieved in 1944 in piling new records of production on top of those established in past years: 448,000,000 bushels of wheat against 285,000,000 in 1943; 526,000,000 bushels of oats against 482,000,000; 204,000,000 bushels of barley from 1,000,000 fewer acres than were planted last year when production was 216,000,000; 53,000,000 bushels of mixed grains against 36,000,000; an estimated 8,925,000 hogs to be marketed against 7,150,000 in 1943. Average marketings in the five-year period 1936-40 were 4,038,000 head.

Other records: 1,320,000 beef cattle to be marketed against 1,044,000; 1,100,000 sheep and lambs to be marketed against 887,000; egg production 374,772,000 dozen against 332,527,000 dozen in 1943, and an annual average of 237,000,000 dozen in 1936-40. Some 75,000,000 dozen of this year's production will go to the United Kingdom.

Poultry meat produced in 1944 amounted to 289,000,000 pounds against 263,500,000 pounds in 1943. The 1936-40 average was 202,000,000 pounds. Production of milk in 1944—17,600,000,000 pounds, an increase of three to five per cent. over 1943—is meeting vast increases in home consumption and growing demands overseas.

Highway Travel Back To Normal

TORONTO, Dec. 15—(CP).—The lifting of the Federal transport controller's ban on non-essential motor traffic at 6 a.m. today did not have the serious effect on street-car traffic that was anticipated by Toronto Transportation Commission officials, C. A. Ward, secretary of the commission, announced.

The ban on non-essential traffic went into effect on Tuesday at the height of the record-breaking snowstorm that paralyzed Toronto traffic. Even with essential cars permitted only, streetcar traffic was stalled and blocked Wednesday and yesterday, even though tracks were cleared despite difficulties to maintain operations.

Mr. Ward said there were some delays in the first four hours after the lifting of the ban. However the fact that a more serious situation did not develop was due to a majority of privately owned automobiles being unable to get out of driveways on residential streets.

The Ontario Highway Department announced this morning that all highways in the province were back to normal winter driving conditions. Rail and air transportation is all reported back to normal both in and out of Toronto.

Churchill Is Critical Of U.S. In Failing To Define Its Attitude Towards Poland
Britain Abandoned London Polish Gov't Russian Demands For Territory In Pre-War Poland Held As Reasonable

LONDON, Dec. 15—(CP).—Siding with Russia in the Polish dispute, Prime Minister Churchill today confessed disappointment at delays in reconvening the "big three" and bespoke unity among the great powers lest a new structure of world government die in inception. The Prime Minister virtually abandoned the London Polish government, at least as now constituted, and supported as reasonable the Russian demands for territory in pre-war Poland which the Polish government in London has refused to yield.

Once Mr. Churchill spoke of conditions "if" the great powers agree. Again, he mentioned "how much a failure on the part of the three greatest powers to work together would damage all our hopes for the future structure of world government." A quarrel among these powers, he declared, would fatally rupture this world organization.

Appeal For Russia.

He said Russia was entitled to certain territory in the east of pre-war Poland as a matter of reassurance about her western frontiers.

Critical of the United States failure to be as precise as Britain on the "Polish problem," Mr. Churchill said President Roosevelt had been informed of Russian-British decisions on Poland but "I find great difficuty in discussing these matters because the attitude of the United States has not been defined" with precision. However, he said, "the President is aware of everything that has passed."

Mr. Churchill said Poland would be compensated for her sacrifice of Lwow and territory near the Ukraine by tracts of East Prussia and Danzig, to be wrested from Germany.

As for the battle with Germany, he warned bluntly that the "largest and fiercest battles fought in this war," will occupy the spring and summer and he reported that 6,000,000 to 7,000,000 Germans already had been killed.

Atlantic Charter a Ghost

In one of the most significant Commons addresses of the war — a speech which drew from Henry Raikes, Conservative, the comment that the Atlantic Charter has become a ghost — the Prime Minister appealed to President Roosevelt and Marshal Stalin to meet with him "at the earliest possible moment."

Mr. Churchill confessed disappointment that it had "been found impossible to arrange any meeting of the three great powers."

(This coincided with a copyright Associated Press dispatch from Washington forecasting no such meeting could take place before the end of January.

Mr. Churchill made these points:

1. The Poles have no alternative but to meet Russia's demands for a western frontier along the Curzon Line.

2. In return, Poland would be compensated with territory "at Germany's expense," including Danzig and all of East Prussia south and west of Konigsberg.

3. Mass transfers of population would be made to prevent minority disputes from troubling the future peace.

From Mr. Raikes, one of the first members to rise after Mr. Churchill concluded — Henry Raikes, Conservative barrister who once served in the RAF — came the sharp retort that "the Atlantic Charter has become a ghost."

"And," he said, "that ghost was

Reds Attempt Flanking Move To Isolate Huns

MOSCOW, Dec. 15 (AP)—Russian flying columns of tanks and motorized infantry have engaged a German elite force in savage battle along the Ipoly River north of the Danube bend and little more than 85 miles east of the Slovakian capital of Bratislava, field dispatches said today.

This powerful thrust by elements of Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2nd Ukraine Army and was closely co-ordinated with joint operations by his right wing and Gen. Ivan Petrov's 4th Ukraine Army seeking to cut off the Germans in Eastern Slovakia from a chance to escape.

(Although this dispatch did not make clear whether Malinovsky's forces had invaded Western Slovakia, a Berlin broadcast said they had attempted to storm Ipolysag, half a mile north of the border.)

These Russian attacks against the strongest natural defences still guarding the shortest invasion route to Vienna, 115 miles to the west, came while Budapest, the outflanked Hungarian capital, quivered under siege.

It is expected that if Malinovsky is able to consolidate and reinforce his position along the Ipoly his next great lunge forward would be aimed at reaching the immediate approaches of Bratislava and the Vienna Plain.

The alarmed German command, however, is reported here to have

Allies Squeeze Suicide Army

KANDY, Ceylon, Dec. 15 (CP)—Advance British elements have reached positions 14 miles southeast of Maungdaw on the west coast of Burma and are within 40 miles of the important west coast port of Akyan, a southeast Asia communique disclosed tonight.

These elements have cleared Buthidaung, 60 miles north of Akyan in the Arakan district, and have continued the advance down the Mayu range. All the territory to the west of the Kalapanzin, which had been vacated by Allied troops before the monsoon, now has been reoccupied, the bulletin said.

In the north Burma fighting zone, some 800 Japanese troops of a suicide force commissioned to fight to the death at Bhamo have been squeezed into an area of about 6,000 square feet in the southwestern part of the town, as the 38th Chinese Division made gains in the northern sector.

Greek Situation Poses Grave Danger
Improper Handling Of Problem May Ruin Value Of Atlantic Charter

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The Greek contretemps, as constituting one of the moves in the formation of spheres of influence by major European powers, continues in Athens.

It's wide recognition in both hemispheres that the questions of political blocs and self-determination must be thrashed out—fast. Two world-threats are growing out of this situation.

1. There has been a widespread fear that the Atlantic Charter has been challenged, or repudiated in part—and this charter represents aims for which men are dying in battle.

2. Any formation of power blocs in Europe most certainly will create a potential threat to the peace organization which we hope to see established to maintain global order, by force if necessary.

Believe In It

Take first the matter of the Atlantic Charter. Not so long ago I made a trip covering 20 countries—clear through to Chungking. Everywhere in the Middle and Far East I found the peoples pinning their hopes to that Charter, which stands for independence and national well-being. To both China and India—representing almost half the population of the whole world—the Charter has represented not only those vital things, but it has been the guarantee of fellowship between the East and the West.

I believe it isn't going too far to say that failure of the western powers to substantiate the Charter might easily alienate the Orient from us and cause the creation of a hostile Oriental bloc. That raises visions of a great and terrible struggle ultimately between East and West—long one of the nightmares of mankind.

And what of the threat to the new United Nations Security organization? The League will be the focus of so many dangers that it will be like a body of nations, banded together under the influence of a major power, will represent a solid unit. It will vote in the peace organization as a unit. Thus when the dominant power of a bloc casts its vote it won't be handing in one ballot but just as many as there are nations in the bloc.

The possible complications of such a situation are obvious. A major power which didn't have a sufficiently large bloc of small nations behind it might find itself voted into an impossible position. There would be times when several blocs would unite against a single boc and out-vote it.

That may seem far-fetched, but the League of Nations was the victim of power politics That's one of the main causes of the League's failure.

Hurley Contradicts Story
Denies Discord Exists In Chinese Theatre

CHUNGKING, Dec. 15 —(AP)— Maj.-Gen. Patrick Hurley, U.S. Ambassador to China, said today there had been "no animosity or ill feeling of any kind" between Chinese and American authorities in connection with the recent recall of Gen. Stilwell.

Reports that the United States had been "exerting pressure" upon China before Stilwell's recall were denied by Gen. Hurley, who said he assumed such reports were "propaganda not emanating from the Allies."

While there may have been arguments and straight talk, he added, "there was no ill will nor acrimony, but always a desire for unification of all forces for defeat of the enemy."

Gen. Hurley said his own relations with Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek have been direct and cordial.

He expressed the conviction that recent changes in the Chungking government "all are intended to promote co-operation and efficiency" and said they are in large measure responsible for the fact that "the Chinese government, U.S. headquarters and this embassy are one team with one objective."

Board Of Education Extends Medical Services To Collegiate

The services of the school doctor, Dr. Mylkes will be made available to the Peterborough Collegiate Institute for ½ day every week and in case of emergency, it was decided at the last meeting of the Board of Education for 1944, Thursday night.

It was felt since the Board was employing a doctor full-time, that his services could benefit the students at the High School and Inspector K. Wightman reported his time-table would permit this extra work.

"We have made excellent progress this fall on physical examinations in the public schools. Work at May's and Confederation schools is practically completed and work in other schools is nearly caught up. All the children in Grade 9 who graduated from city schools were examined before entering high school, but those from outside districts have not been done and Dr. Mylkes thinks he can complete the examinations by spring. I see no reason why he couldn't be called in emergencies. His time table can be given to the Collegiate principal and he can be called at any time. A nurse is always working with him and she would also be available."

C.S. Browne told the Board that he was in favor of extending the medical service. He explained that the school has a Red Cross room with two cots in it, and with 1,000 students, they are constantly in use. He questioned what the school doctor would be allowed to do in an emergency treatment and Dr. C. M. Scott pointed out that if it were necessary he would be permitted to do first aid work while the parents and family doctor were notified.

It was moved by Alex Sollitt and Gordon Mann that the work of the school doctor be extended to include the Collegiate and that he be available for emergencies.

Inspector's Assistant

Inspector Wightman suggested thot instead of placing Lt.-Col. R. J. Bolton in a class room at the beginning of the year, following his discharge, he be left as a general supply for six months. He explained that in January he had to complete the testing work and on certain days he could use some assistance. The inspector also emphasized that January is an exceedingly busy month and that frequently senior teachers are absent. He pointed out that it was a great advantage to have a capable person available.

"I want to point out that I have no thought of a permanent assistant in mind, but I feel at the present time, Lt. Col. Bolton could be of great assistance for the next six months until the end of the year."

Two recommendations by the Supervision committee for paying the medical bills were accepted by the Board. A request from Miss M. H. Baird, who was injured when she slipped on a pool of water in Prince of Wales School was accepted, and her bill of $39 will be paid through the Board's solicitor, at the same time denying any liability on part of the Board and securing a release from Miss Baird. A bill for $5 for Mrs. Nan Stock, whose son cut his hand while opening a window at King George school at the request of his teacher, will be settled under the same conditions. These motions were moved by D. V. Canning and Mr. Sollitt.

The resignation of Miss Mary Squires was accepted with regret on a motion of Dr. Scott and T. J. Carley, K.C. After considering a doctor's report, Miss Elizabeth Stuart, who has been absent from the Collegiate for several weeks, has been granted a leave of absence until Easter. Miss M. Walsh who has been supplying will be kept on the staff with a monthly salary at the rate of $2,100 a year.

Cadet Unit

A report was made from the Cadet committee regarding the formation of a unit of army cadets at the Collegiate. The following recommendations were adopted: A cadet corps is to be reorganized at the Collegiate Institute and it will be named an Army Cadet Corps. All boys, except those who may be released by medical service, are expected to take the course in Physical and Health Education set up at the present time, but only members of the Collegiate Cadet Corps will take the ceremonial and drill training in the spring.

It was explained that the officials of the two open corps' were quite in agreement with this. Their members will take the ordinary classes but will not be required to do the ceremonial work. This motion was made by Mr. Sollitt and P. D. Scollard.

Reports from inspectors on the work done in the Public School Home echnomics classes and Manual Training work graded Peterborough under first and special mention was made of the Auxiliary class under R. A. Scrutton at Queen Mary School. The report stated that this was one of the finest classes in the province, and the Board expressed their appreciation of the job Mr. Scrutton has done in the past three years since it was organized.

Mr. Sollitt and Mr. Carley moved that the Board of Education subscribe to the weekly bulletin service of the Ontario Safety League which is stressing accident prevention. Enough bulletins for the Collegiate and Public schools are being ordered.

The report on the boiler inspectionu was received and turned over to the Property committee to act on minor repairs, and a committee made up of G. Wilson Craw, Fred Reed, T. J. Carley, K.C., and Inspector Wightman was named to attend a meeting about adjusting the valuation of the two schools in North Monaghan.

Told To Take

laid today."

Mr. Churchill gave the House a stern review of "the grim, bare bone of the Polish problem."

Mr. Churchill said he had no doubt "that the great powers, if they agree, can effect" the transfer of population implicit in the assignment of part of East Prussia to Poland. It was here he added that he found "great difficulty in discussing these matters because the attitude of the United States has not been defined with the precision which the British Government have thought it wise to use."

President Advised

"We know, however," he said, "that the government and the people of the United States have set their hearts upon a world organization to prevent the outbreak of future wars, and this world organization will be fatally ruptured by a quarrel between any of the three most powerful empires which compose the grand alliance of the United Nations. The President is aware of everything that has passed. . . ."

Mr. Churchill took Poland's London government to task for what he called its delaying tactics.

As a result, he contended the authority of the rival, Soviet-sponsored, Polish National Liberation Committee will "grow and its contacts with the Soviet government will become more intimate and strong."

Although he said "we still recognize the Polish (London) government," Mr. Churchill made it clear that he held no confidence in its administration since it was reconstituted "in a form which in some respects I certainly am not able to applaud."

In an apparent last desperate effort to obtain a compromise between the Lublin and London Poles, he heaped tributes upon Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, who stepped out as premier of the London group recently. It was clearly a bid to persuade Mikolajczyk and his peasant party to return to the coalition government in the leading role.

In words which seemed to constitute a stern rejection of the present cabinet of the Polish government, he declared that since former Premier Mikolajczyk's withdrawal it had been almost entirely reconstructed "in a form which in some respect I certainly am not able to applaud."

He asserted that "anything like a prolonged delay in the settlement can only have the effect of increasing the division of the Poles in Poland . . . I hope no time will be lost in pressing these discussions to a successful conclusion."

He implied strongly that President Roosevelt had agreed to this solution of the tangled Russo-Polish knot.

"The President is aware of everything that has passed," he said. "As well as what is in the minds both of Russia and the British...all I can say is that I have received no formal disagreement during all these long months upon the way in which the future of Poland seems to be shaping itself, or is being shaped. No doubt, when the time comes, the United States will make their own pronouncement upon these matters."

"The liberation of Poland," said Mr. Churchill, "may presently be achieved by the Russian armies after those armies have suffered millions of casualties in breaking the German military machine.

"I cannot feel that the Russian demands for reassurance about her western frontiers go beyond the limit of what is reasonable or just. Marshal Stalin and I also spoke and agreed upon the need for Poland to obtain compensation at the expense of Germany both in the north and in the west."

First Slicing

This was perhaps the first chief-of-staff declaration that Germany would be sliced up after victory.

"Our British principle," he said, "has been enunciated that all territorial changes must await the conference at the peace table after victory has been won but to that there is an exception in principle that exception is changes mutually agreed. That must not be forgotten."

Of Poland's loss in land in the east, he said flatly "this is a great gift they have to give to Russia."

He said he saw little hope of reconciliation between the London Poles and Soviet-sponsored Lublin group.

"Already," he said solemnly, "I imagine the prospects of reconciliation between the Polish government and the Lublin committee with the Soviet government behind them have definitely receded, though they might perhaps advance again were Mr. Mikolajczyk able to speak with authority for the fortunes of the Polish nation."

Grim Problem

In opening a full-dress review of the Polish problem — one of the grimmest confronting the United Nations — the prime minister reminded the House he had cautioned Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, recently-resigned Polish prime minister, of the danger of delaying efforts to reach a solution.

He maintained that if Mikolajczyk had returned to Moscow "after the very friendly conversations which passed between him and Marshal Stalin" and with members of the rival Soviety-sponsored national liberation committee "the difficulties inherent in the formation of a Polish government in harmony with the Lublin committee might well have been overcome."

Intimating strongly that Britain seriously regretted Mikolajczyk's withdrawal from the London Polish government, Mr. Churchill said the former premier "and his colleagues were more qualified to fill the place" of the late Gen. Sikorski "than any other of the Polish leaders."

He told the House that if Mikolajczyk's withdrawal from the London Polish government, Mr. Churchill said the former premier "and his colleagues were more qualified to fill the place" of the late Gen. Sikorski "than any other of the Polish leaders."

He told the House that if Mikolajczyk had returned to Moscow "he would be at this moment at the head of a Polish government on Polish soil, recognized by all the United Nations and awaiting the advance of the Russian Army moving further into Poland as the country was delivered from the Germans."

Speaking of the suggestion that Russia be granted parts of pre-war Poland, Mr. Churchill said:

"I cannot believe such an offer could be rejected by Poland," and added that it would have to be accompanied "by a disentanglement of populations in the west and the north and the transfer of several millions of people from the east to the west and north and the total expulsion of the Germans."

To Hold Danzig

"If Poland gives Lvov and the surrounding area on the south known as the Curzon Line—if Poland makes this concession and these lands are joined to the Ukraine—Poland will gain the north all of East Prussia south and west of Koenigsberg, including Danzig, one of the most magnificent cities in the world, famous for centuries and a great gathering place for the trade of the Baltic, and indeed, of the world."

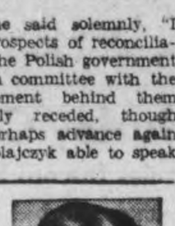
He said that "instead of the threatened and artificial corridor built up so laboriously after the last war, Poland would stretch broadly across the Baltic along 200 miles. The Poles are free so far as Russia and Britain are concerned to extend their territory at the expense of Germany to the west."

He scoffed at opposition protests made previously by Poles here that a plan along this line would mean sacrifice of one third of Poland.

"That," he said, "includes vast tracts of the Pripet marshes, a most desolate region which, though it swells the acreage, does not add to the wealth of those who own it."

He emphasized that there must be a clean sweep—a transfer to prevent a "mixture of population to cause endless struggle as in Alsace-Lorraine." He maintained that such "transferences" are "more possible than they ever were before through modern conditions."

Troublesome Night Coughs Are Hard on the System



It's the cough that sticks; the cough that is hard to get rid of; the cough accompanied by a tickling in the throat that causes the nerve and throat wracking trouble that keeps you awake at night.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup helps to relieve this coughing condition by soothing the irritated parts, loosening the phlegm and stimulating the bronchial organs, and when this is done the troublesome irritating cough may be relieved.

Canadians Hold River Position

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Staff Writer.

ROME, Dec. 15—(AP)— Canadian troops of the British 8th Army have established a bridgehead west of the steeply-banked Naviglio Canal in a night attack north-east of Bagnacavallo and are holding it against strong opposition, Allied Headquarters announced to-day.

Allied Headquarters said the Canadians turned back a number of German counter-attacks, but heavy fighting continued

The advance was made by the same forces who smashed their way through stiff German defences in crossing the Lamone River due west of Ravenna on Sunday night. The attack threatened the road centre of Bagnacavallo, 10 miles north-east of Faenza in the Pa Valley.

Overcoming crumbling German defences in the area, the Canadians had expanded their bridgehead to 1,500 yards along the western side of the canal, which lies more than 2 miles west of the Lamone, running north and south between Faenza and Lake Comacchio

On the Allied 5th Army front, British troops were cleaning the last Germans from the villages of Tossignano and Borgo Tossignano, south-west of Imola.

Athens Battle

The call for reinforcements went out as fighters of the Left Wing E.L.A.S continued to filter into the city. Seven age groups now have been called up by Papandreau's British-supported government, but it was questionable how many men the latest summons would bring in, inasmuch as only five square miles of Athens and about 20 per cent of the Port of Piraeus are under the Premier's immediate control.

Whether the E.L.A.S. would attempt another assault against British-defended inner Athens remained uncertain. Rain and low-hanging clouds hindered operations of the E.L.A.S. elements in their mountain hideouts outside Athens yesterday afternoon, although the Air Scouts dropped down almost to roof-top level on the lookout for new Partisan moves

Rumors still were current that Gen. Nicholas Plastiras, who led the Greek revolution in 1922, might attempt to form a new government acceptable to all factions and bring an end to the strife, but there was no confirmation. Plastiras conferred for two hours yesterday with Papandreau, but declined to make a statement slightly, reorganizing well to the west of the canal bank. Enemy armor managed to penetrate some positions but the situation was believed to be in hand.

Less Fortunate

Less fortunate were the infantry who crossed the Naviglio Tuesday night farther downstream, midway between the Maritimers and Route 16. Capt. Jack McNeil of St. Thomas, Ont., led the way from the Naviglio's banks where his men consolidated and other squadrons under Capt Bob White and an Ottawa captain crossed over. They reached their objectives and Capt. Dave Ames of Vancouver had just joined them with his force when counter-attacks were launched.

The enemy struck at the crucial moment between seizure of the positions and consolidation. The savage combat lasted 4½ hours and ended only when the Canadians had fired their last round.

While these actions highlighted the fighting Wednesday the rest of the Canadian sector was far from quiet. The enemy increased his mortar fire over the whole area, which now is pock-marked with craters only three or four feet apart. Half of the Germans' Nebelwerfers in Italy—six-barrelled mortars picturesquely called Moaning Minnies because of the noise of their projectiles—are concentrated against the Canadians.

These, along with the normal enemy artillery fire, combine to make any outdoor job unpleasant. The weather was bad throughout the day, for the second day in succession.

Obituary

MRS. ELIZABETH HICKS

The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth Hicks, formerly Elizabeth Hunter, widow of the late Edward Hicks, was held Thursday afternoon from the Bert Duffus Funeral Home. Mrs. Hicks passed away Monday afternoon in her 89th year, at her residence, Lot 26, Con. 13, Otonabee, near Downer's Corners. She had been in failing health for the past year.

Rev. E. C. Moore, of St. George's Anglican church, conducted the services at the Funeral Home and at Little Lake cemetery, where interment took place. Relatives and friends from Downers Corners district, where she has resided for the past four and a half years, were present at the funeral, along with many others from Lakefield and Warsaw.

Although it, too, may be unlikely, another meeting between Messrs. Churchill and Roosevelt somewhere between these dates is not precluded. The Prime Minister spent his 1941 Christmas in the United States and could get here easily in time for another.

Certainly enough purely Anglo-American areas of disagreement have developed since the Prime Minister and the President last met in September to justify their working for some solutions before Christmas.

Yet there are factors operating against another immediate meeting of the two. They would not, for instance, want Russia to get an impression they were seeking a solid array of plans and opinions, in advance of a conference with Premier Stalin.

Furthermore, there are indications subordinate statesmen already are finding some success in their efforts to improve Anglo-American understanding on international matters.

Simultaneously, Britain and the United States bespoke their approval yesterday of a new Italian government. Emphasis was less on the approval than on the close contact and consultation between the British and American ambassadors in Rome.

Cheese production is estimated at 177,000,000 pounds for 1944, against 162,000,000 pounds in 1943.

More Cheese.

Because of the enlarged cheese production, butter output for 1944 will be down, being estimated at 296,000,000 pounds against 312,000,000 pounds in 1943.

Fruit is abundant in 1944, with apple production 16,500,000 bushels against 13,000,000.

Peach production in 1944 is placed at 1,730,000 bushels against 633,000. Limitations in sugar supplies and canning equipment still restrict the amounts on sale in stores.

Corn production is 85,360 tons against 45,500; beans 13,000 tons against 8,560; peas 40,000 tons against 21,000 and tomatoes 250,000 tons against 167,000.

Official said that in addition to continued labor shortages, farmers had to face difficulties in obtaining machinery. But since the war began overall arm production had increased 40 per cent, and exports of agricultural prodicts to the United Kingdom had increased 226 per cent.

Otonabee Snow Plow Operator Answers SOS Helps Rescue Woman With Fractured Hip

Fred Nelson of Lang, operator of the county snowplow, rates a bouquet according to Otonabee residents for his prompt cooperation this week on a mercy call during the height of Tuesday's storm.

On Tuesday at noon, with the wind whistling across country and snow piled high, a telephone call advised Dr. Wright at Keene that Mrs. M. Fortune, who lives four miles north of Villiers, had fallen on the kitchen floor at her home and fractured a hip. Roads were impassable aside from the main routes. A call to Mr. Nelson, who was plowing near Peterborough, brought him to the 8th Line corner at the highway where he waited for an ambulance from Peterborough and the doctor's car. Both vehicles followed the plow east on the highway until they came to concession road leading south past Mrs. Fortune's home.

A four-mile trip bucking heavy snowdrifts was made in record time, and Mrs. Fortune was in hospital in Peterborough by six o'clock the same night, despite all the handicaps of distance and weather. She is reported to be making favorable progress.

Nimitz To Move Headquarters

PEARL HARBOR, Dec. 15 — (AP). — The Pacific War has moved so far west from Pearl Harbor, its starting point, that Admiral Nimitz has announced he soon will set up advanced headquarters in a forward area to control more effectively ground, sea and air forces "as their operations converge on Japan."

Whether Guam and Saipan were uppermost among possible sites, as unofficially reported, Admiral Nimitz — who commands the Pacific fleet and Pacific ocean areas — would not say.

Significantly, his announcement last night, followed conferences embracing China and the Aleutians — conferences suggesting new strategic moves impending against Japan.

Main headquarters will remain at Pearl Harbor.

American warships in Leyte Gulf, supporting Gen. MacArthur's campaign in the Philippines, are more than 5,000 miles from Pearl Harbor. The big naval base which has been under construction at Guam since the recapture of that island last August is 3,800 miles southwest of Pearl Harbor.

Earlier this week, Admiral Nimitz disclosed he had held a strategy conference with army and navy commanders of the central Pacific and Aleutian theatres.

Otonabee Youth Accepts Job

Harold E. Cooke, Otonabee youth, who pleaded guilty two days ago to failing to accept a job when directed to it by Selective Service, was allowed to go on suspended sentence this morning on his promise to accept employment offered him by Selective Service officials.

"You can't do just what you want to under war conditions," Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. told the accused, adding that if Cook failed to remain on the job to which he was being assigned he could be brought back and sentenced for the offence to which he had pleaded guilty.

Cook's mother went on the bond with him. Selective Service officials said that the accused was being directed to a job with the Peterborough Lumber Company.

Fred Elmer Campbell who pleaded guilty to being drunk was fined $10 and $2.50 costs.

Held By Flood

The 1st Canadian Army is engaged east of Nijmegen in a strip of Germany near the De Wyler forest. The British 2nd Army is drawn up along the Meuse river facing the Netherlands-German border bastion of Venlo. Both armies have been hindered by flood-waters in the Nijmegen-Arnhem area loosed when the Germans smashed Neder Rhine dikes.

The 7th Army, part of Devers' 6th Army group, was immediately southwest of Lauterbourg and presumably was closest to Karlsruhe on the Rhine just east of the town.

Karlsruhe is a strongly fortified city in the Siegfried Line, six miles beyond the Rhine. Mannheim is a great chemical and munitions centre and close by the storied University City of Heidelberg. Ludwigshafen is a twin city of Mannheim lying across the Rhine in Bavaria. All three threatened places have become familiar as favored bombing targets.

Patch had already opened his assault upon the Siegfried Line with eight-inch shells and 240-mm. howitzers. Allied planes bombed the west wall defences and rail lines supplying the German front and funneling in reinforcements.

Japanese Report Tokyo Hit Again

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15—(AP) —The Japanese radio reported that four B29s dropped incendiary bombs on the Tokyo vicinity to-day (Japanese time).

In a broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission the Japanese said a group of three Superfortresses attacked about 3:30 a.m. (Japanese time) and later a single B29 struck at about 6 a.m.

The Japanese did not claim any of the planes shot down or damaged.

Single Superfortresses were also reported over the Osaka-Kobe district on the east coast of Honshu, main Japanese island.

The report was unconfirmed by any Allied source.

Defence Fails To Terminate Chaplain Trial

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 15 —(CP) —Efforts by the defence to terminate without formal trial the suit which seeks to establish Charlie Chaplain as father of Joan Berry's child failed in court here yesterday.

A motion to dismiss the action was denied by Superior Judge Henry M. Willis. The motion was based on a stipulation that no further legal proceeding would follow blood tests made last February when three physicians reported the tests indicated Chaplin was not the father of Carol Ann Berry, now 14 14 months old.

A motion for a trial without jury also was denied. Miss Berry's counsel, Joseph Scott, had demanded a jury, selection of which now becomes the next step in the trial.

The dapper Chaplin took the witness stand to testify in support of his attorney's motion. He remained long enough to give his name, but was then displaced upon Scott's objection to proceeding without a daily transcript.

Long Argument

There followed a morning-long argument of Charles E. Millikan, Chaplin attorney, in support of his special defence motion. Chaplin sat quietly. Neither Miss Berry, Chaplin's former protegee, nor her child was in court.

Millikan reviewed at length a stipulation in which both parties agreed to the blood tests and in which Miss Berry's counsel agreed not to continue with the paternity action should the tests fail to indicate Chaplin's parenthood. He said Chaplin had paid $16,200 for the child's care prior to the blood tests and $1,100 thereafter under the stipulation.

Scott, opposing the motion, cited the Supreme Court's refusal to interfere when, last March, the Superior Court denied a dismissal motion by Chaplin's attorneys. The court at that time held that the blood tests were not conclusive and that the child was entitled to its day in court.

Denies Motion

Said Judge Willis in denying the special defence motion:

"I have never agreed that a guardian could stipulate or give away the rights of an infant. Approval of this stipulation by a court did not add one bit to its virtue. It is still an agreement between parties, not a ruling of the court, whereas the child in this case is a ward of the court and its claims are not compromised by any such agreement.

"All we are concerned with here is parentage of the child. Attempts by parties to withdraw this question from the court and submit it to three doctors do not constitute a bar to further court action on behalf of the infant."

Bancroft Youth Faces 5th Charge

Mervin Robbins, Bancroft youth, who had already been arraigned in the police court on four charges, pleading guilty to two of them, found himself facing a fifth count this morning when he was charged with stealing a bicycle valued at more than $25 from Lorne Robbins in the village of Wellington, Prince Edward County.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., told the court that he had received a request from the crown attorney of Prince Edward County that Robbins should be tried on that charge here.

Robbins pleaded guilty to the theft of the bicycle and Constable Earl Marvin, Wellington, gave evidence in the case. He said that the accused had been visiting his cousin, Lorne Robbins, at Wellington and the two had ridden to school on the bicycle. Mervin Robbins had asked his cousin for permission to ride the wheel back to Lorne Robbins' home but he failed to arrive there and had not been seen there since. The bicycle had not been recovered, the officer stated.

On that charge Robbins was remanded until Tuesday for sentence. The boy had already pleaded guilty to theft of the use of a car, and to stealing a bicycle here and not guilty to two charges of stealing clothing.

NIGHT RESCUE, ENGLAND, AFTER V-BOMB HIT—Looking like an ultra-modern expressionist stage setting is this pathetic scene: Night rescue by aid of searchlights, after a V-bomb incident in southern England.

Story Of Fight Related By Bandsmen From Borden

COBOURG, Dec. 15 — (ENS) — Preliminary hearing Thursday of a a manslaughter charge against Bandsman Frederick Poole of Camp Borden, charged in connection with Bandsman Herbert Johnson of the same band, was adjourned until Monday after most of the evidence had been heard. However, Dr. Erb of Toronto, who performed the post-mortem, was unable to attend and it was adjourned until he could be present Monday.

Poole is charged with killing and slaying Johnson at Cobourg on October 28. Johnson died in Christie Street Hospital early on the morning of October 29 from a fractured skull. The evidence Thursday dealt with the details of a fight between Poole, who is 55 and Johnson, who is 32. At the time of the row the band was in Cobourg taking part in the Victory Loan campaign.

Corporal William Arrowsmith of Camp Borden, member of the band, testified that on Saturday, October 28, the band was to rehearse at 2.30 in the afternoon at the Armouries. Members of the band were in the room getting their instruments when Bandsman Lang started to limber up on his cornet.

"Poole said to Lang to 'save your lip until band practice,'" testified Arrowsmith. "Johnson told Poole to mind his own business and there followed an exchange of words between Poole and Johnson. We went into rehearsal and after we came back to put our instruments away the argument between Poole and Johnson started up again. Johnson said to Poole that if he was a younger man he would poke him in the nose. Poole said 'don't let that stop you' and then they started to take off their tunics.

"I stepped in between them and told them to cut it out. I pushed Poole over to one side and Johnson to the other but I had hardly turned around before they started to chew the fat again. I saw Poole swing at Johnson and miss and the two of them grappled and went down. Poole was on the bottom and asked us to pull Johnson off. I put them apart again and had just started to turn around again when Poole hit Johnson on the face with his fist. I grabbed his arm and we separated them and I went to get the bandmaster. When he came back the fight was all over. Later when we were playing in front of the town hall, Johnston became ill and left the ranks, going over to the hotel. The next time I saw him at 6.30 he was in bed. Later they took him to Christie Street Hospital, where he died," related the witness.

Argument Begins

Pte. Gordon Lang, whose desire to warm up his cornet started the fracas, testified that he hadn't minded when Poole told him to stop but that Johnson told Poole that Poole's age was all that protected him. Pole said "don't let that stop you" and the argument was on.

"I pleaded with Johnson after rehearsal to forget about it but he started the thing going again when we went back to the room with our instrument," related Lang. The witness testified that he believed that Johnson hit his head on a table in falling while scuffling with Poole. After the fight between Poole and Johnson, the former g[...] in a battle with another bandsm[...] named Thicket, the witness inform[...] the court. When the band parad[...] later, Johnson was unable to pla[...] on account of a swollen lip.

"I felt it just as much as Johnson's fault as Poole, in fact more," commented Lang to defence counsel Alan Field. Questioned about his statement that Johnson struck his head. He was sure that Poole hadn't struck his head against the table. That evening he found Johnson in bed in his hotel room in a semi-conscious condition.

Witness related that on the night before the row, Johnson had been playing in the orchestra at the Ontario Hospital dance. On his way to his hotel after the dance, Johnson and some others were walking along King street. Johnson lost his footing and fell on his back witness helped him up on his feet again. Johnson was not drunk but was under the influence of liquor at the time, Lang testified.

Weren't Drunk

Bandsman George Thicket told the court that Poole and Johnson had been drinking but they were not drunk. He said that he saw Poole hit Johnson and both hit the table on one occasion when they went down. After the fight was over, Poole was on his way out and Johnson called him a name.

"I told Poole that Johnson was not what he had just called him and Poole piled into me. I piled back into him and the others pulled us apart. When I went over to the hotel, the door of Johnson's room was was locked so I got a passkey. Johnson was lying on bed and seemed to be mumbling something. We got him undressed and put him to bed," testified Thicket.

To defence counsel he said that he and Johnson had three glasses of beer in the hotel on the morning of October 28 and that was all. The night before, after the dance, Johnson was under the influence of liquor but was not drunk, Thicket said.

Hastings Pays $79,495 For Roads

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 15.—Expenditures on the Hastings county roads and bridges system thus far in 1944 have amounted to $79,495, County Engineer W. L. Langlois stated in his report to the County Council. This amount would be augmented by the cost of a new four-wheel drive truck which is to be delivered some time this month. The Suburban Road Commission has spent between four and five thousand dollars.

Calcium chloride amounting to 240 tons had been purchased this year for dust prevention purposes, also 8 tank cars or 60,993 gallons of asphalt dust-layer This treated 20½ miles of county besides the three miles of suburban road.

Approximately 15,394 cubic yards of crushed material and pit run gravel were used for resurfacing various roads of the county, while 3¼ miles of road were seal-coated, and 4½ miles double surface treated.

Major bridge repairs were carried out on the Anderson's Island bridge and other repairs completed at the bridge over the Deer River, near Cordova. Extensive repairs are needed on the 336-foot Marsh Bridge over the muskeg east of Eldorado.

The county is not ready for snow plowing operations but after the two motor graders have been repaired and delivery made of the new truck and snowplow the county will be ready to cope with any emergency.

This was made up of Roy Gilpin, John Dear Clare Harris, Norman Waldon, Hilton Haris, and Cecil Thackeay.

The guest speaker was Mr. Jones, District Commissioner for the Boy Scouts of Ontario, who spoke on Boy Scout work, their aims and the good deeds done by Scouts.

The banquet was in charge of Mrs. Melville Harris and Mrs Cecil Thackeray.

Efficiency Of School Health Services

Some interesting conclusions may be drawn from the report of the School Dental Officer, as contained in the November reports of the Peterborough Board of Education. For the first time May's and Confederation Schools have had dental inspection, and a comparison of their dental record with that of the other schools in the city shows how badly this service has been needed. In the other city schools the percentage of tooth defects per child is 1.8; in May's and Confederation it is 3.5. The loss of permanent teeth per 100 children in the city schools is 3.1; the loss in May's and Confederation is 11.8. The comparison in the loss of permanent teeth is almost 4 to 1. And as the classes in May's and Confederation Schools only extend to Grade Six we must assume that children with bad teeth who go from those schools to the other city schools bring down the record of the latter in this respect.

Care of the teeth is to a great degree a matter of preventive medicine. Tooth decay is usually more common among children than among adults; after maturity decay is slower, and if a man or woman arrives at adulthood with reasonably good teeth he may keep them in good condition by sensible care. If the teeth are badly decayed during childhood and adolescence they will probably be lost early, and may cause any of the ills which are attributable to bad teeth. Clearly the school dental inspection has done a good job among the children who have had it from First Grade onward, for their record is strikingly better than that of the children who have not had this care.

Good health depends heavily upon good care during childhood and adolescence, for the seeds of many later troubles are sown then. Bad teeth, bad eyesight, foot trouble, infected tonsils and ear trouble may bring bad health and serious handicap all through adult life; if these things are detected early, and corrected then, a world of later illness may be avoided. The school doctor and the school dentist are retained to discover these troubles where they exist, and advise proper treatment. The effectiveness of their work may be judged from this record concerning the care of teeth.

Preventive medicine becomes more important with each passing decade. We no longer wait for disease to manifest itself before we begin treatment; we take steps to check it and frustrate it before it begins. We know what living conditions are likely to bring about tuberculosis; we know what errors of diet make for bad teeth; we have the means of inoculating against diseases like diphtheria, which used to be the scourge of childhood, but which are now firmly controlled; we are forewarned and forearmed against a host of enemies. Our school health services do a fine work in laying the foundations for a healthy nation, and they are but one aspect of a national, provincial and municipal movement against preventable disease and disability.

A Word Of Appreciation

We are happy to make this public statement of our appreciation of the good work which the Examiner carriers did during the recent heavy snowfall. For two days Toronto papers were unable to make their deliveries, and many of our subscribers did not expect the Examiner, either, but they got it, and not too late. All our carriers did a fine job, and those in the South End, where the snow was particularly heavy, deserve special thanks; although our delivery truck was unable to get within a mile of its usual stopping-place, they picked up their papers and delivered them in spite of all difficulties.

We are proud of the many public services which our carriers have done during the war, but we are prouder still of the way in which they do their regular job in all kinds of weather. A newspaper depends heavily on its carriers, and ours have always shown that extra measure of willingness which goes far beyond mere efficiency.

Should Women Teach Boys?

Speaking in the Senate on overseas reinforcements, the Hon. W. A. Griesbach, the senator from Edmonton, made these interesting remarks: "I came to the conclusion that no small part of their failure to realize their national responsibility is the fact that in many of our public schools we have women teaching boys seven years old and over. When a boy reaches the age of seven I think that he should be taught by a man. I feel strongly on this matter, because I have for many years watched the development of this anti-social spirit. There are many fine strong-minded women teachers with sound views on citizenship, but they do not teach boys as well as men do. I believe that the rougher side of a man's nature is best for a boy of that age". Senator Griesbach is a major-general, and his views about soldiers must be respected; but he is not an educationist, and later in his speech he suggested that the government ought to put down a few of the demonstrations in the army against conscription by shooting the demonstrators; that gives us an idea of what he means by "the rougher side of a man's nature". He means discipline, and rough-stuff when necessary.

Without by any means endorsing it fully, we think that Senator Griesbach's suggestion deserves careful consideration. The idea that girls and boys should be segregated in school, and taught by teachers of their own sex, is one which has had a long history of successful practice. Co-education does not seem to have much to recommend it, and there are valid objections to it. As for discipline, it is possible to be firmer in a class of one sex than in a mixed class.

But we cannot agree entirely that women teachers make boys soft. We have known women teachers who were capable of handling classes of mischievous and idle boys, and making them work and behave. We think, however, that the atmosphere which is encouraged by our present school system is not the best one for education; it throws a heavy responsibility for his good behaviour on a child who is not yet old enough to shoulder it, and it inhibits the teacher from using stern discipline when it is needed. Particularly in high schools a measure of 'student self-government' is encouraged which is admirable in some directions but hard on the authority of teachers. Democracy works best when administered by mature minds.

Perhaps Senator Griesbach would like to see the old-fashioned flogging schoolmaster return; we should not. But neither do we like to see teachers inhibited in the enforcement of a discipline which would make for hard study and good manners. In dealing with children the final authority of the rod is invaluable, and a few more men in the teaching profession would strengthen it greatly. The pioneer idea that all learning lies within the province of women is one which Canada has outgrown.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The Chinese call the Japs 'the dwarf slave race'; the Japs call the Americans 'albino apes'; we all know what the Americans call the Japs. The exchange of international courtesies is still vigorous after four years of war.

The Stratford Beacon-Herald would like to have the expression "reactionary Toryism" — in its own rich verbiage — "relegated to the limbo of outmoded political appellatives". As a paper which has never used the objectionable phrase in question, may we suggest that the name will go when the game goes?

Camillien Houde, the new mayor of Montreal, says that he has discovered a conspiracy "to wipe out my race, the French Canadians". He should meet some of the Ontario fussers who know for certain that the Quebeckers are coming up the St. Lawrence in canoes some night, to burn us all in our beds.

Language note in the Ottawa Citizen:

The place that claims the longest name in the world is the Welsh village of "Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerychwyrndrobwllllandysiliogogogoch". It means "The church of St. Mary in a wood of white hazel near a rapid whirlpool and near St. Tysilio's cave close to a red cave". So you see right away the advantage of speaking Welsh, wherein a single 58-letter word says as much as a 25-word English sentence of 91 letters. (We don't guarantee the number of letters in the name, but count 'em yourself and see what you make it.)

The General In Politics

(By GRANT DEXTER)

OTTAWA: The political crisis which resulted from the retirement of Mr. Ralston and the appointment of Gen. McNaughton as minister of national defence and, thereafter, from the imposition of overseas conscription, has overshadowed this special sitting of Parliament.

For this reason, the House of Commons did not display its usual sense of detail. Members gave undivided attention to broad policy. There were occasional glints of closer argument, of deeper analysis, but the discussions and debates were necessarily general in character.

This, undoubtedly, explains why the change-over from Mr. Ralston to Gen. McNaughton caused so little controversy. It was not that the members were not intensely interested. Rather, there was neither time nor occasion. There is good reason to believe, however, that Gen. McNaughton's record from the day of his appointment onward was closely followed. Indeed, Gen. McNaughton had to endure the almost unprecedented humiliation (and from the Liberal and not the Opposition benches) of being told that in all honour he might have done better to have resigned when overseas conscription was adopted. But more of this later.

THE McNaughton record evidently puzzled many members and evoked doubt as to the way in which overseas conscription will be enforced. Hence the numerous rough rubs which the new minister received from the House. There was, however, a noticeable disposition to lay aside these doubts—but not to forget them—and to attribute the confusions and contraditions in General McNaughton's brief record in politics to inexperience. The General, after all, had stepped into the cabinet at the height of a crisis and should not be held strictly accountable for his public statements. The House of Commons, on occasion, can be as pitiless as a public hangman. But there is always in the House an instinct for fair play which over-rides political considerations. Gen. McNaughton, the tyro politician, appealed strongly to his instinct and got off lightly. Three months hence it might well be different.

The reasons why members of the House looked narrowly at the General and on occasion, by a swift change of temper, revealed to him the abyss at his feet, is made clear by his record. What follows is by no means the complete record, especially of the discussions in the House of Commons, but it will, perhaps, explain why Gen. McNaughton got off with what one newspaper has described as "a suspended sentence."

GENERAL McNaughton was sworn in on November 2, the day after Mr. Ralston's resignation was accepted. In introducing him to the press gallery correspondents, Mr. King said something about the relief that mothers, fathers and sweethearts would now feel about the welfare of their loved ones overseas. The implied criticism of Mr. Ralston was noted and disliked, particularly as Gen. McNaughton had taken the oath of office, in the common view, pledged to the voluntary system. Gen. McNaughton at this interview, however, said that he was going to see "that our army overseas receives support in the fullest measure which is needed."

In his first public address at Arnprior, on November 5, Gen. McNaughton confirmed the expectation that he was a voluntary system man. He said that there was a difference of opinion as to the right method of reinforcing the overseas army. Some favoured conscription, others the voluntary system. For his part, he stood for the voluntary system, because it was "the best hope."

At Ottawa, on November 6, he repeated this part of the Arnprior address and went further. This, he said, was his "declaration of faith" in the voluntary system. "There is no other way," he said, "to correct the situation to be in time to be of use." This unqualified assertion should be noted because of what Gen. McNaughton said later on in the House of Commons.

General McNaughton in this Ottawa speech said that he had advised the voluntary system at the outset of the war because, "beyond peradventure of a doubt" Canada "could only carry this war to a success if based on the voluntary system."

"I would not have been here today, under any circumstances whatever, if the fundamental basis of voluntary enlistment, which I believe with every atom of my being, were not acceptable to the government of Canada." No clearer or more positive statement could have been made.

The General went on to say that conscription had failed in the last war and that "I, for one, do not want ever to be associated with anything like the heart-break we suffered at that time."

Then, in a passion for burning bridges, the General said that the government must "take a decision and, as in all military matters, stick to it."

"I ask you," he went on, "to accept my assurance and belief that no other way than the continuance of the voluntary system will be in time to be of use in this war."

Again, this last quoted statement should be noted in view of later declarations in the House of Commons.

SO matters stood until November 16. The officers commanding the military districts had been called to Ottawa to confer with the minister and devise ways of persuading the draftees to enlist. Following this conference, reports became current that Gen. McNaughton had changed his mind and was now in favour of overseas conscription. The General repudiated these reports. In an interview with the press he declared that he had taken his stand 'categorically" at the Arnprior and Ottawa meetings and would adhere to it. A reporter of the Ottawa Journal suggested to him that the conference with the D.O.C.'s had demonstrated that voluntary system would not meet the need. "Entirely false," replied Gen. McNaughton. "The information given me by the O.C's confirmed my belief more than ever that continuation of the voluntary policy will provide the reinforcements."

To this report of the conference some of the D.O.C.'s objected and one of them in due course resigned in protest. Gen. McNaughton on the following day took in sail, but very little. He issued a statement on the conference which was ambiguous but which left the impression that recruiting prospects might be rosier.

So stood the record when Parliament met on November 22. So it stood until 3 o'clock on November 23 when Mr. King stood up and read to the House the order-in-council proclaiming overseas conscription. One passage in this order bears directly on this record. The order declared that "on the recommendation of the Minister of National Defence" (that is, General McNaughton) overseas conscription was being adopted.

From that moment grave doubts about Gen. McNaughton became evident among members. They could readily understand a man believing either in the voluntary system or in conscription. Their minds hesitated at the proposition that a man could believe in both. Their code was that when a member or a minister finds himself opposed in principle to his party or government, he holds to principle and resigns or bolts.

The members would have understood and honoured Gen. McNaughton if, instead of recommended overseas conscription and undertaking to apply and administer it he had resigned his office—just as they honoured Mr. Ralston for what he had done. But, they asked themselves, how can it be that a man believes with every atom of his being in the voluntary system on November 6, and then go all out for conscription on November 22. How can a man, whose heart and soul is with the overseas army believe that the voluntary system offers the only chance of supporting that army, and then take the very course which he said had failed in the last war and which could not meet the need in this war: how could a man change his mind on such a vital question in less than a month?

Plight of Channel Islands

(SHERBROOKE RECORD)

THE Channel Islands, the only British territory to be occupied by the Germans in this war, and their sixty thousands inhabitants are reported to be suffering almost as much as any other occupied country as a result of the European hostilities. These islands, a short distance off the coast of France, were occupied by the Germans more than four years ago. The collapse of France and its occupation by the Germans presented the British Government with a problem. They had to decide whether these islands, linked more to France than to Great Britain, could be successfully defended and, if so, were they of sufficient strategic value to justify the necessary expenditure of men, ships, and material in the difficult circumstances of 1940. Finally the decision was to evacuate the troops, but most of the civilians had to be left to take their own chances with the enemy.

So the Germans occupied these pleasant little islands for more than four years but now the situation has changed sharply. The German garrisons are cut off by the Allied occupation of France and the Low Countries. They can be neither evacuated, nor reinforced nor relieved. The islands now are of no strategic value to the Germans but there seven thousand of them sit, providing, according to the London Daily Telegraph, one of the strangest problems of the war.

The United Nations can attempt to starve these garrisons out but the general record of the Nazis makes it certain that the troops will be the last to suffer privation. The islanders themselves will get scant consideration. Doubtless the islands could be taken by assault but such an operation would be directed at British property and many British lives would probably be lost in the operation. To shell and bomb the island towns is a step that Britain would take with extreme reluctance.

The Daily Telegraph writer advances one possible solution. He suggests that the seven thousand German troops could be evacuated "with the honours of war" and returned to Germany, thus liberating the islands without battle. The correspondent claims they are second line troops, foreign conscripts and so on, and of no great value in the defence of Germany. Thus he holds that it would be better to let them go home than to risk the lives of sixty thousand British men, women and children. Of course, we do not know the details of the situation but from this distance it appears he has a good idea.

Black Rods and Such

(NEW YORK TIMES)

The opening of the new session of Parliament this week took place under certain physical limitations. The debating chamber of the House of Commons, wrecked by an enemy bomb in 1940, cannot be used. Hence the Commons meet in the chamber normally occupied by the House of Lords and the Lords meet in the Robing Chamber. The Commons are a little better off, since they have more space than formerly, and the obliging Lords are a little worse off. But the ancient ceremonials continue as before. The Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, whose office dates back some six centuries, was not admitted to the Commons until it had been made plain to him, as usual, that he was there on sufferance, not by right. The doors were closed and the magnificent creature had to knock to get in. It is true that the King 'commanded" the Commons' presence in the meeting room of the House of Lords, but it is equally true that the 'command" was issued by favour of the Commons majority.

The subsequent Speech from the Throne very much like the talk of an absolute autocrat. The modest King was made to refer to "my forces," "my navies," "my peoples," and so on. Certain internal evidences indicated, however, that the speech was composed by a Commoner named Winston Churchill, or at least well edited by him. The Speech itself followed a traditional pattern — a first portion addressed to both Houses and dealing with foreign relations; a second portion addressed specifically to the Commons and concerned with financial and other matters in which the Lords are not expected to interfere or obstruct. The lordliness and sovereignty are in the Commons, to which they have been transferred by the votes of citizens whose names will not be found in the peerage or Who's Who.

In some aspects of social and other legislation the British monarchy is far to the left of this democracy. The King, in theory and largely in fact, rules by doing what the majority of his people tell him to do. He is expected to talk like Louis Quatorze while having much less power than an American Vice President. The wearing of wigs and ancient court customs, the carrying of a black ebony rod, the walking backward before the royal presence are parts of a pageant which every Englishman understands and most Englishmen love. These things cannot be done here, except in Hollywood, but they symbolize the broadening down of liberty under law and as such will doubtless go pleasantly and decorously on long after Adolf Hitler has ceased to be much spoken of.

How to Listen to an Orchestra

The symphony orchestra is, without doubt, the most interesting combination of instruments composers have yet evolved. It is equally fascinating from the listener's standpoint, for it contains within itself all instrumental combinations, of an endless variety.

In listening to the orchestra, it is wise to keep well in mind the four principal sections and their relative importance....Don't concentrate on the string section alone, just because they are seated up front nearest you. Try to free yourself of bad orchestral listening habits. The main thing you can do in listening to the orchestra, aside from enjoying the sheer beauty of the sound itself, is to extricate the principal melodic material from its surrounding and supporting elements. The melodic line generally passes from one section to another or from one instrument to another, and you must always be mentally alert if you expect to be able to follow its peregrinations. The composer helps by careful balancing of his instrumental sonorities; the conductor helps by realizing those balances, adjusting individual conditions to the composer's intention. But none can be of any help if you are not prepared to disengage the melodic material from its accompanying web of sound.

The conductor, if rightly looked at, may be of some help in this. He generally will be found giving his primary attention to the instruments who have the main melody. If you watch what what he is doing, you will be able to tell, without previous knowledge of a piece, where the centre of your interest should be. It goes without saying that a good conductor will confine himself to necessary gestures; otherwise he can be most distracting.—Reprinted by permission from "What to Listen for in Music," by Aaron Copland.

A Bible Message

O come, let us worship and bow down: let us kneel before the Lord our maker. For he is our God; and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand. (Ps. 95: 6, 7.)

Every man is brutish in his knowledge: every founder is confounded by the graven image: for his molten image is falsehood, and there is no breath in them. They are vanity, and the work of errors: in the time of their visitation they shall perish. The portion of Jacob is not like them: for he is the former of all things; and Israel is the rod of his inheritance; The Lord of hosts is his name. (Jer. 10: 14-16.)

Ye are my witnesses, saith the Lord, and my servant whom I have chosen: that ye may know and believe me, and understand that I am he: before me there was no God formed, neither shall there be after me.

I, even I, am the Lord; and beside me there is no saviour. I have declared, and have saved, and I have shewed, when there was no strange god among you: therefore ye are my witnesses, saith the Lord, that I am God. (Isa. 43: 10-12.)

Unconsidered Trifles

Tommy had been given a shilling by his mother, but he omitted to thank her for it. She was naturally somewhat annoyed.

"Tommy," she said, "aren't you forgetting something? What ought people to say when they get something?"

"I dunno."

"You don't know! Why, what do I say when daddy gives me money?"

"Huh! Is that all?" quoted Tommy promptly.

From the U.S. Pacific Coast comes this fabulous tale of the launching of another of Henry Kaiser's famous hurry-up ships. Kaiser personally escorted a beautiful young lady, who was to sponsor the ship, through the yard and up the steps to the bunting-decked launching platform. There he handed her the beribboned bottle of champagne and told her to get set.

The puzzled young lady looked over the rail, nothing was to be seen but a newly laid keel far below.

"But, Mr. Kaiser," she objected, "there isn't any ship!"

"Hurry up," exclaimed the shipbuilder excitedly. "Start swinging!"

This is a story of a man and his bicycle. He had laid up his car and taken to the bike. On his way home to the suburbs he had to make a call and left the bicycle outside the shop. Having made his purchase he forgot the bicycle and boarded a bus.

On his arrival home his wife, much to his astonishment, reminded him that he had gone away in the morning on the bike. He took the next bus for the city and to his surprise found the machine where he had left it. As a token of his appreciation of the honesty of his fellow-citizens he decided to make an offering to the less fortunate ones. So he went into a church and deposited a contribution to the poor box.

With his heart full of joy and feeling of rectitude he left the church—and found that his bicycle was gone.

Does He Ever Check?

United States has weathered its wartime general election and no people are more pleased than Canadians that it went off with so little disturbance to the common war effort of the United Nations. But this utter rot of the U.S. columnist, Drew Pearson, grates us not a little. In his "Merry-Go-Round" from Washington, he writes:

"Probably no other major nation in the world could weather a wartime election of such importance.

"Great Britain has not had a national election for nine years. Brazil has not had one in over a dozen years. Canada, and various other British Dominions, where, according to political scientists, democracy flourishes even more luxuriantly than here, have had no national wartime elections."

Had Mr. Pearson cared to have had his statment checked before rushing into print he would have found that all four major British Dominions have had general elections in this war: Australia, South Africa and New Zealand in the latter half of last year, Canada in 1940. True United States was not at war in 1940, but the British Empire was, though Mr. Pearson seems to have forgotten that fact.—Financial Post.

Victory Bonds Burned Prisoner Says

WINDSOR, Dec. 15 — (CP) — Burning of $10,500 in negotiable Victory Bonds, along with six air-mail letters, was admitted in court here to-day by Alphonse F. Parent, 24, of Belle River, Ont., when he pleaded guilty to theft of a postal letter bag. He told the court he spent the $600 in cash he also found in the bag.

He was remanded a week for sentence.

Parent was arrested by Provincial Police Wednesday. He said he stole the bag on the night of December 5 as it was being transferred by the Provincial Bank branch in Belle River. Police testified $288 was recovered when Parent was arrested and the court ordered that this be returned to the owners.

Parent told how he whisked the bag from the trunk of a mail carrier's car after the latter had gone into a railway station to check on train schedules.

He said he opened the bag with a jack knife after he reached a railway embankment and found two parcels inside. One contained letters and this he threw in the ditch. The other he took home.

This parcel contained two packages, one of bonds and letters and one with $600.

"I burned the letters and the bonds right away," he said. "I didn't count the bonds."

Provincial Constable H. J. Tinson said suspicion centred on Parent two day ago "after we had a job of eliminating suspects." Police found a $1 bill in Parent's wallet and linked it with a serial number with one of those stolen. They said the remainder of the money was discovered in the lining of Parent's coat.

Knox Girls' Class Hold Yule Party

HAVELOCK, Dec. 15—(ENS). — Miss Thirza Hicks was hostess for the Christmas meeting of the Girls' Class of Knox Presbyterian Church, when Santa Claus was in attendance and presented a gift to the leader, Mrs. T. Green, an behalf of the class. An exchange of gifts also took place.

The prize awards for the highest record of attendance were won as follows: First, Miss Essie McQuigge; second, Mrs. F. Bennett, with Mrs. G. Kennedy and Miss Dora Ketchen tied for the third prize.

The treasurer reported receipts for the year were $156, with a balance on hand of $34.48.

Plans were made for packing and forwarding Christmas boxes to members of the armed forces stationed in Canada, who are connected with the church.

The material having arrived for new curtains for the church basement, arrangements were made for making same so that they may be in place for the holiday season.

Musical Numbers.

The program consisted of a vocal quartette, "O Blessed Bethlehem," sung by Miss Beryl Rice, Mrs. G. Kennedy, Mrs. H. Smith and Miss Dora Ketchen; a monologue by Mrs. G. Kennedy, and a musical contest and a bird contest won by Mrs. F. McKenzie and Miss I. Mathison respectively. The program conveners were Mrs. H. Smith and Mrs. F. Rutherford. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess at the close of the meeting.

Roll Out The Nickels Change Is Scarce

When Christmas approaches, small change gets scarce, particularly pennies and nickels. This is because everyone is purchasing more in the holiday season and is carrying more money in his pockets.

The Royal Canadian Mint at Ottawa has done its best to put more small coins into circulation, but due to scarcity of material and labor, it has not been possible to meet the demands of trade.

Bankers, who know best about such things—because merchants go to the bank for change—say that the situation could be helped if people with coin banks would turn in their stocks of small change to the banks and get bills in their place.

This, then, is an appeal to "piggy bank" operators — young and old alike—to roll out the nickles, and the pennies, too.

AUSTRALIA IN VAN

Australia was the first nation to make relations between capital and labor a matter for special courts of arbitration.

Labor Victory Forecast In Next Vote

LONDON, Dec. 15—(CP-Reuter)—Emanuel Shinwell, prominent Labor member of parliament, predicted today at the Labor party conference that the party would be in power with a clear majority after the next general election in Britain and he said Labor's socialist policy remained unchanged.

Mr. Shinwell spoke in introducing the executive report on full employment and financial policy, which demanded principal wartime controls be maintained during the transition from war to peace.

"We stand for the abolition of the vicious competitive system and the ownership of indispensible national industries and services," Mr. Shinwell said. "The notion that Labor will assume full power in this country is apparently unpalatable to our political opponents.

"We intend to abolish that specious and spurious free enterprise which infringes on the liberty of the working class and makes profits for the few."

The party adopted a special executive resolution calling for control by a Labor government of the Bank of England and the lending of the joint stock banks and of the location of industry.

This resolution urged international agreements with the United States, Russia, the dominions and other friendly countries.

Another approved resolution demanded the party program at the next election include transfer to public ownership of land, large-scale building, heavy industry, banking, transport, fuel and power.

Officers Review Work Of Film Board

A review of the work of the National Film Board since its inception, and particularly in wartime, was presented to a group of interested citizens in the Normal School, Wednesday evening, by Gordon Adamson, of Ottawa, who is in charge of the industrial division and equipment division of the Board. Noel Bates, supervisor of the Toronto area, also attended.

Various groups within the city were represented at the meeting. The prime purpose of the gathering was to acquaint Peterborough people more fully with the facilities of the local National Film Board Library. Actually, it was a preliminary meeting to what will be called the Film Committee, which will work in co-operation with the Adult Education Council.

Representatives from out-of-town points were invited to the meeting, but because of weather conditions and heavy roads, were unable to attend. Mr. Adamson and Mr. Bates led a discussion period which followed.

Ron. Ward, National Film Board Supervisor in this area, and Quirt McKinney, volunteer Film Officer, and Peterborough Film Librarian, were present.

Among the organizations represented at the meeting were: Kiwanis Club, Rotary Club, Lions Club, Kinsmen Club, the Y.M.C.A., the Y.W.C.A., the Y's Men, Boy Scouts, George Street United Church, and school teachers.

The extent to which the people have appreciated the National Film Board in Peterborough, can be shown in the figures recently announced, that in November of this year, 5,400 people in Peterborough, Lakefield and Norwood, were shown films. The projector was taken out 24 times to these showings. Approximately 4,800 people saw films in October, when 18 showings were made.

Use Of School Library At Collegiate Is Increasing

Miss Genevieve Fowler, librarian of the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School Library reported to the Board of Education on Thursday night that during September and October 3,040 books were borrowed by the students, while a year ago for the first four months the total was 2,573.

There has also been a decided increase in reference work, Miss Fowler reported, and each day more students are coming to the Library for material. The clipping file is in constant use. A period has also been set aside during the English classes for instruction in Library Science.

Inspector K. S. Wightman reporting for attendances at the Public Schools in November had Queen Alexandra at the top of the list with 94.87 per cent attendance; King George 93.09, Prince of Wales 93.02, Confederation 92.90, Queen Mary 92.65, May's 90.76, Central 90.69, King Edward 90.48, and the Parkhill 84.72. The total school attendance was 3,463, with an average of 3,192 or 92.17 per cent.

During the month the children in the Public Schools purchased $1,596.25 of War Savings Stamps.

Collegiate Attendance.

Attendance at the Collegiate totalled 1,023, with 664 in the Academic Department and 359 in the Vocational School, with an average attendance of 95.76 per cent.

Principal Browne reported 28 days lost by teachers due to illness while for the Public Schools Inspector Wightman reported 68 days lost, with all but 8 being lost by three teachers.

Fred R. Revoy, attendance officer, reported 28 pupils absent through illness, 16 absent for home help, one for need of clothing, seven on account of parental neglect, and four due to illness in the home. Home permits were granted three girls who had been attending school and employment certificates were given three girls, while four girls who had just moved into the city were granted permits. Three of these had passed their entrance last July, while the other had one year at Port Hope High School.

United States Fears Swing To Isolationism

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 — (CP). — Fear of a swing toward isolationism in the United States is gripping many observers here in the face of American apprehension over the trend of events in Europe.

The discordant note struck by the public reproof of Russia and Britain contained in the statement of the new secretary of state, Edward Stettinius, declaring the American stand against interference with domestic policiés of liberated countries, was welcome material for the isolationists.

This was seized upon generally as applying primarily to Britain and her handling of the Greek and Belgian situations, but applied no less to the Russian treatment of the Baltic countries and Poland, and her possible intentions elsewhere in Europe.

The incident has brought into sharp focus the whole question of Anglo-Russian influence in Europe

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

To raise funds to promote baseball in the smaller centres within its jurisdiction, the Western Counties Baseball Association at its annual meeting yesterday at Chatham decided to organize three all-star games to be played at London, Sarnia and Tilbury next summer. Secretary Bill Farquharson of London declared that the Intercounty League had raised $590 through an all-star attraction in the Forest City last season. In moving that the special games be staged, E. J. Marnell of Tilbury urged members of the western counties executive to do promotional work in places where interest had died down.

Because of heavy snows, harness racing at Dufferin Park, Toronto, has been called off until Christmas Day, it was announced at the track last night. Due to conditions, trainers have been exercising the equines on the street near the park.

Seized by Mexican government officials Wednesday in behalf of the Arguello Brothers, the $3,000,000 Agua Caliente racetrack at Tijuana, Mex., yesterday became the centre of a new dispute when another group of Arguello heirs entered a claim to the property. It was stated the second group represented 95.6 per cent of the rightful heirs.

Caps Tighten Hold On Lead

By The Canadian Press

Indianapolis Capitals strengthened their grip on the leadership of the western division of the American Hockey League by shutting out Providence Reds 5-0 last night.

It was the first victory registered by the Capitals over the Reds in four attempts.

Goalie Connie Dion who joined the Caps a week ago gave a sensational performance in netminding.

Hewson with the assistance of Thibault and M. Skinner succeeded in breaching the Providence fortress after more than 15 minutes of play in the second period. From then on the Caps found the going easier. A second goal was scored in the second period by Leswick.

Howcinak, Skinner and Thomson were the Indianapolis scorers in the third frame during which Cotlow of Reds drew a major penalty for misconduct.

Expect 17,000 To See Greco

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(CP). — Promoter Mike Jacobs said to-day he expects a crowd of 17,000 or more to pay around $100,000 to see Johnny Greco, Montreal lightweight and Bobby Ruffin of Long Island tangle for 10 rounds or less tonight in Madison Square Garden.

They met in a sizzling 10-round scrap November 17, with hard-hitting Greco, recently discharged from the Canadian Army, winning by a close margin.

Ruffin has never been kayoed, but he came close to spoiling that record against the Canadian when he elected to slug it out instead of boxing.

Greco is a slight favorite to repeat his victory. The Canadian, at 143½ pounds, is expected to have about a three-pound edge.

The Ladies' City Basketball League double-header at the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium tonight will be the last fixtures until after the holidays and will probably draw about the biggest crowd of the season in view of the fact that the card brings together the two old senior rivals, Transports and St. John's who clash in the 7:45 o'clock game. Needless to say this tussle should produce plenty of fireworks. The two outfits have never had a dull game and usually their meetings are marked by hard checking and plenty of action, with the score always as tight as Dorothy Lamour's sarong. The last time they met earlier in the season the Saints just did manage to eke out a 17 to 16 victory and the game wound up with the Transports battling desperately for the basket that would have sewed up the contest. In the second game tonight two outfits that on paper look to be very well matched will be seen in action as Quakers and Westclox clash in the second game on the program, billed for 8:45 o'clock. Both teams, although still not represented in the win column, have shown good form in their previous appearances and they should stage quite an argument tonight.

Two important games are scheduled in the Y.M.C.A. House Basketball League tomorrow night with much of the interest centring in the battle between Clarence Davern's Cougars and Ray Routley's Panthers, billed as the second game on the card, starting at 8:15 o'clock. The new entry, Cougars, making their first appearance a week ago, ran up a big score in winning their initial game by a 30 point margin and the fans have marked them down as the chief opposition for Gord Johnston's league leading Lions who have gone through three games in a row without defeat. Cougars take on the Panthers and if they should come down in front in that argument will be close on the heels of the leaders who are idle Saturday night. The opening game on tomorrow night's bill should also be an interesting struggle for it finds Bill Kemp's Trojans and Roy Johnston's Tigers clawing into each other and it looks like an even-Stephen argument. These will be the last Saturday night battles until after Christmas although the league will stage a double-header next Wednesday to make up for missing a week from tomorrow.

A Big Swim Program

There should be a real crowd at the Y.M.C.A. pool tomorrow night when the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. swim club under the direction of Gord Minty will stage a gala meet, with a strong squad of Toronto Central Y swimmers coming down to provide the outside competition. The Queen City athletes number some of the leading swimmers in Toronto and they will be formidable opposition, particularly as some of them have already mastered the new crawl stroke, a change in swimming technique that is expected to result before long in a flock of new records. Peterborough will have a strong team in action, including, of course, Bill Lech, the junior Dominion breast stroke champion. Variety will be given to the program by a clever exhibition by the Y.W.C.A. Silver Finettes whose precision swimming is always a treat to watch. In addition there will be a demonstration of the new method of resuscitation. The necessary apparatus has been built here and this will be the first public showing of the new method in Peterborough.

S. R. "Sandy" Burrows, O.H.A. executive member and convener of group No. 2 in the Junior O.H.A. for 1945, announced today the group would convene at the Hume Arena over next week-end, says Ken Colling in the Belleville Ontario-Intelligencer. "There seems to be a general trend towards the revival of junior hockey all over the province. Why in our district alone we'll have the largest junior group seen in many years. We all know that transportation problems are difficult, but apparently the junior clubs have solved this question as our association is flooded with junior applications for affiliation," revealed Mr. Burrows. Junior teams already affiliated include Tweed, Stirling-Madoc, Trenton, Belleville, Campbellford and Hastings in group No. 2, bringing the roster up to six clubs. Yesterday Manager Walt Gerow started flooding the ice surface at the Hume Arena with satisfactory results. The frost had penetrated the ground over the week-end and if weather conditions are suitable for continued ice making the Hume Arena should be open for skating before Christmas, so get the old blades out and sharpened.

"Wesley Cheek Ferrell's appointment as manager for next season of the Greensboro team in the Class C Carolina League caused more than a few men wise in the ways of baseball to lift their eyebrows," says Doug Vaughan in the Windsor Star. "The scoffers declare that Wesley is too hot-tempered to become a successful pilot, even in the minors, and that he will quickly lose his head in more ways than one. They point to the fact that he was always in hot water as a big league pitcher. He quit the mound one memorable afternoon in New York when the breaks of the game went against his team, the Red Sox, and was fined $100 by Manager Joe Cronin. Another time he returned to the bench after a bad inning and stamped a gift wrist watch he just received into the floor of the dugout. On numerous occasions in Detroit he gave samples of his uncontrollable temper. What detractors forget, however, about Ferrell is that he never blamed anyone but himself, his fits of passion always being directed against himself. Fellows who played with him will tell you that he never once bawled out an infielder for a costly error or an outfielder for playing a line drive badly. Ferrell went off the deep end more than once but it was always in such a picturesque, open and dramatic manner that he received top billing in the newspapers next day."

Toronto Leafs didn't do too badly in Montreal last night for with a weakened team they managed to hold the league leaders to a 2-2 tie and as a result took over second place from the Detroit Tigers who were idle. Most fans looked for a Canadien win last night so that the feat of the Leafs in getting away with a draw will have to go down under the heading of a moral victory. Mel Hill put the Toronto gang in front in the first period with Carr and Metz getting assists and then Maurice Richard tied it up with Toe Blake and Bouchard setting up the play. Half way through the second period the Canadiens ace line struck again and Elmer Lach beat McCool to put the Flying Frenchmen in the lead. However Bill Davidson evened it up before the end of the period and the teams battled the last 20 minutes without being able to break the deadlock.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: It was the Blake-Richard-Lach line that kept the Canadiens from losing at home last night....Richard and Lach fired the two Montreal goals....Toronto were without Gus Bodnar and had only 12 men in uniform....Doc Dafoe shares with Carr the honor of leading the senior O.H.A. group....He didn't do that well against the Petes, although he was always a menace at that if were allowed to run loose....Casey Stengel is to be the new boss of the Newark Bears....Les Lear, former Winnipeg Blue Bomber has returned home from a season in American professional football, as a member of the Cleveland Rams.... He says that the pro brand is plenty tough....Incidentally Lear is one of a very few Canadians who have made good in the cash-and-carry circuit....Johnny Greco, the Montreal welterweight is a 5 to 8 favorite over Bobby Ruffin in the 10-round bout in Madison Square Gardens tonight.

Winnipeg's Billy Marquart was removed as a contender for the lightweight boxing crown five years ago tonight when he was knocked out in New York's Madison Square Garden by Lew Jenkins who later knocked out Lou Ambers to win the crown.

Quebec Team Collects $399

OTTAWA, Dec. 15 — (CP). — Judge A. G. McDougall yesterday handed down judgment awarding Morton Aces, Incorporated, of Quebec, $399 in their suit against S. Leonard Belaire of Ottawa, manager of Ottawa Canadiens hockey team. Judge McDougall directed that the money be paid the Aces from the $900 originally advanced by the Quebec team as expense money.

The action arose after the cancellation of a scheduled exhibition game between Canadiens and Aces at Quebec in March, 1943. The game was called off because of an extensive storm in the Montreal-Quebec area. Mr. Belaire took his team as far as Montreal and then, by mutual agreement of club officials, had to turn back to Ottawa.

Subsequently Aces brought suit against Mr. Belaire for an accounting of funds, claiming $600 of the expense money should be returned.

Hockey Club Sponsors Teams

Good progress was made at a meeting of the executive of the Peterborough Hockey Club in the Duffus board room last night, in the direction of organizing 'teen age hockey here this season. President R. M. Glover was in the chair, all the coaches were present and a number of the executive along with Dave Leether, Bev. Goulding, Collegiate athletic coach and Jim Buchan.

It was decided that the hockey club will operate a four-club league composed of boys who were under 16 on November 1. One more sponsor is required.

The following coaches were decided upon.

North—Ned Vitarelli, Drake Jopling. South—Art Heal, Honey Tompkins. West—Johnny Godfrey, Bun Kingdon. East—Eddie Star, Jim Ellis.

In addition to the hockey club loop Jim Buchan is organizing a juvenile league with a team of his own, one from the Collegiate Institute and possibly entries from the Y.M.C.A. and St. Peters.

The open air rinks will be used at school, church, and juvenile leagues, as well as by the hockey club loop and all these leagues will meet Ald. Curtis in the near future to make the necessary arrangements as to hours.

Dave Leether of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association was added to the executive of the Peterborough Hockey Club last night and will take an active part in promoting the league fathered by the club.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP). — When the boxing champions who marched off to war come back to defend their "frozen" titles, they likely will find a new generation of fighters ready to challenge....Since the ranks of "name" fighters were thinned out a couple of years ago, such guys as Beau Jack and Ike Williams have come to the top—and maybe reached their limit..... Then there's Johnny Greco, the walloping Montreal welterweight who meets Bobby Ruffin in a re-match at the Garden to-night..... Boxing men figure Johnny, who has been released from the Canadian Army, would be at least a contender any year....Farther down the line but still showing distinct signs of class are Tony Janiro, the Youngstown, O., youngster, Billy Arnold and Billy Fox, a pair of Philadelphia punchers (Fox has 25 straight knockouts), Danny Bartifled, who soon will fight his first Garden main event, Freddie Schott, Jimmy Doyle, and Harold Green.. ..Some of them may also enter the Services, some may not live up to their promise, but it's a cinch the returning service men will find some good, tough boys waiting

THE BRIGHT STAR OF PEACE

In 1778, Port Hope was a trading-post, and was called Toronto. Four years later, United Empire Loyalists came to settle there. The name was changed to Port Hope in 1817, in honor of Colonel Henry Hope, then Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada. From an engraving by W. H. Bartlett in 1840, and now in the John Ross Robertson collection, Toronto Public Libraries.

TODAY, the name "Port Hope" is just that . . . a port of hope for a suffering humanity.

In lead shields in the great refinery at Port Hope glow tiny crystals, radium wrought with infinite patience from the pitchblendes of Eldorado in Canada's North.

Port Hope's was the first radium refinery on the continent. Established in 1933, it completed production of its first ounce of radium in 1936. Since that time, its precious product has gone forth like the bright star of Bethlehem to bring peace and relief from pain. Canada now leads the world in the production of radium.

From tiny trading-post in the wilderness to thriving, bustling town known the world over for its contribution to civilization . . . that is the history of Port Hope.

And that, too, is the history of Canada . . . proof of what we can do in the years to come, when all the horrors of war are over, and the bright star of Peace shines upon a good earth.

Let us have faith in this Canada Unlimited of ours. For Christmas, give Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates and Stamps. They, too, are bright stars of Peace, weapons of Victory, shining upon a fearless future in a Canada Unlimited.

129 Horses Have Run Mile In Two Minutes

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 15—It was 47 years ago that the two minute list was started in harness racing Dave McClary drove the pacing stallion Star Pointer for a mile in 1:59¼ over the Readville track at Boston The first two-minute trotter came along six years later when the California mare Lou Dillon trotted in 2:00 over the same course.

Now, with all the returns in for the 1944 season, a total of 63 pacers and 46 trotters are in the select list. There are 10 additions from 1944.

For years the pacers have dominated the two minute list at a ration for about 2 to 1. For several seasons the trotters fell behind (there were no additions to the list in 1942 and 1943), but they made up much lost ground in 1944 with a total of nine two minute performers. The pacers had only one.

Best of All Time

The outstanding fast trotter of the season was the four-year-old colt Volo Song, who trotted to a 1:57 record in winning a stake at North Randall in July. This is a race record for stallions of either gait. The pacing gait is supposed to be slightly faster than the trotting gait, but no pacing stallion has ever beaten 1:58 in a race.

In his next start after the record mile, Volo Song broke a front leg and was destroyed. Good judges believed he would have displaced Greyhound as the king of trotters.

The second trotter of the season was Love Song, who ran a 1:59 record at Lexington. She is an older sister of Volo Song. The third is the big four-year-old Phonograph, second to Volo Song in two of the three heats of the 1943 Hambletonian Stake. He trotted in 1:59¼ at Lexinggton. All three trotters were sired by Volomite (2:03¼), greatest of living sires.

Five at 2:00 Flat

The only other trotter to beat 2:00 was the 4-year-old colt Darnley, who won a heat in 1:59¾ at Goshen. There were five timed in 2:00 flat. They were Scotland's Comet and Speed King in races, and the Colonel's Lady, Titan Hanover and David Spencer, all against time at Lexington. Titan Hanover is only a 2-year-old and trotter two seconds faster than any other of the age, to become the outstanding juvenile performance of all time.

French Sailor Reaches Finals

ROME, Dec. 15 — (CP).—Marcel Cerdan, classy French sailor slugger, last night reached the finals of the Mediterranean zone boxing championships in defence of his professional middleweight crown, outpointing Pte. Floyd Gibson of Milford, O.

In an unpopular decision, Pte. Omar Koudri, pre-war French welterweight champion, was given a split decision over Larry Cisneros of Los Angeles, the only defending titleholder from the United States, in a pro welterweight semi-final.

Cpl. Johnny Boom of the British 8th Army won a decision over Pte. Ellis Lågrange of New Iberia, La., in a pro featherweight semi-final.

Night Baseball To Get Grand Tryout

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 — (AP). — The threatened epidemic of major league night baseball games for 1945, resulting from the do-as-you-please permit handed club owners at the annual convention, may be a boomerang.

For the '44 figures show the average night attendance, while a bit over the day average, drops off as the number of nocturnal tilts goes up.

Headed by Washington's Clark Griffith, eight of the 11 moguls possessing lighting facilities intend to stage more than the previously allotted 14 night attractions. Griffith said his Senators, starting May 10, would play all games at night except Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

Brooklyn, Cincinnati and New York Giants are expected to play 14 games in their home parks, with all the others going over that figure.

Last season's attendance figures show night baseball can be overdone. Washington, playing 43 such games — tops in the majors — drew 292,896 fans as compared to 232,339 for 34 daylight contests. The average night crowd was 7,413, lowest in either circuit. The Browns, second with 32 after-dark events, were next to the bottom in average night attendance with 9,125, despite having a pennant winner.

On the other hand Cleveland, with the league's low of 15 night games, led all clubs with a 15,002 average.

The Giants, playing only 14 night games, led the National in total attendance and paced the arc-light circuit with an average of 17,764 fans, while the Cards and Phillies, with a host of after-dark contests, finished far behind.

HE WAS FIRST ENTRY IN DERBY — Kentucky Derby, 1945 edition, is still many months off, but John Marsch, Chicago contractor who owns the famous sprinters, Occupation and Occupy, has taken no chance of not getting his two-year-old star, Free For All, entered. Free For All, shown above, was the first one nominated for the 1945 derby. Free For All ranked second to Pavot, eastern standout, among the two-year-olds this year, having won five straight races in the midwest before going east. He's not campaigning now.

Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Dec. 15 — (CP). — That recurring problem that always bothers Montreal Canadiens fans is perplexing Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll again, namely, why do Toronto Leafs always put up such a fight when they meet the Habitants? That, says Dink, is one of the "mysteries of a league full of mysteries." It must be those extra doses of blood and iron the Leafs were promised before the season started.

Migration south:

Reports from the West say that New Westminster Lodestars, last season's Western Allan Cup finalists who were edged out by Port Arthur, have moved in a body to Seattle south of the border to carry on their activities. It's also rumored the boys may try for the Allan Cup again next spring, coming back to New Westminster and playing from that base if the rules permit it.

Long walk:

George Redding of Hamilton, Ont., who spent some little time on the hockey front in Britain before the war, told Red Burnet of the Toronto Star how he quelled a threatened strike of players on the other side. Redding quickly brought the boys, all transplanted Canadians, into line when he told them if they didn't do as he said their contracts would be broken, and they would have to walk home.

Here to there:

It makes the next-to-the-younger-generation feel like old-timers to learn that Hap Day of Toronto Leafs has been around the professional hockey ranks for 20 years now....Leafs are expecting Johnny McCreedy back any day now. He has applied for his discharge from the R.C.A.F....Neil Colville, former New York Ranger, is well on the way back to the big league also. He will soon graduate as aircrew member and go into the R.C.A.F. Reserve....The younger who starts now to learn the goal-tending trade will have far more chance of success than any incipient forward or defenceman, says Al (Montreal Herald) Parsley, looking over the current sparse crop of netminders.

Last Night's Stars

By The Canadian Press

Frank McCool, Toronto, who gave a sensational performance in the nets as injury-riddled Leafs tied with Montreal Canadiens in the only N.H.L. game.

Toe Blake, Canadiens, who made the play for both the Montreal goals in the first and second periods.

Leafs, Canadiens In Tie Game

By The Canadian Press

The blame for Montreal Canadiens' failure to make the National Hockey League race a repeat of last year's runaway can be laid at the door of one team — Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Torontonians again last night proved themselves the champions' premier stumbling-block by fighting to a 2-2 draw at Montreal with only 12 men in uniform.

The impasse gave Leafs sole possession of second place over the idle Detroit Red Wings and left the Frenchmen with only one victory in five games against Hap Day's crew this year.

The undermanned Leafs, playing with two makeshift forward lines, showed remarkable vitality in throttling the powerful Montreal attack, and goalie Frank McCool helped out by having one of his good nights. He was particularly effective during a blistering Canadien assault in the dying minutes of the game.

Mel Hill shot Leafs into a one-goal lead nearly halfway through the initial period when he collared a pass by Lorne Carr to beat Bill Durnan cleanly. Canadien comet Maurice Richard got it back four minutes later.

Centre Elmer Lach shifted the pressure to the visitors midway through the second by beating McCool on a gangling play, but dependable Bob Davidson equalized three minutes later by converting Ted Kennedy's next passout. Toe Blake and Emile (Butch) Bouchard drew assists on both Montreal goals.

Chief Frowns On Horror Programs

OTTAWA, Dec. 15—(CP)—The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is urging private radio stations not to renew contracts for "horror programs," Dr. Augustin Frigon, general manager of the CBC, said Wednesday, in an interview.

"We have the power to direct the private stations to drop horror broadcasts, but we haven't used the ban since we have found that the use of persuasion rather than force is achieving the same result, although more slowly," said Dr. Frigon.

The private stations carried horror programs on a contract basis of 13, 26 or 39 weeks and as these contracts expired the CBC was "exerting every influence against their renewal."

Sgt. Bill Wheeler, RCAF. Home On Furlough

After serving overseas twice with the Royal Canadian Air Force, Sgt. Bill Wheeler, 675 Stewart street, has returned home on leave. Waiting to greet him here, was his wife whom he had met while she was serving with the WRENS in England, and who had arrived home only one week before.

Sgt. Wheeler went overseas as a radio mechanic in 1941, and after serving in Britain until 1943, returned to Canada. In April, of this year, he returned to England, this time in the capacity of a navigator.

This young airman's only personal experience with a robot bomb took place in England this year, and he said today that he would rather go through another 1941 Nazi air blitz than be attacked by flying bombs. During the period of fierce German air raids on England, he was stationed at many of the hot spots in the country, favorite targets for German bombers.

Among the Peterborough boys he met while in England this year, were Dean Kelly and Ken Gorrie.

Sgt. Wheeler attended Peterborough Collegiate, and at the time of his enlistment, was studying arts and theology at the University of Toronto. The son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Wheeler, he and his wife have a baby boy.

Soldiers' Widows Covered In Act

OTTAWA, Dec. 15—(CP)—Provisions of the War Veterans' Allowance Act have been extended by Order-in-Council to cover widows of veterans of this war, the first Great War, the South African War and the Northwest Field Force, Veterans Minister Mackenzie said today.

Widows of such veterans, if they have reached the age of 55 or have become permanently incapable of maintaining themselves and are in necessitous circumstances, now are eligible for an allowance of $365 annually if without dependents, or $730 if supporting one or more dependent children, Mr. Mackenzie said. Provision is also made for allowances, $360 for one, $648 for two or $720 for more than two, to be paid on behalf of children of such veterans whose parents are both dead.

The latest Order-in-Council covered widows of veterans of this war and of the Northwest Field Force. Widows of other veterans had been covered previously.

"Since compassionate allowances were authorized for widows of veterans, a total of 2,640 applications have been received," said Mr. Mackenzie. "Of these 195 were withdrawn, 553 were declined and 1,892 were approved. Of the 1,892 applications approved 67 have since been cancelled by reason of death of the widow or a chance in her circumstances such as marriage. The annual liability to the country in respect to these allowances is $685,799," said Mr. Mackenzie.

Toronto Paper Guilty In Libel Case

TORONTO, Dec. 15 — (CP). — A special assize court jury hearing a libel suit for unstated damages filed by 16 C.C.F. candidates in the last Toronto civic elections against the Toronto Evening Telegram, M. A. Sanderson and reliable exterminators, early today returned a verdict of "libel with malice."

Damages of $1 each were awarded the 16 candidates.

The jury had retired for deliberations at 6.15 p.m. and returned at 1 a.m.

In bringing in the verdict the foreman of the jury announced: "The jury has unanimously agreed that there is defamation of character, with malice and libel and assessed contemptuous damages of $1 to each of the 16 plaintiffs."

J. R. Cartwright, counsel for the plaintiffs, moved for a judgment with costs, but Mr. Justice J. K. Mackay, said he was reserving his decision on the motion and would on a later occasion hear arguments as to cost.

The action arose as a result of an advertisement inserted by Sanderson, manager of Reliable Exterminators, who often published political ads, in the Telegram of Dec. 31, 1943.

Plaintiffs in the case were: William Dennison; Professor George Grube; Herbert Orliffe; Eva Sanderson; Murray Cotterill; Russell Gee; Nina L. Dean; John V. McGuigan; Barbara Cass-Beggs; Eva Carr; Patrick G. O'Donovan; Harry L. McKinstry; Robert E. Jones; Maxwell Armstrong; Charles Negraych and Pattie Tanner.

The jury had to decide whether the plaintiffs had been libelled when they were referred to as "Communists", "Communist-controlled rubber stamps" or associates of Communists as stated in the advertisement.

To make the load on the post office a little lighter, Peterborough citizens are requested to mail in advance of the deadline dates.

All mail going to Manitoba, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, or New Brunswick, should be posted before Sunday. Letters, cards going to Quebec or Ontario centres must be in the mail by Monday.

Youth Guilty In Assault Case

Finding Thornton Brick guilty of assaulting Hum Horning, occasioning actual bodily harm, Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court Thursday afternoon fined the accused $25 and costs, with the alternative of a month in jail.

Hearing of the case took nearly all day. At the afternoon session His Worship heard argument from W. C. Grant who defended Brick and Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., who prosecuted.

In giving judgment, His Worship reviewed the evidence and said that he was satisfied that Hum Horning had been assaulted by Thornton Brick and that the assault occasioned bodily harm. He pointed out that the Bricks had been in trouble in regard to the restaurant before and should have stayed away from the place.

Joseph Norman Brick, younger brother of the other accused, was charged with assaulting Willie Hum and Mr. Grant asked for a remand in that case. It will be tried next week.

Another charge against Joseph Norman Brick of assaulting Hum Horning, occasioning actual bodily harm, was dismissed when Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry said that he did not proposer to offer any evidence in that case.

A charge of drunken driving against Harvey Greene, who was represented by W. C. Grant was adjourned until Tuesday and Samuel Wilson, arrested in London, and charged with assault here was also remanded until Tuesday.

School Board Questions Work Permits

The methods used in distributing work permits to students under 16 years of age was questioned by some of the members of the Board of Education, at their final meeting of 1944 on Thursday night.

Two of the Board had received complaints that children under 16 had been applying in large numbers at local factories for jobs and the complainant felt a closer investigation was merited.

Both Inspector K. Wightman and C. S. Browne, Collegiate principal, pointed out that these permits were only given after a careful investigation into individual cases and that where the family of a pupil was living in the country, the student often secured a permit from the township and their hands were tied.

G. W. Craw, chairman, pointed out that the names of four students from out of town were listed in the truant officer's report, and he felt the matter should be clarified. Mrs. T. J. Carley, K. C., suggested that the ages of the children should be given in the reports and the grades they were in when they applied for a permit to leave school and D. V. Canning concurred in this.

Careful Checking.

"There are no permits granted until a thorough investigation has been made by F. R. Revoy, attendance officer." Mr. Brown explained. "He makes the report and it is efficiently done. On the basis of his recommendations, if they satisfy me, then I approve the granting of the permit. No student eligible for Collegiate gets one without my permission, and Inspector Wightman is in the same position. I would like to sponsor a drive to educate people to keep their children in school. Several students have entertained the false idea that once they are 14 they can leave school any time they like. We do our best to persuade these people how necessary an education is to get a successful start in life."

"I believe it was more general last year than it is now. There was a clean-up in September," Mr. Craw remarked, and Mr. Canning said that he didn't think that the figures for the year were so high, and pointed out that some of the permits issued were only temporary ones.

It was moved by Mr. Sollitt and Mr. Carley that the insurance on May's and Confederation schools be renewed with the existing companies and agencies and that $10,000 more be placed on May's School.

Leaving Board.

Dr. C. M. Scott, who has served as a member of the Board for eight years, and who was chairman for 1942-43, said farewell to his fellow members, since he is retiring this month. He said that it was with regret that he was leaving and that he had found the association very pleasant.

"There have been many changes since I was first elected. All the members have changed, the secretary, inspector and Collegiate principal have also changed. I have no great tale to tell of the work accomplished during my tenure of office but I would like to say I have done what I could. I am leaving partly because of the increased pressure of business and partly because I feel I have made my contribution to the community and it is only fair to give someone else a chance."

Mr. Craw commented that H. G. Walker was leaving the Board after 10 years service. He said that both men had given real service to the community in educational matters. The chairman too commented on the many changes and said that while he had only been on the Board six years, he would be the senior member.

Another tribute to Dr. Scott was paid by Gordon Mann. He said that Dr. Scott had told him many things when he arrived as a new member and that he appreciated his thoughtfulness and kindness. He said that he felt the rest of the Board would agree with him that Dr. Scott could leave its service feeling that he had indeed done his share.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Mr. Craw thanked members for their cooperation during the year and pointed out that much had been accomplished in improving educational facilities. He said that they could be proud of the things they had been able to do, and that the Boards' success was due entirely to the spirit of cooperation which emanated from the group.

Mrs. E. Parnall said she wanted to convey her admiration to the Collegiate girls who were doing work for the Red Cross. She told the Board that the work they had been turning in was amazing and said that they deserved a great deal of credit for their war effort.

Glengarrians Great Soldiers Major Archie Hamilton Declares

"No finer bunch of boys could be found anywhere else in the world" is the way Major Archie Hamilton described the men of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, upon his arrival home recently after being wounded in action in France last July. He was second in command of that regiment, and landed with them on the Normandy coast on D-Day.

The Glengarrians received their "baptism of fire" on June 7, when they were approximately 10 miles inside France, and "they behaved like veterans," he said.

"It was their first time under fire; they were calm and cool. Nothing fazed those boys, and they did a cracking good job."

Major Hamilton, who lives in Auburn and is the son of Mrs. R. M. Hamilton, was wounded July 8, by what he believes was mortar shrapnel, in the right foot. He was at Battalion Headquarters, and the fighting heralding the famed advance on Caen, was just beginning. Shortly after, he was sent back to the coast, and subsequently to England, where he was entered into a completely Canadian-staffed hospital.

High praise for the men of the stretcher-bearer ranks is held by this officer. Wonderful work was done in the face of all kinds of difficulties, and they are in the thick of the battles in Europe today, faithfully carrying out their duties, one of the more or less "silent" services of our armed forces. Medical officers and their staffs also accomplished "magnificent jobs," constantly in the face of danger.

Recalls Men

Major Hamilton, thinking in both pleasant and nostalgic terms, reminisced on some of the Peterborough boys whom he knew, and saw in action, on battle-fields in war-torn France. Their hometowns rank high on the popularity list of conversation, he said, and when newspapers are found from those cities and towns, the boys simply "eat them up."

He told of Major Jack Peterson, former Examiner reporter and photographer, who has established a fine reputation while fighting with the Glengarrians overseas.

"He is doing a bang-up job, and revelling in his work," Major Hamilton said. "Once, he delivered stores to the company from a two-wheeled French cart, drawn by horses. There he was, perched high in the driver's seat with a smile on his face. When I saw him in that cart, I didn't know whether to believe it or not. 'What's going on?' I thought."

"When I left France, Captain Jim Gillespie was still going strong. Now there was one fellow who never forgot his cottage up in the lakes, and he used to say that as soon as "this job is finished here," he intended to go back and see the place as soon as possible. He is a fine soldier." Capt. Gillespie is the son of G. A. Gillespie.

Visited Wounded

During his stay in the hospital in Britain, Major Hamilton often met members of the regiment, who had been wounded in action while the regiment was advancing through France. "I used to try and get all the news of the regiment from them," Major Hamilton reported.

"When I last saw Sgt. Robert Willshaw, he was well on his way back to health, and in excellent form. He was sergeant of the snipers, and was doing a great job, too."

"Pte. W. O. Green was also in the last stages of convalescence, and in very high spirits, when I saw him at the hospital."

Major Neil M. Gemmell, of Peterborough, is doing a magnificent job, he said.

"I saw Cpl. Emerald Post, and in France, he certainly made a first class effort. Capt. R. T. F. Brain, M.C., dropped in now and again at the hospital, but whenever he was in England, he was very keen to get back to action. Sgt. Robert Primeau, with the signals division of the regiment, completed first class work in every instance, and the signal men must be commended for their work. Even in the toughest days, they kept up communications all the time." Sgt. Primeau was wounded not many days after Major Hamilton was hit.

Always Smiling

"Fred J. Crowe is another Peterborough boy who was complimented. Even though he got banged up twice, they couldn't wipe the smile off his face, and he was always ready and rarin' to go."

Port Hope residents will be glad to learn that their Cpl. "Dutch" Harwood is still the same; hasn't changed a bit. A well-known hockey player and athlete before enlisting, he has become "one of the S.D. and G. Highlanders' characters if there ever was one." Full of fun, Major Hamilton said the hockey-player when last heard of "was still making par in his usual game."

These, and many more like them, are the men of the fighting Glengarrians; Peterborough boys, among others, who have made flaming history in Europe. Major Hamilton told of others also, whom he remembers as doing outstanding work under fire. Men like Sgt. Herb Bone, "still going strong all the way through"; Captain H. Willis, Pte. J. C. Tighe, Cpl. E. May, of Lakefield, Piper Bobby Webbdale, of Kirkfield, who was among the pipers who piped the regiment ashore on D-Day and Sgt. R. B. Garrett of Lakefield who when he last heard, was on his way back to health after being wounded.

Captain Willis, he said, is turning in his usual excellent job.

Morale High

Major Hamilton said that when he was last in contact with the Glengarrians, their morale was never higher. During the long months spent in training in England, they kept up marvellously, always "practically eating their hearts out to get over in Europe, and in action."

They went through the invasion of the Normandy coast with the same calmness and matter of course attitude, as they did when taking part in invasion schemes in England. Everything went the same, because they were the same. No honor is too great for the fighting S. D. and G. Highlanders, according to Major Hamilton.

A former employee of the G. Whitaker Company he was a member of the Prince of Wales Rangers, N.P. A.M., since 1930. He enlisted in the S.D. and G. Highlanders in 1940, and went overseas in July, 1941.

Major Hamilton was educated at Peterborough Collegiate.

Hamilton's Old Family

He is a member of one of Peterborough's oldest families which have lived here for 110 years and was himself born and educated here in public schools and the Collegiate.

His great grandfather, Major Robert Hamilton, was an officer in a famous Scottish Highland Regiment which fought under Wellington. In 1832 he entered the service of the Hudson Bay Company, and attained a high position with them. He was a member of the North West Council and so became the Hon. Robert Hamilton. On his retirement in 1876 he acquired Auburn, the present Hamilton house.

His sons, Maxwell and Miles were both born in the Arctic Circle, and the latter, who died in 1939, was the father of Major Archibald Maxwell (Archie) Hamilton. The latter, up to the time of his enlistment for active service was a leading local cricketer, as were his father and uncle before him.

After leaving school he entered the employment of the G. Whitaker Company, and he was employed by that firm at the time of his enlistment. Before the war he obtained a commission in the Peterborough Rangers in 1934, and when the S. D. and G. Highlanders were mobilized, he volunteered for active service, and was posted to No. 1 (Headquarters) Company.

From the first he was deeply interested in his military duties, and he was appointed Second in Command of the Battalion at the early age of 33. His sister, Margaret Hamilton, is overseas, serving as a member of the Women's Division of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Whitaker Group Assists Christmas Fund

There is more truth than poetry in the adage, "That blood is thicker than water," proven in the first instance by the splendid manner in which the component parts of the British Commonwealth of Nations have responded in assistance to the Mother Country, when the future of her very existence was challenged by a powerful foe, who from his preparedness came very close to obtaining the results he sought.

In a comparative way, so have the employees of the G. Whitaker Co. Ltd., whose head office is in Bradford, England, responded in assistance to the people of the British Isles who have suffered and are suffering from enemy air raid and robot bomb attacks, through the local and district fund being carried on for that purpose.

A goodly number of the employees of this local branch also have their roots going back to the old land, and dividually and collectively on many occasions, among which are included each appeal that has been made for the special donation every Christmas since the fund began to operate.

This comparatively speaking small group of people are today credited with the sum of $50 to which may be added one from the firm itself for a further $25. This is a sure sign their interest is still being keenly maintained in the work the fund carries on, besides taking an interest in giving the homeless boys and girls in Britain some cheer for the Christmas season.

More Personal Gifts

Another fine list of personal gifts is included in today's receipts, among which may be found one acknowledged under "G.M.H., left in office," whose box of coins had the flavor of being laid by for this purpose, and when counted made up the nice sum of $11.33.

Others noted include D. F. Drummond and the W. H. Hamilton grocery, both of whom have been inseparable in their support to the fund on various occasions; the "Extra-Cent-a-Day, E.A.L.M. and W.," who have made one contribution every three months throughout the whole of the fund's operations; and "E. M. F.," who already has one or two gifts in this Christmas donation, besides others who also have appeared before.

Roseneath W.I. Helps

Two groups of women, both engaged in helpful work of their own, are also to be found in today's list, with $5.18 being credited to the Women's Institute of Roseneath, through Mrs. M. Timlin, their secretary, and St. Mark's Anglican Church W.A., Otonabee, through Mrs. W. Robinson.

The special donation for Christmas now needs the sum of $2,439 to complete its objective for the Christmas donation, and with only a short period of time before it must be cabled over, it would seem that contributions will need to be stepped up considerably if that is to become an established fact.

Council Ready To Dispose Of Ice Business

If anybody is interested in a going ice business, storage house, loading equipment, and all the other appurtenances including the intangible of good will but excluding the incommunicable and unsalable item of experience (this sounds faintly like a transposed 'ad' from the classified page) Alderman Glover is ready to negotiate with prospective buyers.

True, the business doesn't show a profit for this year's operations, but there were extentuating factors, including the aforementioned item of experience, such as, for example, the cutting size of the ice 'cubes.'

The decision to get out of the ice business was discussed by the welfare committee Thursday afternoon. Alderman Glover, presided, and was the first to suggest that if anybody wishes to take over the job the city carried on last summer, and even up to now, the whole thing, lock, stock and barrel, will be passed over the counter.

Expenses amounted to $6,492.79, and that sum included $3,929.58 as a Board of Works item such as transportation and other expenses. The chairman wishes to get out from under as soon as possible, but on the other hand members of the committee expect conditions in the 1945 ice market to be just as acute as last year. Presumably if the city's business is not taken over with assurance to carry on operations to supply the needs of many of the citizens the welfare committee may get ready to fill up the ice house again.

Inviting Bids

For the present Mayor Hamilton's motion, seconded by Alderman Sullivan, stands,—a recommendation to the council to invite by advertisement bids for the barns and all the rest of it with a guarantee to cut ice and sell it.

Alderman Glover estimated the final deficit at $1,000 to $1,200 probably nearer the first figure when the remnant stock is sold.

City Uses $10,610 For 11 Months Relief

The city's relief account for eleven months was $10,610.96 leaving $3,389.04 of the year's $14,000 appropriation, as reviewed at the welfare committee meeting Thursday.

Total expenditure to the end of November was $15,426.84, less refunds of $4,816.88, including $4,294.88 from the province for direct relief and mother allowances fuel. Applications were completed during the month for three old age pensions and one blind pension.

The November welfare bill was $845.72 as compared with $753.66 a year ago; persons receiving assistance was 79, against 78 in November last year; and per capita cost was up from $9.66 a year ago to $10.71. The present number of heads of families on the relief list is sixteen, and a year ago 12.

The council has authorized Welfare Officer Metheral to issue cheques at Christmas time instead of baskets of 'cheer' to the families and other persons on the welfare list. The total cost will be around $85.

No Shortages Expected In Groceries

According to present plans and expectations, there will be no shortages of groceries, fruits or vegetables in Peterborough during the Christmas season, an Examiner survey revealed today. Although shipping and transportation schedules were smashed by Tuesdays snow blizzard, and food commodities were marooned in warehouses and railway yards, it is expected that conditions will be brought back to normal soon.

Shipments of beer are expected anytime now, since the ban on truck driving has been dropped, in Toronto, it was reported from the Brewers' Warehouse today.

Unless another big storm descends, there is little possibility of a beer drought in Peterborough during the festive season. Although their trucks were kept off the roads, and prevented from bringing shipments here from Toronto by the storm, conditions are being brought back to normal, and trucks are expected to report soon. Incidentally, the snow storm gave the employees at the Warehouse at least a little spell of rest, with hardly any customers braving the elements to obtain the beverage.

Arrive on Schedule

Loblaw's Grocery store said today that while no shipments were received either Tuesday or Wednesday, Thursday saw shipments arriving on schedule, as they are today. There will be no grocery shortage here right now, was the general picture of that situation.

National Grocers' George N. Clarke, manager of the fruit and vegetable department, told the Examiner that of course, the storm has caused all the trouble."

Railway tie-ups, transportation difficulties, particularly in Toronto, where the storm was exceptionally severe, have caused a hold-up in the amount of fruit and vegetables which are arriving here, he said.

Monday and Tuesday of next week are expected to be tough days for fruit and vegetable men, he said, because at that time, things will probably be cleared up and the shipments will come in very fast.

However, the crux of the situation is that there will not be any shortage of fruits and vegetables here, according to the present situation.

Everyone expressed the idea though, that if another big blizzard occurs, anything could,...and probably would happen.

Beer Scarce

TORONTO, Dec. 15 — (CP). — A check-up revealed Toronto's 114 hotel beverage rooms were closed yesterday because of lack of beer. There have been no deliveries by breweries since Monday due to the restrictions on all non-essential driving while the city dug itself out after a snowstorm.

H. G. Wells Dubs Churchill British Fuehrer In London Paper

LONDON, Dec. 15—(CP-Reuter)—H. G. Wells, in an article on Prime Minister Churchill in this week's Tribune, Left-Wing weekly, wrote "The present would-be British Fuehrer has served his purpose and it is high time he retired upon his laurels before we forget the debt we owe him."

The article by the internationally-known author was entitled: "Churchill Must Go."

Mr. Churchill's last associations with the various European royalties Mr. Wells said, were "his final farewell to human confidence."

"We want him to go—now—before he discredits us further, for his own sake as well as ours, and if he takes all the royalties in the world with him—so much the better for human hope," Mr. Wells declared.

Describing the matter as urgent, Mr. Wells said Mr. Churchill's recent moves were grave attacks on Britain's national morale.

"There can be no doubt of the feelings of the common people of England and of the rank and file about this ugly business in Greece and other countries under the heel of slap-dash British Toryism.

"In the midst of a still uncertain war, this ineffable Prime Minister of ours has precipitated us into the class war—and on the wrong side If we do not end Winston, Winston will end us."

YPU Hears Talk On Post War

HAVELOCK, Dec. 15—(ENS). — Despite the stormy weather, fifteen members were in attendance at the regular meeting of the Young People's Society of the United Church, when Mrs. W. M. Patterson was the guest speaker and gave a very interesting talk concerning post-war plans and rehabilitation in the community and country.

She gave as an illustration of home missions, the evacuation of the Canadian-born Japanese from the west coast to central and eastern Canada. She thought it was the duty of the young people to help the young Japanese-Canadians to become settled and incorporated into their new communities.

A duet, "God Will Take Care of You," was sung by Joan and Jean Quinn, and the Scripture lesson was read by John Wilkinson. Due to the absence of the missionary convener, the president, Carleton Longmuir, presided for the entire service, at the close of which a social time was spent in games.

Council Plans To Change System Of Village Garbage Collection

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 15—(ENS)—A major change in the system of collection for payment of garbage and scavenger work looms for next year providing enough members of the present council are returned on New Year's day to carry it out.

I. S. Withers, who has the present contract, threatened to resign unless something was done in regard to his fees. He claimed that he spent far more time in attempting to collect than he did on the actual job. He was asked by Reeve Scriver to withhold his decision until the January session, when the council would deal with it.

Councillor Grant suggested that the costs be added to the tax bill as a special levy and the idea was sanctioned by the rest of the council. Those who have septic tank systems will be charged only for garbage collection with the likelihood that the present night soil and garbage fees will be reduced, since the garbage collector will not have to worry about payment of bills.

To Use Hall

The badminton club following a further representation of the club's case, by the Rev. George Kelly, Mrs. H. Trude and High School Principal H. Fawcett, was granted use of the Memorial Hall each Monday night and available Thursdays, at the club's own suggestion of $1 a night.

Mr. Kelly felt the club was filling a worthwhile part in the life of the village young people and should be encouraged and supported by the council.

Mr. Fawcett pointed out that it was an excellent game for high school students and that with the coperation of the council if the fees could be made low enough many more players would be encouraged to participate. Council members favored giving every encouragement to the young people and will provide heat for the hall on nights of play and also granted high school members use of the hall each Monday from four until six.

John McKerchar and Walter Yale appearing for the curling club were granted renewal of the club's lease on the village rink at $350, December 1 to April 30, 1945. Mr. McKerchar explained that until the night of December 11 there had been no frost in the rink and hence it was impossible to start making ice. The club this year is removing some of the muck flooring and replacing it with a new bottom which if satisfactory will be extended next year.

No Records

A startling revelation cropped up as a result of a letter from the American Nepheline Co., expressing a desire to purchase lot No. 2 beside their present holdings at the dock. Councillors checking on position of this lot discovered that records failed to show the company as owning any land there.

Reeve Scriver stated he believed the land had been sold and paid for and the deeds delivered for two lots yet Chief Samis, acting as assessor, stated records showed no holdings and hence the company had not been assessed or taxed. Ownership apparently still resting with the village.

Councillors Doubt and Grant suggested a survey be made to see where the village stands—and this may also apply to several other lots.

Chief Samis reported on case of theft, that of a pair of skates, as the only case for the month.

A bylaw was passed to provide for an election of a reeve, council, public school trustees, and Hydro Electric commissioners with the appointment of E. H. Northey as returning officer, and in Ward 1, Ellis Simpson and Charles Armstrong as deputy returning officer and poll clerk; Ward 2, Fred Moon and Fred Remnant as D.R.A. and poll clerk.

Nominations will be held on Friday, December 22 at the town hall from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Election day, January 1.

Clerk Northey reported that of $26,639.27 taxes, $24,678.55 had been collected to date.

Accounts Paid

WESTWOOD, Dec. 15—(ENS)).—The Christmas meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Westwood United Church was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William Morris. In the absence of the president, Mrs. H. Neilson took charge of the business session.

A beautiful candle-lighting ceremony was conducted by Mrs. Morris, the theme of which was "A Canadian Friendship Service." The program was interspersed with the singing of Christmas carols, and a picture of the "Madonna and Child" hung above the "worship centre."

Two piano solos were played by Mrs. J. Sargent.

and the extent to which it will be harmonized with United States ideals of world co-operation.

Retiring Senator Guy Gillette (Dem.—Iowa) has demanded a restatement and a restoration of the declarations of the Atlantic Charter, and adherence to those declarations by the big powers as the price of further American co-operation in world peace organization.

The situation emphasizes the necessity for an early meeting between President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin — a meeting which no doubt is being arranged.

At this conference it is expected that the leaders will, in addition to planning further war strategy which has been the dominant purpose of previous meetings, spend considerable time on the diplomatic and post-war problems which will require the same degree of co-operation, and give and take, as have the demands of the war emergency.

Feed Supply Far From Plentiful Says Hastings Representative

Since farmers had to round up their stock from the fields and lead them into winter quarters many stable are overcrowded, according to the Hastings county report to the Ontario Department of Agriculure.

Supplies of feel "are not too plentiful," water is scarce, roads are filled with snow, and the whole rural picture in southern Ontario has undergone a complete axial change. Northumberland says there is a heavy holding of all live stock, "but roughage supplies are sufficient on most farms and feed dealers report a surprising purchase of grains for hogs and chickens in view of good grain crops during the season. Recent auction sales indicate firmer prices."

Muskoka says prices offered for horses are extremely low. "There are indications that the feed situation may cause concern before Spring." Supplies of hay are being picked up at $17-$18 a ton loose and at the barn.

Carleton office of the Department has forty applications listed for yearly farm help. Two days of poultry sales took eighty or more tons of chickens and other fowl from the county. "Very few turkeys were sold."

Renfrew reports turkeys "very scarce." The Eganville poultry pool reports 76 tons of poultry sold to the end of last week.

Here's a brand new one: "Stormont farmer are complaining about having to take considerable quantity of flour with every purchase of bran or shorts, and it is a problem to know what to do with the flour when they have to buy it. It does seem too bad that good bread flour should be lying around the hog pens and being fed to cattle to try and get rid of it."

One glimpse at western Ontario, Oxford, for instance: "Market conditions are good for both pure and grade cattle, and prices for cattle close to freshening remain strong. Little pigs are selling at $6 to $8. There is an ample supply of rough food of good quality and more than the usual supply of small seeds has been harvested. The acreage of ear corn is pretty well harvested, and for the most part the yield is good, selling at $25 to $30 the ton. There has been quite a movement of surplus farm labor into the city for work in the munitions plants.

Rents Very Low

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 15—(CP).—Londoners, accustomed to paying fairly high rents, were surprised Wednesday to learn that the highest rent for a house in the town of Parkhill, 25 miles northeast of here, is $18 a month and that some rent for as little as $4 monthly. The information came out of Wednesday's hearings at the courthouse of appeals against equalized assessment of Middlesex county.

Bruce (Bun) Armstrong Sees Huns Shoot Peasant

WITH THE R.C.A.F. OVERSEAS, Dec. 15—(CP)—When FO. Bruce (Bunny) Armstrong reaches his Peterborough home one day soon he'll bring with him, to relate to his parents, wife and young daughter, a story of adventure equalled by few Canadians in the R.C.A.F.

Among his recollections:

A parachute descent to safety from a blazing bomber; guerilla warfare with the French Maquis; a shoulder-to-shoulder evening with German soldiers in a Belgium public house; the brutal shooting by a member of the Gestapo of a French peasant who merely had waved at a low-flying American aircraft.

Armstrong, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Armstrong, live at 111 Farnham avenue, Toronto, was navigator of a four-engined bomber which was "jumped" by two German night fighters as it was on a softening-up job at a German airdrome in France last May.

Bomber On Fire

In the running fight which followed, one German plane was shot down, but the second fighter raked the Lancaster's fuselage with seven cannon shells, killing the mid-upper gunner and causing the bomber to burst into flames.

The bomber's pilot, WO. Tip O'-Neill of Windsor, Ont., struggled with the aircraft to maintain altitude so his crew could bail out, stayed at his position until he was unable to free himself, and went down with his craft.

Armstrong recalls strapping on his parachute and struggling toward the escape hatch. His next recollection is of being moved from the branches of a tree in which he had landed to a farmer's house, where a French doctor diagnosed his injuries as concussion, severe lacerations, a sprained back and a badly injured eye.

Joined Maquis

He met the local leader and joined the Maquis band when his physical condition improved.

"Our job consisted principally of sabotaging German supply lines" Armstrong said. "We would go out in small groups at night and hide in the bushes alongside a road over which German convoys travelled. When the Hun came along we would toss a few grenades, blaze away with our guns and then fade into the darkness."

After D-Day the Maquis moved him to Belgium, where he was put in touch with Patriots who were making life unpleasant for the Jerries. It was while he was quartered at a private house in a small town that he met German soldiers in the local pub.

"The average German soldier hasn't much on the ball, mentally," Armstrong said. "But we developed a healthy respect for the Gestapo, the SS. boys and the Hitler Youth These young fellows are fanatics—that's the only way you can describe them. They're full of Hitler and to them, killing is part of living." The cold-blooded shooting he witnessed shook him. "All that peasant did was wave at an American plane, and the Gestapo man shot him the way we'd kill a fly—and with less compunction."

Armstrong's most amusing experience was his presence at a meeting between three German soldiers and some Maquis. After a long and excited discussion the Germans surrendered their arms and deserted, convinced that their position was hopeless in view of the swift American Army advance.

Dental Survey Reveals Teeth Of City Children Are Better

Dr. S. J. Graham, school dental officer, in his report to the Board of Education on Thursday night, made a comparison between the two schools in North Monaghan and the city schools in regard to the condition of the teeth of the children. Dr. Graham said in his report that to the best of his knowledge there had been no previous dental inspections in May's and Confederation Schools, while in the city the work has been going on for many years.

Completion of the survey revealed in the city schools, including Parkhill School, a tooth defect of 1.8 per child, while in May's and Confederation Schools it was 3.5. Loss of permanent teeth per 100 children in the city is 3.1, while in the other two schools 11.8.

"The ratio in the loss of permanent teeth of almost 4 to 1 is indicative of the relative oral conditions in the two areas and this comparison is even more significant in the light of the fact that at May's and Confederation the classes only range up to and include the Sixth Grade. It is reasonable to assume that Grade Seven and Eight pupils would have made the showing worse at these two schools; but instead these children have been absorbed by the city and the findings included in the figures for the city schools.

"Doubtless it is this transfer of children to the city schools that has caused the poorer showing at the Prince of Wales, where the loss of teeth was 5.8 per hundred as compared to 1.2 per hundred at Queen Mary School, which has the best record."

Dr. Graham also submitted a complete survey of Confederation, May's and King Edward Schools. At Confederation 75 per cent were found requiring treatment, at May's 77.3, and at King Edward 59.2 per cent.

Dr. L. E. Mylks, school doctor, reported 465 complete physical examinations, with 193 parents present; 6 special examinations; children showing defects totalled 94, and children for observation 4. Classification of the defects were vision 3, eye 2, ear 2, malnutrition 1. heart 4, and tonsils 82.

The school nurses reported 1,374 classroom inspections, 87 exclusions for various causes, 214 minor accidents, 669 vision tests, and 396 home visits.

GORE'S LANDING, Dec. 15 — (ENS). — The Farm Radio Forum Harwood-Gore's Landing met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cheyne. The cold weather and snowstorm prevented a good attendance and only 13 were present.

St. Paul's Choir Enjoys Party

The choir of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church has many Christmases exchanged gifts, the women with the men—some years with toys, other years with dainty and useful gifts. On Thursday evening, the choristers again followed the Yuletide custom of exchange, and following a rehearsal of Christmas music for the Sunday services for the balance of this year, the choir adjourned to the Sunday School Hall.

A tree had been illuminated, and added a bright spot to the platform. Games were numerous, and under the guidance of President Edna Johnston were enjoyed by the groups called upon, and those who "just watched." A committee of Mrs. Bruce Munro, Mrs. L. R. Mitchell, Mrs. Helen Cuthbertson, and Jimmy McBride handed out peanuts to the winners of the various events and later looked after a bountiful lunch. The gifts were used as the place cards, and during the proceedings Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Chenhall were recipients of gifts from the choir members. Rev. Samuel Johnston, the recently inducted minister of St. Paul's, and Mrs. Johnston, were also remembered with gifts.

A happy intermission came when Mrs. A. A. McIntyre, president of the Ladies' Aid Society, presented a cheque to the choir for their Gown Fund. Thanks were returned to all who had made the evening so enjoyable.

Murray St. Choir Has Yule Party

The annual Christmas party of the Murray St. Baptist Church choir was held Thursday night following their regular practice. Games were played under the direction of Miss Margaret Eastwood and Stan Northrop, choir leader, and then presents were distributed from a gaily decorated Christmas tree by Mrs. G. M. Stenton as Mrs. Santa Claus.

During the evening a presentation was made of a crystal vase to Mrs. Andrew R. Kusnier (nee Jerry Campbell) and sandwiches and cake were served. The refreshments were convened by Miss Barbara Pearson and Mrs. Howard Quinn. At the conclusion of the party, Miss Marjorie Stenton, president, thanked everyone who took part.

Choir Honors Mrs. S. Laing

In recognition and appreciation of her 13 years' service with the choir of St. Andrew's United Church, Mrs. Dorothy Laing was honored by the presentation of six cut glass tumblers as a mark of esteem from the choir, as a social meeting following the regular practice Thursday evening.

Mrs. Laing is leaving Peterborough to live with her parents in Midland. Her husband, Flight Lieut. Stuart Laing, who has served in the Far East for more than three years, is coming home to Canada soon. E. Humpage, president of the choir, spoke of her faithful service, and R. B. Harle and Dr. E. W. Young also spoke in appreciation of her work in the choir. Miss M. Harris made the presentation.

Mrs. R. B. Harle was in charge of the serving of refreshments, assisted by Misses M. Harris and D. Heffernan.

Army Auxiliary Elects Mrs. B. D. Hall, President

Excellent reports of a year of great activity were presented, and Mrs. B. D. Hall elected president at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Active Army Auxiliary Thursday evening in the YWCA.

Mrs. W. Stevenson presided for the election which resulted as follows: Honorary President, Mrs. J. A. Dewart; President, Mrs. B. D. Hall; First Vice-President, Mrs. J. Turnbull; Second Vice-President, Mrs. A. S. McRae; Recording Secretary, Mrs. E. Haley; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. D. Loomis; Press Secretary, Mrs. K. Kingston; assistant, Mrs. D. T. Diplock; Treasurer, Mrs. Max Clarke; assistant, Mrs. G. H. Moore.

Various committee conveners are: Box Committee, Mrs. R. Bolton, assistant Mrs. F. J. Mason; Knitting, Mrs. H. Mason, assistant Miss A. Heideman; Welfare, Mrs. F. H. Cox; Soldiers' Letters Mrs. J. Duncan, assistant Mrs. L. A. Craig; Telephone, Mrs. L. E. Tompkins; Social, Miss J. Tompkins, assistant Mrs. G. McMeekan; N.C.O. representatives, Mrs. A. Pink and Mrs. A. Wilson; representative to the Local Council of Women, Miss M. Stevenson; Program, Mrs. J. Morley, assistant Mrs. W. Ovens.

Mrs. D. T. Diplock, recording secretary, submitted a splendid detailed report of the year's activities, and short reports were given by the press convener, Mrs. K. Kingston, and the social convener, Mrs. J. Morley. The visiting committee made 283 calls on next-of-kin of recent casualties during the year, as reported by Mrs. B. D. Hall. Mrs. J. Duncan's report showed 185 letters and airgraphs sent to wounded and hospitalized soldiers during the year. A total of $150 was spent on wool, in the account given by Mrs. H. Mason, and 259 articles were sent overseas, with 28 now on hand.

Change Constitution.

Miss Ann Heideman brought two recommendations from the nominating committee, which were unanimously adopted by the meeting as follows: That an amendment be made to the constitution, to permit others than those representing commissioned officers to hold office in the Auxiliary; and an amendment be made to the constitution to form the additional office of honorary president.

Mrs. J. A. Dewart, retiring president, expressed her appreciation of the wonderful cooperation she had enjoyed during her two-year term of office. She said that the principle of the Auxiliary was the welfare of the troops both overseas and in Canada, and, in addition, the improvement of the morale of members, by contact with women similarly situated. The interchange of news, and discussions of common problems, often serve to allay minor worries, such as lack of mail, she went on. Stressing the necessity to keep the interest of the Auxiliary high, she urged members not to become indifferent to the organization, but to give their full support to the new president, and to enlarge their membership, which is open to all wives, mothers and sisters, and interested friends, of Peterborough men on active service in the Army.

One thousand four hundred and eighteen Christmas boxes was the greatly increased total reported by Mrs. James Turnbull, as sent to active service men and women overseas and in Canada. Mrs. Turnbull also stated that 220 army names and addresses of men stationed in Ontario had also been received. However, only 75 boxes remained, and since there were not enough to be sent to all, they decided to reserve these boxes for wounded and hospitalized men. Mrs. Diplock told of 212 replied received to date from service personnel who had already received their boxes.

Mrs. Dewart commented on the success of the Christmas entertainment given by the Citizens' Co-ordinating Committee for all active servicemen's children. More than 1,000 children and mothers were present, and treats were distributed during the afternoon. Later, Santa Claus appeared to give oranges, apples and toys to the kiddies. Miss Margaret Stevenson gave a detailed report of the recent meeting of the Local Council of Women, when Lieut. Muriel Robertson was guest speaker. Monthly reports included Mrs. Duncan's account that cigarettes and airgraphs had been sent to five men wounded and hospitalized, and two calls were reported for the month.

The next meeting will be held Wednesday, January 10, at three o'clock in the Armouries.

With The Girl Guides

St. Andrew's Brownie Pack had their first enrolment ceremony of the season Wednesday evening with eight "Tweenies" receiving their Brownie Pins from Brown Owl. These new Brownies are: Ann Corner; Shirley Dobson; Ann Lancaster; Marilyn Lister; Florence Miller; LaFerne Mitchell; Lorraine Paddock and June Skitch.

St. Andrew's Guides held a Christmas Party on Wednesday evening, which the Guides all agreed was the "best party yet." In a gaily decorated room the Guides first enjoyed a Pot Luck Supper, followed by games and contests. Highlight of the evening was the presentation of gifts, which were piled around a small Christmas tree. The Guides also presented their Captain with a cup and saucer.

All the Guides and Brownies are reminded of the Carol Service to be held in the Collegiate Auditorium on Thursday evening, December 21. A good turn-out of Guides and Brownies, in full uniform, is desired. They are to meet at the Collegiate at 7 o'clock. The service will be over by 9 o'clock, at the latest, so the Brownies will not be out too late.

DOROTHY DIX

WHY SHOULD MEN MARRY?

Outside of Love, There Are Sundry Advantages That Accrue to a Man for Having a Wife

DEAR MISS DIX—Why should men marry? A bachelor can have all the feminine companionship he desires. He can have every physical comfort. He can have his house run by a housekeeper, have all his money to spend on himself and be able to come and go as he pleases, without having anyone to keep tab on him. What's the good of a wife, anyway?

T. M.

A Bachelor Stands Alone

ANSWER—Well, brother, leaving out of the discussion the matter of love and the desire for a mate, which are the cosmic urge that drives most men into matrimony, there are various and sundry other advantages will accrue to a man from having a wife.

First, a wife is a perfect alibi for a man. If a married man goes bankrupt, he doesn't admit that it was because he was lacking in industry and thrift and business sagacity. Not at all. He says he was ruined by his wife's extravagance. If a married man is a drunkard, he doesn't confess that it is because he is a poor weakling, but cries out that his wife drove him to drink.

If a man forsakes his wife and children, he excuses himself by saying that it was his wife's fault in getting middle-aged and fat and losing her charm for him. But the poor bachelor has to stand alone and assume his own responsibilities, and his sins are on his own head.

Then, a wife is a safety valve for a man's nerves and temper that he dare not vent upon his employer or his clients or his customers. Doubtless the reason that more bachelors have nervous prostration than married men is that they have nowhere to blow up safely.

A wife is almost indespensable as a social buffer. A bachelor has to do all of his own lying. The married man makes his wife do all of his. A wife writes the letters of congratulation and condolence, remembers birthdays and keeps up a man's family and social connections.

Oh, a wife is good for a lot of things. She is good to help a man make money and for something to spend money on. She is good to make a home and rear children. She is good as a companion and a friend. She is good as a nurse when he is sick and a comforter when he is in trouble. Taking it all in all, she is a handy thing to have around the house.

Selfish Father Urges Marriage

DEAR MISS DIX—I have a beautiful sister who is holding down a very responsible position. A rich old man wants to marry her, but she hates him. However, my father is an invalid and he insists on my sister marrying this man so he can be given better care than my sister can afford to give him on the money she makes. What should she do?

WORRIED.

ANSWER—When a girl works to support her parents, she has done everything that filial duty demands of her, and your father has no right to try to coerce her into making a marriage by which he will be the sole gainer.

If your sister marries the man she hates, she will ruin her life, for no fate is more intolerable than that of being tied to an old man who is repulsive to her physically, who bores her mentally, and with whom she has nothing in common. Sooner or later such a disgruntled, heart-hungry young wife is sure to meet some youngster of her own age and fall in love with him.

Love is the only thing that makes marriage endurable, and cruel and selfish is the father who tries to force his daughter into a loveless union.

DEAR MISS DIX — Will you please give me your opinion of wearing mourning? I have recently lost my husband, whom I adored, and I am so depressed that I think I will go mad if I am compelled to wear black.

UNHAPPY WIDOW

ANSWER—Personally, I have always been very much opposed to the wearing of mourning. I am opposed to it because of the mental effect it has upon the wearer and upon all beholders. And I am opposed to it on economic grounds. For the rich, of course, the cost does not matter, but for poor people and those in moderate circumstances the convention that forces them to cast aside a whole wardrobe of wearable clothes and buy new ones works a great hardship.

And, after all, what is the good of it? If we are really bereaved; if we are really bowed down in sorrow by the death of a member of our family, we need no gloomy black dress as a symbol of our grief.

War Charities Receive $325

A total of $325 in donations was voted by members of the 57th Regiment Chapter, I. O. D. E., at their regular meeting Thursday afternoon in the Armouries. The following funds will receive donations: Cigarette Fund, $100; Blanket Fund, $50; Seamen's Sweaters, $100; Prisoners of War Fund, $50; War Guests $25.

One hundred and twenty-two visits to the hospital during the past two months were reported by Mrs. J. Black. Members decided to send Christmas plants to shut-in members of the Chapter and a letter was read, from the teacher of the adopted school, and a large Christmas parcel has been sent to the pupils. A large basket, containing a 12-pound Christmas cake, candy, and an abundance of fresh fruit, as well as games and records, has been sent to the Chapter's adopted ship.

Lieut. Muriel Robertson, C. W. A. C., briefly addressed the meeting on the urgent need for 5,000 more girls for the Canadian Women's Army Corps.

Minister Warns Against Race Prejudice

Mrs. George Aitchison, George street, was hostess Thursday afternoon to the W.C.T.U. Christmas was the dominant note in the program, especially in the music and devotional period.

Mrs. E. Wand, acting president, was in the chair and opened the service with a series of Christmas carols. St. Luke's version of the Christmas story was read by Mrs. A. H. Campbell, who also led in a meditation on the same theme. Mrs. W. K. Sloane offered prayer for the temperance cause. Brief reports were received including that by Mrs. Bert Manning on the Christmas box for Curve Lake, and by Mrs. Ed. Manning, who stressed Miss Might's appreciation for kind attentions while ill. Mrs. W. H. Morton reported for peace and international relations, and Mrs. H. T. Rehill gave the treasurer's report.

A humorous reading 'Penned and Pilfered' by Mrs. J. H. Rowe was enjoyed and was followed by a solo, 'Thou Dids't Leave Thy Throne' by Mrs. George Shaw, accompanied by Mrs. F. Dawson.

The guest speaker, Rev. J. R. Cooper, assistant pastor of George Street United church, was introduced by Mrs. Morton. Dr. Cooper spoke on 'The Races of Mankind.' "This war," he said, "has brought home to us the fact that the whole world has been made one neighborhood and our neighbors to-day are peoples of all the races of the earth. Though all peoples have a common origin, they have been classified with three primary races, the Caucasian or white race, the Mongolian or yellow race, ond the Negroid, black. Science has proved that there is no such thing as race superiority. Differences are due to surroundings, opportunities, customs and inheritance, he declared. Character has nothing to do with race for all races have made their contribution to human knowledge. Training is the chief factor in moulding youth, whether for war, as in Germany and Japan, or for peace. The speaker referred to Hitler's absurd theory of race superiority responsible for so much cruelty and deplored the feeling of so much race prejudice in Canada.

The piano duets 'Waves of the Ocean' and 'Warblers of the Forest' by Mrs. McNeal and Mrs. Moore, concluded the program.

Mrs. A. J. Throop voiced the thanks to the hostess and those assisting with the program. Refreshments were served by the hostess and committee.

Onward Class Elects Officers

Roberts.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, December 16

A DIFFICULT and dangerous day if portended by the ruling planets, in adverse aspects. A strong undercurrent of treachery, perfidy and double dealing is noted, and may call for shrewdness, sacacity, and conservatism if such duplicity is to be valiantly met and vanquished. Possibly an open and above-board exposure of such illicit intent may prove profitable. There are noted several tokens of joy, happiness and experiences, based upon idealism, romance and rare culture. Creative art of a solid and serious nature is highly stimulated or inspired.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be engulfed in a contradictory year in which materialistic or sordid affairs are subject to sordid and sinister experiences, while mystical, cultural and all forms of rare expression are under a benign and inspiring vibration. It would be wise to seriously attack all higher artistic skills and talents. Love, romance and strange adventure are possible. But be alert to chicanery, duplicity, and undercurrents in legal matters, business or property affairs, in which elders may hold part. Emotional, idealistic and spiritual aspiration may prove compensatory for loss and sorrow.

A child born on this day may have a life of strange or singular experiences, with skills and talents of exceptional quality, compensating for the more material adversities and treacheries.

Movie Actress Lupe Velez Takes Own Life

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Dec. 15. —(AP).—Lively Lupe Velez, whose gay and excitable spirit made her one of filmdom's most colorful figures, is dead.

Her suicide, while four months pregnant, was as spectacular as her meteoric rise from a 15-year-old shopgirl in Mexico to a famous movie actress.

The 34-year-old actress was found dead in her lavishly-furnished home yesterday. An overdose of a hypnotic drug was ascribed by the examining physician as the probable cause of death. Police said they believed the overdose was deliberate.

Tucked into the pillow case of Lupe's silk-sheeted bed were two notes, in her handwriting, that indicated premeditation and the motive for her death.

One, addressed only to Harald, but which police said was for Harald Ramond-Maresch, French actor known in Hollywood as Harold Ramond, said:

"May God forgive you and forgive me, too, but I prefer to take my own life away and our baby's before I bring him with same, or killing (sic) him. How could you, Harald, fake such great love for me and our baby when all the time you didn't want us? I see no other way out for me, so good-bye and good luck to you. Love, Lupe."

Capt. W. W. White of the Beverly Hills police department reported to the coroner's office that Miss Velez apparently had taken her own life.

Just A Joke

To Capt. White Ramond said:

"I told Lupe I would marry her if she was expecting an infant. I told her of my great love for her and begged her to marry me. She laughed and said she wasn't expecting a baby at all, that the whole thing was only a joke."

A short time ago Lupe gaily told reporters she was going to marry Ramond, formerly in the French Army, because "he's the only man who knows how to handle Lupe."

Then Lupe and Harald were said to have quarrelled over politics and she announced they were through and added that she was going on to New York and forget about romance.

An autopsy showed Lupe would have become a mother in five months.

To Lupe's secretary, Mrs. Beulah Kinder, whom she addressed as "my dear friend," she left a note saying: "You and only you know the facts for the reason I am taking my life. May God forgive me and don't think bad of me... So goodby and try to forgive me..."

The former sweetheart of many of filmdom's great, including the late John Gilbert, Arturo de Cordoba, Producer Winfield Sheehan and Gary Cooper, had said she was tired of everything. Her only marriage to Johnny (Tarzan) Weismuller, onetime Olympic swimming star, ended with divorce.

Lupe, who was christened Guadalupe Villalobos Velez in San Luis Potosi, Mexico, was under a $4,000-a-week personal appearance contract and had another for radio broadcasts.

They Hold Reins

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Dec. 15 — (AP). — In answer to the question, "How can a woman be handled with intelligence?" Novelist John Erskine told an audience here: "That question will never come up for any man; she will always control him."

Coal Gas Menace

TORONTO, Dec. 15 — (CP). — Mrs. John Horton of suburban Weston, and her daughters Mary 22 and Rebecca 18, narrowly escaped death from coal gas fumes in their home yesterday, police said. A neighbor who saw Mrs. Horton help one daughter out the front door, carried out the second girl. Both daughters were unconscious.

California Oranges Come For Christmas

An ample supply of California navel oranges are in sight for the Christmas-New Year's season. Harley Weir of Canada Packers told the Examiner to-day. "We have a carload arriving this week-end, and the trade generally should have sufficient stock for local needs if the public continues to make ordinary purchases even for the holiday. Another car will be in after Christmas, so there is no need of loading up before the holiday as if the supply was going to run short."

The railway tie-up in Toronto has been affecting local arrivals of fruit and vegetables from the Toronto markets, but supplies are beginning to move again in their usual order, and Peterborough should have enough for usual requirements as regular movement from the wholesale markets returns.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

MAJOR 4-4 USUALLY BEST

AMONG various more or less normal situations felt out during the auction, about the most welcome to be chosen for the declaration is a major suit in which you have four cards opposite your partner's four. That is true even if the suit is weak in both hands, with the opponents having more top strength than your side. And it is most emphatically true if either of you has a singleton or blank in some other suit.

North: ♠ J; ♥ Q 10 7 3; ♦ K 9 5; ♣ A K J 7 3
West: ♠ Q 8 7 5 2; ♥ K 6; ♦ 10 8 4 2; ♣ 10 6
East: ♠ K 10 6 3; ♥ A 9 4; ♦ Q 6 3; ♣ Q 4 2
South: ♠ A 9 4; ♥ J 8 5 2; ♦ A J 7; ♣ 9 8 5

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1♣ | Pass | 1♥ | Pass |
| 2♥ | Pass | 2NT | Pass |
| 3♥ | Pass | 3NT | |

West led his spade 5 to the K, the 10 came back and the A took the third trick. South saw that, if the club finesse would work, also the diamond finesse, he could pick up the additional eight tricks he needed. But the Q won the club J, and was followed by two more spades plus two tops in hearts, setting the contract three.

Whose fault was that? Was North to blame for not going on to 4-Hearts after South's 3-No Trumps, or was South to blame for bidding No Trumps either the first or his second time he did it?

If South knew North as a player who would not raise a singly bid suit, shown as his 1-Heart was, except with four trumps, he should have gone on in hearts instead of bidding No Trumps at all. If he knew North as one who might raise him with only three headed by an honor, then his first bid of 2-No Trumps was sound for protective purposes. But after North shifted to hearts a second time with 3-Hearts, his No Trump bid was very bad indeed.

North can not be blamed for then going to 3-No Trumps, for, as he stated, there was no such thing as a sound bid for South's 3-No Trumps after repeated support of the major suit unless South had made a mistake the first time and bid on only three cards.

It happens, of course, that 4-Hearts is makeable, with the loss of only two tricks in trumps and one in clubs.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ J 9 8; ♥ A 8 4; ♦ 9 8 6 4 3; ♣ 7 2
West: ♠ 7 5 3; ♥ J 10 5; ♦ 5 2; ♣ Q 9 6 4 3
East: ♠ A 6 4; ♥ Q 9 7 3; ♦ Q J 10; ♣ K J 5
South: ♠ K Q 10 2; ♥ K 6 2; ♦ A K 7; ♣ A 10 8

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

After West leads the club 4 to the K and South also holds up on the J, how should the defense play to set his 3-No Trumps?

to be fixed on every article, Regional O.P.A. Administrator Daniel P. Woolley announced. Such prices as $195 for an electric train and $60 for a pair of garbage cans prompted the O.P.A. to step in, he said.

LEADS HEADHUNTERS—Ursula Graham Bower, above, 30-year-old wealthy British woman, whose dramatic story is revealed from Burma, India. Thousands of miles from her native London, Miss Bower, leading fierce head-hunting tribesmen of the Naga Hills against the Japs, set up a screen of observation posts and warning system of beacons and native runners so that the British 14th Army in Burma would know in advance the direction and time of Japanese raids toward the vital Assam railway running into northeast India.

Bulgars Supply Arms To Rebel Greek Forces

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—The Rome radio said that a "serious diplomatic incident" had arisen between the Greek Government of Premier George Papandeou and the Bulgarian Government.

"The Greek premier has sent a note to the Allied Armistice Commission in Sofia," the domestic broadcast said, "protesting against the Bulgarians supplying arms to rebel forces in Macedonia."

The broadcast was reported by the Federal Communications Commission.

Put Nazi Prisoners To Work In Britain

LONDON, Dec. 15—(CP)—German prisoners of war are to be farmed out for work in rural England without guards.

"If prisoners of war are employed in small parties with a military guard the requirements in manpower will render such labor uneconomical," the Ministry of Information said Thursday. "They will not be allowed any freedom or privileges and will be confined to their wised camps when not at work."

Oshawa Airman Is Killed At Moncton

MONCTON, N.B., Dec. 15—(CP)—LAC. A. H. Robinson of Oshawa, Ont., was killed at the R.C.A.F. station here Wednesday when he came in contact with a high voltage power line, it was announced today. LAC. # Halt Furniture Sale At Manville Mansion

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y., Dec. 15.—(AP).—A court order halting the auction sale of furnishings from his 29-room mansion left Thomas F. Manville, Jr., wealthy survivor of seven marriages, unperturbed today.

Manville's servant problem occasioned the sale.

"Anything the office of price administration does is all right with me," the white-haired asbestos fortune heir declared. "It would suit me fine if the O.P.A. would ration blondes."

The order requires a ceiling price

200 Men Home From Italy Express Interesting Views

By DOUG HOW—Canadian Press War Correspondent

MONTREAL, Dec. 16—(CP).—There are aboard this ship 200 and more Canadians going home for the first Christmas in six years. With the exception of those they have left behind, no other Canadians in history have given in such abundance of their years in the service of their country away from their country.

They are going back for a month's leave to a nation transformed in many ways from the nation they knew. They know that. They know there will be a lot of things to get used to in this new Canada. But this is no attempt to introduce Canada to them. This is an attempt to introduce them to Canada.

In five years overseas, their thoughts have changed, hardened, strengthened, reacted. Over some things they are bitter. Over some things they are proud, over others bewildered. This, then, is an attempt by one who has talked with them here and with their fellow '39ers—their name for themselves—in Italy to put the crux of some of their thoughts on paper. This is about their thoughts on:

Their leave—In the midst of a heavy, typical beefing siege, one corporal grinned "Don't let this fool you. Soldiers are happiest when they're beefing. We're sitting on top of the world right now." But these men temper their happiness with this qualification:

U.S. Doubling Poultry Order

The United States is doubling its poultry order with this country for 1945, from 25,000,000 pounds to 50,000,000, chiefly for the requirements of its fighting men Norman Schultz of Brantford said in the course of his talk at the poultry conference Friday afternoon at the Co-Op Hall.

Prospective export needs by Great Britain and the U.S.A. are assuring a continued strong market for 1945 at least.

Attendance at the conference which was arranged by the Ontario Department of Agriculture was around fifty of the leading poultry producers of this district. Tuesday's snowstorm prevented many others from coming in for the meetings Thursday and Friday, but those who did make the special effort against adverse weather effects were highly pleased with the practical features of the discussions by Mr. Schultz, Jack Fraser of Kemptville, and John Coulter of Peterborough Co-Operative.

One of the many aphorisms containing knowledge from much experience was Mr. Fraser's remark that there are no cures for poultry diseases. There may be some aids, temporary helps and so on, but the only certain means of keeping flocks healthy was to prevent disease from reaching them and their colonies.

2nd Conference Has Been Arranged

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP)—A second Churchill - Roosevelt-Stalin conference at last has been arranged—for late January or early February.

Dictating the need for it were new demands on both sides of the Atlantic for consultations at top levels and grave concern over divergent courses of Allied diplomacy.

The principal factor governing the time apparently is President Roosevelt's schedule. It falls for a fourth-term inauguration Jan. 20. The meeting will be held soon thereafter unless world events force a change in plans. The place is expected to be somewhere outside the United States.

Farm Feed Picture Rosy

Spring Grains Show Substantial Gains

OTTAWA, Dec. 16—(CP)—Full feed bins today were like money in bank for thousands of Canadian farmers.

Department records showed today that 1944 had been a good, if not a bumper year for feed, and the reserves on most farms have been built up to the point where the demands of Canada and her Allies for meats and dairy products probably can be met for a year or more.

Ontario feed production was hard hit last year. This province is a major producer of dairy products, in keen demand both at home and among Allied nations. The present year was not promising at the start but the final records of production showed good results.

Wheat production in Ontario was 21,679,000 bushels, a gain of 56 per cent over 1943; oats, 67,000,000 bushels, up 92 per cent; barley, 11,200,000 bushels, up 74 per cent and mixed grains 40,740,000 bushels, up more than 100 per cent.

Officials said the improved Ontario feed picture would ease what had been a growing strain on feed supplies in the west. From Oct. 31, 1941 to Oct. 31, 1944, the movement of grains for feed to the east under the Federal Government free freight policy has totalled nearly 58,000,000 bushels of wheat; oats, 90,000,000 bushels; barley 67,500,000; rye, 1,435,000; screenings, 152,000 tons and millfeeds, 1,780,000 hundredweight.

Joyful Scene As 446 Return Home

30-Day Leave For Veterans Away Five Years

By The Canadian Press.

Personnel of the armed services—Army men who have been overseas for more than five years, airmen who have completed tours of operations, and a few members of the Royal Canadian Navy—have arrived home in Canada on furlough—a furlough that means for many of them that they will be spending their first Christmas at home since the war started.

The "five-year" men group—446 strong—was made up 246 men having served on the western European front and 200 having fought in Italy.

Canadian Army Provost Corps men who were assigned to patrol crowds awaiting the first arrivals at Bonaventure Station in Montreal last night were no match for the impatient crowd of wives and children, mothers and fathers, who waited to greet their loved ones.

When the first group of Army personnel paraded into the concourse of the station, the crowd broke through, jostled high-ranking Army officers, and began hugging and kissing their relatives, oblivious of the fact that many were watching them. Eyes were damp as tears of gladness rose. Elderly men retired to the edge of the crowd where they could furtively wipe their eyes.

Return to Battle.

Many of the men will return to the battlelines when their 30-day furlough is completed—a furlough awarded for "long and meritorious service." Some had fought with the Canadians in Sicily, Italy and France, and a few in all the major Canadian campaigns.

Firefighters Home

Maj. David Vivian Currie of Moose Jaw, Sask., and Owen Sound, Ont., and Maj. John Keefer Mahoney of New Westminster, B.C., both winners of the Victoria Cross, were among the arrivals. Members of the disbanded corps of firefighters in Britain, soldier-actors of the Army show, war corresponednts, nursing sisters, members of the C.W.A.C. and other branches of the service were also in the group.

About 400 British war brides of Canadian servicemen, some with young children, arrived to take up new homes in Canada. They were happy to reach Canada, for they waited four days in a crowded port city before embarking, sleeping five or six to one room.

Col. Max Meighen, son of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, was among the arrivals. A staff officer with the Ordnance Corps he is on leave after long service overseas.

CSM. Bruce Lefebvre of Cornwall, Ont., had seen service in Sicily, Italy, France, Belgium and Holland.

The Army personnel who arrived home were the lucky ones of the first contingent who drew from a box of ballots the ticket that entitled them to a month's leave at home. For many, it seemed too

Peterboro Gets 35 Per Cent Education Cost

TORONTO, Dec. 16. — Toronto, Hamilton, London, Windsor and Ottawa will receive a Government grant of 30 per cent of their respective education costs, under the terms of the Drew Government's sweeping revision of education financing. Copies of the regulations respecting the Legislative grants were mailed yesterday to all school boards, inspectors and principals of secondary schools.

The grant to school boards in municipalities of 10,000 population and under 100,000 is 35 per cent, and in municipalities of 5,000 and under 10,000 the contribution is 42 per cent. Municipalities with 2,500 population, but under 5,000, will receive 50 per cent. The Government will pay 60 per cent in communities under 2,500.

With the objective of establishing the greatest possible equality of educational opportunity throughout Ontario, the Government is stepping up its grant for rural public and separate schools. For schools in this category, in which the assessment per classroom is $80,000 or more, the Provincial contribution is 50 per cent of the approved cost of education. Where the assessment per classroom is $50,000 or more, but less than $80,000, the grant is 60 per cent. This is increased to 75 per cent where the assessment figure is $30,000 or more, but less than $50,000, and reaches the maximum of 90 per cent where it is less than $30,000.

Reds Drive Into West Slovakia Area

New Move Aimed To Open Road To Vienna

LONDON, Dec. 16 — (CP). — Striking into western Slovakia for the first time, Russian troops today pressed a bold offensive from captured Ipolysag (Sahy) Junction, attempting to smash open the roads to Vienna, 115 miles to the west, and at the same time trap German divisions to the east.

Ipolysag, on the Budapest-Bratislava-Vienna highway, was seized by Red Army vanguards which bridged the Ipoly River frontier from Hungary 34 miles northwest of beleaguered Budapest, Danube-straddling capital already two-thirds encircled by the Soviets.

Moscow announced that Ipolysag fell Thursday after a bitter all-night fight in which 800 Germans were killed. It is half a mile inside Slovakia. In taking it the Russians skirted the 2,700-foot Borzsony Mountains between the town and the big Danube River bend to the south.

German troops reeled back into Slovakia along a 125-mile front from Ipolysag eastward to Satoraljaujhely in the face of the increased tempo of the Russian drive.

Berlin reported the Russians also were attacking more heavily in the Debica-Tarnow area of southern Poland, and speculated these renewed thrusts may be the beginning of a northern envelopment movement against Slovakia as well as a winter offensive aimed at Krakow.

The surge northward from Hungary by 2nd Ukraine Army troops appeared likely to aid a fighting force of 25,000 free Czechoslovak troops.

Other Red Army troops skirted the northern Borzsony Mountains and reached positions leading downhill into the plains extending westward to Bratislava.

Moscow said the combined drives toward central and eastern Slovakia had swept through 31 more localities, among them the manganese centre of Szendro, 20 miles north of toppled Miskolc and 85 miles northeast of Budapest.

Germans Launch Bitter Attack On West Front

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Dec. 16—(AP)—Heavy guns of the Siegfried Line and a fresh enemy armored division brought up as reinforcement struck in savage reaction today against four U.S. 7th Army columns leading a new invasion of Germany along a 17-mile front just west of the Rhine.

Heavy fighting in the Bavarian Palatinate was reported as troops of the 45th, 79th and 103rd U. S. infantry divisions pressed onward toward the first pill-boxes of the Westwall, and American artillery answered in thundering duel with Siegfried Line cannon.

A long-drawn-out lull continued on the sodden, bleak northern part of the western front where the 1st Canadian and British 2nd armies have been engaged only in routine action for weeks.

The Canadians were fighting in the De Wyler forest area in Germany, just east of Nijmegen. To their right, the Britons head the west bank of the Meuse facing the Netherlands border bastion of Venlo.

Cross At 4 Places

Four crossings of the border were forged by Lt.-Gen. Patch's veterans, with the 79th division entering Germany at two points near Lauterbourg, a city only two miles from the Rhine.

But the 79th immediately ran into a stiff fight.

The German command pulled a Panzer division from another sector and flung it into battle to stop the threat to the chemical and industrial centres of Mannheim and Ludwigshafen 35 miles to the north.

Units of the 45th and 103rd Divisions crossed at points west of Wissembourg, 11 miles west of Lauterbourg, and were closing on that gateway city to Germany from northeastern Alsace.

Both these divisions apparently made deeper penetrations of Germany. The 45th advanced six miles Friday after opening its attack in the morning four miles south of the border.

Bore Into Siegfried

U.S. 3rd Army troops farther west again began boring through the serried Siegfried defences in the Dillingen and Saarlautern zones and gained up to 300 yards today. But German artillery drumfire increased. The Germans slammed 6,000 rounds into the Saarlautern area alone yesterday.

On the Duren front before Cologne, the U.S. 1st and 9th armies occupied or controlled 27 miles along the west bank of the Roer from Linch down to Bergstein.

Spitfire Pilots Face Great Odds

By MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE R.C.A.F. IN BELGIUM, Dec. 16 — (CP). — Canadian fighter pilots now on their second tour of operations are facing greater odds than ever before, they believe, since fighter casualties have been higher during the last few months than at any time since the Battle of Britain.

"The risk will become greater as we get on into Germany," said Sqdn. Ldr. Arthur Sager of Vancouver, commanding officer of a Spitfire squadron here.

"Spitfires were not intended to stand up against the flak and the guns we have to face now," he said. "The enemy's new planes are an unknown quantity too, as they probably don't know how to fly them yet."

At the same time the average age of fighter pilots in the R.C.A.F. squadrons appears to be rising. Where a couple of years ago the average age was 21 to 22 years, the men now appear to be around 25 years.

Although air training shortly will cease in Canada, fighter pilots who already had made an important contribution to the air war have returned to do second tours, and this is responsible for the rising average age.

A fighter pilot's tour of operational flying usually takes him from a year to 18 months to complete.

Terrific Sea And Air Battle Follows Latest Move 300 Japanese Planes Lost

3 Strong Beachheads Overrun At Dawn
Japanese Fleeing Inland
Guerillas Seize Airfields On Convoy Route

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Dec. 16 — (AP). — A 20-mile-long American warship convoy, moving 600 miles among enemy islands of the Central Philippines while carrier planes knocked out upwards of 300 Japanese aircraft, landed mechanized troops Friday on Mindoro within 155 miles of Manila, headquarters disclosed today.

They swarmed ashore "with little loss."

This boldest amphibious stroke of the Pacific war, unlocking the sea approaches to embattled China by crossing to the western side of the Archipelago from Leyte, was completed with ease but preparations were made for violent enemy reaction.

(Tokyo radio reported today, without Allied confirmation, that a violent sea and air battle already is raging off Mindoro.)

Three strong beachheads on Southern Mindoro were overrun at dawn Friday by 6th Army troops—greeted excitedly by Filipinos. The Japanese had fled inland under bombardment of destroyers and rocket ships.

Between that beachhead and the big American base on nearly-conquered Leyte, guerillas were disclosed today to have seized strategic airfields and ports on intervening Panay, Negros, Cebu and Bohol as well as a 125-mile stretch on coast on Northern Mindanao.

The guerillas, some of whom fought the losing battle of Bataan, did their work so well that the huge convoy moving south and west from Leyte was able to steam within sight of the coastlines of those islands.

"The operation has driven a corridor from East to West through the Philippine Archipelago, which is now definitely cut in two and will enable us to dominate the sea and air routes which reach to the China coast," some 900 miles away, Gen. MacArthur said.

Rocket-firing planes kept Luzon's 100 airfields, including the network around Manila, under attack night and day for more than 24 hours.

The carrier plane strikes throughout Luzon in support of the invasion devastated planes, fields and shipping.

At Pearl Harbor, Admiral Nimitz reported in a communique 224 Nipponese aircraft were knocked from the skies or wiped out aground and that 90 more which never got aloft were bombed and strafed.

MacArthur's disclosures concerning the guerillas lifted the veil on activities of Americans and Filipinos in progress since the early days of 1942.

On Mindanao, they have cleared the northern provinces of Lanao and Misamis Occidental, thus securing Iligan Bay.

On Bohol, just west of southern Leyte, they have cleared the Nipponese from all the island except the town of Tagbilarn on the southwest end.

On Cebu, they have driven the Japanese from the south end into the central sector and are playing havoc with communications there.

On Negros, all the south half is in guerilla hands except the town of Dumaguette on the southeast and it is flanked by the capture of Subutan and Luzuriga. They also hold Bais in the southeast, San Carlos in the northeast and Isabela in the central interior.

On Panay, they have captured Estrancia in the northeast, Zárraga and San Miguel in the southeast and Oatnongon in the southwest. They hald several vital airfields on Panay, Negros and Mindanao.

Canucks Cling To Toehold Along Naviglio

By WILLIAM BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC, Dec. 15 (Delayed)—(CP-Cable)—Having weathered 14 major armored counterattacks Wednesday and Thursday, Canadian units of the British 8th Army still were holding firm to their Naviglio canal bridgehead Thursday night.

The bridgehead was increased 400 yards in depth Wednesday night in fighting which saw 63 German prisoners taken at a net cost of four Canadian casualties in close action.

With the flanks brought forward somewhat so that the bridgehead assumed a semi-circular shape, it did not change despite the heaviest German attack of all, Thursday afternoon.

The Canadians had air cover on Thursday, considerably reducing enemy mortar fire although during the Germans counter-attacks this averaged about 100 bombs per locality every five minutes.

This bridgehead has become the Anzio of the Adriatic.

Men from New Brunswick and Eastern Ontario fought off 13 powerful thrusts Wednesday, some two-pronged and all supported by artillery strongly located slightly behind the enemy's left flank in the area of Bagnacavallo, two miles to the southeast. Some ground was given at times, but the Canadians reorganized well west of the Naviglio's bank from which position they refused to budge an inch.

Churchill Trying To Avert Third War

Believes Fatal Quarrel Might Follow Opposition To Russian Demands

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Prime Minister Churchill's virtual abandonment of the Polish government in London, and his agreement that Moscow is entitled to the territory it claims in Eastern Poland, of course means many things to many people, but as I see it the main significance of his gesture to Russia lies in this declaration:

The world security organization to prevent future wars "will be fatally ruptured by a quarrel between any of the three most powerful empires which compose the grand alliance of the United Nations" — meaning Britain, Russia and the United States.

The natural inference from this statement is that the fatal quarrel might develop if the Anglo-American allies opposed Russia's taking over Eastern Poland.

Thus Marshal Stalin at once gets approval of his claims and gains fresh recognition of Russia's vast and steadily-expanding influence in Europe.

No Other Way.

Actually Mr. Churchill's move doesn't alter the fact that the question of Eastern Poland was settled months ago, although the Polish government in London has stuck to its claims. To put it bluntly it was settled when Moscow said it was going to retain the territory in question. There would be only one way to dispute this decision effectively, and that would be by war.

While Mr. Churchill has abandoned the Polish government in London, I don't take this as meaning that he has abandoned Poland.

On the contrary he seems prepared to support a Polish government which will recognize the inevitable realistically and enter friendly negotiations with Moscow for the rebuilding of Poland by the annexation of part of German East Prussia and a slice of Eastern Germany proper. And while one quite understands the feelings of the Poles about losing cherished territory, it looks as though the lands which the Poles will get in exchange will be intrinsically far more valuable than the ones lost.

Some observers have inclined to the view that Mr. Churchill has thrown the Atlantic Charter overboard in making this stand. I doubt whether the Prime Minister will agree that he has done anything of the sort. That charter is a vital document for, as I pointed out yesterday, many ations have pinned their faith to this declaration which, as I understand it, was given Mr. Stalin's blessings at the conference of the big three at Teheran.

Passing time, however, has made it clear that the charter will need some powerful interpreting to make it meet all the difficulties which have arisen since it was created.

Get Croix de Guerre For Partisan Action

LONDON, Dec. 16.—(CP Cable.)—Scores of daring young French-speaking officers of the Canadian army parachuted into France before D-Day last June 6, to lead groups of the Maquis in special perilous tasks which the Allied High Command required to be performed before the main invasion blow was struck, it could be disclosed to-day.

Veterans of the Sicily and Italy campaigns—all volunteers— handpicked by inspection of their battle records, in some cases spent months in enemy-occupied territory.

Junior officers of the Canadian army often found themselves enjoying the rank of General among the Partisans and controlling military operations over wide stretches of the country.

Others carried out dangerous individual acts of sabotage of vital communications, bridges, factories and German defences.

Many of the parachutists were drawn from the Royal 22nd Regiment of Montreal.

A number of them to-day are back in Canada wearing the decoration of the Croix de Guerre Aves Palmes, given them by the French government.

People Clamor For Scotch, Imported Wine

"Crusade for a larger liquor store and a greater staff if you did want to do something worthwhile, we are doing the best we can and half of the people of Peterborough are clamoring for imported Scotch whiskey and wine when we haven't any," said Joe Dunkerley, liquor vendor, when a reporter barged in on him this morning.

"For three weeks I have been trying to get one bottle of imported wine for Christmas. We always serve it to visitors with Christmas cake, continuang an ancient and very agreeable custom, and it's always the same story—no imported wine. I want to know what the score is?" said the scribe.

This challenge to the efficiency of the liquor control board staff in Peterborough didn't soothe the manager who was trying to total a column of figures while the telephone rang almost continuously.

"The domestic wine is on sale this morning," he says into the telephone for about the fourth time in as many minutes then turned on the reporter.

48 Bottles

"You'd think to hear you talk we had gallons of imported wine here—well I'll show you"—and he did. According to the records the Peterborough liquor store has received a total of 48 bottles of imported (Australian) wine since November 29.

"What good is 48 bottles of wine in a city of more than 30,000 queried the newsman.

That's the quota so far—we may have more before Christmas" was the answer.

"What day," shot back the reporter.

"Why should I tell you—you can just take your chance with the rest. If you are here when it goes on the shelves you get your share, otherwise you don't. The last shipment lasted 20 minutes."

This was the sad analysis of the situation, so the reporter decided he'd switch to imported Scotch—Black and White, Johnny Dewars, Haig's Dimple, or any of the other super-super unavailable from the land of the Heather.

The phone jangled again—"Canadian wine on sale today," says Joe again, and the reporter recalled it used to go on sale Thursdays but figured he better stay away from minor entanglements and concentrate on Scotch.

"I could keep a secretary busy all day just answering telephone calls."

Getting back to the song of sorrow heard along main street, in factories and in offices, the reporter said "How is it Peterborough doesn't get more imported Scotch."

School Grants Total 25 Millions

TORONTO, Dec. 16—(CP)—The Ontario government's new system of school grants under which it assumes 50 per cent of the over-all cost of education in the province will cost $25,000,000 a year compared $8,000,000 now being paid annually in school grants, the Globe and Mail says today.

The paper says it has learned that buoyant revenues coupled with economics in all departments will provide most of the $17,000,000 needed to bridge the gap.

"It is reported on good authority that the government has already found $13,000,000 of the needed amount," the paper said. The remaining $4,000,000 might come from further tightening of the financial belt and there was a possibility the government might revise the amusement tax which was dropped several years ago. This tax netted $800,000 in its last year of operation but it is estimated it would produce much more under present conditions.

Seventy-five per cent of provincial revenues have been frozen under Dominion-Provincial agreement but in revenue-producing fields outside the agreement the province has had close to a record year, the Globe and Mail says.

west of Duren, there still were some German pockets, but these, dominated by U.S. guns were being mopped up. Fighter-bombers battered at German fortified towns and supply centres across the Roer.

Supreme headquarters said the 1st Army had buried 17,078 Germans since D-day.

Allied planes spotted heavy German transport movement in the Ruhr by road and rail, presumably indicating strong efforts to reinforce that great industrial area.

Patch's 7th Army became the sixth Allied army to break down a western door to German soil.

The 7th Army's attack was a major peril to the Germans, since a break-through in this sector could outflank Germans facing the 3rd Army on the Saar front.

In compelling the enemy command to move an armored division into the Palatinate, the 7th has already lightened the load of Allied armies pressing in elsewhere along a great arc.

The Germans in another countermeasure are reinforcing troops in the Alsace pocket around Colmar and counter-attacking in efforts to divert 7th Army elements from northern Alsace.

In the Bitche area of the 7th's border crossing, Germans still battling on French soil continued tought resistance, using Maginot Line forts to good effect. Here they have turned about the Maginot's disappearing guns which swing on revolving turrets.

The French 1st Army scored an additional small gain near Selestat, north of Colmar.

RINK CANCELLED

Some opposition from a tenant of Fleming Place for the use of the vacant area at Brock and Aylmer streets as a public open air rink this winter halted Alderman Curtis' preparations. "We had graded it and were ready to put in the water, when we were told of a complaint following the announcement that the city was to be given use of the property." Alderman Curtis told the Examiner today that the flooding of the public rinks had been briefly help up because of lack of depth of frost in the ground.

Regency Likely In Greece To End Trouble

ATHENS, Dec. 16 — (AP). — Creation of a regency was reported likely today to be the mutually-approved step to end the bitter civil struggle that has gripped Greece for two weeks.

While fighting continued in the rain-soaked capital, Greek and British leaders met yesterday and it was said an agreement in principle had been reached on the question of a regency.

It was understood the appointment of a regency council of three was first proposed by Premier George Papandreou.

The proposed members were said to have been Archbishop Damaskinos of Athens, Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs Philip Dracoumis and Nicholas Plastiras, who led the Greek revolution of 1922.

Discussing the issue were Reginald Leeper, the British Ambassador; Harold MacMillan, British resident minister of the Middle East and Themistokles Sophoulis, Greek elder statesman who has acted as an intermediary between the opposing forces.

However, it was expected the eventual agreement would call for a one-man regency, possibly under Archbishop Damaskinos.

Other armistice terms reliably reported to be acceptable to British authorities, and said to have been presented by the E.A.M. (National Liberation Front) leaders, included amnesty for leaders in the civil struggle and formation of a national government representing all parties.

Meantime the E.L.A.S. hammered at British positions with fresh artillery and a renewal of sniping. E.L.A.S. concentrations were subjected to bombardment by 25-pound British shells.

E.L.A.S. casualties in the struggle so far were estimated by British authorities as 600 to 700 dead and 1,000 wounded.

thing else they are not fully entitled to. Of the duration and scope of the leave plan as it now stands, they point out that at the present rate it will be literally years before some of the men who came overseas with them in 1939 get home, and they feel that one month at home is meagre in its ratio to their period of overseas service.

Many of them feel that after five years overseas they have done their share, feel that they could be fitted into the war machinery back home for six months or so at least while somebody else went overseas to take their place. For one thing, they feel that from what they have seen of Canada-trained recruits for overseas that they and a lot more veterans could fill posts of value.

They say it would be only fair, in view of what they have already done, to give them the option of either returning to Italy or taking a posting in Canada.

Their Army—they share an opinion you hear more than occasionally in Italy, that they would like to see their 1st Corps in Italy reunited with the 1st Canadian Army fighting in Western Europe.

Conscription—until the stories of zombie disorders—they heard of them as they boarded this ship—they generally shared the resigned viewpoint that, in conscription, the inevitable had happened. No soldiers could prize more highly than these Canada's experiment of fielding an army of volunteers.

Essential Step

They feel now that Canada, like the United States and Britain, should have adopted overseas conscription in 1939. When it was involved five years later they accepted with qualified approval the news that there would be draftees in their ranks. Above all, they realized, there had to be reinforcements and experience had shown that this final, dislike method was, in the last analysis, the only method of providing them in adequate number.

The news of zombie disorders had a natural reaction, jolted the opinions they had already formed, but generally they feel primarily that they are at least nearing the opportunity to decide for themselves at first hand on the whole boiling issue.

Their country—The whole wartime transformation of Canada is something they know only at second-hand. These, the '39ers who have always had the feeling, at once both vague and strong, that they are neither appreciated for what they have done overseas nor wanted back home, know that many Canadian soldiers who have gone home and then returned overseas are glad to be back again.

And now that some of them are nearing wives they haven't seen in five years, some of them children they have never seen, all of them a nation they have only heard about and read about since December, 1939, their thoughts are strolling down a hundred lanes of wonder, doubt, anticipation, hope.

Their complaints—True soldiers, they have dozens of them, about lack of beer, about worn-out vehicles, about uniforms, about many another thing. (One wisecrack in Italy is that the Canadians get a half-pint of beer per week per man perhaps.)

WOUNDED IN ITALY

Cpl. Romeo Leonard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Leonard, Sophia street, has been reported wounded in Italy. He enlisted in February 1940 and was eligible for a Christmas leave in Canada, having put in the required five years' service with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. His wife and three children live in Lakefield.

be determined by dividing the equalized assessment in counties and the actual assessment in territorial districts of all the rateable property in the public school section or separate school organization by the number of public school classrooms or separate school classrooms within the public school section or separate school organization.

The assistance to collegiate institutes, high schools and grade A and grade B continuation schools, is based on $10 per pupil of average attendance for the preceding calendar year, plus an additional grant. Where the mill rate is less than one mill, five per cent of the approved cost, two mills or more but less than three, 10 per cent; three mills or more but less than four, 20 per cent; four mills or more but less than five, 25 per cent, and the grant is increased by five per cent for every increase in the mill rate up to a maximum of 75 per cent for 14 mills or over.

Scale of Assistance

For vocational schools and technical institutes (day and evening), the assistance is as follows: A grant equal to the following percentages of the total salaries paid by the board to teachers of day and evening classes for the preceding school year: (a) 90 per cent of the first $20,000; (b) 80 per cent of the next $20,000; (c) 70 per cent of the next $20,000, and (d) 60 per cent of any further amount. An additional grant is also given, equal to 50 per cent of any amount paid out of current revenue with the approval of the Minister of Education during the preceding calendar year for erection of school buildings or additions and the purchase of new equipment and furniture.

Premier George Drew, in releasing the details of the plan, said that experts of the Department of Education regarded the undertaking as "the greatest single advance in the field of education in more than 50 years." He voiced the hope that every school board and every municipal council will recognize the reasons for the assumption of this large obligation by the Province and "will refrain from increasing costs in any other direction wherever that can be avoided."

Walker Retires As Head Of Electric Lines

TORONTO, Dec. 16.—The retirement of E. B. Walker, general superintendent, electric lines, Canadian National Railways, was announced today by J. F. Pringle vice-president and general manager, central region. The position of general superintendent of electric lines is abolished.

Mr. Walker, who retires under the pension rules of the company, was born at Toronto on December 15, 1879. He attended Harbord Collegiate Institute and University of Toronto. He joined the Canadian Northern Railway at Toronto in 1915, after having served with the Canadian General Electric Company at Peterborough and Toronto, from 1901 to 1909, and a period of private practice as engineer and contractor. He was made electrical engineer of the eastern lines, Canadian Northern in 1916, and when that railway was merged with the Grand Trunk Pacific and Intercolonial, in 1919, he became electrical engineer, Canadian National Railways, with headquarters at Toronto. On consolidation of the Canadian National and Grank Trunk systems in 1923, he moved to Montreal as electrical engineer in the Bureau of Economics. The following year he returned to Toronto as electrical engineer, electric lines. In 1931, he was appointed general superintendent, Montreal & Southern Counties Railway Oshawa Railway, and Thousand Islands Raialway, and the following year was named general superintendent, Canadian National electric lines, with jurisdiction extended to the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Railway and Navigation Company. In 1938, he was also given supervision of the bus and truck operations of Canadian National Transportation Limited.

Mr. Walker is a member of the Association of Professional Engineers, Province of Ontario; a life member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and a past president of the Canadian Transit Association.

Engineer Finds Gravel Loss Serious Problem

Washboard and dust nuisance are conditions familiar to nearly every motorist. The annual loss of gravel, through traffic wear and blow off, is a matter which probably doesn't concern the motorist or the ratepayer so much, but was included in the problems which Engineer Maciver brought to the attention of the county council last week, in outlining the program of road stabilization being carried out on county roads.

In 1941, he said, some 4,000 machine hours were put in on dragging operations, or the equivalent of two power graders continuously raising dust and cutting out washboard, which in dry weather, was nearly as bad again after 48 hours.

To reduce these unsatisfactory conditions the use of calcium chloride dustlayer has been gradually increased in the last four years. In 1942 a few miles were consolidated by the use of a clay binder in the gravel. This clay binder mixed, in the right proportion, with the gravel and laid in a moist condition with calcium chloride added gives a dense, dustless, smooth riding surface and, roughly speaking, is what is termed "stabilization." This stabilization program was continued in 1943 and this year, and we have now about 50 miles completed and have thereby reduced machine time on dragging operations by about 30 per cent.

It should be pointed out that this type of surface is not meant to replace the mulch paving program carried out by the Suburban Commission but is more of a building up process or base preparation for future paving. It will require some dragging and shaping each spring before a dustlayer is applied and also some patching throughout the season. It provides, however, a fairly smooth and dustless driving surface for most of the season, and by building up the weak sections, will eventually provide a gravel base strong enough to carry a low cost bituminous top.

If the county council wishes to continue this program, additional funds will have to be provided for widening and other grade work to prepare more mileage for this type of surface, and to pay for the extra cost of dustlayer. With the loss of revenue through the annexation of part of North Monaghan township to the city, the present road rate would have to be raised to permit of even a very limited extension of this work.

Peterborough County has numerous deposits of gravel and a little more prospecting, no doubt, will provide suitable binder material within easy reach. Against this a large mileage of gravel roads, including township roads, has to be surfaced each year. The annual loss of gravel, as motor traffic increases, will mount and may yet become a serious problem, if conservation methods are not taken in time. This is a thought that should concern all county and township road authorities, Mr. Maciver said in his report which will be extended for the whole year in a review to the county council at the January sessions.

R. Howard Drops Dead Working At City Yard

Born in Frankford, the son of Charles Arthur Howard and Elizabeth Wallace, he has resided in Peterborough for 16 years, previously living in Frankford. He was a member of George Street United Church.

He leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing wife, formerly Rose Elizabeth Hamilton, his parents, a sister, Mrs. H. J. Caldwell of Frankford, and a brother Frank Howard, also of Frankford.

Agriculture Must Be Made Attractive To Young People

The hopes of the agricultural industry lie with the young people, declared Vivian Milburn, secretary of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, speaking before a large gathering of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club Friday afternoon in the Empress Hotel. A number of farmers and agricultural men from the County were guests of the Kiwanians for the meeting.

"We have got to make our industry the kind that young people who have left us will want to come back to," he said. "It presents a challenge to businessmen and all others; encouragement must be given, and they should be given an opportunity of returning to a six-roomed home with bath, not a six-roomed home, with a path."

Production Up 40 Percent

Agriculture, he said, can be justly proud of the work it has done, and is doing in wartime. Youth and agriculture, both men and women, were lost both to the armed forces and other industry. The loss in labor is 25 percent, he said, but the handicap the loss presented is greater than the numbers indicate. And yet, despite this, agriculture increased its production 40 percent.

Mr. Milburn based his address on a broad outline of problems that may have to be faced in the post-war era. Although everyone approaches problems in a different way, he pointed out, there are three fundamental things which can be looked forward to.

First, there is a production program. In this respect, Mr. Milburn said it have to be scientifically carried out. 'We are going to have to grow two blades of grass, where one grew before. We will have to know the different kinds of grass; the kind of products the consumers want must be grown, not what we ourselves want to grow. After this, we will have to have a profitable marketing program, and the two will be prefaced on quality production."

"There was never a time when we produced more than we needed, but we did fail somewhat in finding the right distribution system. If we are going to implicate the Atlantic Charter, we must carry out considerable doing, thinking, cooperating and understanding. Some old methods of thinking must be discarded, and the art of coooperation will be fully learned, if we are going to do the work of UNRRA.

Program of Education

The third fundamental thing to look forward to, he said, is something which might be called a program of education; people, and understanding of problems.

and Capt. George Brown of Lloydminster, Sask.

Then more relief under Maj. Frank McDougal of Regina, Sask., pushed through the sticky opposition, and neatly bagged 40 prisoners, extending the bridgehead's depth to the 400-yard mark.

Brown's boys netted 19 prisoners.

A British Columbia Highland unit brought up the left flank under Majs. Ollie Mace of Innisfal, Alta. Stew Lynch, Calgary, Alta., Don Duncan, of Hamilton, Ont., and Capt. Les Thirwell of Calgary.

By Thursday the Canadians were ready for anything. Their patch of the canal bank posititvely bristled with rifles, Brens, mortars machine guns, field guns and tanks of a British Columbia unit.

Using medium artillery to flush enemy tanks spotted Thursday, the Canadians scored at least two direct hits on one in motion.

Bagged Panther

Troops manning guns under Lieut J. R. Toogood of Lethbridge, Alta., from a battery commanded by D. J. Halphide bagged the mobing Panther.

Thursday afternoon the enemy launched his strongest counter-attack up to that time. The battle was at peak pitch for an hour, and by nightfall still continued. The Westerners did not back up a yard. Air support all day Thursday was beautiful, answering the prayers of the Canadians.

The two-day total of 14 attacks against a bridge was believed unprecedented throughout the 8th Army's entire Italian campaign. Fearful of further advances in the Faenza area, Field Marshal Kesselring has made every effort to deny the Canadians their Naviglio foothold, only to be thwarted by the grimmest sort of tenacity.

Local gains were being registered by the Canadians on the left flank, between the Naviglio and the town of Baganacavallo, two miles north, along a line running southwest toward the Lamone River.

50 Prisoners

French-Canadian troops under Capt. Andre Langlais of Quebec City and Lieut. Harry Pope of Ottawa figured in a spectacular attack on a factory east of Baganacavallo Thursday afternoon with dive-bomber support.

The attack was a complete success and netted more than 50 prisoners.

The Germans were resorting to booby-traps and mines once more—rareties in the earlier stages of the present Canadian drive when the enemy was pulling back hastily.

Prudently "delousing" the traps by shearing their fuse wires, the French-Canadian boys staged a victory celebration, dashing into the factory and setting off the detonators.

Activity on the Canadian Corps' right flank was confined. New Brunswick tankmen were cleaning up south of Route 16 — the Ferrera-Ravenna highway — while Manitoba boys in Shermans were doing the same thing northward, working toward Lake Comacchio.

2-Prong Attack Hits Germany

LONDON, Dec. 16 (CP)—German warnings said Allied bombers from Italy and Britain struck southwest Germany today for the fourth joint attack on the Reich in less than a week.

British-based bombers hit the area in front of the U.S. 7th Army invading the Palatinate.

Two groups of bombers from Italy were reported to have flown into Germany, one toward Munich, the second toward Czechoslovakia.

British and Canadian night bombers climaxed yesterday's two-way attack on German rail and industrial centres with a 3,000-ton raid on Ludwigshafen which sent smoke spiralling 10,000 feet into the air.

No R.C.A.F. craft were missing after the raid. Two British planes were lost from the Ludwigshafen and other operations.

Canadian fliers of the Moose, Ghost and Iroquois squadrons reported several large fires following explosions.

German fighters again remained on the ground yesterday. From the combined fleet of Allied war planes approximating 1,700, 18 failed to return.

In addition British Lancasters with six-ton "earthquake" bombs struck German E-boat and R-boat pens at Ijmuiden, on the west coast of Holland.

Fighters and bombers assigned to support the Allied armies in France, Germany and Italy made more than 4,000 trips over the battlelines.

Belief Exists Russia Gets Preference

LONDON, Dec. 16 — (CP-Reuters). — The London Daily Mail declared today that Prime Minister Churchill's speech yesterday on the Polish question had made "very clear" that "the United Nations have drifted a long way from that fine accord they reached at Tehran."

The newspaper said the Prime Minister's plea for a new meeting himself, President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin was an obvious proposal to obtain a full unity of purpose once more among the Big Three.

"We still are waiting to know where the United States stands in relation to Poland," the Daily Mail said.

The Times of London observed that the changes in the map of central Europe demanded by Russia and seconded by Mr. Churchill "might result in creating sounder political foundations, a stronger and more closely-knit Polish nation."

The Moscow radio today broadcast a long extract of the Prime Minister's speech, but added no comment.

A German Foreign Office spokesman, in a broadcast today, described Mr. Churchill's speech as "a priceless contribution to Germany's war effort."

"The German people are grateful to Churchill for the brutal frankness with which he announced his plans of dividing and destroying Germany," he said. "We shall see to it that these plans are taught in every school, that every German soldier will carry them and they can be read on the walls of every factory."

The Liberal Manchester Guardian in an editorial declared: "This is not a Polish crisis but a crisis of United Nations."

Noting that the decisions taken by the three powers at Tehran have been taken "in council of war without any opportunity to consult the peoples or in some cases, the governments concerned," the Guardian said:

Demanded By Russia

"The fact must be faced that all these decisions have been demanded by Russia with the reluctant agreement of the British government and the tacit assent of the United States Government. . . .

"The most notable feature of Mr. Churchill's speech was a sense of foreboding as if he knew that his words would sound coldly in the ears of the British and American public and yet had no power to alter them. It is indeed a terrible dilemma for which Mr. Churchill cannot in fairness be blamed. . . .

"On the one hand we are bound to Soviet Russia by common interest in the peace of Europe; on the other we are bound to the United States by common ideals we are loath to relinquish.

"Must we then sacrifice the one for the other? Is the price of Russian friendship the denial of the Atlantic Charter and will that in turn mean American isolation? The danger is so great that Mr. Churchill did not hesitate to warn the House of the peril of a third great war.

"There is only one sure remedy and that . . . is an early meeting of the Big Three, to be followed by frequent and regular meetings until the new world organization can be established."

Welfare Officer Only One To Answer Appeal

The house was placarded for scarlet fever. No man was there. The pipes of the stove in the living room were down. The mother could not put them up, and the house was cold. Somehow or other she appealed to Alderman Dutton. A chimney cleaner was asked to fix up the pipes, but the placard turned him back. The Fire Department was called, but they were on a test or at something else and no help was forthcoming from that quarter. Finally, Welfare Officer Metheral was thought of, and was asked to be a samaritan at the place of quarantine.

"That was at 5.10 p.m. one day recently," Alderman Dutton told the Board of Health. "At 5.25 I heard that Mr. Metheral had been there jointed the pipes together, put on a fire and generally helped out. It is one thing about the city service, willingness to cooperate when things need being done."

God's Interest In Man Revealed By Apostle John

REV. E. R. JAMES

Behold, a door was opened in Heaven.—Rev. 4:1.

The Book of Revelation of St. John the Divine is one of the most fascinating and at the same time one of the most difficult to interpret. Let us not forget that no Book in the New Testament has been so misinformed. The book is full of symbolism, making its appeal especially to the oriental people. Many scholars today are of the opinion that there was a secret interpretation of the book, but has been lost.

The Book was written at a time when the Church was passing through much tribulation. It was attacked by Jews as a hateful sect from their own body. The Roman Government on the other hand ordered its destruction on the political ground that Christians refused to offer incense to the statue of Caesar, thus acknowledging his divine origin.

However, this chapter is mainly simple. The Apostle is privileged to enter the spiritual world. He tells us what he has seen.

"Behold, a throne was set up in heaven." To a devout Jew this was exactly what he was taught to expect. "The Lord sitteth above the water floods, be the people never so unquiet." "The Lord God omnipotent reigneth" is a fundamental truth of Jewish theology. It is also important for our day.

"One sat upon he Throne." As a devout Jew he cannot mention the Name of Jehovah. It was too sacred. Many Christian people today utter the Name of God so lightly that they leave no impression upon their hearers that God is omnipotent and above all. Before you can pronounce God's Name with reverence you must have a vivid idea of His greatness and mystery. That is why the Cherubin stood with veiled faces before the Presence of God. "With twain he covered his face."

"Round about the throne were four and twenty elders sitting." Perhaps they represent the Old and New Testament Church. They are sitting in the place of highest honor for a created being. It is the answer to the question "What is man that Thou so regardest him."

Also they are under the protection of God. God cares for His own. In this fearful day let us not forget that our loved one are under God's protection; His Arm is around them; His shield is over them and His Eye is one of them. God cares. Those four and twenty elders cry to us: "Lift up your hearts." We reply: "We will lift them up unto the Lord."

"A door was opened in Heaven." A door means separation; it separates those within from those without. When the door is opened it speaks of entrance; the going out and coming in. It is one of Our Lord's favorite symbols: "I am the Doors, by Me if any man enter in he shall be saved."

To St. John that open door meant that God is no longer separated from His people. In symbolic language he teaches that God has come down from in the Person of His Son Jesus Christ, the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth. This is the fundamental truth of Christianity. Deny that Jesus is God you place yourself on the wrong side of that door.

"There was a rainbow round about the throne in sight like unto an emerald." An emerald is green; as a famous commentator reminds us it is an imperishable green, symbolizing the mercy and loving kindness of God. "God is the Father of mercies and the God of all comfort."

BEHOLD, I STAND AT THE DOOR AND KNOCK; IF ANY MAN HEAR MY VOICE AND OPEN THE DOOR I WILL COME IN TO HIM AND WILL SUP WITH HIM AND HE WITH ME.

Paul Outlines Qualities For Spiritual Living

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Dec. 17 is Galatians 5:22-6:10, the Golden Text being Gal. 5:25, "If we live by the Spirit, by the Spirit let us also walk.")

Today's lesson is all contained in Paul's letter to the Galatians, which he wrote from Corinth.

He had previously been listing the "works of the flesh," and turning from them—and a horrifying list he mentions—he turns to the "fruit of the Spirit." Fruit is the result of life. The fruit of a tree will depend upon the tree's root. An apple tree will bring forth apples, an orange tree oranges. The profit of the tree comes from the fruit—not the bark, or the leaves or flowers, but the fruit. The fruit of a good life brings blessings to others and to the person practicing the same.

The fruit of this good life—the life of the Spirit—is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, in later versions, self-control, meekness, temperance; against such there is no law."

The first of these fruits is love, love to God and love to man. Joy comes next, and joy makes us cheerful. Joy fills us when we realize our blessings and the goodness of the Father toward us. Christians, of all people, should have happy faces and deep joy within.

Peace After Joy

After joy comes peace, a quiet, serene feeling that nothing can disturb because we know in the depths of our beings that whatever comes to us, we have strength not our own, but of the Spirit—to endure it.

Longsuffering means patience and cheerfulness—to bear the ills that come to us, the hurts and slights as well as misfortunes. Kindness is an active, busy virtue, an attitude to love toward all and a desire to help them when we can. Goodness shines in the face of those who walk in the Spirit. It makes people trust and love good people because they know they can be trusted and will be kind and helpful.

A man who is faithful may be trusted. His "word is as good as his bond," they say. He is faithful to his trusts, whether they be light or heavy. Meekness keeps the Christian from being vain, for he well knows his own weakness and that he owes his strength to resist from God. And self-control is a command over bodily appetite. Living in the Spirit covers the whole range of moral discipline, enabling one to control one's conduct.

"If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit." We must not envy or provoke one another. If another is overtaken in a fault, we should be patient and "restore such an one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, let thou be tempted." We may have self-control, but our faults are not dead. Only by realizing this and being constantly on guard can we be sure we, too, will not fall into temptation.

"Bear ye one another's burdens." Burdens means heavy weights. If we see others bearing a heavy load of trouble, we may not be able to taken the burden away, but we can at least, by love and kindness, help them to bear it.

"Let him that is taught in the word, communicate unto him that teacheth in all good things." Support for those who give all their time to the teaching of the Word is included in this instruction.

"Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsover a man soweth, that shall he also reap." There are people who seem to think that if they keep their wrongdoing secret, they will not suffer for it, but how deceived they are! Human beings may not know of the evil, but the person's own conscience knows and God knows. He is not deceived, and as sure as the sun rises and sets, punishment will follow sin.

Last, let us not weary in well-doing. We are weak and get tired as we journey through life—tired and discouraged. Paul tells us not to weary in the struggle. If we are steadfast, we shall reap a glorious harvest.

"For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit, shall of the Spirit reap everlasting life."

"As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith."

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

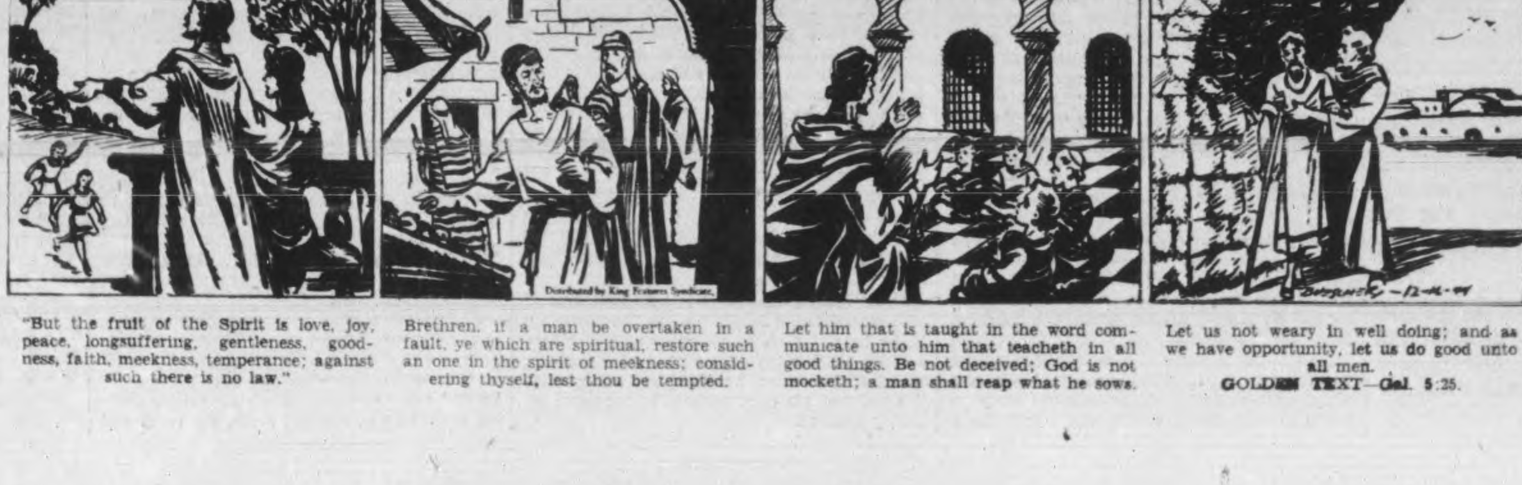
Scripture—Galatians 5:22—6:10

By Alfred J. Buescher



"But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance; against such there is no law."

Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual, restore such an one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou be tempted.

Let him that is taught in the word communicate unto him that teacheth in all good things. Be not deceived; God is not mocketh; a man shall reap what he sows.

Let us not weary in well doing; and as we have opportunity, let us do good unto all men.
GOLDEN TEXT—Gal. 5:25.

What Does 'Town Planning' Mean For Peterborough?

For some time Peterborough has had a Town Planning Committee which, although it is composed of men who are well-qualified for such work, has achieved nothing of any consequence. We think that this is because the Committee has not been given any specific job to do, or any authority to do anything except make suggestions. And this vagueness about the Committee's duties, in turn, is the result of the vagueness with which most citizens face the problem of town planning. What is town planning, and what does it mean for Peterborough? That is what most people want to know.

But although there is vagueness about town planning, we do not think that there is any hostility toward the ideas which it involves. There was a time when Peterborough was called a conservative city; we do not think that it can justly be so called any longer. We have decided to build a Memorial Centre, and we have given leadership to a great number of Canadian communities by our decision; we have decided to build a new civic hospital, well-equipped and on the best model. These are not the actions of a conservative city; they are the actions of a progressive and enlightened city. And it is in progressive and enlightened cities that town planning finds its most fertile soil.

It is obvious that Peterborough is going to grow. It can grow in two ways; it can either grow like Toronto, or like Washington, D.C. Toronto grew like Topsy, without plan or regulation, and the result is that Toronto is now trying to impose a plan upon a jumbled and ugly city; Washington grew according to plan, and it is now, and always will be, a beautiful city. Do we want Peterborough to be beautiful and convenient? If so, it must grow according to a plan which will see that it has plenty of good wide streets, convenient for traffic; which will ensure that its future suburbs, parks, schools and playgrounds are properly distributed; which will ensure that business sections, civic and government buildings, industrial sections and residential districts are placed in proper relation to one another; which will ensure that there is no overcrowding, no slum district, and no district which is inconveniently and needlessly far from the centre of the city. These things can be done by planning now for the growth which is to come.

Who is to do the planning? We have a good Committee now, but none of them, we think, is an expert in all these matters. However, experts exist, and they can be engaged to consider the special problems of our city, give advice as to how to meet those problems most successfully, and work with the local Committee on the production of a plan for Peterborough. The advice of such an expert would cost us a considerable fee, but it might save us millions of dollars by precluding future mistakes. Has anyone ever estimated what the sprawling growth and tangled, crowded streets of Toronto have cost that city during the past twenty-five years? The advice of an expert on town-planning would be well worth a substantial fee if it saved us frequent re-building, re-sewering and street-widening in the years to come.

Town-planning is not a thing which takes effect over night. A plan to beautify the Peterborough that exists, and control the growth of the Peterborough of the future would involve very large expenditure when it was carried out, but it would not be carried out all at once. It would be carried out over a period of twenty-five or thirty years, and the cost would be spread over the same period. Town-planning is a gradual process; there is nothing sudden or violent about it.

But the time for town planning has come in this city. We are going to build a Memorial Centre. Are we sure where we are going to build it? Do we know how we are going to deal with the problems of traffic which it will bring? Are we sure that we know what kind of setting is best for it, considered both from the aspects of utility and beauty? We are going, to build a new town hall. Where? And what relation will it bear to the rest of the city? We hope that a new government building will be erected here after the war. Where shall we ask the government to put it? How will it fit in with the rest of Peterborough? After the war wartime housing must be removed, but many people now living there will want to stay in Peterborough, and new homes will be wanted for them. In what direction should the city expand next? These are all problems which we shall have to face within five years, and a plan which would help us would be worth a good price to us. This point must be stressed, for the benefit of those who are afraid of the expense of planning: an ill-planned and inconvenient town is an uneconomic town, and the more jumbled it is the more it costs to run it. Far better to spend money for a good plan and work to it, than to lose thousands every year running a planless city.

We suggest that the Town Planning Committee be given a specific job to do, with strong backing from the Council. The working out of a good plan would be a long and hard job, but it would be a great contribution to the welfare — aesthetic and economic — of Peterborough. We have shown ourselves progressive in other directions: let us not lag behind the times in this.

Toronto Sees Some Snow

Toronto shared in the general Ontario snowstorm this week and, in theatrical parlance, it is 'taking it big'. The fuss that Toronto is making about its snow will serve to deepen the conviction widely held in Ontario that Toronto does not know how the rest of the Province lives. Toronto has a curious climate, and a snowfall amounting to more than a flurry is a novelty there. But those of us who live in Eastern Ontario really know what snow is; we deal with the stuff in large quantities. We do not talk about an 'old-fashioned winter' when we mean a winter with snow on the ground, as do the dainty Torontonians; we have one of those winters almost every year, and we know how modern and up-to-date they can be. But it snowed in the Queen City this week, and the excitement has been terrific.

One reason why a heavy snowfall causes so much trouble in Ontario generally is that we insist on behaving as though we lived in Florida, and look upon winter weather as an unusual and unfair manifestation of nature. We try to use wheeled vehicles in an element which is unfriendly to wheels. Instead of keeping the sleigh, and perfecting the snow-mobile — that ingenious affair which works with a propellor on the back—we become petulent when our cars stick in the snow. Like the light-weight felt hats which we wear in all weathers, our cars simply are not built for the Canadian winter.

But in most of Ontario we still make some compromise with winter weather. Toronto makes none. It is even said that the Toronto Board of Works does not own a single snow-shovel, depending on individual citizens to clear away such snow as falls with palm-leaf fans. Therefore, when some real snow fell there, Toronto was caught with its swimming-trunks on, and the howls of dismay have carried to the farthest and snowiest parts of Ontario.

Diary Of An Honest Voter

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: Went tobogganing with some young friends of mine this afternoon, and had a good time, though the snow was too slow to provide much excitement; indeed, if I had not run rapidly downhill pulling the toboggan after me I think that the party would have been completely static....Wrote some Christmas letters to friends in England, which will probably arrive in time to gladden their hearts on St. Valentine's day. The censor must enjoy my letters; they are quite innocuous but they seem to take a long time to reach their readers....Passed the evening dipping into Dickens' "Christmas Books," which are required reading for me at this time of year....Read "The Chimes" with pleasure, and "The Cricket On The Hearth" with less pleasure; I always think the disguise of young Plummer in it singularly unconvincing, and Dot Peerybingle a detestable, self-important little pest. Began "A Chrismas Carol" my favourite, but fell asleep after Stave One, and went to bed.

MONDAY: Municipal elections today, and I cast a vote for honest government and clean living in a schoolroom which was decorated for Christmas with a stencil of Santa and his reindeer which was modish when I went to school, and has retained its charm through the hurrying years. I marked my ballot in a cloakroom which smelt of overshoes and immature humanity, separated from another voter by nothing but a map of the world. It ocourred to me that I could have knocked him out, marked his ballot, revived him, said "You slipped and bumped your head," escorted him to the door and thus have cheated the Returning Officer, but I refrained....Later in the day I returned to my office, and got underfoot while others tabulated the election returns. Some of this work was done on an adding machine, which amazed me by its inhuman accuracy. When I add anything I always allow a margin of 10 for error in the total; the machine, however, merely gnashes its teeth a few times, and spits out an indisputable answer on a slip of greenish paper. I don't think I like such a degree of standardization; it takes all the mystery and beauty out of mathematics.

TUESDAY: I do much of my best thinking while waiting for a bus; I sometimes get as much as twenty-five minutes of calm and quietness in this way. Today it struck me that what Canada really needs is a rocket-propelled sleigh for winter use. The design of the horse-drawn cutter could be used without alteration, for it is graceful and practical. All that would be needed would be a small rocket-propulsion unit in that little box in the back where old hay and poultry are usually kept, and a simple steering handle. The owner of such a vehicle would step into his cutter, pull the buffalo robe over his knees, step on the button, and away he would go, with a merry jingling of bells. (A small bell-jingling apparatus would be operated by the rocket's surplus power)....While I was thinking in this strain a female—I call her so because she had neither the manners of a lady nor the feelings of a woman—drove by at an excessive rate, and would have soaked me with slush if I had not skipped like a goat behind a tree. But she had a sour, discontented face and looked as though nobody ever loved her, so I suppose I should pity her....I don't, though; I hope she is miserable.

WEDNESDAY: Was talking to a man today about Santa Claus, and he said that he thought it was a mistake to show children pictures of Santa, and department-store employees dressed up as feeble imitations of the old Saint. Santa should be a creature of the child's imagination, mysterious and remote, and not anyone whom he could meet and shake hands with in mundane surroundings. There is probably a good deal of common sense in this observation. Nowadays, in every direction, we tend to leave too little to the imagination. As a result, the quality of the modern imagination is poorer than it was before half-education became the right of every citizen....It is a fact which many people refuse to recognize, that the imagination must be fed, or else it becomes meagre and poor, and peoples the mind with undernourished phantoms. The vast popularity of Walt Disney's films rests upon the rich imagination which goes into their production, and the full meal for the imagination which they provide.

THURSDAY: Went to a party tonight, where part of the entertainment consisted of impersonations of a number of conspicuous eccentrics, including myself. Upon the whole, I thought the imitation of me a great success, and I was flattered by it. If I were to give an imitation of myself it would be really cruel.... Danced, for the first time in many years. I learned to dance from a crab which I observed at the seaside, and my crab-step serves for every sort of dance from the waltz to the turkey-trot. To my extreme surprise, I was not the worst dancer on the floor, a distinction which is usually awarded to me without question. Either I am getting better, or there are people who are worse....As part of the fun we sang a song about a woman who over-ate, and vomited as a result; the noise of her illness formed the refrain of the song. Now this is an odd fact: all of us, including members of what is still laughingly called the weaker sex, sang the song without demur; but if the chairman had called upon any single lady present to rise by herself and imitate the sound of vomiting, she would have been insulted, and probably a duel with hatpins would have come of it. This is a problem for a student of social psychology.

FRIDAY: Looked out my window this morning and was startled to see a large green dragon chewing up the pavement; looked again, and saw that it was one of those machines which eats snow. A revolving worm chivvies the snow into the buckets of a conveyor, which heaves it up into the air and drops it into a truck. The face of the man who worked this monster wore a proud and happy smile; he was perched on the side of it under a pretty little green canopy. I should like to work one of those machines some day, just for a few minutes....Met a blood donor today who has given ten donations, and who has, in consequence, completely changed his blood stream; he looked much as usual, but I am assured that this is true. He tells me that he has no more 'anti-bodies' than a newborn babe, and apparently this is not an enviable condition; he is going to stop giving donations until he has had a chance to work up a new set of 'anti-bodies'....My furnace has suddenly begun to work like a charm, and I feel like a man who has been reprieved from life imprisonment.

SATURDAY: Received a letter this morning from a reader, complaining that my last Diary was not very funny. Sir, my life is not very funny. Today, for instance, I shook a lot of ashes in my cellar, with one of those new-fangled sifters which is not supposed to make any dust. As a result my mouth and my respiratory system were choked with ashes for several hours, and my dinner was quite literally dust and ashes in my mouth....The opera this afternoon was "Don Giovanni," and as I listened to it I thought, as I have often thought before, that it would be very dull to spend all one's life chasing after women; Don Giovanni was a man of many conquests—one thousand and three in the kingdom of Spain alone—and he had not time for other and more rational pursuits. I have only known one man who spent most of his time chasing women; he was strikingly ugly, though very pleasant, and in the time he took from his hobby he was a charming companion and very sensible. It was his contention that all women are alike, and when I pointed out to him that this reduced his chief pursuit to nonsense, he merely laughed.

"BACKWASH OF THE WAR"

The Poet Laureate Of Britain

(By HOWARD WHEELER)

THERE is a pretty story, a favourite with English children, that when the English King, Richard the Lion Heart was imprisoned in a castle on the Danube, his minstrel Blondel found him by singing his way from castle to castle until he came to the one where Richard lay.

It is a long way—over seven hundred years—from this picture of the faithful Blondel, if he ever existed outside the pages of the French romantic chronicles, and the present Poet Laureate, Mr. John Masefield, sitting down in London to broadcast his Coronation Ode to people the other side of the world. Yet they are linked down the centuries, for Mr. Masefield holds the same office as Blondel—that of the King of England's poet.

IT is certain that King Richard had a servant called the "versificator regis," whether it was Blondel or not, and later the title appears as the "king's versifier" in some royal accounts of the year 1249. The first use of the term Poet Laureate is to be found in the reign of King Edward IV, towards the end of the 15th century, when one John Kay is said to have been invested with the title—though he left no poetry to prove his claim to it.

There is no record how the title began, or if any of the early holders were solemnly crowned with laurel, a custom dating back to classical times. Then the laurel was sacred to Apollo, and as such was used to form a crown or wreath of honour for heroes and distinguished men. It may be that the earlier poets laureate, in the sense of royal servants, were selected from those who had been crowned with laurels at the universities for their abilities in Latin compostion or versification. Certainly, the king's laureate originally wrote in Latin; Andrew Bernard, who as "the laureated poet" drew a salary of ten marks from King Henry VII (1483-1509), saluted him in that language.

LIKE Dryden two centuries after him, Bernard was the official historian as well as court poet. It was Dryden who first had the formal title of "Poet Laureate in Ordinary to His Majesty" conferred on him in the reign of Charles II (1649-1685). The post carried with it a pension of £300 and a butt of Canary wine. This was in line with earliest custom; Chaucer had a pension and a perquisite of wine from King Edward III (1327-1377) and Spenser a pension from Queen Elizabeth (1559-1603).

The "butt of sack" formed part of the emoluments of the post, until at the end of the eighteenth century, Pye asked for a sum of money to be allowed in place of it. Lord Tennyson drew £72 a year and £27 in lieu of the wine, and this appears to be what the Laureate receives today.

The fertile Dryden, spinning out his eloquent quatrains and rhyming couplets, faithfully discharged what was long held to be the main part of the Laureate's duties—the composition of verses in honour of the King of England and of official occasions. Before his appointment, he had celebrated the return of Charles II in a "Panegyric", and his famous "Annus Mirabilis", with its account of the victory at sea over the Dutch and the Great Fire of London, shows how well equipped he was to recount the epics of English history.

DRYDEN'S successor, Thomas Shadwell, originated the custom of writing odes for the King's birthday and for the new year. Shadwell and Dryden were enemies, and Shadwell won the position from him when Dryden refused to take the oath after the revolution that brought William of Orange to the Throne in 1688. He was not a poet of Dryden's stature, and when Lord Dorset made him laureate he is said to have remarked: "I do not pretent to say how great a poet Shadwell may be, but I am sure he is an honest man."

For a hundred years after that, similar considerations — personal recommendation rather than merit—seem to have governed the appointment. Several laureates were pilloried by Pope in his "Dunciad," his tirade against dullness. And of one of them he wrote:

"Know Eusden thirsts no more for sack or praise,
He sleeps among the dull of ancient days."

Eusden, who owed his position to a poem celebrating the marriage of the Duke of Newcastle, wrote little to disprove this censure. Another Laureate assailed by Pope was Cibber, even though Dr. Johnson gave his approval with:

"Great George's acts let tuneful Cibber sing;
For Nature formed the Poet for the King."

With the appointment of Robert Southey, the office regained its dignity. Southey was followed by another great poet, Wordsworth, and Wordsworth by Tennyson.

WORDSWORTH stipulated, before accepting the honour, that no formal effusions should be required of him, but Tennyson—holding England under his sway for half a century — was generally happy in his numerous poems of this class.

Tennyson's verse was—and still is—remarkable for the breadth, the richness, the substantial accomplishment of his touch, and the beauty he contrived to give almost all his work. There was something of a re-action against his long popularity, but Tennyson's place among England's poets is assured.

After his death, no Laureate was appointed for several years. It was expected that the honour would go to Swinburne, but the Prime Minister, Lord Salisbury, gave it to a minor poet, Alfred Austin. There was a storm of criticism, but Salisbury had his reasons; the laureateship was essentially a court appointment, whereas in his earlier poems Swinburne had expressed republican sentiments, and was vehement against princes and potentates. He could not logically become a member of Queen Victoria's household.

THE appointment of Robert Bridges in succession to Austin was met with a little surprise and some dissatisfaction. He was not widely known, even for a poet, and there was a legend that he was a classical scholar too remote from the everyday life of the world. For those who held this view, his obstinate silence when great national events might have been celebrated in verse provided all the justification they needed.

Then, when Bridge was in his 84th year, there came his great philosophical poem, "The Testament of Beauty," a compendium of the wisdom, learning and experience of an artistic spirit. It was immensely successful.

A remarkable artist in metre, Bridges has been called the great grammarian of poetry. His verse achieves beauty, not through colours and images or memorable phrases, but through presenting, as in a mirror, the radiant joys of a man moderate in temper, a little remote from the busy world, chaste in expression, addicted to the beautiful and the good.

BY contrast, the present Laureate, John Masefield, appointed in 1930, is a man of action, but he shares Bridges' passionate pursuit of beauty. Born in Herefordshire 65 years ago, Masfield was sailor, bartender (in the United States) and beachcomber in his early days. The chance purchase of a copy of Chaucer determined him to be a poet.

His is a writer of so many parts that an analysis of his works is not easy. There is the lyric the sea ("Salt Water Ballads" and "Ballads and poet, chanting the adventure and romance of Poems" and "Dauber"); the philosopher, probing the riddles of life and death, the earth and the stars (the "Lollingdom Downs" sonnets); the narrative realist, presenting the sorrows and humanity of lowly people ("The Everlasting Mercy," "The Widow in the Bye-Street"); the Pindaric chronicler of country life ("Reynard the Fox"); and the playwright and novelist.

Like Bridges, Masefield said of his laureateship, "I cannot write to order," and quoted Wordsworth that "Poetry is the overflow of powerful feelings." But the many poems he has written for public occasion have always been of a high level.

It is certain that the vigour, the sincerity and the strong individuality of his work make him in a special degree the poet of his age—one who can touch to beauty the plain speech of everyday life.

A Bible Message

And when his disciples were come to the other side, they had forgotten to take bread. Then Jesus said unto them, Take heed and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees. And they reasoned among themselves, saying, It is because we have taken no bread. Which when Jesus perceived, he said unto them, O ye of little faith, why reason ye among yourselves, because ye have brought no bread?

Do ye not yet understand, neither remember the five loaves of the five thousand, and how many baskets ye took up? Neither the seven loaves of the four thousand, and how many baskets ye took up?

How is it that ye do not understand that I spake it not to you concerning bread, that ye should beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees?

Then understood they how that he bade them not beware of the leaven of bread but of the doctrine of the Pharisees and Sadducees. (Matt. 16: 5-12.)

O Timothy, keep that which is committed to thy trust, avoiding profane and vain babblings, and oppositions of science falsely so called. (I Tim. 6: 20.)

Unconsidered Trifles

"Answer me, Clara," he said in a moment of passion, "I can bear this suspense no longer."

"Answer him, Clara," echoed the old man in the hall thinking of the gas and coal bills, "I can bear this expense no longer."

"Darling, have your people agreed to our marriage?"

"Not yet," the girl replied, as she nestled close to him; "father hasn't said anything and mother's waiting to contradict him."

"Oh, no sir," she said, pointing to her husband, who was wheeling a barrow a few paces away. "If I 'adn't married 'e, I'd 'ad to 'ave bought a donkey."

Franco Asks a Seat

Franco, the fascist dictator of Spain, has lately asked for a seat at the peace table which will settle the future of the world after this war. This request marks an all-time high in sheer nerve.

Franco is the gentleman who butchered his own country in civil war, who overthrew an elected government with the aid of German and Italian troops while the democratic world stood by, paralyzed by the spirit of Munich. He is the gentleman who sent his soldiers to fight with the Germans against the Russians. He is the gentleman who publicly advocated a German victory in the war and, when this failed, began to talk about negotiating an indecisive peace to save the Axis. He is the gentleman who represents, in the cheapest and most depicable form, the philosophy we are fighting against in this war, and around his "neutral" capital of Madrid have gathered the lowest dregs of the fascist system. And this is the gentleman who now says that, as a result of his services to the victors in the war, he should be numbered among them, and have a voice in their decisions.

We rather think Franco will be too busy at home to attend a peace conference. It will require all his energies, his guns and his gestapo to keep the Spanish people quiet under his rule. —Winnipeg Free Press.

By JEAN STENTON

CRO. ANDY CHARTREN

Chief Petty Officer Andy J. Chartren R.C.N. is spending a furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chartren, 472 Rogers street. He has been in charge of the new naval gymnasium at Halifax and will now be stationed at HMCS Cornwallis for a course. After finishing at P.C.I. he worked for a short time with the C.G.E. and Western Clock Company before he joined the Navy prior to the war.

Arts Course Open

Servicemen seeking to enter university for the first time or to resume work in junior years will be allowed to enroll at the beginning of the second term in the faculty of arts at the University of Western Ontario, Dean K. P. R. Neville announced today.

Special provision will be made for extra classes in the summer so that a whole year's work may be completed before the regular academic year starts in September.

Hard Slogging

The fighting in Belgium and Holland has been tough for the infantry units, and only luck and prayers have saved him, in the opinion of Pte. Bruce Jones of the South Saskatchewan Regiment, son of Mrs. R. Jones, Havelock.

"We have had a pretty rotten time of it in Holland, but so far my luck has continued to hold out, and outside of being water-soaked and mud-spattered for a while, I have had no ill effects. Prayer has come to mean a great deal to me and I have seen the strongest and best of men pray after an attack. Men have fallen all around me and I cannot help but feel that I am here as a result of my prayers and others."

He mentioned meeting a former Army pal who had been in action since D-Day. He was standing beside the road as Pte. Jones was moving in on an attack and when they recognized each other they walked quite a distance together and had a chat. Soldiers who have not seen one another for months, often meet as they move up or back from the front lines.

Pte. Jones, who had been out on rest in Belgium is now back fighting in Holland, and he said that everything was going ahead although they were getting plenty of rain. He wrote that the mud was terrible, but that the men were wearing 12-inch rubber boots, which while they were not very warm, at least kept their feet dry.

"For a few nights to come, we have a roof over our heads, but believe it or not, a good hole in the ground shared with someone else, is far warmer, providing it does not rain too long at one time. I would like to see it freeze up, but that too would have its disadvantages."

The Havelock soldier liked everything about Belgium, but felt that Holland had too many dykes, canals and water-filled ditches to make it a popular place in war time.

Appreciate Parcels

Christmas parcels from the different auxiliaries in Peterborough have arrived overseas and letters are now being received telling how grateful the men are for the thoughtfulness of the people in Peterborough. Sgt. Bruce Rollins has written the Army Auxiliary from Italy, and he points out that not every city has been as thoughtful with remembrances as his home town.

"I received your lovely Christmas parcel two days before I left England for services in Italy and now, since I have had time to settle down in this country, I can write and thank you and those responsible for this grand gift.

"The maple leaf was a nice thought and very welcome. It brings back some lovely memories of our city and Canada. I shared your parcel with some of my pals who were less fortunate than I, because their home town folks are not quite as thoughtful as mine.

Overseas Two Years

"I have not been long in Italy, but have been overseas more than two years and the more I see of the world, the more I love my own country. I hope some day to be back in Peterborough so that I may thank you all for your kindness."

Echoing the same sentiments is one from L-Cpl. Fairbairn (Fibber) Magee, who is serving with the RCASC overseas. He wrote that he appreciated his parcel, like the rest of the soldiers do who receive them. He declared that all the boys are anxious to finish the job and get back home. And emphasized that the people at home were doing wonderful work for the men overseas.

"I have travelled a good deal in France, Belgium and Holland, and of the three, Belgium is more like home in regards to dress and living conditions. The people are friendly wherever we go and cannot do too much for us."

A man who is spending his fifth Christmas overseas, L-Cpl. J. Gordon, also sends his thanks to the Auxiliary and the Mayor and the City, who sent along a Christmas card.

GNR. ROY ROME

A recent visit to Windsor Castle and the Chapel there was one of the highlights for Gnr. Roy Rome, 475 Sherbrooke street, since he has been in England.

"St. George's Chapel there is stupendous in beauty, size and color. Built in the 14th century, it looks as fresh as any modern building. The crypts of King George and others of the Royal family were shown us and the famous choir loft, above each stall of which hung the banner of a Knight of the Garter. The wonderful oak woodwork, hand carved, the breath-taking marble and hand-wrought iron gates, were amazing so intricate and delicate, that it's difficult to describe.

"We remained for the service and were allotted a place in the choir loft behind the choir part of which was made up of boys. They sang like nightingales and the deep toned, golden voiced organ, which weighs 60 tons and is 150 years old, accompanied them throughout."

Gnr. Rome is violinist with a Broadcasting unit in England. He enlisted in July 1942 and prior to that conducted a music studio. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Rome, Sherbrooke street, and a brother, William Rome, is in Italy.

Home Where You Find It

Gnr. Doug Currie of Port Hope thinks a fox hole isn't too bad to live in, considering. He and his buddies have transformed his into a "Sultan's Harem", minus the feminine touches, he writes.

"I have named my fox hole," the Penthouse "and it is a pretty good spot to live in. It is four feet deep, nine feet long, and four feet wide. The roof consists of a small billiard table, four doors and lots of linoleum to keep it water proof. Then of course there is the usual camouflage on top of that again.

"The inside looks like a Sultan's Harem. The walls are covered with drapes and drapes cover the opening to keep out the cold. For a stove, I have an ammo' box with a hole for the chimney and it answers very well. The one big thing that is missing, is a washing machine and I still do my laundry the old fashioned way — in a five gallon can.

Promoted

Recently promoted to the rank of Lance Corporal is C. W. Russell of Peterborough. According to an Army report the newly made non-commissioned officer has seen a great deal of action with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, having landed with that outfit on the beaches of Sicily. He has at all times given a good account of himself.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK —By J. R. Scott

President Roosevelt Changes Advisors

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

In facing the historic decisions of the next six months, President Roosevelt is evidently determined to have behind him a Foreign Office which he can trust absolutely. Moreover, he clearly desires to approach the world in his plans for its reconstruction with advisors whom the world will trust.

This is probably the explanation of the President's sudden housecleaning of the State Department. Mr. Hull, who headed the Department from 1933 until a few days ago, had hardly resigned before the President moved in with a series of new appointments which alter the Department's outward appearance and inward thought.

Mr. Stettinius as Secretary of State, is probably one of the President's brilliant experiments. A young prodigy in business, a successful wartime administrator in Washington, a friendly soul in the State Department, able to get along well with foreigners, Mr. Stettinius has none of the background of experience and of training which usually goes with one of the chief offices of the world. But he is young, he is able, he is enlightened and liberal. Moreover, he is one of Mr. Roosevelt's "boys." Since the President has long been his own Foreign Minister and will have to carry that responsibility more completely than ever now that Mr. Hull has gone, he will need and will find in Mr. Stettinius a man completely in sympathy with his policies

To assist Mr. Stettinius as Under-Secretary the President has chosen a hard-headed diplomat, Mr. Grew, the veteran Ambassador to Japan. He will supply knowledge and experience. Mr. Archibald Macleish, librarian of Congress and one of America's genuine poets, will supply as Assistant-Secretary a fine feeling for America, a full knowledge of its history, and a burning liberalism in foreign policy. Mr. Nelson Rockefeller, also Assistant-Secretary, who has done excellent work in buttressing the Good Neighbor policy in Latin America, presumably will take on Mr. Sumner Welles' role in that important region. Mr. W. L. Clayton, the other Assistant-Secretary, is a practical businessman who was surplus property administrator and will be useful, no doubt, in keeping the State Department close to the problems of American business.

However, the virtues of the new appointees do not explain the President's decision to houseclean the State Department and to retire Messrs. Breckenridge, Long, Howland Shaw, and Adolf Berle, who formed part of Mr. Hull's team. It seems apparent that the President, while unshaken in his confidence in Mr. Hull, has accepted partially, at least, the widespread charge that a highly unsatisfactory department had grown up under the former Secretary of State while he was too busy or too ill to control it.

For several years now the State Department has been represented by extremists as a kind of augean stable banked with the dead horses of intrigue, and criticized by more moderate elements as a bumbling hive of inefficiency. Not until the secret record of our times is written will it be possible to judge these charges adequately. That the department is badly organized, overcomplicated and difficult to move, is generally admitted. But history should find strong defence for the department's handling of the deal with Darlan which outraged many Americans but certainly facilitated the American landing in Africa. It will probably approve the deal with Bagdolio in Italy as a military measure.

More difficult to explain will be the department's policy of appeasing Franco in Spain, which it also defended on military grounds and which was at all times in harmony with British policy. The department has been assailed by its former operating head, Mr. Welles, for its handling of the Argentine Fascists, but this policy is known to have been Mr. Hull's own. It was his policy also—another paint of strongest criticism—which postponed recognition of the De Gaulle Government, and there again all the facts are not known to the world.

In the larger policies of collective security and co-operation with Britain and Russia, the State Department's record is courageous and intelligent. Yet for a long time now the department has not satisfied the American people, it has been a political liability to the President, and has often puzzled foreign nations. In many parts of the United States it has become a symbol of reaction and an enemy of the liberal forces which are now struggling in Europe and in Asia to build a better world. One who talked to the chief man of the department did not gain this impression which is obviously an over-simplification; but one did sense a feeling of tiredness and disillusionment, the attitude of men who knew it was a wicked world, full of nasty people like Franco, but not to be made over in a day by any action in Washington.

The new department created by Mr. Roosevelt will be dominated by young men whom disillusionment has not yet touched, who are eager to create a new world after this war. To the American people, to all foreign nations, the new department is a symbol, and doubtless is designed to be a symbol, of the President's determination to get on with this job.

Better Quality Articles Are Found In Christmas Trade

By DON McGIBBON

A general trend toward buying Christmas gifts this year of better quality at slightly higher prices is one of the chief observations made by many men and women behind gaily decorated counters in Peterborough stores, who are now experiencing the first heavy onslaught of Yuletide buyers.

Although the war news looks brighter at the present than ever before, shortages of various articles in other wartime Decembers have not been alleviated to any extent in 1944.

Largely because of these scarcities, people for the most part are doing their Christmas shopping earlier this year. However, through the years it has been noticed there are chronic "last minute'ers," who constitute much of the Christmas rush. Sales clerks say people are less choosey, and less taken to quibbling when purchasing gifts.

Buying For Men.

For the men, women are buying watches, expensive pen and pencil sets, good quality wallets, smokers' supplies, and in many cases, small furniture gifts to place in his "den" or beside his favorite armchair. Of course, the proverbial shirts and ties are also selling well, a shortage of the former article preventing even higher sales.

For the women, men are purchasing expensive cosmetics, extra items of dress that women always like to receive, watches, furniture, diamonds (sale of which are leaping), and other articles which all suggest that more money is in circulation, and people are going to make this Christmas a pre-war flavored one, as much as possible.

Sales clerks, both male and female, are agreed that women in previous times caused the most headaches when buying gifts. This year, more than ever before, they are co-operating with store people to the utmost. Women often ask for cigarette lighters and cases combined, an extremely popular present at any time, but in 1944, a wartime casualty of several years' standing.

Up until now, some stores estimate that members of the armed forces are doing the least Christmas shopping of anyone. When they do buy, it is usually along luxury lines for their wives or sweethearts.

W's'en Toys.

Peterborough youngsters will enjoy a Christmas this year almost the same as in other years, with the exception of a lack of much candies, nuts and other festive delicacies, and a smaller variety of toys. Metal play-things for the children are gone with the war effort, but wooden toys have taken their place, and are every bit as popular with them. Many of the wind-up toys, a feature of pre-1939 Christmas, are also on the shortage list. Dolls in some stores today are non-existent, but in some cases stuffed animals such as teddy-bears are accepted by buyers as good substitutes.

"With so many of Peterborough's young men and women in the armed services of the country, Christmas shopping has been split in halves to a certain extent. Many weeks ago, people were buying for the armed forces, but this consisted mainly of smaller items, not necessarily inexpensive, which they packed in Yule boxes for overseas shipment. Into these boxes often went Canada's finest watches, rings, identification bracelets, and a great variety of khaki or airforce blue articles. Peterborough's stores are in some cases entirely out of army or airforce handkerchiefs. For the women in the forces, gifts both serviceable and attractive took the spotlight. An interesting observation is that service girls were also sent pretty feminine gifts, for use or for wearing after they get back in "civvies".

Clerks observe that many women are going to receive lamps, expensive dishware, china, silver, and cutlery Christmas morn.

For the 'Teen-Agers

'Teen-aged high school boys and girls are going to receive sportswear, windbreakers and parkas for the boys, ski-togs, head-gear, and winter outfits for the girls. Although some girls might be hoping to find a large number of pairs of silk hosiery, the stores informed this reporter their dreams won't come true, unless some miracle takes place. Greater than ever, is the way this shortage is described.

Books, thoughtful gifts at any Christmas, are taking a new importance this year in popular demand, with light novels, best-selling mystery stories and poetry very much in order.

The list is endless, but the story that comes from out of that list is new. Discovery was made that people in the pinch of war, are keeping up the traditions of Christmas under any circumstances; buying what can be bought, and not complaining about what can't be bought. Army, airforce and navy men and women on a half-dozen fronts have taken first place in everyone's Christmas shopping plans. Lines of merchandise in demand, but gone from shelves until the war is over, are not worrying many people. Substitutes have been found, and these are cheerfully accepted by the people. No one is complaining because a few Christmas lights are dimmed; it seems everyone is keeping up the spirit of Christmas, until all lights are on again!

Singing Of Christmas Carols Symbolic Of Angelic Salute Over Bethlehem

By HARRY THEOBALD

The carol service at the Collegiate Institute Sunday night after church will faintly resound echoes of man's singing response through the centuries to the angelic salute over Bethlehem—"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace..."

This service is being sponsored by the Friday Night Supper Club of the Y.M.C.A., and becomes an incident of the great Christian festive season commemorating the birth of the promised Redeemer of all mankind. Many generations of men had lived and died before the world understood and accepted the message of that first Christmas with a rebound of ecstasy that wrote such phrases as "Glad tiding of great joy I bring to you and all mankind," and set them to music, much of which survived as folksong and now fills the late December air beyond the range and volume of the first angelic chorus.

If some of the first exultation has been dimmed by the long slow passage of time and increasingly secular atmosphere, at least the Christmas welkin rings as never it did in antiquity and in the later years that created most of the carols now featuring the Yuletide music. Instead of the serenading waits of the English villages and towns a century and more ago when little groups of men and women harmonized the traditional songs of their shires and their nation at Christmas time, continuing custom that survived strange vicissitudes and lapses of an old popularity once almost universal throughout Christendom, the carols of this season are heard in every radio home in the land. Descending to a particular phase of the Christmas songs of the present years it may be said that one voice alone has become something of an international institution to a vast audience of millions, Bing Crosby's singing of "Silent Night! Holy Night." Church choirs and soloists swell the recital of the outline story of the Virgin Mary and her Son, finding refuge in the stable of an inn at Bethlehem, and of the star seen by the spherds, until surely the message from Palestine so long ago reaches every ear again.

An Amazing Contrast

Radio becoming a handmaiden of that opening chapter of the drama and tragedy of Christ the Redeemer presents a wondrous and amazing contrast with an experience of only a century ago recorded by Washington Irving in his Sketch Book of an incident on a visit to England in 1820. That Christmas night he was surprised to hear beautiful music from rustics: "I had scarcely got to bed when a strain of music seemed to break forth in the air just below my window. I listened, and found it proceeded from a band, which I concluded to the waits (serenaders) from some neighboring village. They went round the house, playing under the windows." He listened 'with hushed delight', and notes, half apologetically, that "even the sound of the waits, rule as may be their minstrelsy, breaks upon the mid-watches of a winter night with the effect of perfect harmony."

The 'waits' of this year of 1944 (even the calendar dates from that first year of our Lord) are grouped about the microphone of the magic medium of our own time, in church and studio, and perhaps it is fitting to add that God fulfills Himself in wondrous ways. Possibly the refinement and facility of the radio removes from the old English spirit of Christmas much of its homeliness and simplicity and active expression of religious faith and devotion, replacing it with the vicariousness of the ethereal vocalists and an aspect of artificiality. But, it is our modern way, and at least the radio bends a knee of homage at the crib of Bethlehem with the approval of the millions of Christians who thereby have regained a new understanding and appreciation of the carols sung by our own race in a long period that time, and men's neglect have obscured.

Of the origins of the Christmas carol, as distinct from those which were once sung at other seasons, it is not the purpose of this brief reference, and anyway, according to the Oxford Book of Carols: "When people give lectures or addresses about carols, a few of their statements are correct; another is that the task of workers in this field (of research) is heavy, and beset with pitfalls."

Those songs of Christmases long ago almost vanished into the mists. Undoubtedly some of them have been lost. When the Puritans became ascendant in England all the old airness and merriment of religious devotion was put under a curse. Christmas as a festivity was expunged from the national calendar and reduced to a day of fasting.

"God rest you merry gentlemen,
Let nothing you dismay..."

The merry gentlemen of England had their faces recast into a glum mould of some inexplicable perversion of the spirit of religion. Eventually that madness disappeared as just another incident in "our long island story," and the Georgian days and the influence of Charles Dickens helped restore the carols of Christmas to something like their old place in the nation's life and conviction.

"Indeed when Dickens was a boy the carol seemed to be on the verge of extinction, and William Hone, the author of The Every Day Book, anticipated that carol-singing would entirely disappear in a few years," to quote again the Oxford University Press.

Question Answered

The most arresting aspect and flavor of the carols of Christmas should be found in the answer to the question why men once sang and danced, and in the words of "Adeste Fidelis"—"O come all ye faithful, joyful and triumphant...let's hasten to adore Him." And whence has gone the exultation that inspired all those paeans of praise and glory, composed by men in the British Isles, in France and Holland, and Germany, and elsewhere on the continent—that ecstasy of deliverance, such as in a way overwhelmed the populace of Paris a month ago and whirled into emotional delirium for days and nights.

And these folks sang the whole story, no doubt because it actually appeared to them as integral, of Adam's fall and the redemption thereof, of the Hebrew prophets and their foretelling of the birth of a Messiah.

The theme recurs in most of the carols. Among those of traditional classification is one entitled "A Virgin Most Pure" of which the following is a brief quotation:

"A virgin most pure, as the prophets do tell,
Hath brought forth a baby, as it has befel,
To be our Redeemer from death, hell and sin...'

All Birds Remaining Here For Winter Not Seed-Eaters

By G. H. RICHARDSON

The majority of small birds which winter with us are seed-eaters like the finches, or subsist on berries of the most popular of which is the Mountain Ash. Woodpeckers drill into solid wood after dormant pupae, and certainly find ample to live on. Nevetherless a few birds stay which neither eat seeds nor can drill after wood borers.

The Brown Creeper gets pupae from crevices in the bark of trees. Its actions are so different and characteristic that you hardly need more than a glimpse at the bird to know what it is. For its starts low down on a trunk, sometimes right from the roots, and spirals its way up the tree by little jerks, around and around as it goes, until it has looked carefully over the whole surface, when it flies down to the bottom of another tree and starts the performance all over again.

It is usually a shy bird, but sometimes if you approach slowly, without any jerky movements, one will let you get close enough to really see it. Of course, it is at times like this that eight-power binoculars are such a help, for then you can watch a bird's private life at such a distance that it is not in the least disturbed.

Brown Creeper

The Brown Creeper is a tiny bird, only five and a quarter inches long, with a fairly long curved bill. Within its minute size, it contains a pattern in soft browns and white which is truly exquisite in design.

The tail is rather long, and composed of stiff feathers with which it props itself against trunks in woodpecker fashion. This case of parallel development is rather interesting.

Only One Creeper Here

In North America we have only

Golden-crowned Kinglet

the one Creeper, but in South America, there are a number of species of close relatives, the Woodhewers. These vary in size from some the size of a Flicker to one as tiny as our Brown Creeper.

Another small insect-eater is the Golden-crowned Kinglet. This mite is only four and a quarter inches long. The name Kinglet is very appropriate since the bird's head is patterned with a crown-like effect. In the male there is a central stripe of fiery orange, bordered with clear yellow, this in turn margined with a broad black stripe. The female is similar except that the orange part is lacking, the part between the black being all yellow.

This group of birds is in the same family as the Old World "warblers," which latter are not related to our "warblers," which are a distinct family.

Kinglets scour the fine branches and twigs which evidently supply them with food the year round. We see them snap up something as they go, but we cannot see what it is, in the field. Anaylsis of stomach contents shows insects, their eggs larvae and pupae, and doubtless it is the last which they find in winter, lodged somehow in the twigs.

Their common call note is a thin, very high-pitched series of short whistles, usually three in a row—sss, sss, sss.

For Bad Winter Coughs, Mix This Syrup at Home

Quick Relief. Big Saving. So Easy. No Cooking.

This well known recipe is used by many thousands of housewives, because they have found that it gives them an effective, dependable medicine for distressing winter coughs. It's so easy to mix—anyone can do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for effect on throat membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all and takes but a moment. No cooking needed. (Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey instead of sugar syrup.)

Put the Pinex into a 16 ounce bottle and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of cough syrup, unusually quick-acting and dependable, and you get four times as much cough medicine for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be surprised by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving quick, satisfying relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please in every way.

THERE WILL BE A CHANGE, IN THEIR RHYTHM, COME THE GAME—It's rhumba rhythm now for these linemen of the New York Giants football team, but it will be something different at the Polo Grounds, New York, December 17, when they face the Green Bay Packers in the title play-off for the United States professional football championship. They are, Left to Right: Frank Liebel, Vic Carroll, Happy Sivell, Bill Piccolo, Len Younce, Frank Cope and O'Neal Adams.

Transports Win Close Game From St. John's

Transports outlasted St. John's to win a hard fought, close checking senior game in the Ladies' Basketball League at the Y.W.C.A. Friday night 18 to 14. The win shot last year's champs into the lead with Saints dropping to second place.

In the Junior battle between Westclox and Quakers, the Big Bens won in overtime 21 to 19, after the most exciting finish of the campaign.

Transports won the senior fixture on the strength of a scoring splurge in the second quarter that saw them outscore St. John's 8 to 1. They had a lead at half time of 12 to 3 but the fighting Saints battled back in characteristic style after the rest and ran up 11 points as against six for the winners and made it decidedly close in the final stages, after having been well outplayed in the first two periods. It was a low-scoring, close checking affair.

Only six points were scored in the opening quarter, Beryl Dobbin firing two baskets for the Transports and Eva Clarke tossing in one for the Saints. In the second quarter, however, the champs got an attack rolling and Beryl Dobbin, Jean Castle, Isobel Crary and Fran. Bestard all found the range with field baskets while the only reply from the disorganized St. John's was a free throw by Joan Patterson.

It was a different story in the second half for the Saints began to drive in and when they scored three baskets in a row closed up the gap considerably. Marg. Hawthorne sparked the drive with two field baskets and a successful free throw and for a while it looked as if the surge would carry the church team to a win. However the Transport checking tightened in the last five minutes and the champs were able to hold their four point lead.

Beryl Dobbin with eight points was top scorer for the winners with Jean Castle contributing four. Marg. Hawthorne led the Saints with five points and Eva Clarke had four. The teams:

Transports, 18—Beryl Dobbin 8, Jean Castle 4, Isobel Crary 2, Fran. Bestard 2, R. Fleming, Irene Stewart 2, Isobel Bullock.

St. John's, 14—Teresa Heslip 2, Marg. Batley, Joan Patterson 3, Eva Clarke 4, M. Keeler, Edith McIlhagga, Marg. Hawthorne 5, Edith Harte-Maxwell.

Referee, Clarence Davern; umpire, J. Cooper; timer, A. Neiman.

The Westclox-Quaker junior argument was a close affair all the way, with neither team able to set up a commanding lead. The Big Bens with Olive Hanwell tossing in five field baskets and a free throw outscored the Quakers in the first half 12 to 9, but in the second half the team from the Porridge factory made it a battle all the way.

The teams went into the last minute of play with Westclox leading 18 to 17. Then with only 45 seconds left Helen White made a perfect shot from the side to put the Quakers in front 19 to 18 and that accurate toss looked like the winner. Just as the playing time ended however Dot Dawson was fouled and given a free throw. The game hinged on that shot and the Westclox guard came through like a champion to sink the throw and tie up the ball game at 19-19.

In the first few moments of the overtime Olive Hanwell came up with a field basket to give the Westclox the win.

She was the scoring star of the engagement with 15 points, highest tally of the evening. Dot Dawson checked well at guard and in addition tossed in three free throws, including the all-important one that saved the game.

For Quakers Helen White led the scorers with eight points. The losers had Peggy Lawless in action, and in her first game of the season—and er last incidentally for she is leaving for Toronto shortly—the former St. John's player contributed six points to her team's total.

The teams:

Westclox, 21—Verna Patterson 1, Muriel Woodcock, Olive Hanwell 15, Barbara Wyatt, Josephine Crowe 2, Viva Clarke, Dot Dawson 3, Florence Hanwell, Betty Wyatt, Josephine Hobbins.

Quakers, 19—Helen White 8, Gertie Masters 4, Mae Willshaw, Peggy Lawless 6, Mary Masters, Theresa Spencer, Jean Sutton,, Vera Beggs.

Referee, J. Cooper; umpire H. Smith; timer, A. Neiman.

People Clamor

On Sale Monday

"Scotch whiskey went on sale at ten o'clock on Monday morning and at two o'clock we were cleaned out. There was a line-up down to the corner. We have no more right now," the manager said.

"What good is that to the man in the war plant who is entitled to the good stuff and doesn't get up town until after five," shot back the scribe.

"Don't ask me riddles, I don't make the stuff; when it's gone it's gone. It just happens there are a lot of people in Peterborough and a lot of people all across Ontario who buy Scotch the minute it goes on the shelves, and we can't do anything about it if the factory worker is not here when that happens."

"Lindsay and Port Hope appear to get more Scotch than Peterborough" suggested the reporter.

"That's ridiculous, we get our quota based on what was sold in 1942 and it's the same with other places. The only difference is that it lasts longer at Port Hope and Lindsay because there are fewer buyers."

Got Better Of Argument

Thus it went on with the overworked vendor apparently getting the better of the argument, and the reporter no nearer the Australian wine or—the Scotch, so he decided to try a new angle.

"I've heard along the street that you people tip off your friends when the good stuff comes in, and they stampede into the place and clean it out in record time."

That little speech brought sizzling results and it boiled down to one plain statement: "Listen young man if you can prove that any favoritism is being shown I'll buy you the best bottle of whiskey in the store. We treat everyone alike in this store and don't you forget it." This is about the meanest job in the city at Christmas time and there is bound to be a lot of squawks but we are doing our best and we are certainly not playing favorites. We told everybody who phoned Saturday Scotch would be on sale Monday.

All this time the employees in the store were working in high gear, but it was obvious the small size of the store made it difficult to handle a big crowd—and the phone jangled again...

Satisfied that his grievance was just one of the minor wartime irritations the reporter turned to go when the manager blurted out with his parting shot—"If you want to help the situation instead of making our job more difficult—get us a larger store.

And thus ended a reporter's trip to the inner sanctum at the liquor store where he had hoped to unravel the mystery of the missing wine and Scotch—but found instead that obviously the fault didn't lie in Peterborough but in the source of supply—there were no special brands hidden under the counters.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

At the last moment the record blizzard of midweek has knocked the Y.M.C.A. swim meet scheduled for the local pool tonight for a loop. With the roads now open and traffic moving again it was not thought that there would be any difficulty about the visit of the Toronto Central Y swimmers who were to have contributed a major part of the program. However at the eleventh hour comes word of an obstacle that has proved insurmountable and as a result the meet has been postponed until January 6. The roads may be open but that doesn't mean a thing to the Toronto swimmers who had been depending on private cars for their transportation and who now find the cars are not available because it has been impossible to get them dug out from beneath their blanket of snow. As a result it has been necessary to call the show off until after the holidays. It is a tough break because Gordon Minty, swim coach says that the affair would have been a sell-out.

Fans who left the Y.W.C.A. gym last night before the Westclox-Quaker game, second on the weekly card, was over, missed a story book finish. The two teams battled on even terms all the way and as the last minute started the Big Bens were in front 18 to 17. Then with only 45 seconds to go Helen White apparently won the tidy argument for the Quakers when she came up with a beautiful basket to make the count 19 to 18 for the breakfast food gang. The seconds rapidly passed with Quakers clinging to that slender lead. The game was virtually over with the score unchanged. Then came a last second foul and it was up to Dot Dawson who had already sunk two free throws. The game depended on her toss and she arose to the occasion with a perfect shot that dropped through the hoop. That tied the score and in the overtime Olive Hanwell settled the argument in a hurry by potting her seventh field basket of the engagement to make the final count Westclox 21, Quakers 19. It was the most dramatic ending to a girls' basketball game in years. Incidentally the double card really lived up to expectations for Transports and St. John's in the senior bracket staged a hard-checking battle that saw the Saints come from far behind to make it close at the finish. There will be no more games until after the holidays.

Terrific Trundling

The boys in the City Five Pin League were certainly red hot Thursday night when the pins took their worst beating of the season. The Ramblers supplied most of the fireworks with an astounding display that saw them set up a team single game record of 1609, an average of better than 300 pins a man, and come close to equally the all-time team three-game record with a cross of 3912. Playing against the leaders, Chris Graham's Empress team, Ramblers grabbed off 4 points despite the fact that the losers did some high-class bowling themselves with a total of 3531 which is real trundling in any kind of company but was of little avail against the kind of stuff the Ramblers were showing. Three of the Rambler team Bob Dyer, 856, Bert McCarroll 854 and "Tick" Caccavella 800, climbed into the 800 class, Jimmy Herron tacked on 759 and A. White was low man with 643. It was a spectacular performance and the feat of the Ramblers will give the rest of the teams something to shoot at and talk about for the rest of the season. It was a great night's rolling for Ken Graham's Empress team piled up a team total of 3761, and no fewer than six bowlers climbed into the 800 class and 14 had singles of 300 or better. The manner in which the sharp-shooters are performing indicates that other records may go by the boards before the long schedule is completed.

As a result of the meeting Thursday night 'teen age hockey should be well looked after in Peterborough this winter. The set-up includes a loop for teams composed of boys under 16, fathered by the Peterborough Hockey Club, a juvenile league that is being organized by Jim Buchan, a public school league, and likely a Church Hockey League. Such an arrangement should take care of boys from public school age up to 18 years of age and serve the purpose of developing and encouraging young material so that when the Memorial Health Centre arena is completed and Peterborough steps back into the hockey picture the nucleus of O.H.A. teams will be available. With the members of the Petes taking a keen interest in the plan and providing coaching and management for the players under 16 years of age it is expected that any youngsters showing promise will develop rapidly and be ready for Ontario competition when the time comes. It is a big step forward and the various loops should have support and encouragement on all sides. Open air hockey has its drawbacks but is is better than no hockey at all and after all many of the greatest players in the history of the game started their hockey careers on outdoor cushions.

Says Cowley's Tops

Describing an argument as to the greatest centre ice player in hockey history Doug Vaughan of the Windsor Star writes: One of the fellows in the discussion drew derisive hoots by stating flatly that Cowley was the best centre he had ever seen and he admitted that he had seen Morenz, Apps, Schmidt and Boucher. "Okay," he said, in answer to the catcalls. "My idea of a centre is a man who can really make plays. And I think that Cowley was, and is, the best playmaker of any of those we have mentioned. Look at Cowley's record year in and year out. He not only manages to finish among the leading scorers himself but whoever plays on the same line with him always manages to do all right, too. Ask fellows like Roy Conacher, Ray Getliffe, Buzz Boll, Herbie Cain or any of the others who have played alongside Cowley and they'll tell you what kind of a centre he is. I admit that fellows like Morenz and Apps and Schmidt may be recognized as greater hockey players but, in my book, they weren't greater centres with the possible exception of Schmidt. Milt was also a great playmaker and, in addition, was stronger and more rugged than Cowley is so that, when the necessity arose, he could bull his way through a defence or stickhandle around."

Remembering the days when the residence rule for hockey players called for them to be continuous residents from the middle of the previous summer and teams were tossed out because they had imports who arrived a day or two late this paragraph from Bill Gaynon's column in the Niagara Falls Review makes strange reading: "They used to say of the late Roy Brothers, who managed so many Stratford amateur and professional hockey clubs, that he piloted three pro teams yearly, one coming, one going and the one he used. The departed classic city pilot generally showed the way to other moguls in player turnovers, but it begins to appear that Dick Dwor and Chuck Magee, the men who are paying the overhead for Pt. Colborne junior squad, may excel the Brothers marks this campaign. Starting out to find a club after practically all other league entries had lined up their rosters, their week's training session here found manager Wray Roubel importing young disc exponents in car load lots. The hustling Wray went to many Ontario points and at one time, more than 30 kids were seeking playing berths on the lakeside outfit. Many of these were cut loose by coach Gonie McGowan, and others have been moving in and out of Pt. Colborne in recent weeks with the speed of page boys at a session of Dominion parliament. So far Wray and Gonie have been unable to find a winning combination, but with rail and highway transportation still open to their area, newcomers may continue to arrive for hockey purposes, and even early navigation may open another route for ambitious performers."

Ramblers Set New Record For Single Game

In the most sensational bowling in years, Ramblers set a new record for a high single game when they hammered the pins for a 1509 single game count, in the Men's City League at Duffus last night.

They also came within an ace of setting the high three record, garnering a 3912 count for the triple. The record is held by a C.G.E. team and was rolled about 12 years ago. That team included Fred Martin, Bud Weese, Fred Hickey, Jack Playford and Tom Miller and they just topped the 4000 mark in a playoff fixture. The other outfit to top 3900 was the Roseland team from Toronto, hitting 3996 in a tournament at the Duffus Alleys.

Big team scores were a feature of the night's rolling, Ken Graham's Empress team hitting 3761, Harold Freeman's crew 3523 and Chris Graham's Empress 3531.

As may be assumed high individual scores were many, no less than six bowlers beating the 800 mark in their cross and 14 single games over the 300 mark.

Bob Dyer led the triple parade with 856, closely folowed by his teammate, Bert McCarroll with 854. Phil Pyrde had 851 and Bud Weese was next with 829, Barney Worsencroft 819 and "Tick" Caccavella 800. The single scores were topped by R. Bassett with 353, W. Firth 336, J. Herron 335, B. Goodson 335, B. McCarroll 333-305, P. Pryde 332, R. Dyer 326, W. Weese 326, N. Routley 317, A. Caccavella 314, V. Anthony 311, K. Graham 306, M. Duffus 304.

It is interesting to note that the Ramblers set their high mark rolling the league leaders and gained a 4-2 decision. Three of the men on the winning aggregation topped 800 and five single games bettered 300.

Agriculture Made

"Yes, we'll have a new era, despite all inhibitions. If it is to be the kind we want, a lot of constructive thinking is going to have to be done. This is up to the individual, and not a case of letting our leaders do it, or "George." The thinking will have to be done at home, and that, I think, will be the basis of the post-war program."

With regard to the production and marketing program, Mr. Milburn said, "It has been said by good authority that at the present, our bacon products going over in large volume, are not being sold as Canadian bacon."

He said that we are going to have to carry quality grading right through to the consumer. "We will have to assure our world customers that we have a continuity of supply."

"There will probably be some drastic changes in price structure, marketing, grading, and we may have to have some controls. Free and open trading did not always react to the advantage of agriculture. Farm organizations will be important, as they are now. The organizations give us an understanding of problems, and complete a great educational job. The mere fact they bring us together gives us education."

Mr. Milburn spoke of "democratically-controlled regimentation" to a certain extent, together with the farm organizations, "may not be resented and would be helpful."

The well-known agriculturist told of a recent event, when representatives of the packing industry, farmers and labor, gathered together to discuss, understand and try to solve their problems, around a dinner table. He spoke of the cooperation which was evident, and how they came to a common understanding in a neighborly way, as being history in the making.

Solving of Problems

When we are big enough, and sensible enough to discuss problems in a semi-social atmosphere, many problems can and will be solved, Mr. Milburn concluded.

Introduced by Bill Ovens, chairman of the Kiwanis Agriculture committee, Mr. Milburn was given a hearty vote of thanks by Tom Rodger. Charles Saunders, president, passed this vote of thanks on to the speaker.

J. B. Nelson, formerly of Peterborough and a past president of the Kiwanis here, welcomed the visitors from the county to the meeting.

Harry L. Jackson expressed, on behalf of the visitors, his thanks to the Kiwanis Club, for the privilege and honor of being guests.

During the meeting, Frank C. Paterson, Peterborough County representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, urged all agricultural men present to attend the Friday afternoon portion of the Poultry conference, at the Co-op Hall. Many well-known experts on poultry flock management, feeding, diseases and other divisions of the care of poultry, spoke at the Conference.

Kiwanian Milf Hardill welcomed Kiwanians to the ceremonies next Tuesday evening, when Lieut. Stan Longhurst, Officer Commanding the R.C.S.C.C. Howe, will turn over his duties to Lieut. Charles Huffman, R.C.S.C.C., who will be the new Officer Commanding.

A draw for a blanket valued over $8, was won by a visitor, Alfred Elmhurst. Plans for a curling session in January were outlined by Dr. Cliff McKee, but there will be more details later.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Dec. 16 — (CP). — One experienced sports observer who doesn't think former hockey players should have too tough a time getting back into competition after the war is George (Edmonton Bulletin) Mackintosh. As proof of that he points out that ex-servicemen made up a large proportion of players in the old Western Canada Hockey League just after the First Great War, a league which "provided as good a brand of puck-chasing as anybody ever looked at."

Among the returned soldiers in that loop were Red Dutton, Herb Gardiner, Bill Cook, Roe Simpson, Duke Keats, Jocko Anderson, Rabbit McVeigh, to mention a few. And plenty of them brought back scars of combat from the fields of France and Flanders.

George doesn't cotton to Jimmy Dykes' suggestion that the strain of combat duty would affect their playing ability to any great extent, once they get back in practice. He thinks "Jimmy Dykes and others inclining to his view are unduly pessimistic."

Tribute:

From all over the country, tributes have been coming in to the late Walter McMullen, sports editor of the Hamilton Spectator. Perhaps none is as revealing of the high esteem Walter was held in as that given by Baz O'Meara of the Montreal Star. Asked for identification when trying to cash a cheque in Hamilton one day, Baz mentioned McMullen's name as reference. The clerk didn't even telephone to check on it, says Baz, but cashed the cheque immediately.

Toughest fight:

The greatest fight Jimmy McLarnin ever staged, he told Ken (Vancouver Province) McConnell, was his last meeting with Mickey Gill, Western boxer who has been killed in France with the United States infantry. McLarnin and Gill grew up together and fought three times. While Jimmy went on to fame and the world welterweight title, Gill fought professionally for a time, but never achieved great success.

Clapper, beware:

When Dit Clapper took over the generalship of Boston Bruins in the brief absence of Art Ross, the Bears performed a bit too successfully for Clapper's own good, suggests Mike (Kingston Whig-Standard) Rodden. He recalls when Sprague Cleghorn and Frank Patrick on two separate occasions took temporary command of the Bostonians and encouraged them to display unexpected power. They soon were given the gentle heave-ho, so comments Mike. "Clapper would be well advised to read history."

Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., pulled in the second round yesterday of the Richmond, Calif., open golf tourney with a 69 to go into a tie for first place at the half-way mark with an unknown entrant, Jimmy Walkup of San Antonio, each with a total of 139. Behind this pair, with 144, were Ky Laffoon of Chicago and Ernie Pieper of San Jose.

University of Detroit handed Western Mustangs of London, Ont., a 55-26 reverse in an exhibition basketball tilt at the motor city last night.

Jackie Paterson, Glasgow dockyard worker who holds the world flyweight title, will have a return bout with Petty Officer Ben Duffy who scored a knockout over him in their non-title bout at London, Eng., Thursday night. The date of the engagement was not announced.

Georgie Wolff of Cardston, Alta., is out today to win his fourth gold cup race at Hollywood Park, Inglewood, Calif., riding the favored Paperboy, Irish-bred son of Payrus. Wolff's previous winners were Seabiscuit in 1938, Kayak II in 1939 and Challedon in 1940.

In a mixed basketball double-headed at Guelph last night. St. Jerome's College junior champions from Waterloo topped Guelph Y's men's team 51-43 while London Shamrocks, girl's intermediate "B" champions of last season, outpointed Guelph Royals 37-27. Miss L. Clarke led the London lassies with 14 points.

Ruffin-Greco In Sizzling Boxing Match

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 — (AP).—Those two ex-soldiers, Johnny Greco of Montreal and Bobby Ruffin of Long Island, had a lot of bruises and a pocket full of doubt to-day, and were the centre of a red-hot debate as to which is the better scrapper.

They battled to a sizzling 10-round draw in Madison Square Garden last night, although Ruffin had to climb off the canvas twice to draw even with a late spurt. The referee gave it to Ruffin, six rounds to four, but the two judges called it even for the official verdict.

Greco, discharged recently from the Canadian Army, and Ruffin, formerly in the United States Army, picked up about $25,000 each from the gross gate of $86,489 — fourth largest for the Garden this year—paid by 17,958 fans

Ruffin, a master boxer, hit Greco several thousand times without seeming effect, but every time Greco hit the Long Islander the balcony shook. Ruffin's nose, a worthy target, bled during the late rounds, and his left eye was cut slightly, while Greco's eyes were discolored by the pumping left of Ruffin.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Vancouver's Jimmy McLarnin and Billy Townsend scored knockouts at Boston 12 years ago tonight. McLarnin, who later became world's welter champion, put Sammy Fuller out for keeps in the eighth round after flooring him four times while Townsend, semi-finalist on the card, sprawled Andy Saviolax to the mat in three rounds.

Detroit May Topple Classy Habitants

By BOB NIELSEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With a helping hand from second division clubs, Detroit's hard-hitting Red Wings this week-end can strike a power blow towards knocking Canadiens off their top perch in the National Hockey League.

The spurting Wings have a chance to move into second place by taking tonight's game at Toronto with Maple Leafs, who have a one-point edge, and in Chicago Sunday Jack Adams' men look for an easy two points against the tail-end Hawks. Meanwhile Canadiens tonight play host to the fourth-place Boston Bruins and travel to New York Sunday for an encounter with Rangers, tenants of fifth.

This year's edition of the Red Wings, like Adams-coached clubs of the past, is a group of virile athletes who play straight hockey with emphasis on bumps. Defence and attack both are sound with such respected veterans as Flash Hollett, Syd Howe, Mud Bruneteau, Carl Liscombe, Don Grosso, Murray Armstrong and Joe Carveth performing as efficiently as ever. Supplementing this talent are promising newcomers — Steve Wochy, Ted Lindsay and Mud Bruneteau's younger brother Eddie, boasting one of the hardest shots in the game.

The Wings will be favorites to top Leafs tonight despite the expected return of centre Gus Bodnar to the Toronto lineup. The Detroiters were victorious in both previous clashes with Leafs this season, scoring an easy 8-4 decision in their first Toronto appearance.

Cornwall Team Beats Cataracts

CORNWALL, Dec. 16 — (CP). — Cornwall Cookies scored a 3-1 victory over Shawinigan Falls Cataracts last night and strengthened their hold on second place in the Interprovincial Hockey League, moving to within two and a half games of the leading Valleyfield Braves.

An unsuspected shot from the blue line by Bernie Gravel early in the first period set the Cookies on the victory trail, then when Babe Tapin left on a penalty, Bisson raced in to score on Laframboise's pass. Tapin was penalized for remaining on the ice with a broken stick.

Déroche scored what proved to be the winning goal seconds before the end of the frame and in the second period Andy Perron added the third tally.

EXPENSIVE POSTAGE

CARDIFF, Wales — (CP). — It cost 6,000,000 drachmas postage to send a postcard to Cardiff from Athens. At pre-war exchange rates this would have been £10,000 (about $45,000).

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 — (AP).—By actual count, one speaker of the recent A.A.U. convention used the words "physical fitness" 91 times in a brief address......But there is something else that sport does for kids besides helping them physically—and a notable example is cavorting on basketball courts these days....Big Bob Kurland of Oklahoma A. and M., when he first appeared hereabouts, was an awkward kid who was obviously embarrassed by his seven-foot height and apparently doing his best to conceal it....Now you will find him a poised young man who doesn't seem to mind when people gawk at him, who plays basketball as a good team man instead of just a "goal tender," who guides and steadies his younger teammates.... And you can credit the change not only to Coach Hank Ibas efforts, but to sport in general—because so many other kids have undergone the same sort of transformation.

Sound effects:

One of the latest "crackpot" ideas to reach Ray (Semi-pro) Dumont, who can think of enough himself, comes from a Floridian who has invented wired bases that ring a bell when a player's cleats hit the bag....This is supposed to help the umpires call the close ones....Now how about a whistling ball so the runner will know it is coming?

GIVE YOUR BLOOD NOW!

THE NEED IS SO VERY URGENT

BOTH MEN AND WOMEN

Both Men and Women between the ages of 18 and 60 years of age are urgently needed to help fill the Peterborough Blood Banks.

At present they need many new donors. Surely you can register your name. The blood plasma is constantly in use so that the reserve must be built up to help the seriously wounded.

Don't let the boys over there down by not doing your part at home!

PETERBOROUGH RED CROSS BLOOD DONOR CLINIC
Phone 8248 or 8633
For Any Information
135 BROCK STREET

At blood donors' service headquarters, name, address and phone are taken.

Prospective donors wait their turn to give 450 CC. (approx. 3-4 pint) of blood.

Nurse's aide checks pulse and temperature. Donor must be healthy.

The most glorious help a civilian can give to a fighting man is also one of the easiest to give. It is three-quarters of a pint of blood . . . blood you'll never miss.

Today a Blood Donor Service—serving all branches of the armed forces—is carrying on the greatest life-saving business in the whole history of mankind.

Through it, any healthy adult—with no harm to himself or herself, and with almost no inconvenience—can directly and certainly save the lives of three, four, five, even six Canadian fighting men each year. Men who will be dead unless some one gives three-quarters of a pint of their blood.

If you live within reach of the Blood Donor Clinic, call now for your appointment.

Somewhere, months later, a man will come back to his home, where he never would have come again except for you. Surely you could spare a little blood to see one of your family return home safely—maybe your own son, husband, or sweetheart is out in the field wounded and is badly in need of a transfusion. Won't you help to bring him back?

Refreshments are served by canteen worker. Next visit: Men 8 weeks — women 12 weeks.

Reports reaching Peterborough from Chandos township say the snow in many sections there is not as deep as it is in the Peterborough district.

NO POLICE COURT

For the first time in weeks there was no session of the police court this morning. There were no arrests through the night and the police department report an unusually quiet session, so far as complaints were concerned.

SMOOTH WORK

Grading snow to the centre of the street from both side and then sending the automatic loader through the long ridge was the clearing technique along Rubidge street, south of Charlotte street, today. The machines were removing the snow thoroughly and fast, a method City Engineer Parsons had proposed before the present mechanical equipment had arrived.

FLIER KILLED

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Lister, 171 Gordon avenue have been notified that their nephew, PO. Gerald Lawrence Lister, R.C.A.F. of Amherst, N.S. was killed in action overseas, December 12. He had visited in Peterborough several times.

EMBARGO LIFTED

When the storm tied up all traffic in Toronto early in the week, both the C.N.R. and C.P.R. Express companies issued orders that no shipments would be accepted for Toronto and suburbs until road conditions improved. The embargo was lifted today.

3 New Permits Are Given To Deliver Milk

Three new permits to deliver milk into the city for bottle trade were issued during November and recommended by Dr. Harold Worton, Sanitary Inspector MacPherson reported to the Board of Health this week.

It included this comment: "The renewal of license for one dairy has been withheld until such time as certain repairs were made to walls and ceilings. Now, it may be difficult to prove that a defective wall in a dairy would directly affect safety and quality of milk, but it was felt that in the interests of general sanitation some definite action should be taken." The interior of one other dairy has been completely repainted with a light colored washable paint. This definitely helps to maintain a high standard of cleanliness. Another dairy which for some months has been in process of alteration has completed all changes very much to our satisfactions and painting is now in progress.

Great Care Exercised

The raw milk sent to one dairy was examined by Dr. Worton for visible dirt. Samples were also collected and subjected to reduction tests for quality and bacterial count. Some 4,800 pounds were examined and all but one specimen were Grade A. No visible dirt was evident. This is a remarkably good report and indicates the care exercised by the producers of this particular dairy. These results also reflect themselves in exceptionally low bacterial counts in the final pasteurized product."

Alderman Dutton, chairman of the Board, commended the inspecting branch on the sustained attention to Peterborough's milk supply as indicated in Mr. MacPherson's report. Citizens may perhaps understand that Dr. Worton is giving special attention to the dairy farms, and the Board feels that it is receiving industrious support from the milk producers.

Incidentally the chairman said he doubted that the citizens really understand the extent of the V.O.N. service that is available, but nothing was suggested at this meeting as to how the public could be more generally informed. In fact, there are some features of the department that are not clearly known to the public and something may be planned in the new year as a program in publicity, and with publicity appreciation of the Department's facilities, work and eeeds.

Some of the restaurants were ordered to buy new covered metal containers to improve the handling of kitchen wastes. Otherwise premises were found in satisfactory condition, Mr. MacPherson reported. Among ideas for consideration after the war, a group of them generally set aside for the present, is the prohibition of the use of all wet coolers for soft drinks.

Food Control N

"In order to stimulate interest of the public in good eating establishments and to revive interest of proprietors in providing for the public every possible protection on more or less a voluntary co-operative basis, it is proposed that this Department, beginning January 1, 1945, collect information with a view to grading all eating establishments. This would include restaurants, hotels and booths, dairies, dairy farms, bakeries and bottling plants.

I think a system of scoring all food establishments will tend to raise our standards still higher, especially if an official seal is prepared that can be affixed to door or window of such establishment."

School Only Closed Two Days By Storm Pupils Ski Or Sleigh To Get Three R's

"Hitch old dobbin to the sleigh, children, and get to school." That might be an early morning conversation in any household in the district around School Section No. 17, the Rifle Range, where blocked side roads have thrown even skis and snowshoes into practice, so that Billy won't miss his lessons.

The whole thing started with Tuesday's record snowstorm, but despite the fury of the blizzard, school progressed as best it could on that day. Wednesday and Thursday, however, the doors remained closed. Friday, when it opened again, only nine of the usual 22 school children turned up, and of these nine, many came via sleds, snowshoes and skis.

"As a matter of fact," said Howard Quinn, secretary of the School Board, "I don't think the children out here take the weather as hard as perhaps the city children do."

"We're expecting the snow plows to clear out some of the side roads any time now. Of course, the old Norwood Road is open, but outside of that, I don't know of many more."

F. B. Smitheram, school inspector for Peterborough East, said this morning that while he hasn't had any late news yet about schools in his district, the one and main problem is side roads being filled with snow He also verified the instances of children using sleds, skis, and snowshoes, beating a bath through wind and snow to the Three R's.

Employees Of Canada Packers Give $100 To Christmas Fund

Anything associated with the name of Canada is tops in Britain, there of course being a reason why this is so, for esteem does not idly flit around to light where it will, unless some very good reason is involved.

More often than not, this happens because of services rendered in some form or other, and this is just what fits into this picture in more ways than one during these latter years, when this country and its component parts have been rendering a service that a few years ago because of its proportions, would have been deemed as almost an impossibility.

In this determined service on behalf of the Empire's cause, this city finds a proportionate leading place, its people and its industries playing more than an ordinary part, among which the Canada Packers Ltd. with others find a place, over 70 per cent of their entire production of a very widespread value from a sustaining standpoint being exported overseas, while their employees have responded in a notable manner to many other efforts, all designed to help along the war effort.

Beside the many calls made on them in which the community has shared as a whole, they have through their Employees Chest Fund been able to give substantially to assist those stricken through enemy air raid or robot bomb attacks, through the local and district fund operating for that purpose.

Another fine donation of $100 is recorded in their name today, being the second of like proportions given this year, following a similar assistance given last year, and undoubtedly the fact that they have this employees chest fund has been of real value in this respect, and in a measure made it possible for them to give such good help to the special donation for Christmas now being raised.

Church and Social Groups

Definitely linked up with the celebration of Christmas, all people adhering to the Christian faith would certainly wish to be associated with a movement that was purely to help people in distress at this season of the year, and today finds two more groups with church affiliations stepping out from their own sphere of endeavor to do a good turn in this way.

These include the St. Peter's subdivision of the Catholic Women's League who made a gift of $10.00 through Miss Lilian Hurley and Mrs. E. F. Riley, with a similar gift coming from the afternoon branch of St. John's church Women's Auxiliary through Miss M. English, their treasurer.

The Happy Dozen Euchre Club have always been associated with the special donation sent by the fund at Christmastide, and this year is no exception, their gift of $16 being also listed today, together with one of $6 from the Lakefield Women's Institute, who also have assisted on former occasions, while a newly formed group of young girls in Campbellford styling themselves the Girls' Victory Club, sent in $1 from their funds which had as yet no time to accumulate to any extent, in response to an appeal made over CHEX.

Another eight purely personal gifts are included also in today's list, among which may be noted J. F. Pilley who has assisted on quite a number of occasions, and Mrs. S. Henwood also contributed in response to the appeal made over the air.

Others include Miss A. Curtis, and R. A. Green, who chose a suggestive way in assisting with a box of coins evidently saved up for this purpose.

Total $464 for Christmas

The tale of the good work done for this one cause by the employees of the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. is by no means fully told as yet, but in keeping a separate record of what comes from this one plant, the secretary of the fund finds that they are now represented in this special effort for Christmas to the extent of $464.33, when the $25.00 recorded today to the credit of the Order and Stores Dept, F. L. Buckland, supervisor, is included.

With today's receipts, the fund has reached the three-quarter mark of its objective, and still requires a further sum of $2,234 to go over the top in the few remaining days before it must be cabled to the Lord Mayor of London.

Taxi Operator Refuses Single Fares

Hugh Davis, owner and operator of Capitol Taxi, said Friday afternoon that he will discontinue his taxi service in Peterborough on December 31, if he is unable to obtain certain adjustments in fares from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Since the snow storm, Capitol Taxi has been refusing to send a cab for one passenger paying a single fare, he said, but there has actually been no increase in rates of any kind. If a customer is willing to pay a double fare, the amount for a return trip, a car will be sent. This is entirely voluntary, and the customer is advised before the cab is sent, he said.

Mr. Davis pointed out that there is absolutely no difference in fares except for the fact a car cannot be sent out unless at least 50 cents is paid. More than one passenger in the car means they will pay the usual 25 cents a single trip.

Approximately 90 per cent. of the customers have expressed their approval of this decision, he said, and in many cases, have "tipped" drivers. Mr. Davis said a "few isolated complaints" had reached the W.P.T.B., but that in almost every case, the complaints had come from customers who were told about the voluntary system, and who accepted it. After they had reached their destinations, he said, they told the driver of their intentions of reporting the "fare change" to the Prices Board.

Because of the snowstorm, Mr. Davis said, in outlining his problem, tire chains have had to be replaced very frequently; there has been a decreased mileage in gasoline; driver's hands or feet have been frozen while attempting to get their passengers to their destinations in snow-filled areas. He described the cost of replacing tire chains as "ridiculous." Another cause of much expense is the large number of calls which cars respond to, only to find no one there.

Recently, Mr. Davis said he had been visited by a representative of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, and that he had submitted a voluntary statement and his operators' sheets for the past few days. They will be sent to the Administrative Services in Toronto, he said.

Want Increase in Rates.

"We are asking for an increase in rates now, that was approved by the local Police Commission two years ago. During the summer months, I don't think any taxi

North Monaghan Council Holds Final Session Before Annexation

Adjournment of North Monaghan council Friday night with the singing of Auld Lang Syne's pledge of remembrance leaves the suburbanites virtually municipal orphans. They have not yet been formally attached to the city and the council dispersed "sine die". All over the province rural municipalities were holding their concluding sittings of the year on Friday, and North Monaghan was one of them.

A two-hour adjournment for supper at the Grand Hotel with Bruce Johnston, clerk, as host to the members and township officials provided an opportunity for finalities and the parting of the ways for separate areas of the township that have at last been absorbed by the city after neighborly association since the days of Adam Scott and the first settlers.

In the meantime the incoming ratepayers received their first city assessment notices this week. Enquiry at the city hall today intimated that the reaction, as reported from a dozen or more sources, varied from some disappointment to content and agreeable surprise. Most of the people had not compiled a comparative statement. On the side of credit to the city should be included reduction in the light and water bills of the Utilities Commission, reduction in garbage collection cost, and the $8 a year service charge for sewer connection, certainly a decrease in debenture assessments, at least where they have been applying, lower fire insurance and so on.

Residents of the parts that are being annexed probably need not be reminded that if they have doubts about their new city assessments, and complaint, they have the usual recourse to the Court of Revision which will hold special Monaghan sessions sometime in January.

Central Smith Forum

A keenly interested group met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Max Archer for the broadcast, "Rural Communities Can Be Attractive."

Much discussion followed during which it was unanimously agreed that, since society insists on attractive surroundings for institutions housing criminals, juvenile delinquents and mental defectives, rural people, should devote more time beautifying their homes, churches and schools and thus make the community more attractive.

Members of the forum attending the United Farmer's Convention held recently in Toronto included: Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Moore and daughter Phyllis, Mrs. Roland Scott, Mrs. Grattan Telford and son Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Clark and son Cameron.

Council Holds Yule Ceremony

The Girls' Council played hostess to a large number of Y.W.C.A. members and their friends at their annual Christmas party, the Hanging of the Greens on Friday evening.

After collecting autographs, the guests enjoyed games under the direction of Misses Connie McKelvie and Hazel Wilson. A short program followed for which Miss Mary Gall, girls' work secretary, was chairman and Jimmie Abraham was at the piano for the singing of Christmas carols. Misses Betty Detcher and Lena Dewart read Christmas stories and Miss Mary Taylor sang.

The guests were then divided into four groups and under the direction of Miss Taylor and her committee they spent an hour transforming the main floor of the building into a gay, Christmas place. From the big sparkling Christmas tree by the desk to the tiniest wreath on the club room mantel all helped to create a festive atmosphere.

Refreshments were served at the close of the evening by a committee under the direction of Misses Eva Roberts and Betty Warner.

Trinity Holds Christmas Party

An interesting variety entertainment was presented at the Trinity Sunday School Christmas concert Friday night, which featured singing and instrumental numbers and a Manger playlet.

Bible Class Chooses New Executive

The Cheerful Workers Bible Class of St. James' United Church held its annual meeting and election of officers on Friday night in the Primary Room of the Sunday School. After a brief business session when reports from officers and departments were received, Rev. F. Craik took the chair for the election, and the following staff is the 1945 executive: President, Miss M. Bowehs; 1st vice-president, Mrs. T. A social half-hour was enjoyed, when Mrs. Holbrook and Mrs. Riel convening their committee served refreshments.

Yule Fantasy Presented By George St.

A gay Christmas program of music, dancing and song was presented at George Street United Church Sunday School Friday evening by members of all classes of the school.

Bright costumes and scenery lent a magic air to the pageant, which was presented in a series of scenes. Two little children, asleep, were visited by Ole Shut-Eye, the sleep elf, who put the dream umbrella over their heads, and they dreamt of Christmas as it is celebrated in other countries. A gay Norwegian Christmas and another Scandinavian Christmas scene was followed by a mummers play, as presented in Old England.

The final presentation was the Nativity scene, and the two children woke to find it real, and joined the group kneeling in adoration about the young Christ Child. A chorus of 40 voices, singing between the numbers, and providing background music, was particularly effective, and the brilliant costumes and scenery and lighting heightened the fairy tale atmosphere.

A jovial Santa Claus paid a visit during the evening, distributing nuts and candy from a decorated Christmas tree, and wishing everyone a Merry Christmas.

Quirt McKinney directed the production, assisted by a committee made up of Mrs. C. Brice, Mrs. H. Lancaster, Miss Jean Hammond, and C. McBride, who was in charge of scenery and the curtains. Frank Greatrix and Leo Copp also assisted. Mis Lenore Skitch was at the piano. Rev. Dr. James Semple was chairman for the evening.

After two carols sung by the primary department, under the direction of Mrs. W. ## Two New I.O.D.E. Chapters Organized In Peterborough

Two new I.O.D.E. Chapters, the Lieut. Col. Agnes Neil, and Mary K. Birdsall Chapters, were officially inaugurated at a formal ceremony at the Empress Hotel Friday evening. All five of the Peterborough chapters of the Independent Order, Daughters of the Empire, were well represented.

As the members of the two new chapters stood before the head table, Mrs. M. S. Somers, a member of the Provincial Chapter, presented the vice-regent of each chapter with the official charter, and Mrs. A. W. Turner handed the standard to the standard bearer of each chapter. Misses Dorothy Franks and Helen Mathias represented the Agnes Neil Chapter, while Misses Sylvia Fine and Wilma Deyell represented the Mary Birdsall Chapter. Mrs. H. G. Carleton is regent of the latter, while Miss Lenore Skitch is regent of the former.

The guest speaker, Mrs. Somers, whose home is in Birdsall, outlined the different phases of work and the activities of the I.O.D.E. The peacetime work of the I.O.D.E., she explained came under several main headings: Empire study, the Echoes, National I.O.D.E. magazine, the Empire work in India, Endowment Fund, and Education. The work for the Navy League is also included, as well as work on films, as well as immigration and Canadianization.

She laid particular stress on the work of education, which is continued in wartime, just as in peace, while others have been handicapped because of war restrictions. Speaking of the adopted school plan, she said that members little realized how much their gift of a library and presents and necessities sent from time to time, meant to these isolated school. She also spoke of the Lucy Morrison Memorial Fund, which has helped many students to carry on at school, by providing a loan.

Two Divisions

In the matter of war activities of the I.O.D.E., Mrs. Somers laughingly said that she didn't know where to begin, but ranged them under two main headings: for service men and women; and women and children in bombed Britain. In the matter of service personnel, she said that over 300 ships, from launches to aircraft carriers, had been adopted by Chapters who provided them with books, various means of entertainment, and treats. The year 'round need for personal comfort bags for women in Britain was also particularly mentioned by the speaker, as well as the nursery bags, both proving invaluable aids to women who had lost everything through bombings. She explained that war brides, after they reached their destinations, ceased to be the responsibility of the Red Cross, and that the I.O.D.E. was expected to help them whenever the need arose.

Mrs. Somers urged the Chapters to support I.O.D.E. special funds as much as possible, naming a few of them: the Sailors' and Minesweepers, Prisoners' of War, Polish Relief, Blanket Fund, Cigarette Fund, War Guest and Service Centre funds.

Silver Jubilee

Beginning her talk, Mrs. Somers explained that this year marked the Silver Jubilee of the provincial Chapter, and remarked that she was happy to note that Peterborough was doing its share to make this year particularly successful and worthy of note. For the benefit of the new members he described the I.O.D.E. badge, and gave the meaning of each part. It consists of a seven-pointed star, each point representing a division of the British Empire. In the centre is the Union Jack, with three crosses, for unity, loyalty and sacrifice. Surrounding all is the white band of Empire, surmounted by the crown. She urged that members understand that the I.O.D.E. was not a club or association, but a definite order, approved by the King.

Mrs. Turner, regent of the 57th Regiment Chapter, who presided, expressed the thanks of those present to Mrs. Somers for her instructive address, and also to Mrs. G. H. Cutmore, guest soloist, who sang "There's a Land," and "Land of Hope and Glory," accompanied at the piano by Miss Lenore Skitch. She also extended greetings of the season to everyone. Mrs. D. Miller offered a prayer following the toast to the King. Among those seated at the head table were the regents of the five Peterborough chapters.

Pageants Feature St. James' Yuletide Concert

A varied and well-balanced Christmas program was presented by the Sunday School of St. James' United Church, Friday evening. Each number was run off quickly, which gave the program more the effect of a Christmas pageant. F. G. Kitney, superintendent of the Sunday school, welcomed the large audience, and introduced the chairman, Rev. F. W. Craik, and George Wallace assistant superintendent of the school, also briefly addressed the gathering.

The program included recitations by Kenny Butler, Donald Rose, and Bobby Turner. A group from the Junior department gave a pantomine "Christmas Rays", while six girls from Miss Ruth Hess' class recited the Christmas story, taken from St. Luke's gospel. A chorus entitled, "Zacchias" was given by boys of Miss Elva Sollitt's class, and the candle lighting story was presented by the girls of Miss Irma Hendry's class.

Following a chorus by the Junior department, the Christmas story was told by seven girls from Mrs. R. Watson's class, and Miss Elva McIntyre gave a recitation. Misses Betty and Mabel Coombes, accompanied at the piano by their mother, sang two duets, and members of the Mission Band presented a playlet, "At the Bethlehem Inn". The pageant of the Nativity was given by a group of young men and women, under the direction of Mrs. K. Sloan, while the Sea Scout group, directed by Stan. Leggitt, also presented a playlet. "The Pearl of Great Price", a little play, was presented by members of the Excelsior Bible Class, directed by Miss J. Martin.

Throughout the program, community singing of Christmas carols was enjoyed. Mrs. G. Wallace, Mrs. R. Moore, Mrs. H. F. Doig and Miss M. Smart were at the piano during the evening.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Fruits, nuts, uncooked and cooked vegetables, some cooked meats, fish and fowl, served cold and dressed with condiments, oils and acids, are known as salads, and we are going to have a few recipes for salads to-day. The most important point in making a raw vegetable salad is the washing of the ingredients. After a thorough washing, soak in cold water for half an hour to make crisp, then dry on a towel or by shaking in a wire basket.

Cabbage Salad

Select a small firm head. Cut in half with a sharp knife and cut very thin. Cover with cold water and let stand one half hour. Drain, wrap in a cloth and put in a cold place until ready to use. Serve with dressing.

Cole Slaw

Half a head of cabbage, 6 eggs, ½ cup sugar, teaspoon salt, teaspoon mustard, 3 teaspoons melted butter, ¼ cup vinegar. Cut the cabbage in several parts and wash well. Remove the core and any wilted or tough leaves and chop the remainder with a sharp knife. Cook the eggs hard, chop five of them, place the chopped cabbage in a salad bowl, add the chopped eggs and toss and fold lightly together. Mix the sugar, salt, mustard, melted butter and vinegar and pour this liquid over the cabbage and eggs. Toss again lightly with a fork held in each hand, arrange in a dish and garnish with the remaining eggs cut in slices.

French Fruit Salad

One orange, a banana, ½ pound malaga grapes, a dozen walnuts, lettuce, dressing. Peel the oranges and cut the sections from the membrane, with a sharp knife or pair of shears. If the fruit is allowed to stand in cold water after peeling, the bitter white membrane will come off easily. Peel the bananas and cut in quarter-inch slices. Remove the skins and seeds from the grapes. Break in small pieces but do not chop the walnut meats. Mix these ingredients thoroughly and place on ice. When ready to serve place on lettuce leaves and serve with a French dressing.

Women Backing Fund To Help Children

The Peterborough branch of the Save the Children Fund had its official introduction to Peterborough citizens at a tea, Friday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. W. Addyman, who is in charge of the Fund for this city. An excellent number of guests attended, and their contributions of money, material and other articles, will be used to get the Fund's activities under way.

Receiving the guests was Mrs. Addyman, the hostess, and Mrs. W. H. Morton was in charge of the guest book, while Mrs. E. Wand unpacked the gifts and made an attractive display of them. The rooms were decorated with a profusion of yellow 'mums and ferns, and the tea table and the buffet were also bright with the yellow blooms.

Centering the table, set with a hand-made lace cloth, was a miniature baby carriage, filled with 'mums and fern, flanked by red tapers in silver holders. Candelabra with yellow tapers were also placed on the buffet.

Pouring tea were Mrs. E. C. Moore and Mrs. E. Mervin, and assisting in serving were Mrs. M. Sloan, Mrs. F. Merrett, Mrs. G. Stevens and Mrs. J. A. Dewart.

Among the articles received for the Fund were two complete layettes, as well as many separate pieces of clothing and materials. As soon as possible, a bale will be packed and sent away to help alleviate suffering of little children in Europe. A real interest in this worthy project was reflected by the number of women who attended the tea, and the splendid choice of their gifts. Headquarters for the Fund is 291 George street, and donations may be left there at any time.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, December 17

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE shows rather routine affairs, with youthful interests, amusements, trips, and romantic adventures to the front. The domestic circle may have enjoyable functions in which the young folks find stimulus. However there may be minor upsets, changes of plans and sudden and surprising situations to call for circumspect rather than erratic management. Control emotions.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of fair progress, with some change, travel, new contracts or affiliations, which may have social, domestic or romantic inspiration. This should be managed without impetuous, erratic or emotional lack of balance and want of sound judgment. Outstanding may be the interests of youth, with art, entertainment, and diversions.

A child born on this day may have moderate talents, in intellectual or artistic pursuits. It may have trivial upsets or reversals to meet sensibly.

For Monday, December 18

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is a most propitious one, with many progressive and productive urges moving to high goals of fruition in cherished desires, major ambitions, with romantic and pleasant adventures to warm and expand the heart as well as mind. There may be trivial occurrences to temporarily upset or annoy, but sound judgment, tact, and goodwill should triumph.

Those whose birthday it is are promised a year in which the goal of hearts' desires may be reached, with progress, fulfilled ambitions, romance, prestige and personal popularity warming and expanding the feelings of goodwill and aspirations. Minor anxieties should not be allowed to thwart such benefices of fair fortune and concentrated good luck. Shun extravagance.

A child born on this day may be a child of fortune, with lady luck and destiny assisting to a happy, romantic and successful career, with much prestige and accomplishment.

DOROTHY DIX

HOW TO BE POPULAR WITH THE GIRLS

A Well-groomed, Efficient Young Man, With a Good Line, Will Make the Grade.

A BOY, who is just beginning to step out with the cuties, asks me how he can make a hit with them. Well, son, that is no trick at all, for girls are easily pleased and they do not turn a critical eye upon a date. Still and all, there is a difference between being regarded as a makeshift and the answer to a maiden's prayer, so if a boy wants to really be a wolf he is wise to go in training for the role.

First, be easy on the eyes. This refers more specifically to your clothes than it does to your face and form. Girls are not particularly enamored of beauty in a man. They prefer to monopolize the good looks themselves. So it doesn't make any difference whether you have a classical profile or a snub nose, but it makes a world of difference whether you look like an ad of what the well-dressed young man is wearing or something the cat brought in and that had better been left in the garbage can.

Learn how to do things. Men tolerate inefficiency in women, but women never forgive it in men. They have a contempt for men who are bungling amateurs who never know their way around. So learn how to dance. Learn how to play a good game of bridge. Learn how to order a nice dinner at a restaurant. A girl could forgive you all the seven deadly sins sooner than she could your feeding her on corned beef and cabbage.

Learn how to get good seats at the theatre and how to take care of a girl in a crowd. Learn how to get along without having rows with ushers and waiters and taxi drivers. There is nothing that makes a greater impression on girls than sophistication.

Next, cultivate a line. Don't sit up like a dummy and expect your girl to feed you conversational cues. So some of the talking yourself. It is no harder for a boy to make conversation than it is for a girl. Ask her questions if you can't think of anything else. Play up to her. If you are one of the great silent ones who can never think of a word to say, take her to the movies or somewhere where there is something doing.

And here's a tip: If you want to be a spellbinder, just tell the girl how beautiful and wonderful she is and that there is something mysterious about her that makes her different from all other girls. You can repeat this ad infinitum. A bigamist, who had 47 wives, once told me that it was no trouble in the world to make a woman fall in love with you. All you had to do was to talk to her about herself.

Be Generous, But Not a Sap

Be generous, but don't let girls work you if you want their respect. They despise a tightwad, but they have a contempt for a sap. Be neither. So, when you take little Sweetums out, give her a good time within your means, but don't let her hold you up for champagne and caviar and six birthdays a year.

Finally, son, be a gentleman. That is inevitably a knockout with the girls. In her heart every girl, even the wild one, longs to have a man treat her with chivalry and respect, as a gentleman treats a lady.

Try it and see if it doesn't work. Released by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.

During the program, which was in charge of Margaret Smith, the story of "Mary Reed, Missionary" was presented in dialogue by Juane Little, Marian Rowe, and Jessie Dawson. # Two Wars Fail To Break French Spirit

By JEAN STENTON

Wars may come severing communications and disrupting friendships, but they have failed to snap the sturdy threads which have bound two business firms together, one in Paris and one in Peterborough.

Forty years ago, two dignified French partners travelled from Paris to Peterborough to cement relations between their sporting goods firm and the Peterborough Canoe Company. They carried on business for a number of years and then the war broke out in 1914 and the firms lost touch with one another until the war was over. Then, with a complete lack of fanfare, things started up again.

So impressed with Peterborough and its people, was Charles Andre, one of the partners, that 12 years ago he sent his son, Georges Andre, here and for three months he was an employee of the Canoe Company, and he made many friends.

"Although Georges arrived in Peterborough a typical Frenchman wearing plus fours, a camera over his shoulder, and he kissed me on both cheeks at the station, he was so glad to see some one that knew his name, he went back a real Canadian," W. A. Richardson manager, commented.

Six years ago the young man again returned to Peterborough for a short visit. Then came the war, and in the early months of the struggle, Mr. Richardson received a letter telling him that Georges Andre was serving with the army in the Maginot Line. He was doing telephone work. Then for many months there was silence. Following the capitulation of France, a friend got word through that the young man had been captured by the Germans and taken to Germany. He had written that he was well and had not been wounded, and in spite of the advances of the Allies, he is still in German hands.

A few weeks ago, the following letter was received by Mr. Richardson, as soon as mail service was established.

"This is to inform you that all members of our family and business staff are safe and alive, in spite of the difficulties we have suffered during the past four years. No injury or damage has been done to us, except that our stock of goods has been plundered by the Germans.

"Our senior partner, Charles Andre, was arrested and imprisoned and then held for five days as a hostage. His two sons, officers in the reserve army, were captured in June 1940. The youngest was liberated last year under special conditions as an "agriculturist engineer". Georges Andre, well known to you, is still in Germany but keeps a splendid spirit.

"Business has never been closed and we kept in touch with our customers by selling French sporting goods and cutlery. We wish to express our deepest gratitude to Canada, whose valorous troops participated in the delivery of France. We are anxious to resume our ancient and cordial relations."

Received the same day as this card, was another from a Frenchman living in a village on the Seine River. He explained that due to enemy occupation, he had lost his Peterboro canoe, which he valued and wanted to arrange immediate shipment of another one. Since the Paris connection has been established, 1,000 canoes have been sent to France.

Christmas Carols

And just to mention another, the familiar "God rest you merry Gentlemen"...

"Let nothing you dismay
For Jesus Christ our Saviour
Was born upon this day,
To save us all from Satan's power.."

Those were once tremendous phrases, "Satan's power," Adam's fall, Virgin birth and so on, and something of the extent of their validity, certainly of their impress on the hearts of men, is reflected first in the terrific impact the Christian faith and ethic made upon the civilized but pagan world. That was one of the first climaxes of the long story, just as Julian the Apostate in the fourth century became one of the late protagonists of the old paganism ultimately retreating before the new and revolutionary ideas of the Christian, emerging into the sunlight after centuries of persecution to proclaim the dignity and rights of man, and break the chains of slavery upon which the pagan luxury had so long flourished for the elect.

Impulse Remains

That dynamic impulse remained, if diluted, in the sentiment and faith of the men and women who went forth in their own later time singing simply and unaffectedly in public places about angels that once sang over the hills of Judah, and shepherds who journeyed just a fortnight until they came to the place of the stars' pointing bearing their gifts of myrrh, gold and frankincense, the inn of Bethlehem and all the rest of the storied setting.

Here's just a parting couplet from "The Carnal and the Crane":

"Was not the mother of Jesus Conceived by the Holy Ghost?"

These were ideas in the essence of the old carols of Christmas, the story of Bethlehem in folksong by people who are described to us as "merry." One of the old carols includes this line "For mirth can never content us without a conscience clear." Manifestly they were composed in their generation to appeal to the favor and the wishes of the people of that time, and one of their challenging, arresting aspects is their association of merriment and gladness with religious expression. That was part of the motif and purpose of the Christmas carol—and "let nothing you dismay," ecstasy, merriment of heart, courage.

Is There A Santa Claus?

(The following Christmas classic first appeared as an editorial in the New York Sun in 1897. Although it has probably been reprinted more than any other editorial of this nature, it is still as timely as when it was written.)

We take pleasure in answering at at once and thus prominently the communication below, expressing at the same time our great gratification that its faithful author is numbered among the friends of the "Sun":

Dear Editor—I am eight years old. Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says, "if you see it in the Sun," it's so." Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?

Virginia O'Hanlon,
115 West Ninenty-Fifth Street.

Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! how dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus! There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in Fairies! You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas Eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see Fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are unseen and unseeable in the world.

You tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, not even the united strength of all the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart. Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance, can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernal beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing real and abiding.

No Santa Claus! Thank God! He lives, and he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood.

V.C. Winners Reach Torontto

TORONTO, Dec. 16—(CP)—Two of Canada's Victoria Cross winners—Maj. John K. (Jack) Mahony, 33 of Moose Paw, Sask., and Owen Sound, Ont.—arrived in Toronto by plane early to-day.

For Maj. Mahony, it was his first plane ride and he admitted being 'a bit nervous." Major Currie was wearing the same greasy overalls he wore when making a dash from European battlefront recently to Buckingham Palace to be decorated by the king.

They were greeted by Maj.-Gen. A. E. Potts, officer commanding Military District No. 2 (Toronto). Both will spend part of the day here. Maj. Currie will leave tonight by train for Owen Sound where his wife and son, David, are at her home. It is expected they will go to Moose Jaw next week.

Maj. Mahony will take a plane late to-day for Vancouver.

Their arrival was not announced previously and whereabouts of the two men was not made known.

Maj. Mahony, slim, quiet-mannered young man and former newspaper carrier in New Westminster, won the Victoria Cross, the highest award for valor in the British Empire, for heroism at the Melfa River beachhead in Italy. Announcement of his award was made last July 13.

Maj. Currie, tall former mechanic and welder for the city of Moose Jaw, won the highest award in the British Empire for gallantry at Saint Lambert-Sur-Dives last August 24 in the heavy-fighting days of the Falaise Gap when his small reconnaissance force chopped down some 3,000 Germans in three sleepless days and nights of battle.

An officer of the South Alberta Reconnaissance Regiment he became the seventh and latest Canadian to win the V.C. in this war. Announcement of the award was made on November 27.

His citation said that all the officers under his command were either killed or wounded and "when his force was finally relieved, and he was satisfied that the turnover was complete, he fell asleep on his feet and collapsed."

He is the third fighting man to bring the V.C. to Owen Sound. In the First Great War, Pte. Tommy Holmes was one of the youngest winners of the award and Air Marshal W. A. (Billy) Bishop, famous air ace, was the other Owen Sounder to win the V.C.

Revolutionaries Seize Power

SANT JOSE, C.R., Dec. 16—(AP)—Algonso Rochac, a member of the El Salvador government-in-exile, reported last night that "Salvadorean revolutionary troops entered the provincial capital of Ahuachapan today amid the cheers of the populace and the ringing of church bells."

Quoting a communique from the exiled government in Guatemala, Rochac said the invading forces captured arms and ammunition belonging to the defeated 11th Infantry Regiment of the forces of President Osmin 'Aguirre Salinas.

"Our men now control the capital and all the adjoining territory in the province of Ahuachapan,' Rochac declared, adding that the revolutionists have advanced into the neighboring province of Santa Ana.

The Rochac account conflicted with statements issued by the Aguirre government which, according to travellers arriving from El Salvador, said 600 rebels attempting to invade Ahuachapan from Guatemala were 'surrounded by Salvadorean regulars and now are being annihilated."

In Memoriam
Card of Thanks

DIED

HOWARD—On Saturday, December 16th, Roy Howard, beloved husband of Rose Elizabeth Howard in his forty-second year. Funeral announcements later.

IN MEMORIAM

PETERS, Pte. Victor—In loving memory of Victor, who was killed in action in Italy, on December 16th, 1943.

Days of sadness still come o'er us
Tears in silence often flow
For memory keeps you ever near us
Though you died one year ago.
—Ever remembered by his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Thompson.

BAPTIE—In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away December 16th, 1940.

Peaceful be thy rest dear mother
It is sweet to breathe thy name
In life we loved you dearly
In death we do the same.
—Lovingly remembered by her son Garnet and daughter-in-law Phyllis.

PETERS—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Private Victor Peters, who gave his life in the battle of Ortona, December 16th, 1943.

His smiling way and pleasant face
Are a pleasure to recall.
He had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all.
Some day we hope to meet him
Some day, we know not when,
To clasp his hand in the better land,
Never to part again.
—Ever remembered by his father, sisters and brothers.

GATFIELD—In loving memory of our mother, who left us two years ago to-day.

Day after day we saw her fade
And gently pass away
But often in our hearts we prayed
That she might longer stay
And yet we would not bring her back
To wear out weary years
The look of peace on her pale face
Upholds us in our tears.
—Sadly missed by her children.

MONTGOMERY—In fond and loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. T. J. Montgomery, who died December 16th, 1942.

What would we give her hand to clasp
Her patient face to see;
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in the days that used to be.
But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more
In Heaven, that happy life.
—Always remembered by Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Montgomery.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. William Corrigan and family and John Hicks, wish to acknowledge with sincere appreciation the kindness shown to them by the Rev. Mr. Moore, B. F. Ackerman and Sons, Sanitary Ice Co., and especially their good friends and neighbours, during their recent sad bereavement on the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Hicks.

Cut Whiskey Quota But Not Until April

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 16 — The liquor ration in Ontario will probably revert to 13 ounces monthly next April, W. G. Webster, newly appointed commissioner of the Liquor Control Board, said here last night.

"When the current Government fiscal year ends, that is in March, we'll probably go back to the 13-ounce ration," he said. "I think we may still get 26 ounces for the first two or three months of the year, but that is about all I can say."

Taxi Operator

owner makes a profit; we are more apt to 'be in the red.' We depend upon winter business to offset this fact," he said.

"I hope that Peterborough citizens who are interested in this problem will voice their opinions through the Examiner," observed Mr. Davis.

He told of how the Capitol Taxi has contracts with some industries, to give service in case of sickness or accident, and in connection with the blood donors. Sundays, when there are no busses operating, and during the night, Capitol cabs are sent out, he said.

Costs Increased.

Now, conditions are that it is not profitable to send a cab out unless 50 cents at least is assured, he said. He cited cases of how the costs of commodities and products his company uses has risen since the war began. "In 1938, we paid $10.50 for a tire, made of natural rubber. Now, the charge is $21.40, and at that, they are of synthetic rubber. Again in 1938, the top wages any of our drivers were earning was $18 a week. To-day, although the 25 cent single fare is still in force, our highest paid driver is receiving $45, and the lowest paid driver, gets $27 each week. Gasoline used to be 25 cents a gallon, but now it is 35 cents for the same measure. The sponges we use for washing cars once cost from 60 to 90 cents each; now they cost $1.40."

Mr. Davis stressed the fact there has been "absolutely no changes" in fares yet, and there won't be, until he receives the proper authority. The fact is, he said, a cab will not be sent out for a single fare from one passenger; a return trip for one passenger will cost the same as previously, and the fares paid by more than one passenger will be the same.

Operating 14 cars, Mr. Davis has been in the taxi business in Peterborough for 11 years. He employs a staff of 25 members, including 18 drivers, two mechanics, a handyman, a bookkeeper, two despatchers and one woman office attendant.

SHIFTING PLANS VITAL

EVERY complete plan, based on expectations or hopes that certain conditions will be met, includes within it provisions for alteration if different conditions are encountered. To the defense against a No Trump game, that usually means willingness to shift suit if it becomes apparent that the one you opened is hopeless.

North: ♠ J 9 8; ♥ A 8 4; ♦ 9 8 6 4 3; ♣ 7 2

West: ♠ 7 5 3; ♥ J 10 5; ♦ 5 2; ♣ Q 9 6 4 3

East: ♠ A 6 4; ♥ Q 9 7 3; ♦ Q J 10; ♣ K J 5

South: ♠ K Q 10 2; ♥ K 6 2; ♦ A K 7; ♣ A 10 8

(Dealer: South. North - South vulnerable.)

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 N T | Pass | 2 N T | Pass |
| 3 N T | | | |

That incisive bidding occurred at both tables of a team match, one declarer making his game and the other being set by the defense. In each case the club 4 was led, East winning with the K and returning the J. Where the contract was made, South and West let that win, and the club A then won the 5 lead.

That declarer promptly scored his diamond A and K and led the third diamond for East to score. Hoping to get West in the lead to score more clubs, East laid down the spade A and looked for a come-on high card. A low one, the 3, being played, he shifted then to a heart, but declarer won that and scored the rest of the tricks for game.

At the other table, West realized, when South played low on the second club lead, that the A was being held up. That suit was therefore hopeless, since West had no re-entry, so a unit of time should not be wasted on it. West therefore overtook the club J with his Q and led the heart J. South won with the K to preserve the A for a dummy entry, then scored two diamond tops and led a third one to the Q. The heart 3 was led to dummy's A. South was able to get two more diamonds, plus the club A, giving him eight tricks, but when he then needed a spade his lead of that suit naturally fell to the A and a heart took the final trick which set him. The thing that put the blocks to him was the fact that hearts got led before diamonds.

Your Week-End Question

If South, as declarer, with the 6-4-3 of trumps in the dummy, holds the K-Q-J-8-5 in his own hand, what card should be used for ruffing a defensive lead from East, who has already taken one trick, as protection against West, who has doubled his 4-Hearts? If South ruffs with the K, what should West do, holding the A-10-9-7?

School Board Discusses Using Radio

HAVELOCK, Dec. 16—(ENS)—In order to know the opinion of the school boards throughout the province towards radio programs for schools, a questionnaire drafted by the Toronto Board of Education to obtain this information from Toronto schools, was submitted to the local board of education by the Ontario Ratepayers' Association. The matter was discussed with the principals of the schools, the questionnaire completed and further information in regard to who prepared the programs for broadcast.

Teacher Resigns.

Miss V. Buchanan resigned her position on the public school teaching staff, to take effect March 31, 1945. On motion by Trustees Mathison and Wilde, Miss Buchanan's resignation was accepted to take effect as stated.

An application was read from Miss Lucy Wing for position caused by Miss Buchanan's resignation. On motion by Trustees Sayer and Plunkett, Miss Wing's application was accepted, the duties to commence April 1, 1945 at a salary of $1,100 a year.

Principal A. C. Reid of the High school reported that the air cadet equipment was on order and expected at any time and until its arrival, training was being taken in the class rooms. Mr. Reid asked the board if they would clarify the caretaker's agreement with the board as to his general duties to enable the teachers to answer the inspector's questions on the caretaker's duties.

The board stated that they had given the caretaker complete charge of the school with the understanding that the school is kept clean and all necessary repairs made or reported to the board for their approval.

Rhythm Band.

Principal W. M. Patterson of the public school reported that a rhythm band had been ordered for Grade 1 and that Miss L. Wing had supplied several days for Mrs. Couch, one half day being due to illness. Miss Wing had also supplied for Mrs. R. W. Goheen.

Caretaker S. Southward explained to the board the advantage of radiator vents and on motion by Trustees Mathison and Sayer, he was authorized to purchase new radiator vents. If more than $1 each to report to Chairman B. Smith for advice.

The following accounts were passed: Teachers', caretaker, secretary salaries, $1,189.15; W. J. Akins, salary attendance officer, $40; R. J. McCutcheon, repairs and supplies, $11.20; C. C. Snowden & Co., account, $41.12; Hubbel Hardware, account, $33.28; A. C. Denike, account, $2.19; W. Forsythe, plants H. S., 50c; B. Smith, telephone account, $1.50.

On motion by Trustees Mathison and Wilde, the secretary was authorized to pay any outstanding account she may receive after December 15.

On motion by Trustees Mathison and Plunkett, the board adjourned to meet the second Monday in January.

ALLIED LAND GAIN IN A MONTH — During the past month, when the present Allied offensive along the Western front rolled into full momentum, our armies have succeeded in biting goodly chunks of territory from the Nazi forces before them. These maps, depicting the northern (left) and southern sections of the long battlefront, show in shaded areas the Allied land gains in that period. The heavy black line indicates the fighting line. The scene of the most successful action today is in the area around the Saar basin, strategic Nazi mining and industrial centre.

Choice Furs Bring Record Prices

TORONTO, Dec. 16—(CP)—More than $300,000 worth of Canadian ranch-bred mink and silver fox skins were sold in four hours yesterday at Toronto's first large fur auction. Prices exceeded those obtained in New York last week.

More than 75 per cent of the 9,000 mink and 2,500 fox skins were bought by United States' buyers. Top price for a single skin was $135 for a platinum mutation-type silver fox; $70 for a silver fox and $32.25 for a single mink.

War Casualties To Exceed Forty Millions

By SAUL FELDMAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 16 (AP)—Dr. Lee Owens, head of the Oklahoma City University history department, predicts that nine European countries will suffer more casualties in the Second Great War than they have in all the other wars they have fought in the last 825 years combined.

Dr. Owens has just completed a study of war casualties for Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Austria, Poland, Lithuania, Denmark and Spain for the period between 1101 and 1925.

His figures show that during that period the total army strength of these countries was 171,607,600 men and there were 35,416,485 casualties. This does not include those who died from epidemics or other causes indirectly associated with war.

(Dr. Owens did not include, Russia, he says, because he considers it an Asiatic nation, which was not engaged in any major wars until comparatively late in its history. However, his figures cover European sections of Russia which formerly were parts of some of the nine countries he listed.)

"Naturally," he says, "there is no way to tell how many casualties have been suffered by these nine countries so far in this war. But conservative estimates, coupled with predictions of casualties in future battles, will bring the figure close to 40,000,000."

In an interview, Dr. Owens said his comparison of fighting men and casualties for the medieval and modern periods showed that during the 12th century only slightly less than three per cent of the men engaged were casualties while for the first 25 years of this century casualties numbered more than 35 per cent.

"If man continues to invent and use these inquitous, diabolical machines for wars, another conflict will carry these figures out of sight," Dr. Owens asserted.

Wants Big Three To Meet Very Soon

LONDON, Dec. 16—(CP)—Prime Minister Churchill Friday appealed directly to President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin to come to Britain "for a meeting at the earliest possible moment."

He agreed, however, to "proceed to any place" if such a meeting could be arranged.

"There ought to be a meeting of the three great powers at the earliest moment," he asserted during his address to the House of Commons in today's Polish debate.

"So far as I and the Foreign Secretary are concerned we will proceed to any place at any time under any conditions where we can meet the heads of our two chief allies," he said.

"We should welcome above all a meeting in this island—a meeting in Great Britain which has waged the war from the outset and risked without flinching national annihilation in the cause of freedom."

The House rang with cheers.

Thos. Pritchard Family Leave Marmora

MARMORA, Dec. 16 — (ENS) — Thomas E. Pritchard and family have moved to Peterborough where the former has been a city salesman for the Canada Packers for the past few months following a long term of service for that company as salesman for Centre and North Hastings and part of the adjoining counties on the east. The village has lost a valued family.

Mr. Pritchard served as president of the local branch of the Canadian Legion, and was also a member of St. Andrew's United Church choir. He will also be remembered for his unfailing readiness to act as master of ceremonies at amateur shows.

Mrs. Pitchard has gvien unstinted help to the activities of the War Workers, and besides being a member of St. Andrew's Women's Association, has been a member of the choir of that church. St. Andrew's Women's Asociation and the Circle 2 combined to present Mrs. Pritchard with a table lamp as a mark of appreciation. An address was read by Mrs. E. C. Prentice and the persentation was made by Mrs. W. R. Hamilton. The War Workers on Thursday afternoon presented Mrs. Pritchard with a walnut table and also Margaret Pritchard, the junior of the three daughters, with a picture.

75 YEARS OF SERVICE TO THE NATION

• Serving Canada's lumber industry are sturdy GM haulage units, built to stand heavy usage.

FOR THREE-QUARTERS OF A CENTURY, the history of General Motors in Canada has been one of Service ... Service to the private motorist—Service to the industry—Service to agriculture—Service to the nation in war and peace!

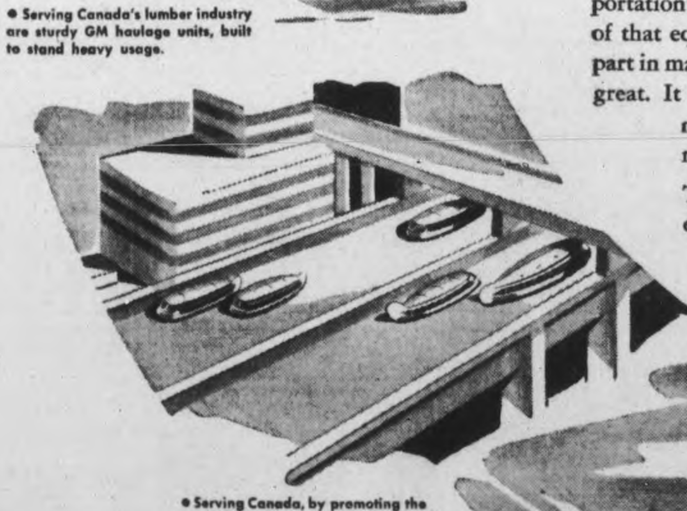
This 75-year long tradition of Service has its roots in the pioneer Canadian carriage shop from which today's great GM organization originated and developed. It has found expression not only in the manufacture of fine transportation equipment—but in the maintenance of that equipment. It has played a prominent part in making Canada mobile, prosperous and great. It has put wheels under this growing nation—and has kept these wheels rolling, trustily, thriftily and well.

Throughout the critical war years, the engineering resources and technical skill which GM had built up served Canada in the production of heavy fighting equipment—trucks and tractors, guns, shells and planes.

Representative of GM Service, in communities from coast to coast, have been Canada's General Motors Dealers. Long active in providing both passenger and commercial users with the best in automotive values, these dealers, during the war years, have pledged themselves to the task of "Saving the Wheels that Serve the Nation".

After Victory, when Canada's requirements are once more tuned to peace and progress, Canadians may rest assured that General Motors will serve and amply fill those requirements with "More and Better Things for More People".

• Serving Canada at war, in every battle area, are more than sixty types of GM military vehicles.



• Serving Canada, by promoting the development of splendid modern highways, are GM cars and trucks.

• Serving Canadian industry and commerce are GM commercial vehicles of every type.

• Serving Canada's mines, where roads are rough and the going is tough, are thousands of rugged GM trucks.

• Serving Canada's homes and farms by providing thrifty transportation, are hundreds of thousands of GM cars and trucks.

Huns Slaughter 130 Americans Held Prisoners

By HAL BOYLE
Associated Press War Correspondent

AN AMERICAN FRONTLINE CLEARING STATION, Belgium, Dec. 17 (Delayed)—(AP).—Weeping with rage, a handful of survivors described today how a German tank force ruthlessly poured machine-gun fire into a group of about 150 Americans who had been disarmed and herded into a field in the opening hours of the present German counter-offensive.

"We had to lie there and listen to German non-coms kill with pistols every one of our wounded men who groaned or tried to move," said Sgt. William B. Summers, of Glenville, W.Va., who escaped by playing dead.

The Americans were members of an artillery observation battalion ambushed and trapped at a road fork by a powerful German armored column of Tiger tanks. There were no heavy weapons in the American column and the entire observation unit had to surrender.

"They disarmed us and then

Prisoners Steal Magistrate's Car

ST. THOMAS, Dec. 18.—(CP). — Four prisoners who escaped from Elgin County jail here Saturday night are expected to appear in police court tomorrow on charges of theft and jail-breaking. They were recaptured at Windsor where they are still held pending transfer to St. Thomas.

The quartet—William H. Green, 41, of Norwich and Aylmer; Ralton Moore, 23, of Talbotville and Windsor; Joseph Parks, 42, of Middale; and Arthur Streng, 20, of Timmins—sawed through a total of 13 iron bars with a hacksaw. They then climbed a 12-foot wall with the help of an upturned packing box and allegedly stole Magistrate E. D. Smith's car, which was found in Windsor yesterday.

Green and Moore are charged with theft of two cars and a set of tools, while the other two men face charges in connection with breaking, entering and theft at Port Bruce, Ont. Green was recently released on $5,000 bail after being charged with theft of $16,000 worth of jewelry at Windsor, but the bail was cancelled last Friday.

The four were remanded by Magistrate Smith on theft charges and were in jail awaiting their re-appearance in court Tuesday.

First Draftees 'Gone Forward'

OTTAWA, Dec. 18.—(CP). —The first of the 16,000 home defence draftee infantrymen conscripted for overseas service may actually have arrived in the war theatres in the opinion of some capital circles speculating on Defence Minister McNaughton's Saturday speech at Owen Sound, Ont.

Back in the capital after accepting the liberal nomination to run in Grey North riding by-election Feb. 4, Gen. McNaughton did not elaborate on his acceptance speech comment that large numbers of reinforcements had already "gone forward."

It was understood that military security prevented the general from making his reinforcement reference any more explicit.

He actually said:

"Many thousands of men are now in movement towards the assembly areas in Eastern Canada where they are being marshalled prior to dispatch as reinforcements to our army. Large numbers have already gone forward."

Hasty Pees Fight Terrific Battle

TORONTO, Dec. 18 —(CP)—Bert Wemp, Toronto Evening Telegram war correspondent in Italy, says today in a dispatch to his paper that two Canadian regiments — one a Maritime regiment and the other the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment from Eastern Ontario—have received congratulations from General Sir Richard McCreary, commander of the British 8th Army, for beating off 13 strong German counter-attacks in nine hours.

Wemp reported that German losses in men and equipment were heavy. The few yards of ground lost by the two Canadian regiments was all regained by Western Canada units which pushed on another 500 yards.

Siege Of Athens Likely To Lift Very Soon

By STEPHEN BARBER
Associated Press Staff Writer

ATHENS, Dec. 18 —(AP)—British forces launched a full-scale drive against leftwing E.L.A.S. forces in Athens today and it appeared likely to be only a matter of hours before the siege of the capital is lifted.

Within a short time after jumping off at dawn the British had captured an E.L.A.S. stronghold on the highway leading from Athens through the summer resort of Phaleron to the Kalamaki airport. The E.L.A.S. forces, estimated at about 200, had barricaded themselves in a brewery and were equipped with heavy machine-guns.

The Kalamaki airport already had been cleared to a depth of 300 yards and British armored vehicles were traversing the road from Athens to Piraeus.

Before the main attack began, British forces took Sikelias Hill, due south of the Acropolis, which had been strongly held by the E.L.A.S.

The first goal of the British clean-up operations was to open the main highway between Athens, the Port of Piraeus and Kalamaki airport.

Armored forces as well as infantry participated. A number of prisoners were taken in the first hours of the drive.

Fighting had increased in Athens during the week-end following a rejection by Lt.-Gen. R. M. Scobie of E.A.M. peace proposals.

British headquarters reported Scobie turned down the peace offer because it did not provide for the immediate cessation of the two-weeks-old civil warfare as a preliminary to final negotiations.

Planes Active

R.A.F. Spitfires and rocket-firing Beaufighters attacked E.L.A.S. forces in the city yesterday after members of that military auxiliary of the Leftist E.A.M. had opened heavy artillery and mortar fire.

Premier George Papandreou's press secretary announced the E.L.A.S. had been completely cleared from Piraeus, Port of Athens, but the British were continuing operations there.

Relief shipping has piled up at Piraeus and yesterday a general strike was called in Salonika, where other vessels crammed with relief supplies remained unloaded.

220 German Divisions Fight In East

Russian Guns Hurl Barrage Into Budapest

MOSCOW, Dec. 18 — (AP). — Soviet big guns firing from newly-won positions within 5½ miles of Budapest crashed an avalanche of steel against the inner defences of the Hungarian capital to-day while Red Army units reached the Slovak border at a new point 72 miles north-east of the city.

The scope of the Red Army's Hungarian offensive was emphasized by the official Communist Party newspaper Pravda, which said that as many German divisions were engaged on the southern sector of the Eastern front as against all the Allied forces in the West. Pravda repeated figures purporting to show that 220 enemy divisions, 200 of them German, were tied up in the East as of December 1.

The Pravda article was directed against the United States Army and Navy Journal for questioning whether Russia had fulfilled the military decisions of Teheran.

Hundreds of Germans were slain in the bloody fighting that resulted yesterday in the capture of Fot, 5½ miles north-east of Budapest, and Mogyorod, eight miles from the capital, the Russians announced.

The Germans came back with furious counter-blows by the Luftwaffe, self-propelled guns, and the waves of infantry.

The Red army thrust to Slovakia, with the capture of 40 towns including Susa, represented a gain of 15 miles northwest of Miskolc. It appeared almost certain that the Germans cannot much longer remain in Kassa, the biggest city they still hold in southeastern Slovakia, for it is rapidly being outflanked to the west in this drive.

In Grave Danger.

As Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's 2nd Ukraine army pushed relentlessly forward alongside units of Marshal Ivan Petrov's 4th Ukraine army, the entire German salient in Eastern Slovakia was in extreme danger.

Other Red army units in the drive northward from Hatvan along the approaches to Central Slovakia yesterday took the big town and railway station of Pazso, 37 miles northeast of Budapest.

Fear Uprising

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 18 — (CP-Reuter). — Special guards have been formed throughout Germany "to assist the police in quelling revolts by prisoners of war and foreign workers if the situation becomes critical," the Berlin correspondent of the newspaper Svenzka Dagbladet recorded. The guards were formed two years ago but the German censor has just released details of their task, the correspondent added.

Canadians Take 1,100 Huns In Two Weeks

ROME, Dec. 18 — (AP). — British 8th Army units today held a line along the Senio River, stretching five miles southward from the Bologna-Rimini Highway, Allied headquarters said.

Meantime it was announced that the Canadian corps had captured more than 1,100 prisoners since it went back into action with assaults west of the Montone River two weeks ago.

The Canadians had been engaged in fierce fighting a major part of last week at "the Anzio of the Adriatic" — their Naviglio Canal bridgehead — but a delayed dispatch from Canadian Press War Correspondent William Boss said that by Friday night the battle had "settled down . . . to normal close-contact fighting."

Today's communique said without details the Canadians had made further gains south of Bagnacavallo "against strong resistance." Bagnacavallo is 11 miles west of Ravenna, and close to the left flank of the Naviglio bridgehead.

The south anchor of the 8th Army line was held by Polish troops who yesterday captured Limisano and Casette in a drive toward the Senio against strong enemy resistance.

Canadian troops to the north held the other anchor near Bagnacavallo, while other 8th Army units virtually cleared the Germans from captured Faenza, which fell to New Zealand troops yesterday. Headquarters said isolated pockets of enemy resistance till remain in the northern outskirts of the highway stronghold.

Only patrol activity was reported from the Allied 5th Army front.

Canadians Rescue New-Born Babe

By WILLIAM BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC, Dec. 18 — (CP.-Cable). — Bitter fighting on the Canadians' Naviglio bridgehead had lightning elements of surprise for Maj. Ollie Mace of Innisfail, Alta., commander of a company of British Columbia Highlanders.

The first surprise came after his company completed a successful sneak attack across country, taking a group of houses virtually unopposed. Two arrogant, bemedalled German officers spat and snarled their surprise when they stomped into Mace's headquarters, thinking the place still in German hands.

But that couldn't equal the Alberta Major's surprise when he learned his men in the newly-seized objective had delivered a baby from an Italian woman. The mother died before she could be evacuated to safer territory.

Mace's men wrapped the infant in their jackets and carried the baby under fire back to a regimental aid post for such attention as the medical officer, Capt. Bob Levine of Montreal, was able to give.

The Canadians' youngest patient was removed Saturday morning to a casualty clearing station.

Enemy Gains Several Miles 129 Nazi Planes Shot Down

By EDWARD KENNEDY—Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Dec. 18 — (AP). — The United States 1st Army struck back at advancing German columns of infantry and armor in Belgium and Luxembourg today in a fierce battle which may prove to be one of the most decisive of the war.

The Allied command accepted the challenge of Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd Von Rundstedt who was attempting his greatest counter-offensive against American troops in Europe.

But the situation at the front was reported extremely fluid and for this reason supreme headquarters decided upon a strict blackout on detailed information concerning the extent of the enemy advances and the counter-moves of the Americans.

However, front line dispatches said Hodges had thrown armor against the German thrusts, and that British Spitfires and Tempests came down from Holland to lend a hand to Allied air forces.

The German air force continued to support the German winter strike on the biggest scale since the Allied landings in Normandy.

A new type of V-weapon was used by the Germans along the 9th Army front both by night and day.

Supreme Headquarters in Paris last week said pilots reported seeing clusters of "silver balls" over Germany, but gave no other information. It was speculated the silver balls might be a new anti-aircraft defence, or designed to interfere with Allied radio communication.

More German parachutists were dropped behind American lines last night. But these may have numbered no more than 10. Six were caught.

Bag 20 Per Cent

Tabulations from 9th Tactical Air Command Headquarters said 129 German planes had been shot down in 24 hours—more than 20 per cent of the number of carefully husbanded aircraft put over the lines by the German air force.

Lt.-Gen. William H. Simpson, commander of the Ninth U.S. Army on Hodges' left flank, praised the work of the Allied tactical airmen, declaring that despite the great number of planes used by the Germans they are "not able to bother us a great deal."

(The Germans claimed forward American positions along a 20-mile front had been overrun between Luxembourg and the Hohe Venn, "high marshland," a swampy tract 2,200 feet above sea level extending for 30 miles from Rotgen to Malmedy.

(But the German command also adopted a cautious attitude and said it was withholding details of the action.

Throwing hundreds of carefully-conserved planes, hundreds of tanks, many divisions and even parachutists into a sudden winter counter-offensive, Field Marshal Von Runstedt had achieved a penetration of several miles in the American lines, re-invaded Belgium in the Monschau area 16 miles south of Aachen, and re-entered Luxembourg at two other points.

Today the Germans were pushing their advance along an 80-mile front from the Monschau area to the southern tip of the Luxembourg border with new and more violent attacks.

Clever Planning Revealed In Big German Offensive

By JOHN KIMCHE—Reuter Military Correspondent

LONDON, Dec. 18—(CP-Reuter).—The Germans' counter-attack on the United States army, first big enemy counter-offensive since the attempt to cut the American 3rd Army lifeline at Avranches in Normandy four months ago, bears all the hall marks of careful preparation—unlike the desperate attempt in Normandy.

Germany's best generals are in charge of this attack, and Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt, enemy Western front commander, signed the order of the day saying "everything is at stake."

The Luftwaffe has been brought forward in strength. The 500 that made their appearance yesterday are probably one of a first installment. The new jet and rocket-propelled aircraft were used on this occasion for lightning bomb raids on Allied airfields.

Field Marshal Von Rundstedt clearly has prepared his stroke with care by drawing on air and Panzer reserves which had been husbanded for the day; he is staking a great deal on this counter-attack. But who timed it?

8,000 Volunteers In Month

Voluntary System Working Very Satisfactorily

QUEBEC, Dec. 18 — (CP). — War Services Minister L. R. LaFleche, said in an interview here last night that the results of the present army recruiting campaign serve as "a striking rejoinder to those who no longer placed faith in the voluntary system of enlistment."

The minister said that "if the need for reinforcements had been brought to attention last August, the whole 16,000 men would have been enlisted by this time."

(Provision for the sending overseas of 16,000 troops called up for military service under the National Resources Mobilization Act was made at the recent session of parliament.)

Gen. LaFleche stated that "the first month of the present recruiting campaign, which will end this coming week, will bring 8,000 volunteers."

"Recruiting among the personnel of French-Canadian units who have been on either coast has been difficult for the last 10 days because those units were en route to the Province of Quebec," the Minister said. "Nevertheless, the results have been quite satisfactory, but the holiday season will again hold things up somewhat."

Gen. LaFleche has been visiting army camps in Quebec districts, asking French-speaking N.R.M.A. troops to volunteer for overseas service as reinforcements for French-Canadian regiments over there.

Germans Move To Stave Off Roer Crisis

Rundstedt's Action May Result In British Closing Huge Trap

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The savage German counter-offensive along the U.S. 1st Army front in the Rhineland bears the marks of being an effort to prevent an early Allied crossing of the Roer river at the key city of Duren and so to postpone the dread day of reckoning with the Allies on the open plain of Cologne.

As a matter of fact there have been many signs recently that Gen. Eisenhower himself was about ready to launch another major offensive, revolving about a thrust over the Roer. Field Marshal Von Rundstedt has struck shrewdly to throw the Allied line off balance and delay this drive.

The fact the Germans have been using more air power than they have developed in Western Europe since D-Day is highly significant of the importance they attach to the crisis that has been developing rapidly on the banks of the Roer, which shields the Cologne plain from the West. They long have been so short of planes, oil and gasoline that the Luftwaffe is brought into play only in grave emergencies.

While actually there have been three battles proceeding along the water-logged, weather-plagued Allied front, the fierce conflict in the Aachen-Duren sector has remained the crucial one. This is, of course, the main gateway to the great Rhenish city of Cologne and so on into the Ruhr—heart of German war industries.

Can Outflank Hun

Meanwhile, military observers have noted that the British 2nd and 1st Canadian armies on the Allied northern wing were in position to launch a great flanking movement against the Germans as soon as Eisenhower had his men across the Roer at Duren in force. At the same time on the southern Allied front the U.S. 7th Army in the Alsace sector, and U.S. 3rd at the gateway to the important Saar industrial region, have been persistently advancing.

Thus the Germans have been under heavy pressure along most of their 450-mile front, with the certainty that Eisenhower was about set to launch a big offensive. So Von Rundstedt has countered to throw the Allies off balance, and he apparently is going all out in his effort to create a situation which will delay the Allied advance through the winter.

But he's fighting for more than delay, because Eisenhower has created a huge trap along the western Rhineland. The Nazi commander will be lucky if he doesn't lose the bulk of his armies in it. His present drive is calculated to lessen that danger.

Germans Retain Dunkerque

15,000 Hun Troops Show Little Action

By DOON CAMPBELL
Reuter War Correspondent

OUTSIDE DUNKERQUE, France, Dec. 18—(CP-Reuter). — Dunkerque has settled in for the winter. It may not be avenged now until the end of the war.

Nothing decisive is happening at the moment in this bleak, desolate, almost-forgotten corner of France. Inside the port the Germans are cosy. Outside, British troops are drawing lots for "blighty" leave.

It is more than two months since I saw a procession of people with their sheep and cows quit this coastal fortress.

It might have been another Calais but Capt. Scheinder, naval commander of the 15,000-strong German garrison is made of tougher stuff.

The besieging forces have been firing shells into Dunkerque for weeks. An occasional prisoner is taken and odd deserters, but nothing extensive is being done to wipe out the memory of 1940, when the British expeditionary force withdrew by sea after being bottled up at Dunkerque by the Germans.

The Germans are in the town's best billets, with good wireless sets and reading matter.

It is a crazy fantastic deadened sort of war here. The Germans cannot use the port, and a major offensive to capture it would afford little strategical advantage. But a force must be maintained there to contain the Germans, who are in no hurry to do anything.

U.S. Secures South End Of Mindoro

Repair Airfields Rapidly Gains Extended

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Dec. 18—(AP)—Airfields were being whipped into shape today on the southern end of Mindoro Island, now securely in American hands, while Allied infantrymen were 11 miles from the beachhead they estabished at dawn Friday.

Only scant resistance was encountered, a spokesman reported. The Americans had command of strategic high ground and set up a wide defence six miles beyond the town of San Jose.

On Leyte Island to the southeast, troops of the U.S. 7th division outflanked Japan's Yamashita line at the southern section of the Ormoc corridor and drove seven miles north toward an ultimate junction with forces pressing southward.

American and Australian construction engineers on Mindoro were busy making captured airstrips for day and night fighter planes. These airfields are only 150 miles from Manila—a flight of less than half an hour.

Carrier plane blows against the Manila area gave strong support to the Mindoro advance.

Maj. Richard I. Bong of Popular, Wis., top United States ace, shot down his 39th enemy plane Friday in a fighter sweep over Negros Island in support of the Mindoro operation. That is one more than the total of Wing Cmdr. J. E. (Johnny) Johnson British-born leader of an R.C.A.F. Spitfire wing in Europe.

2,012 Killed

The flanking movement on Leyte entailed some of the bloodiest fighting of the Philippine campaign. Gen. MacArthur listed 2,012 new Japanese dead to add to the 37,154 already counted on Leyte.

The 77th division was only two miles from Valencia, headquarters of Gen. Suzuki, commander of the 35th Japanese Army. At the north end of the bloody corridor the Yank 1st cavalry division made a two-mile advance to cut the Yamashita line between Mount Catabaran and Valencia, and the 32nd division in the same general area captured large quantities of enemy equipment.

American aircraft gave Japanese shipping airdromes and fuel installations a thorough pasting. Three freighters were set afire off Mindoro and a fourth was damaged. Two more were set ablaze of Masbate in the Visayan group.

Oil tanks at Tarakan, North Borneo, were pounced anew.

The concentrated day and night attack on the Manila area by carrier and land-based planes caused the Japanese to black out the city for the first time since they captured it.

Child Victims' Christmas Fund Gets $100 From I.O.D.E. Chapter

A recent report from London quotes the Lord Mayor as expressing some concern over the outlook for the Christmas Cheer that would this year be available for the many thousands of boys and girls who have lost their homes through the blitz from the air, so lately accentuated by the robot or flying bomb.

From the report it appears that most of the sources through which this in the past has been made available, have this year cut their objective or that purpose by one-half, and it is to the credit of this city and district, that the Lord Mayor quoted the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund as being the only one promising to equal the contribution made last year.

From past experience, the fund management feels that this would truly be the desire of all those who have so kindly demonstrated their goodwill in this manner in the past, particularly when such has an increased need due to the much larger toll taken by the robot bombs.

Saturday's gifts made up a total of $366.80, which still leaves the sum of $1,867.55 required to complete the objective.

Named after the namesake of this fair city, the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. has on many occasions shown how it could live up to anything of a patriotic nature from both a city and Empire standpoint, its work at all times being of a benefit to both in matters pertaining to that of a humanitarian welfare, as shown by the good work done in many fields of endeavor, among which this fund has had a place.

It is recalled that on one occasion during the days when the air blitz was at its height, this Chapter made a contribution of $300 in one gift, and coming back to the immediate moment, a fine gift of $100 is today recorded for this Christmas fund, through Mrs. C. L. Upper and Mrs. F. Jobbitt, a wonderful help on an occasion like the present.

Silk Stockings Net $70

Six pairs of silk stockings would prove an attraction deluxe for members of the fair sex, and what husband or young gallant would give a lot to be able to hand them out on Christmas morning to friend wife or best girl, they sure would make him tops at least for a while.

Receiving a call from A. Spicer, the head of the Mechanical Department at the C.G.E. Co. Ltd. on Saturday morning, the secretary of the fund went down to the plant and made the draw for this prize, as well as for a consolation, which under the circumstances would be considered most appropriate.

Ths resulted in R. S. Hood of 588 Park street being the lucky winner, and the consolation prize, went to Mrs. Mary Kearney of 384 Murray street, while the fund is richer to the extent of a nice sum of $70, handed over by Miss Jean Hardy, who acted as treasurer for the fine effort on behalf of the und.

Credit goes particularly to Eleanor Collins and Catherine Graham for selling the largest amount of tickets, and to the department as a whole for the splendid sum raised, which now gives the employees of this one plant a total credit of $534.33 in this special donation for Christmas.

Church and Other Groups

Four church groups today demonstrate what Christmas really means to them by making a gift to give cheer to the boys and girls, the lead in this respect being taken by the St. James' Anglican church Women's Guild of East Emily, who raised $34 for this purpose, followed by the St. Paul's Ladies' Aid Southend group through Mrs. Lillian Milby, president, and Mrs. Jane Anderson, treasurer, with a gift of $10.

Then the young folk of Bailieboro United church Sunday School back up the precepts of their teachings with a nice gift of $9.50 and the Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's church at Omemee, with Mrs. B. Windrim as treasurer sent in $5 in response to an appeal over CHEX, accompanied by good wishes for the success of the fund.

A very fine list of some nineteen personal gifts is also noted today headed by Mrs. J. Wilson with $25, and $1 in pennies was sent in by Evelyn Hocking, which she had saved up to honor the memory of her grandmother, the late Mrs. Herb. Stenton, who passed away on December 27 in 1942.

The Canadian Department Stores in this city and the employees some time ago attained the gold star class on behalf of the fund, having raised over $1,200 at that time for the fund, this being further accentuated by another gift of $25, through Herb. Jamison today from the firm itself, while others in the group class include the Havelock Lodge A.F. and A.M. No. 435, and a Red Cross sewing group under the acknowledgement of "Cups of tea."

Two schools are also included, Miss Esplen's class at Central school coming forward for the second time in this Christmas fund, and the pupils of S.S. No. 14, Belmont, send in $3 through their teacher, Mrs. M. Pollock.

Clever Planning

Was Expected.

Gen. Eisenhower must have realized that something like this would come sooner or later. The strangely inactive front between the Aachen sector and Luxembourg seemed almost an invitation to Field Marshal Rundstedt. It was tempting bait and Gen. Eisenhower may have wanted him to take it now rather than later.

Nevertheless, this is the most serious test the Americans have yet had to face.

German reports have stated that the Allies have received 25 new divisions during the last 10 weeks and that 100 Allied divisions will be on the Western front by Christmas. There can be no question of Allied exhaustion which would be favorable to a large-scale counter attack.

The reasons for Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's timing, therefore, have to be sought in the conditions of the German camp—not in those of the Allies. Apparently the big attempt had to be made to stop the Allied advance in the south and the consolidation of the Allied position on the Roer.

That is why the possible objectives of the German attack seem only limited.

searched us for wristwatches and anything else they wanted," said Summers.

"I guess we were lined up along that road for a full hour. Then then stood us all together in an open field. I thought something was wrong. As we were standing there one German soldier moving past in a tank column less than 50 yards away pulled out a pistol and emptied it on our fellows.

"Then they opened up on us from their armored cars with machine-guns. We hadn't tried to run or anything. We were just standing there with our hands up and they tried to murder us all. And they did murder a lot of us.

"There was nothing to do but flop and play dead."

The survivors lay in tense, rigid silence in the freezing mud for an hour before cautious glances showed most of the Germans had moved away. Three hours after the slaughter fewer than 20 survivors had made their way back to the American lines.

Holds Little Hope

ROME, Dec. 18—(AP). — Premier Ivanoe Bonomi in a broadcast to the nation last night held out little hope of improved economic conditions while the war lasts and appealed to Italians to "fight to win the war without party distinctions."

SGT. ROY THOMPSON

Soldier Home First Time In Five Years

For his first Christmas at home with his family since 1939, Sgt. Roy J. Thompson, Erskine Avenue, who enlisted in the first days of the war with the Hastings and Prince Edward Battalion, arrived in Peterborough on Sunday morning by way of Port Hope.

Sgt. Thompson has spent his last five Christmases on the sea, in England and Italy—"and man it's great to be back," he told the Examiner this morning. His wife and four children, two boys and two girls, live on Erskine Avenue. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson of Western Avenue. Two brothers are still in England.

Enlisting at Picton in 1939, just after the outbreak of war, Sgt. Thompson arrived in England December 29, 1939, with the "Hasty-Pees," the Eastern Ontario battalion which was to make a name for itself as spearhead troops in the Italian campaign.

"We landed in France in June, 1940, at Brest, and reached a point about seven kilometres from Paris, remained in England until June, 1943, when the battalion left with the 1st Brigade for Sicily. I was wounded in the leg at Campobasso, left Italy last February for England, and was two months and a half in hospital. Now I am home on rotation leave of 30 days, but I am being sent to Brockville for instructional work indefinitely, possibly for the duration."

Toughest Job

Sgt. Thompson is manifestly proud of the Hastings-Prince Edwards, and said the experience which stood out as a salient in his memories was Ortona. "That was probably the toughest show our unit was through. I certainly will never forget that town."

And the rain and mud and surprising cold of sunny Italy's winter. About five of the originals of the Hasty-Pees are about all that remain in the line. The unit has been maintained by replacements.

Sgt. Thompson's elder brother overseas is Tpr. Ernest Thompson, who went over with the Hastings-Prince Edwards, was transferred to the 4th Princess Louise' Dragoon Guards, was wounded in Italy, and is convalescing in a hospital in England. He is married to a London girl.

The third of the Thompson boys of Western Avenue in the Canadian Army is the youngest of the family, Spr. Gordon Thompson of the Engineers, wounded in France, and now out of hospital, but is presently at a reception depot. The three Thompsons attended May's School.

Germans Cross Into Luxembourg

LONDON, Dec. 18—(CP)—Berlin claimed tonight that the Germans had crossed the northern part of Luxembourg on a broad front and were nearing the Luxembourg-Belgian border. The Allied controlled radio station at Eidhoven, Holland, went abruptly off the air without explanation.

The northern tip of Luxembourg is at least eight miles across.

A German penetration there would place the Germans about 50 miles from Namur and in a position to threaten communication links between the 1st Army and other Allied armies to the south.

Fast German units and armored battle groups on the northern wing reached the Malmedy area, Berlin declared.

Many bitter battles were fought inside towns and villages and some U.S. tanks forces were wiped out, the broadcast added.

Lester Pearson Ambassador To United States

OTTAWA, Dec 18 (CP) — Lester B. Pearson, 47, a career diplomat, yesterday was appointed Canadian Ambassador to the United States, succeeding Hon. Leighton McCarthy, 75, who has resigned.

Mr. Peason has held the post of Minister at the Canadian Embassy in Washington.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced the appointment and resignation in an official statement. He said that Mr. McCarthy had accepted the post of representing Canada in Washington in 1941 in response to an urgent request and he had carried on through the most critical stages of the war. His resignation had been accepted with reluctance, but Mr. McCarthy had said he could not continue longer for personal and family reasons.

Mr. King said that Mr. McCarthy thus concluded with distinction to himself and honor to Canada a career of public service which began many years ago with membership in the Commons. Mr. McCarthy's career had been marked by ready and disinterested support of many great causes and by generous aid to social and patriotic appeals.

Mr. Pearson was a member of the University of Toronto staff before he joined the External Affairs Department in 1928. He was transferred to the office of the High Commissioner for Canada in London in 1935 and became counsellor there in 1939. In 1941 he returned to Ottawa to be Assistant Under-Secretary of State for External Affairs and in the following year went to Washington.

In September he was elected chairman of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration council meeting in Montreal. He is popularly known as "Mike."

Allied military authorities said it had been decided not to make public specific information now as to the exact places where the German columns were smashing through and how far they had advanced.

But 1st Army Headquadters dispatches said the Germans had gained several miles and American troops were locked in battle. The penetration apparently had been at least four miles in one area 10 miles east of Malmedy, a Belgian town just north of the Luxembourg border.

This was a push by a strong German armored column supported overnight by artillery and bombing and strafing planes on a seven-mile front.

Several German armored divisions and infantry divisions were striking savagely and bending back the lines of the fiercely struggling Americans.

Allies Lose 33.

The Germans had 108 fighters and bombers blasted out of the air yesterday in air battles accompanying the enemy's ground attacks. Two R.A.F. fighters were lost, both due to flak, and 31 American pursuit craft were listed as missing.

The clouds robbed the escort of 600 fighters of a chance to mix it with the German fighters.

The night force dropped an estimated 7,000 tons of bombs on the three German cities, all key points in the German railway network.

The triple blow last night—one of the first struck by heavy bombers in weeks — came in the wake of a day of bitter air combat between German and Allied fighters.

Seventen planes, four of them Canadian, are missing from the night operations.

Duisburg was the Canadian target, more than 200 R.C.A.F. planes attacking the city.

general was photographed at the Owen Sound station shaking hands with his Progressive Conservative opponent—Mayor Garfield Case.

Mayor Case had attended an organization meeting in Meaford, Ont., earlier in the day and had rushed back to be at the station to say good-by to the general. They chatted for five minutes, mostly on the plans for the Saturday night reception in Owen Sound of Maj. David Vivian Currie, Canada's most recent Victoria Cross winner.

Met Currie

Gen. McNaughton missed the reception, but as the trains bearing the new Defence Minister and the war hero crossed, Gen. McNaughton shook hands with Maj. Currie and told him, "your citation, Currie, was the finest Victoria Cross citation I've ever read."

He told the Liberal supporters he wanted the seat only for the period between now and the federal general election, when he expects to accept the invitation of his native Qu'Appelle riding in Saskatchewan, now held by E. E. Perley, a Progressive Conservative.

He also disclosed that when he returned from Britain early this year he had thought of entering political life, but had given up the idea in October when he concluded that it would be best to "undertake work of another character entirely."

Gen. McNaughton had a word about his plan of 30 days home leave, exclusive of travelling time, for men with long service overseas and he added that these men wouldn't be sent back to the fighting front unless they were fully fit. A high proportion of the men would be retained in Canada for use as instructors.

He said the leave plan had originally contemplated that 450 men would be home for Christmas. This number he said have been extended and "well over 1,000 will be here before the new year and I have every expectation this rate will then continue and increase."

A previous attack was made on Nogoya Dec. 13.

The text of the war department communique:

Boils are an outward indication of impurities in the system, and just when you think you are rid of one another crops up to take its place and prolong your misery. All the lancing and poulticing you can do may not stop more coming.

To help overcome boils you should purify the blood, so why not give that old, reliable blood medicine, Burdock Blood Bitters, a chance to show what it will do in helping you get rid of them? Thousands have used it for this purpose for the past 60 years. Why not you?

Alderman Herbert Bradburn Heads County Conservative Association

"I was never prouder in my life than I was in refusing to vote confidence in a Government that would not go all out to provide reinforcements for our Army overseas," declared Gordon Graydon, M.P., Progressive Conservative House Leader, in an address at the annual meeting of the Peterborough County Progressive Conservative Association in the Canadian Legion Hal lon Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Graydon said that he had been accused by the Prime Minister of not supporting the Government in its policy of providing for the sending of 16,000 draftees overseas but that he was proud of the consistent stand of the Progressive Conservative Opposition on that question.

Ald. Herbert I. Bradburn was elected as president of the Association, succeeding Lieut.-Col. R. E. Birdsall who retired after two years' service and was tendered an appreciative vote of thanks from the meeting for the efficient manner in which he had discharged his duties.

Other officers elected were:

First vice-president— Frank Erskine, Lakefield.

Second vice-president — Mrs. J. H. Cridland, Peterborough.

Third vice-president—E. J. Leeson, Havelock.

Fourth vice-president — Albert Juby, Peterborough.

Fifth vice-president—Mrs. Charles Bolton, Douro.

Secretary — Mrs. Floyd Curtis, Peterborough.

Recording secretary—W. R. Philp, Peterborough.

Treasurer—D. J. Lawrie, Peterborough.

The meeting decided that the convention to nominate a candidate for the next Federal election would be a delegated convention.

Lieut.-Col. Birdsall was in the chair for the opening of the meeting and was then succeeded for the election of officers by J. F. Strickland, K.C., who presided for the rest of the session.

"Some things that have been done by the Federal Government meet with our approval,' said Mr Strickland in a brief opening address. "Some things that have been left undone, however, and the Government's failure in that respect has earned our disapproval."

There was a serious situation in the country, the speaker said, and he emphasized the responsibility upon every one in the present crisis.

Ready for Election.

"The women are well organized and all prepared for an election," Mrs. J. H. Cridland reported. "Whoever should be the choice of the nominating convention that may be expected soon can rest assured that the women will be behind him and he can count upon them working hard and faithfully."

H. R. Scott, M.P.P., called attention to the fact that the 22nd point of the Drew program had been implemented by the announcement of the Government's educational policy. The member for Peterborough in the Legislature pointed out that the smaller centres were getting the benefit of more than 50 per cent of the cost of education in their jurisdiction.

"I didn't make any great speeches in the House,' said Mr. Scott, "but I managed to get in a lot of work for this constituency. When townships sought assistance or grants I was able to see that they got what they wanted and in doing that I think I was representing Peterborough more efficiently than by talking in the House."

Introduced as a veteran who had done a great deal for the party both in the riding and out of it, E. A. Peck, K.C., addressed the meeting briefly, declaring that Gordon K. Fraser had proved to be an admirable representative of this constituency at Ottawa. Mr. Peck deplored the lack of a clean-cut war policy that would tell everybody just what the state expected of him in the way of service. To him the drafting of men and then refusing to send them out of the country had been a silly policy.

Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., introduced the guest speaker and in so doing eulogized Mr. Graydon for the leadership he had given the Progressive Conservative members in the House, for his success in battling against the Prime Minister and for the sacrifice of time and energy he had made in carrying out the duties of his responsible possession.

ALD. H. I. BRADBURN.

Mr. Fraser pictured the scene in the House during the last special session as General McNaughton, new minister of defence, was being questioned by opposition members. The minister, he said, had had to obtain some of his answers from the Prime Minister. He wondered if the people of Canada wanted a National Defence Minister who had to keep running to the Premier for instructions.

Referring to the fact that a number of Canadian soldiers who had been five years overseas were coming home on 30 days leave the member for Peterborough said that in view of their long absence from the country it should have been 300 days instead of 30. Speaking of the need of reinforcements Mr. Fraser said that the boys in the hospital were the support troops.

Praises Member

Mr. Graydon began his address with a tribute to the Federal and provincial representatives from Peterborough. Of Mr. Fraser he said he was "one of the best friends with whom I have worked in the political realm."

"He is a sterling representative" said the Progressive Conservative house leader. "He is a full-time man doing a full time job for a constituency that expects a full-time service." Mr. Graydon had a word of tribute too for Mrs. Fraser who had been a big help, he said. to her husband in his work at Ottawa.

Harold R. Scott, the speaker said, was a very excellent representative in the Legislature. He was a man whose personality and sunny disposition had won him many friends at Queen's Park. "I hear nice things about him on all sides in Toronto" said Mr. Graydon "and in the days that lie ahead I venture to say you are going to hear even more favorable things about Harold Scott."

The speaker declared that the most important vital issue in Canada at the present time was the same issue that had confronted the government and the country since 1939, and that was the bringing of the war to a successful conclusion in the quickest possible time. "That is the issue that we must keep always in the forefront of our mind" said Mr. Graydon. "We must always keep our eyes upon the ball."

The Progressive Conservative party, he said, had constantly tried to carry on and to make the best possible contribution it could toward the meeting of that issue.

Feel Their Responsibilities

"Most members of parliament" he said, "feel their responsibilities very keenly. They know that anything they have to do looks very small and insignificant compared to what is being done by the boys in the armed services who are not simply talking but are placing their lives at the foot of the altar of sacrifice so that we at home can retain our Democratic institutions."

"Most of us are approaching the problem with great humility. If we are asking young men to go out and risk their lives, we at home cannot do anything else but give the best that we can give on the home front."

Those men who are fighting for this country, the speaker said, would have the right to ask us how we had met that challenge.

Mr. Graydon pointed out that the winning of the peace, the task of erecting a structure of peace that would not break down again was another vital issue that would have to be dealt with. When Canada took her place at the peace table, he maintained, she would be able to perform her best service as a nation if she had succeeded in maintaining harmony and unity at home. The nation that did that was in a much better position to make herself felt in the peace deliberations.

This country, he said, had some house-cleaning of her own to do. It was his firm belief that no matter what political system was followed in this country — and naturally he thought that the Progressive Conservative system was the best available — it could not hope to succeed unless it gave agriculture and labor the rights they had earned by their contribution to the war effort.

"We can never expect to develop a great nation" said the speaker "unless the farmer is given his fair share of the national incomes and unless the working-man is given steady employment at good wages and under good conditions. We must be prepared to do more than just talk about those things. That won't be good enough."

The Progressive Conservative party, he said must be prepared to rectify some of the injustices of the past and do more than just talk about them.

Making Promises

Mr. Graydon declared that one of the most dangerous things in public life today was the habit of making promises. They should never be made, he said, unless those making them sincerely desired to carry them out and had the capacity to do so.

Speaking of the recent session of Parliament Mr. Graydon said that the nation had been rocked by the crisis that had developed over the reinforcement question. The Progressive Conservative opposition, he maintained, had been consistent in its attitude because it had stood for an all-out solution of the problem, rather than half-measures.

The Government, he charged, had only gone part way in dealing with the reinforcement issue. It had been found to be wrong in its estimate as to the number of infantry that would be needed. It might be wrong again now in its opinion that only 16,000 reinforcements were required in which case the country would be heading into another crisis.

In conclusion the Progressive Conservative house leader said that he deprecated a tearing-down attitude in politics. Rather would he see the political parties competing with each other in the matter of the public

Growing Provincial Interference

The Ontario Department of Education has sent out an order to the principals of all grade schools in the province forbidding the distribution of any written matter in the schools which has not been approved by the Department. This is aimed immediately at the Prime Minister's radio speech of November 8, which it appears that the Wartime Information Board had sent to school principals. This is not a purely political move on the part of a Conservative government; the Hepburn government refused to allow two Film Board productions to be used in 1940 and 1942, presumably because Mr. Hepburn was at odds with the Dominion Liberal party. We see that Ottawa dismissed this move as "just another Queen's Park ban". The Ontario Department of Education and the Dominion Government, therefore, seem ready to let the matter rest where it is, but they have forgotten an important, relevant aspect of the situation.

It is this: the Ontario Department of Education has no right to forbid the distribution of the Premier's speech, or copies of the Koran, or the Protocols of Zion, or any other printed matter in the schools. That is the privilege of the local School Boards. The Department of Education does not build the schools; each community builds its own and elects a School Board to control them. The Department of Education does not appoint or employ school principals, and has no right to send them orders as to what they shall do or not do: the School Boards appoint principals and teachers, and they are the proper bodies to instruct the teachers as to their wishes in such matters. The schools to which our children go are built and owned by us, and our representatives control them. The Department of Education has exceeded its authority.

But has become very common for provincial departments to exceed their authority and over-ride local bodies during the past ten or fifteen years. The contempt which the provincial government—whether Liberal or Conservative—feels for municipal and local government is perfectly clear, for no attempt is made to conceal it. The tendency of provincial governments in many departments has been to grow more and more dictatorial, and to treat local governments as though they are composed of incompetents and straw men. This is not democratic and it is not good sense, and the effect of it will be to drive good men out of local government. Who wants to accept a municipal office merely in order to act as puppet for a Toronto department?

This high-handed action on the part of the Department of Education follows closely upon the announcement that the Provincial Government will shoulder some of the expense of local school costs. If local School Boards are to pay for those subsidies with loss of authority and loss of dignity they would be far better off without them. The high-handed manners of provincial politicians of both parties are becoming very offensive.

McNaughton In Grey North

The Progr[illegible] making the m[illegible]

eral McNaughton took office in order to provide reinforcements for our troops overseas without conscription, and that the government shortly afterward put conscription into effect. We shall be surprised, however, if this circumstance alone is enough to defeat General McNaughton. Canada must have a Defence Minister, and his qualifications for that post are many. It is also unusual for a Cabinet appointee to be defeated in a by-election; such a defeat would point to a greater loss of confidence in the government than we believe exists.

The outcome of the by-election will be greatly influenced by what General McNaughton himself has to say. He has been regarded as a Conservative in politics, and he has joined a Liberal ministry; when he explains why he chose to do so he may gain many votes. It is obvious that the step was taken in complete sincerity, for changes of political allegiance are not made lightly by men who enter politics late in life. We predict that the move which has been on foot to represent McNaughton as a ninny and a dupe will be blocked, if not destroyed, when he takes the platform. The election is not far distant, and we shall not have to wait long to see what happens.

We Reply To a WPTB Note

We have received through the mail a note from the Information Branch of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board enclosing an editorial from the Montreal Standard on what it calls "the current Christmas Shopping Spree"; the note continues, "Strikes us you may wish to do a similar one for the Peterborough Examiner on the Peterborough situation or you might like to reprint the Standard's comments. Best wishes of the Season".

You are wrong, friend. We most decidedly do not wish to do a similar one on the Peterborough situation, and we will be damned if we will reprint the Standard's comments, which impress us a prim, priggish and objectionable. Nor are we obliged to you for your attempt to influence our editorial policy to further the ends of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. We, in common with the rest of Canadian business, have stood for a lot from your Board and have done a lot to oblige it, but this is where we draw the line. In case our attitude is not already clear, the answer is NO!

We know what the WPTB wants. It wants to keep inflation at bay, and curb foolish spending. So do we, because we understand what inflation means. And for that reason we have consistently and vigorously boosted every War Loan, every war charity and good work, and the sale of War Savings Certificates. We have done all that lies in the power of a local newspaper to help the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

But we are not going to be told by you what we shall write in these columns, and that goes for any other Government Board which may be listening. What makes you think that there is a Christmas Shopping Spree in Peterborough? We have asked several merchants if this is so, and they all say that trade is good, and that there seems to be plenty of money about, but that spending is reasonable. There is no light-headed buying of luxurious and Babylonian gifts for the sufficient reason that there are no goods of that description in the shops. Perhaps there is a spree in Montreal, but if that is so, why ask us to lecture Peterborough?

We are heartily sick of the grisly, admonishing, finger-wagging, puritanical moralism of government bureaux. The WPTB has a job to do and it has done it nobly. But when it asks us to recommend the giving of War Bonds and Savings Certificates as Christmas gifts, on the ground that they would "be more than mere ornaments", we spit. If the Government wants more money, let it ask us for it, and we will all give, as we have given so often before. But to ask the Examiner to strike a sneaking blow at the great old festival of Christmas, and to write a snivelling editorial damping the Christmas merriment, and then to conclude by sending us "the best wishes of the Season", it to court a rude and contumelious refusal. This is it.

Farming News and Views

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

PRESENT prices and the future of the beef cattle market is a matter of some concern to farmers in Canada and close as we are to a cattle producing country like the United States we have a keen interest in what they are doing and what they may propose. Colonel E. N. Wentworth, Director of Armour's Livestock Bureau, delivered an address recently at the Washington State College in which he made some highly interesting observations. Col. Wentworth has been connected with the Armour Packing Company for over 25 years and is well informed about the meat business. He points out that wars bring cattle population of the United States to unprecedented peaks, and cites the war of 1812, the Mexican War, the Civil War and World War I as proof. Cattle in the U.S. had reached an all time record in numbers at the beginning of 1944, totalling 82,192,000 head, while at the end of 1918 the numbers were 73,000,000 head. He points out that the year 1942 had the highest slaughter of federally inspected cattle when 18,107,000 head went through the packing plants. He states that Secretary Wickard, head of the U.S. Federal Department of Agriculture, has announced that no increase in numbers of beef cattle are required on the farms and ranches of the United States, but that increased marketings are required to reduce the numbers. During the first eight months of this year slaughterings had been increased by 3,400,000 head.

The aim of the American Department of Agriculture he explained was to reach the end of this year with, as nearly as possible, no increase in numbers of cattle over a year ago and to do this will require the killing of an extra 3,000,000 head of an increase in the last four months of this year. This gives us some idea of how busy U.S. packers must have been during the last few months.

Col. Wentworth then remarked, "If Western cattlemen continue their marketings through 1945 on the same scale as they have in 1944, it may be possible for the cattle industry to avoid, or at least mitigate, the predicament that followed the last war." From this it will be seen that the advice passed out to U.S. cattlemen is not to find themselves with a too largely increased breeding herd at the close of the war. The drought in Tennessee and Alabama practically wiped out whole herds in the South which has made some reduction.

Col. Wentworth said that without more tangible asurances of what business activity will be like during the immediate post war period, it is impossible to say whether we will require a 65 million or up to a 75 million cattle population but it is certain we will not need an 80 million population, and some people believe a 75 million population will be too large. Over half the cattle in the U.S. will be dairy cattle and they will supply about 80 per cent of the veal calves and about one half the cows for killing. If more baby beeves are killed larger numbers may be required, but on the whole the cattle population in the U.S. will require reductions, all of which indicates the wisdom of our keeping at least one eye on the British market. Col. Wentworth said: "Prices in that much desired post-war situation are too problematical for speculation."

PRICES for pure-bred cattle go steaming along, as they are bound to be more speculative than that of animals for killing, and often they are worth what they cost for the improvement they make in herds. This is a business by itself, and those who can learn are bound to profit, and help farming to succeed.

A LITTLE over five and a half million bushels of sunflower seed have been delivered in Western Canada up to December 1. This is a rather larger amount of this seed than one would have expected but there are parts of the west in which this oil producing seed can be grown quite successfully and with some adjustments a combine harvester can cut and thresh this crop. When the seas are cleared for the shipment of vegetable oils from other sources its profitableness will be doubtful.

AT the end of November wheat, No. 1 hard and No. 1 Northern were quoted, as of store in Fort William, at $1.25, while Alberta Red Winter was at $1.35 and No. 1 Garnet, which is a trifle yellow in its flour was at $1.20. No. 1 Durum was $1.25 which indicates a demand for some soft wheat. Oats No. 26 W. at 51.4 and barley, 1C.W., 64.6 and flax $2.75. Ontario fall wheat was quoted at $1.26, oats at 52c and good malting barley at 78c. Buckwheat is 75c.

AS winter begins it is always suggested that farmers should plan for the coming spring. This goes without saying but a farmer must make his plans for more than the coming seed time. If he is farming with a view to definite results over a reasonable period he should plan at least for the length of his crop rotation. If he has a four or five year crop rotation for several fields, he must plan to cover that period and there is more time, during stormy weather in winter to do this than at any other season. There is a more active interest in grass on Ontario farms as the years go by. For some reason, perhaps because it comes of its own accord to heal scars we make on the earth's surface, who have never quite given grass its full and fair chance. When a field got "run down" its owner often said he would "seed it down" and give it a rest. Then between lack of fertility in the soil, and lack of seed to make a fair covering, little use was obtained from the field "laid down to grass." One has only to realize that grass is the most perfect feed for grazing farm animals to understand how wasteful it is to have poor pastures. To get the field into good heart is the first business and to use good seed the next important move. Grass seed is dear in price just now which always tempts some people to "save" money by sowing inferior seed both in quality and purity. We can get enough weeds without planting them, and I fear that weed inspection is rather sadly neglected under the pressure of less labour and more crops.

I visited a farm a few months ago and the owner apologized for some weeds but added with pride, there is no wild carrot on the home hundred acres. I just don't let it live I pull it on sight and carry it to where its seeds will not make their way to some other farm. This man is a fairly large operator but says he hopes [illegible] to have one man responsible to keep the [illegible] off one hundred acres, and that will be a [illegible] duty if he gets around to it as he has [illegible] vigilance has cleaned one farm.

[illegible] tures is becoming a fairly common [illegible]. It accomplishes several [illegible] It cuts off weeds and so destroys annuals and bi-annuals when persisted in. It keeps the grass short and it is much better feed if it can be kept fresh in this way. Grass is best before it reaches the first joint, but only enalling it will make this quite possible. Fencing into small fields and grazing it close gives good results but takes more trouble than many seem able to absorb in their work. We are going to have to determine, before long, which pays best, to farm fewer acres with greater care and better results, or to spread ourselves out over too many acres, some of which are badly handled and do little to help our business as a whole.

"Double Talk" No Modern Idea

(WASHINGTON STAR)

THE phrase 'double talk' is common in modern use, but there does not seem to be any general agreement about what is intended by it. Some authorities on slang seem to believe that it relates to a curious trick of speech—something like the "hog Latin" of half a century ago. A proficient "double talker", according to this conception, can manipulate words in such wise as to convey two distinct meanings at once—a meaning for "those in the know" and a meaning for those who are not admitted to the inner circle to which the speaker and his initiated audience belong.

But the idea of "double talk" as a synonym for "deception" or "deceit" is ancient and abundantly authenticated. It takes many forms and has many applications. President Roosevelt, for example, said in the course of his first political utterance of the present campaign: "There is one thing I am too old for—I cannot talk out of both sides of my mouth at the same time".

Perhaps he was thinking of Saint Paul's stipulation, in First Timothy, III: 8, to the effect that: "Likewise must the deacons be grave, not double-tongued". Or possibly he was remembering the Psalmist who wrote: "They speak vanity every one with his neighbour; with flattering lips and a double heart do they speak", and Saint James, "a servant of God", who declared: "A double-minded man is unstable in all his ways" and called on sinners to: "Purify your hearts, ye double-minded".

The parson in Chaucer's Canterbury Pilgrims was familiar with the last-mentioned vice as well as with that to which he more directly referred when he announced: "Now comith the sinne of double tongue, swiche as speke faire biforn folk and wikkedly bihynde". Shakespeare similarly employs several terms tracing back to the same or a nearly allied scriptural source. He has the phrase "double dealer" in Twelfth Night and in Much Ado About Nothing and "a double meaning prophesier" in All's Well That Ends Well". John Milton in Samson Agonistes penned a complaint against insecure celebrity in the sentence: "Fame, if not double-faced, is double-mouthed".

There are countless other quotations that might be cited to prove the antiquity of the charge against duplicity. Hundreds of authors have made free of it in many different connections. But always the thought has been identic. H. L. Mencken in his New Dictionary reproduces an English rhyme whose sponsor is unknown but who, even anonymously, should be appreciated for the lines:

May the man be damned and never grow fat
Who wears two faces under one hat.

Making The Best Of It

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

THE Japanese radio is busy informing the denizens of the Nipponese empire that America will have "a very poor Christmas" this year. There is a prevailing shortage of "liquor, sugar and cigarets," it proclaims; "girls who used to smoke a lot are now obliged to resort to chewing gum," and all in all we're going to have the "poorest Christmas of the war."

It is just possible, of course, that the Japanese don't realize how serious the situation is over here, or the nature of the hardships we're facing. They ought to have told their listeners, if they wanted to do a real job, that certain commodities are so difficult to obtain that we stand in line for hours at the stores, knee-deep in snowdrifts and shivering in the freezing weather. In some North American cities life is almost at a standstill. Streetcars and buses have ceased to operate, stores and business houses are closed, and newspapers have suspended publication.

As all North Americans are heavy smokers, the Japanese radio might have continued, the shortage of cigarets and pipe-cleaners has produced a state of inarticulate rage and despair among the civilian population. In addition to being military idiots the Anglo-Saxons are a race of drunkards (here the Japanese announcer can work in a plug for Hitler, who owns the copyright on that one), and the lack of potable spirits is contributing to the national demoralization.

Family life in North America is disintegrating our Tokyo radio man would say if he knew his job. This is caused largely by the disappearance of butter, a substance used in the preparation of a hot beverage necessary to maintain life in wintertime.

But the greatest contributory factor to the breakdown of home life is the suffering of the women, who are unable to procure much-prized articles of personal adornment. Thus they have had to substitute rayon leg-covering for those of silk that formerly the Japanese were pleased to send abroad. These stockings, as they are called, are naturally of inferior quality. They have a tendency to remain seated when the wearer stands up, our announcer explains. Since North American women exhibit an incomprehensible concern over the appearance of their legs this fills them with indescribable grief. As a result marriages are ruined.

And so on. Really this Japanese announcer who says we're going to have a "very poor" Christmas is no great shakes as a prophet of disaster. But then, as we said before, he is probably unaware of the real situation that confronts us. We don't see how we can stand it much longer. The only thought that occurs to us to help us bear up is that our capital city is not being evacuated, nor is it the target of Superfortresses four times a day.

Saving Lives With the New Drug

The Superintendent of Ottawa Civic Hospital says penicillin has saved "many lives" in that institution, that the results from its use have been "very dramatic" in some cases. The supply of this new and sensational drug still is restricted, as most of it goes to the battlefronts, but enough is released for civilian purposes to make its use possible in cases where its necessity is indicated. That civilian supply is rationed, in the case of Ottawa Civic by a committee of doctors, and allotted where it is most needed, whether the patient is in a public ward, a semi-private or private room. In other words, though at present expensive, the well-to-do and poor alike are given penicillin when they really require it and only when they require it.

The results in every case where penicillin is administered are carefully recorded by the committee and these "case histories" are available to all doctors.

The sulfa drugs also have proved an extremely valuable addition to the weapons of medical science. A surgeon tells us, for example, of an amputation case in which liberal use of sulfa enabled the patient to leave the hospital in 16 days, the stump of his leg perfectly healed—and he was walking on his artificial leg two months after the operation. In a very minor field we are told of a boil healed in two days through the use of sulfa tablets—prescribed by a physician—and without pain or lancing or any unpleasantness.

Doctors emphasize the fact that neither penicillin nor sulfa is a "cure-all," and of course they can be used safely or effectively only by a physician or on his orders. Clearly, however, their development marks a long step forward in the control of the ills which affect mankind, and it need not be supposed that their usefulness has been fully explored.—Ottawa Journal.

A Bible Message

Rejoice in the Lord, O ye righteous: for praise is comely for the upright.... For the word of the Lord is right; and all his works are done in truth. He loveth righteousness and judgment: the earth is full of the goodness of the Lord.

By the word of the Lord were the heavens made; and all the host of them by the breadth of his mouth. He gathereth the waters of the sea together as an heap: he layeth up the depth in storehouses.

Let all the earth fear the Lord: let all the inhabitants of the world stand in awe of him. For he spake, and it was done; he commanded, and it stood fast.

The Lord bringeth the counsel of the heathen to nought: he maketh the devices of the people of none effect.

The counsel of the Lord standeth for ever, the thoughts of his heart to all generations.

Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord: and the people whom he hath chosen for his own inheritance. (Ps. 33: 1, 4-12.)

For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear; but ye have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father. (Rom. 8: 14, 15.)

Unconsidered Trifles

Nurse (suspiciously): "What have you been doing Joan?"

Joan: "Rover's eaten my dolly's slippers, so I've been punishing him."

"How?"

"I've been in his kennel and drinked his milk."

A theatre in a small American town had a burglar alarm fitted in the box-office. You just had to press a pedal on the floor and a bell rang at police headquarters.

Two days after it was installed a gangster poked his gun through the box-office window and demanded the cash.

The girl pressed her foot on the pedal, stalled a bit, and then began to hand over the money.

At this point the phone bell rang. The gangster grabbed the receiver.

"What is it?" he asked.

"This is the police station, darn you!" said an angry voice. "Say, do you know you've got your foot on the pedal and we can't hear ourselves speak because of that blooming alarm bell!"

An Imponderable Loss To England

Among the varied losses of this war are the imponderables, the things which cannot be accounted, nor evaluated, and which cannot be restored. Among these losses will be the cherished and familiar landmarks which those returning home of the bombed cities will never see again. And among such landmarks will be the venerable churches, with their spires which have so often caught the light of the setting sun above the rooftops, and their darkened stones, and their quietness in a city's heart and traffic and business. Such shrines cannot be made except by the long years and the gathering of associations. Their charm and appeal lie in the fact that they cannot be replaced.

In respect to its churches, as in so many other respects, England has been the chief sufferer. For though it has itself been spared from enemy invasion, it has paid the price of being for so long the first defence line of the United Nations. No other nation has suffered a great loss in its heritage of church architecture.

The collected figures are impressive. Four thousand historic churches have been damaged, and nearly three thousand have been destroyed. Damage has been severe in Exeter Cathedral, one of the finest example of Middle English Gothic. Coventry Cathedral has become a total loss. The Cathedrals at Canterbury and Wells have been bombed, with a degree of ultimate damage which may yet prove serious.

London has suffered severely in the places of its crowded history. Westminster Abbey has been severely torn, while bombs have tested the good workmanship of great St. Paul's. All the Sir Christopher Wren churches in London, with their graceful spires and lightly perfect balance, have been gravely damaged, including such tradition-steeped churches as St. Brides, St. Giles Cripple Gate and St. Mary le Bow. St. James Piccadilly was almost destroyed by a bomb, with the loss of the beautifully confident 17th century woodcarving of Grinling Gibbons.

In reckoning England's losses in the war, we must remember these venerable and dignified and beautiful things. They had seemed, by surviving the past, to have achieved a sort of earthly immortality, but now many have vanished like the past which created them. And now that they are gone, nothing can ever call them back.—Montreal Gazette.

Spent 2 Months Behind German Lines

By The Canadian Press.

Any time newspaperman Paul Morton turns his hand to fiction and goes in for spy stories, he won't have to use his imagination. He can draw on his own experience as a British agent 200 miles behind the German lines.

Two months of ducking Nazis in Northern Italy—battling them when necessary — and finally escaping through their lines, gave him enough adventure to fill a couple of best-sellers, and gave the Nazis a headache or two to boot.

Sporting the wings of a British Army paratrooper on the tunic of his war correspondent's uniform, the Canadian news-writer has returned to the Dominion to represent the London Express in Canada. Before going overseas he had worked for the Halifax Herald and the Toronto Star, and he went into Italy as correspondent of the Star.

While at work recording the activities of the Canadians he was asked by the British Army to undertake the perilous job of going into Nazi-held northern Italy and finding out how the Italian Patriot groups were stacking up as potential Allies.

Disguised as an Italian, after discarding his uniform, he walked right up to Germans and looked them in the eye without trouble. "I've been as close to armed Germans," he said, "as I am to you now"—about two feet—"and they never bothered me."

He finally made his way out of the Nazi area, still in civilian clothes, without difficulty. "The method was so simple it would make them awfully mad if they heard about it," he said, "but I guess I'd better not reveal it yet."

Senator Age 90 Attends All Sessions

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Dec. 18— (CP)— Joint Canadian and United States planning for the development of the northwest has particular interest for a Canadian statesman, Senator Sir Allen Aylesworth, (L-Ontario) who celebrated his 90th birthday Nov. 27. Sir Allen was one of the King's Commissioners for Settlement of the Alaska boundary in 1903 and at that time he demonstrated and expressed his faith in the future of Canada. He has been a bencher of the law society of Upper Canada continuously since 1891.

Although he did not attend the brief special sitting which closed last week, Sir Allen seldom misses a day in the Upper House when the regular session is on.

He now is the second oldest member of the Senate, the eldest being Senator E. D. Smith (PC-Ontario), who is 91.

Custom: The Canadian reindeer in the Northwest Territories, whose fathers came from Alaska under a Federal government program, are running true to type. Groups of animals in a corral always will mill in a certain direction, and the Canadian reindeer, having inherited the instinct from their ancestors, mill counter-clockwise and the corrals are constructed with this in mind. Reindeer in Lapland may mill clockwise, all depending on what their fathers did.

Good hunting: Wild life authorities say there is every prospect that hunters coming back from war will find more birds in Canada than have been seen for many years. Wild fowl have flourished in both Canada and the United States with many hunters in the forces and limited ammunition supplies for those left behind. From the Canadian viewpoint, the increase in the game bird population has been assisted by prairie farm rehabilitation act dam projects which have provided new feeding and resting places for migrating waterfowl.

---

Designs: The munitions department reports that substitutions and designs on the No. 4 army rifle have made possible an estimated saving of more than 2,200,000 pounds of critical metals, more than 176,000,000 hours of labor and released 264 machine tools, for a total cost of $1,350,000. The re-designing of a back-sight to make it one part instead of seven resulted in the release of 37 machine tools for other work, and savings of 319,000 hours of labor and 143,800 pounds of carbon steel.

Millbrook Pupils Given Diplomas At Graduation

MILLBROOK, Dec. 18 (ENS)—In spite of bad road and weather conditions, the Town Hall was well filled on Friday evening for the annual Commencement of the Continuation School, ex-Warden Percy Stinson acting as chairman.

Mr. Stinson reminded the audience that the lessened attendance at the school this year owing to lack of transportation facilities for outside pupils, and the illness of one member of the staff leaving only two, Principal C. E. Wilson, and Miss Honor Gibson, to carry on, had all hampered preparation of the Commencement program.

"Looking over the past five years," Mr. Stinson said, "we see that the cream of the pupils from Millbrook Continuation School are to be found on the firing line throughout the whole of the world today. Little did we think that this would ever come to pass, nor that they would be able to give, or would be called upon to give, their lives for the cause of liberty and freedom. We think of Allan Brown, having won the D.F.C., and who was not able to be with us tonight; and we remember too those who have paid the supreme sacrifice in this struggle."

At the request of the chairman the audience rose and observed one minutes' silence to honor the memory of Jack Arundel, William Kerr and Harold Howson, following which Rev. A. L. Sisco offered prayer. Mr. Stinson has himself two sons in the armed forces, one of them, Sgt. Jack Stinson, having been overseas for more than three years in the R.C.A.F. and Mr. Sisco's eldest son is now in Belgium.

Present Diplomas

The program opened with the pupils massed upon the platform singing "O Canada," and the M.C.S. theme song, Homer Oullette and Miss Gibson being the accompanists of the evening. The highlight of the occasion followed with the presentation of the ribbon-tied diplomas, the intermediate group who received the coveted roll from Miss Honor Gibson, including: Bertram Bell, Roy Dawson, Theodore Sisco, Lyle McMahon, Burton Rowe, Henry Kent, Audrey Armstrong and Margaret Elson, the latter being unavoidably absent. The class from the Middle School was: Willoughby Belch, Laureen Henderson, Donald Edmunds, Francis Tickner and Elizabeth Moncrief. Mr. Wilson presented the certificates, some of these pupils being now attending Normal School and Business College at Peterborough.

The honor graduating class included Ada Earle, Lola Gardiner, Kathryn Elson, Laureen Henderson, Donald McKnight, Betty Moncrief, and Bruce Stewart, Mr. Wilson presenting the diplomas. Ralph Richards was awarded the Mirror-Reporter shield for highest efficiency in Grade 9; the chairman presented the trophy, and the Howard Shield, won by Miss Kathryn Elson, was presented by Lieutenant-Colonel E. H. Bounsell. Reeve H. D. Bigelow was asked to present the Allen Scholarship, a cheque for $40 accompanying this honor, to the winner, Willoughby Belch, who also gave the valedictory address. For the Scholarship, Willoughby had Coal is scarce! Wasting fuel by overheating your house is unpatriotic. Health authorities state that moderate temperatures are better for the health. Wear warmer clothing. Avoid cold drafts from open doors and windows. Do everything you can to save fuel.

Every kind of fuel is a vital war necessity. Without fuel, trains and ships cannot speed troops and material to the battle fronts. Munitions factories and shops cannot operate. There are fewer men to produce coal in the mines; fewer trucks and drivers to deliver it—that is why you must save all the fuel you can.

Co-operate with your fuel dealer. Order fuel as far ahead as you can. Be ready to take delivery when he can send it. Remove all obstructions to your coal window or chute. Think of all the other people who need coal too.

England Needs Half-Million Pre-fabricated Dwellings

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Dec. 18 — (CP) — Britin's pre-fabricated "portal houses" —500,000 of them turned out at a rate of 2,500 weekly if Government plan are carried out—will be spotted about the country in groups of 50 to 200, laid out in routine patterns with even the mass color scheme according to set specifications.

This is the picture set out in a White Paper published especially for municipal officials, outlining the scheme for hustling up the provision of emergency housing for servicemen and the millions left homeless by blitz and buzz-bomb.

Now municipalities from Land's End of Lowestof, from the Isle of Wight to Thurso, are picking sites where these midget small-family dwellings with a projected 10-year life can be planted nine to the acre on their concrete bases.

The first instalment of the almost flat-roofed, five-roomed homes —subject to intense controversy in parliament and elsewhere since the scheme was first propounded months ago —will come from the factory in sections early in the New Year. Samples will be sent to active war theatres so servicemen can see the houses for which they have top priority.

Not Popular.

Relatively few Britons like the "portals" in any of the four forms in which they will be made available, and even the government which drafted the basic design admits that they are far from perfect. The White Paper emphasies that the temporary scheme must not be allowed to delay unduly the building of permanent homes, but it adds:

"The use of temporary accommodation.... will make it possible to double the number of dwellings which could otherwise be provided with the limited amount of skilled labor available in the first years after building can be resumed."

Certainly the housing need is urgent. After the buzz-bomb attacks 800,000 London homes needed repairs to make them even reasonably comfortable: More than 125,000 homes have been destroyed since the war began. And there has been virtually no new building to make room for an estimated 250,000 new families established during the last five years.

To Cost $2,700.

Cost of the portals has been set at about $2,700 plus the cost of the site and installation of public services. The Ministry of Health will pay about $316 a year for 10 years. The municipal authorities will pay about $105 annually.

"The houses will be provided and owned by the government says the White Paper. "They will be erected on sites acquired and developed by the local authority.

"The (local) authority will choose tenants fix and receive the rents manage the property and keep it in repair...... sites for bungalows should wherever possible by sufficient for not less than 100 or in the case of authorities with smaller programs, not less than 50......"

Rental of the portals is expected to be around $27 a month.

Each temporary house contains a living room, two bedrooms, kitchen and bathroom. The rooms are small and the ceilings uniformly seven feet six inches high. Space is so tight that the White Paper acknowledges the bungalows are "not suitable for very large furniture of the old-fashioned type" and the government is taking steps to help prospective tenants to buy "utility" furniture that will fit.

THEY FOUGHT THE BLIZZARD

To the many hundreds of farmers, truckers and highway maintenance workers who, together with public and municipal officials and employees, fought last week's deep drifts and lashing blizzards to keep towns and cities in the storm areas supplied with milk, we of the Ontario Milk Distributors Association want to express grateful thanks.

Tribute is also due to the army of dairy employees who, in many centres, worked day and night to maintain essential distribution services and restore normal home deliveries as quickly as possible.

To the public, and the storekeepers, restaurant and hotel operators we wish to express—on behalf of our members, the dairies of Ontario—grateful acknowledgment of the consideration, patience and cooperation so cheerfully shown by all throughout the emergency.

Breaking all records for severity, the storm and its aftermath of blocked roads threw a heavy strain on the long chain of milk delivery service that stretches from farm to consumer. That temporarily broken links were so quickly repaired tells its own story of the industry's determination—and ability—to carry through unfailingly its obligations and responsibilities to the public.

It looks more and more as if the battle in the Y.M.C.A. House Basketball League lies between Gordon Johnston's Lions and the new entry, Clarence Davern's Cougars. Lions, sparked by Joe Stewart, home on furlough from the Navy reeled off their fourth straight win Saturday night at the expense of the Panthers while the Davern outfit cleaned up on Bill Kemp's Trojans. The two undefeated clubs will clash for the first time this season on Wednesday night and that engagement will show just how the two rivals compare. The loop has scheduled a double-header for Wednesday night, leaving Saturday night free and the battle between the two leading teams should produce the best basketball of the season. With Joe Stewart, ace sharpshooter of the last couple of years on the the Lions' roster the Johnston entry will be plenty tough but the Davern-Turner combination, with Don McTavish doing the sniping will not be a pushover. The two meet in the second game on the card. Ray Routley's Panthers and Roy Johnston's Tigers will furnish the contention in the opening game on the twin bill, called for 7:30 o'clock.

Thomas J. O'Neill, better known as "Tip," grand old man of Port Hope baseball was honored the other night at a complimentary banquet and old-time Peterborough players and fans will be interested in learning of the tribute paid the veteran who is now 78 years of age. A lot of the Port Hope ball players of yesteryear, including Bob Chalk, and Finnegan and Alex Hills were in attendance, at the banquet and among the features was a message of congratulation from the Port Hope town council felicitating the sage of baseball on the service he had rendered during his many year's association with the diamond pastime. "Tip" was a player himself many years ago and he never lost his interest in the game. He managed Port Hope clubs for many seasons, including the period in which the town was represented in the Midland League and later in the Central Ontario League, and at one time was a member of the executive of the latter loop. The veteran was a gracious winner and a gallant loser and always got a lot of fun out of the game. He has many friends here who were associated with him in baseball and they will be delighted at the honor paid him by his home town. Unquestionably "Tip" is the Connie Mack of this district.

The host of fans in this section who like and admire Dit Clapper will appreciate this tribute to him from Doug Vaughan's column in the Windsor Star: "There was another question that popped up at the round-table conference which we think you might find interesting. It had to do with Aubrey (Dit) Clapper, veteran Boston defenceman. Some of the fellows wanted to know about his long service record in the N.H.L. and how it compared with that of other veteran campaigners. The records show that Clapper, currently playing his 18th season of major league hockey, has only to finish out this campaign to join Reginald (Hooley) Smith as the only player ever to play that long. Smith's career, during the course of which he scored exactly 100 goals, began in 1924-25 with Ottawa and ended in 1941-42 with New York Americans. In the interim he played with Montreal Maroons and Boston Bruins. However, Clapper, who has been a member of the Bruins throughout his National League career, has already eclipsed one mark—that for service with a single club. The old mark was held by Aurel Joliat who served 16 consecutive seasons with the Montreal Canadiens. Next to Clapper the oldest player currently active in the N.H.L. is that doughty warrior of the Chicago Black Hawks, Harold (Mush) March. March joined the Hawks in the season of 1928-29 and has been with them ever since which means that he is playing his 17th season."

Rookie Steve Wochy who scored Detroit's goal in Saturday night's game in Toronto is hailed by Chick Appel as one of the finds of the season. Says the Stratford sport scribe: "Steve Wochy seems to be one of the real finds of the season, and the young man should get along in the National Hockey League. He has one rare asset which most rookies lack—he knows the wisdom of keeping his eyes and ears open and his mouth shut. Another thing—he seems to have the happy faculty of drilling pucks past opposing goalies. The important thing about Wochy's first year in the big time is that he stands in a fair way to break a Red Wing rookie mark. At his present pace Steve should better the record Ebbie Goodfellow set back in the 1929-30 season. Now along comes the silent Mr. Wochy. Steve is paying attention to hockey and nothing else. That's what the records indicate. The Wings have played 15 games to date, and Wochy has 15 points on seven goals and eight assists. Nobody is happier about Steve's playing than Jawn Adams, a native of Fort William, because it so happens that Wochy also hails from Fort William."

There is a movement rapidly gaining strength in sports circles to include Roger Bresnahan in the Cooperstown Hall of Fame, says Fred Thompson in the Kitchener Record. He certainly deserves it, if for no better reasons than that he introduced shin guards to the diamond game and was the receiving partner for one of the most famous pitchers of all time—Christy Mathewson. It took Bresnahan, who died just recently, until last year, however, to catch another all-time great pitcher—Walter Johnson. "He must have been quite a pitcher," Bresnahan told John P. Carmichael of the Chicago Daily News after that game, "because he's still fast. His ball sails....and that side-arm delivery! Oh, how hitters hate a side-arm thrower. They did in my day and they do now." But Bresnahan always insisted he handled the greatest of them all in Mathewson. "Carl Hubbell's screwball was the nearest thing to Matty's fade-away," the old catcher said. "Nobody else ever came up with a pitch quite like it. The secret of the fade-away was due to the change in its speed. Matty threw it overhand....just like his fast ball. He let it go shoulder high, with plenty on it, but just before it reached the plate the ball lost all its zip and just floated down over the plate. He was more effective against southpaw hitters than right-handers because the pitch broke away from them. It never was any effort for him to throw the fade-away and I'd call for it 90 per cent of the time when left-handers were up there."

Toronto Leafs still hold second place in the N.H.L. race after the week-end doings, one point ahead of the Detroit Red Wings, although they slipped three points off the pace so far as the leading Canadiens were concerned. Detroit, a point behind and with two games billed for over the week-end had a chance to go out in front of the Leafs but they fell down on the job. The best they could do in Toronto Saturday night was to get a draw and Sunday they missed the bus completely at Chicago, taking a 2 to 1 licking at the hands of the Black Hawks. The parade-leading Canadiens increased their margin perceptibly by pulling off a double win, tossing the Bruins for an 8 to 5 trimming in Montreal Saturday night and coming home in front 4 to 1 over the Rangers in New York Sunday.

St. Mike's Beat Marlboros; Falcons Win

By The Canadian Press

Only one change in the relative position of the clubs in the O.H.A. Junior "A" league standing took place as a result of the three contests Saturday. Galt Red Wings moved into undisputed possession of third place behind St. Mikes and St. Catharines by recording a 6-5 victory over Oshawa at Galt after being tied with the Memorial Cup defenders at six points apiece.

Red Wings scored their fourth triumph of the season after a nip-and-tuck battle with Generals when Babando slapped in the winning goal here minutes before the end. They were deadlocked, 3-3, at the end of the first period and Galt were clinging to a 4-3 margin going into the final stanza in which both sides scored twice. Galt's points were spread among six sniper's, these being Krompotich, Curik, Mayer, Adamo, Pollock and Babando. Sullivan of Oshawa was the only player to register two goals, the others going to Petsura, Shewchuk and Smith.

St. Catharines kept on even terms with St. Michaels for first place, both with six straight wins against no defeats, by holding off Toronto Young Rangers 6-4 at St. Catharines Saturday night, although the visitors iced only 10 players. The Falcons were never far in front, leading 2-1 in the first and only 4-3 at the close of the second frame.

Payne of Rangers was the hot shot of the fray with two counters when the returns were all in. Scorers for the Falcons were McBride, Unger, Smelle, McMurdy, Davis and Delmonte. In addition to Payne, the Toronto goal-getters were Rutledge, Jr., and Pidherny.

St. Michael's College ran away with Marlboros on Toronto ice, making it 14-3 for the matinee performance. Joe Sadler led the parade with four tallies; Ted Sloan notched a trio; Gravelle took a brace and singles went to Mortson, McCormack, Turik, Slute and Gray. Those who managed to find the net for Marlies were McNabney, Kane and Michanik. This was the seventh loss for Marlboros in eight starts.

Golfer Named Athlete Of The Year

By HAROLD CLAASEN
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 18—(AP)—Bryon Nelson, who averaged less than 70 strikes for 78 rounds of big time tournament golf, is 1944's athlete-of-the-year.

Seventy - nine sports writers throughout the United States, who scattered their affections on 40 different athletes, named Nelson successor to Gunder Haegg, Sweden's miler and last year's winner.

Nelson's smooth-as-silk performance on the fairways brought him $44,266.66 in war-bond prizes as well as 16 first-place votes in the present tabulations. Each such ballot was worth three points with two points for each second-place vote and one for a third-place mention.

The Toledo shot-maker finished with 75 points, five ahead of Martin (Slats) Marion, Mr. Shortstop for St. Louis Cardinals, recently named the most valuable played in the National League.

Les Horvath, Ohio State's All-America quarterback, was third with 59 points and is the leading amateur. The play-for-fun athletes have topped the poll seven times in the past decade with only Joe Louis in 1935 and Joe DiMaggio in 1941 crashing through from the salaried ranks.

Nelson is the second golfer to have reached the pinnacle in the 14-year-old history of the poll, preceded by Gene Sarazen in 1932.

The 32-year-old shot-maker opened the year by taking the San Francisco open last January with a 72-hole card of 275. He then sailed through a spring and summer of almost monotonous winnings and still was in form early this month when he returned to San Francisco to retain his title in the open there with a one-stroke verdict over Sgt. Jim Farrier of Camp Roberts, Calif.

Bobby Gleason from Hamilton meets Stanley George, Jimmy Sicruella of Hamilton is matched with Mike Zaduk of Guelph, Mark Hendricks of Hamilton fights Manny Sorbara of Guelph, Joe Contini of Guelph has Johnny Sullivan for his opponent and Ted Carroll of Guelph meets Jimmy Dumas.

Dixie Walker Holds Batting Title

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 — (AP).—Fred (Dixie) Walker, the people's choice in Flatbush, became the sixth Brooklyn player to win the National League batting championship, compiling a .357 mark, according to official 1944 figures, released on Saturday.

The popular Dodgers' right fielder now in the CBI war theatre with one of five touring baseball units, topped by 10 points the average of Stan Musial of St. Louis Cards, defending titleholder, who won in 1943 with an identical .357.

17 Years in Game.

Walker, 34-year-oldster from Birmingham, Ala., via Valla Rica, Ga., recently completed his 17th year in baseball in a career that sent him to 13 different clubs. A former New York Yankee, Chicago White Sox, and Detroit Tiger, he has played with Brooklyn since picked up for the waiver price in 1939.

Former Gowanton favorites to be champ hitters were Harold (Pete) Reiser, Lefty O'Doul, Zach Wheat, Jake Daubert, who won twice, and Dan Brothers, who tied in 1892.

Joe Medwick, who dipped below .300 for the first time in 1943, bounced back with a fine .337 mark for New York Giants. He grabbed third place ahead of the Cards' Johnny Hopp, whose .336 mark represented a year's gain of 112 degrees.

Phil Cavarretta of Chicago took fifth with .321—his best year.

Othres in the first 10 with their final averages are Augie Galan of the Dodgers .318, Walker Cooper of the Cards .317, Phil Weintraub of the Giants .316, Jim Russell of Pittsburg .312, and Holmes of Boston .309.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18—(AP).—The National Football League may not be seriously worried about being tossed out of baseball parks in September—those games were generally exhibitions, anyway—but it is taking a determined stand on proposed rival leagues...The National League won't accept any circuit as an affiliate, says Publicitor George Strickler, unless that league proves its financial stability and recognizes Elmer Layden as "commissioner of football."...Even then it would have to prove its right to a "major league" rating, which would be difficult under those circumstances....Just to make it stick, National Leaguers point out that some of the strong backers of clubs in the new loops were turned down by the established circuit, which still is looking for a 12th club.

Monday matinee:

Note to New York grid fans: Don't be suckers again....Saturday's Randolph Field-2nd Air Force charity tussle drew 8,356 customers—and it looked like a liberal count....Yesterday's pro play-off drew 46,016, including 4,563 service men....The service game probably was the better of the two, despite weather conditions....Only two reporters covered the recent AAU convention at Atlantic City and at the same place and time 11 were on hand for a bridge tournament.

Two Teams Retain Undefeated Records In 'Y' Loop

Gordon Johnston's Lions and Clarence Davern's Cougars remain undefeated in the Y.M.C.A. House Basketball League. The Lions won their fourth straight victory Saturday night at the expense of Bill Kemp's Trojans while the Cougars took the Panthers into camp. The two undefeated clubs meet in a game Wednesday night that will have a very important bearing on the race.

The Lions got hold of Joe Stewart, home on leave from the R.C.N.V.R. for Saturday night's game and the ace sniper paced their attack by scoring 17 points as the Lions turned back Trojans 30 to 22. The winners won the argument on their scoring punch in the first half when they outscored Trojans 17 to 9. The losers fought back after the rest and held Lions even in the second half, each team scoring 13 points.

The teams:

Lions, 30—Johnston 3, Joe Stewart 17, Sisson 2, Spears 2, Smith 6.

Trojans, 22—Kemp 6, Geraghty 3, Shadgett 5, Rooke 2, Upper 2, Menzies 2, Courtney 2.

In the other battle of the double-bill Cougars won over Panthers 32 to 24, after leading at the half 13 to 8. It was a good battle all the way.

Don MacTavish again set the pace for the winners by racking up 15 points and Lee contributed nine while Ed Nicholls was top scorer for the Panthers with nine points.

The teams:

Cougars, 32—Lee 9, Head, McTavish 15, Cauley 2, A. Turner, Payne 2, B. Turner 4, Whittaker.

Panthers, 24—Nicholls 9, Frise, Thompson 4, Collins 3, Mathias 6, Routley 2.

Canadiens Make Clean Sweep Over Week-end

By The Canadian Press

Montreal Canadiens assumed a commanding six-point lead in their defence of the National Hockey League championship as they swept week-end games from Boston Bruins and New York Rangers by scores of 8-5 and 4-1.

The Frenchmen were aided by the offensive collapse of Detroit Red Wings, who scored only two goals in drawin 1-1 with Toronto Maple Leafs and losing 2-1 to the lowly Chicago Black Hawks. The Detroiters' poor showing left them one point behind Toronto in the battle for second place.

Black Hawks, by scoring their third victory of the season and their first since edging the Red Wings Nov. 26, jumped into a fifth-place tie with Rangers.

Canadiens' displayed first attack, the defence in building their longest lead of the current season. They brought out heavy artillery before home fans Saturday to subdue Bruins for the fifth straight time. With Maurice Richard and Toe Blake firing two goals each, the Habitants ran up a 7-2 lead before the Rossmen came back with a three-goal burst late in the game. Other Montreal goal-getters were Glen Harmon, Dutch Hiller, Butch Bouchard and Buddy O'Connor. Armand Gaudreault with a pair, Bill Cowley, Herb Cain and Dit Clapper were the Boston marksmen.

The Montrealers gave New York fans a look at their defensive prowess Sunday as they routed Rangers with little difficulty. A spirited fist fight between Richard and Bob Dill of the Blueshirts seemed to enliven the visitors' attack in the last half of the game, with Bob Filion and Fern Majeau punching home shots to improve a previous 2-1 margin.

Grant Warwick shot Rangers into the lead almost from the opening face-off but Richard equalized before the end of the period and Hiller gave Canadiens the winning margin early in the second.

Toe Blake drew an assist on Filion's goal which combined with his four points Saturday to give him the league scoring leadership 33-32 over Bill Cowley who was held to a single point. Both have 32 points.

Goals by Earl Siebert and Bill Mosienko gave Black Hawks their surprise triumph over Detroit. Playing their best game of the year, Paul Thompson's men held the initiative most of the way. Mosienko's unassisted effort clinched the decision late in the second period after Syd Howe had tied it up for the Red Wings.

Buffalo Holds 5-Point League Margin

By The Canadian Press

Buffalo Bisons, eastern division leaders in the American Hockey League, gained a five-point margin by defeating Hershey Bears 4-2 last night at Hershey. The second-place Bears tied with Cleveland Saturday 3-3, while Bisons dropped their game with Pittsburgh 6-3.

In the western division, Indianapolis Capitals maintained their four-point lead over Pittsburgh by a 6-1 victory over St. Louis. Cleveland Barons, by defeating Providence 6-5 Sunday following their Saturday draw with Hershey, moved within one point of second-place Hornets.

At Buffalo, Robert Leger opened the scoring for the home team in the first minute of play and Bisons stayed in front all the way. Len Halderson notched up two goals for the victors, one of the unassisted, and Eddie Imerton one. Scorers for Hershey were George Patterson and Tommy Forgie.

The Buffalo victory cost Manager Eddie Shore $100 when he was fined for unbecoming language after Referee Rabbit McVeigh penalized Bisons for having too many men on the ice.

Sorel Leads

At Indianapolis the Capitals, sparked by Coach Johnny Sorrell who scored twice in the first seven minutes, won their eighth successive victory of the season on home ice. Capital piled up a 6-0 lead before Art Giroux made the lone St. Louis goal toward the end of the final period.

At Providence, Cleveland Barons won the deciding goal in the 19th minute of a fast, wild game featured by 14 penalties in the first period. Three times Reds came from behind to tie the score before Lou Trudel put Barons ahead to stay. Danny Sprout scored twice for Cleveland and Paul Courteau accounted for two of Reds' goals.

In Saturday's game at Pittsburgh, Robert Walton starred for Hornets, scoring three of their six goals against Buffalo.

At Cleveland, Hershey Bears took a lead on goals by Hec Pozzo and Art Strobel in the first period and Bill Warwick early in the second before Barons opened up and tied the score. Ed Speaker, Ed Prokop and Les Cunningham scored for Cleveland.

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Dec. 18 —(CP)—Although Judge K. M. Landis hasn't been dead long, the rumors now say the owners probably won't lose too much time changing some of his rules—especially the one banning anyone connected with racing from having any connection with organized professional ball. That seems like a smart idea, though, since very few people ever believed it was necessary to go that far to keep the sport clean.

Of course, that doesn't mean all the bars will be taken down, but it will give a decent break to some people whose presence in the game would probably do it much more good than harm. You can't say hockey's integrity and honesty has been destroyed because people like Leo Dandurand and Joe Cattarainich, for instance, have had a strong interest in racing as well as hockey. So the average fan doesn't see why there is any need for the bitter ban against racing men.

Rogers Hornsby was one player and manager who offended the iron clad code by dallying with the horses, and as a result he was barred from the big leagues by the owners and officials, and there have been others who escaped that fate only by keeping their extra-mural activities strictly under their hats.

As long as gambling on a large scale isn't allowed to enter baseball, the owners don't need to fear any trouble because one of their number owns a few nags.

Hottest Shot:

Doug Vaughan of the Windsor Star relays the information that Detroit Red Wings players have nominated Eddie Bruneteau as the fastest shot among them, in fact, the hottest shot in the N.H.L. They even are comparing his drive with that blistering one of Charlie Conacher's.

Complimented:

Al (Brantford Expositor) Rose says everyone in the east is getting a bit provoked about hearing so often how many hockey players they develop in Western Canada. Al says the Westerners shouldn't be upset because eastern teams try to take their players away from them, but rather should regard it as a compliment. Says he: "They must have so many around (according to their story) that they wouldn't miss what the east used to take."

Soldier Talent:

The makings of a fine hockey team are available in the Petawawa Military Camp now, but just how long the gilded array will stay there is a question. With the military situation the way it is, we don't envy the lot of an army hockey squad coach or manager.

Invasion Brings To Canadian Forces World Renown

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1st CANADIAN ARMY, Dec. 18—(CP)—From a sweltering June in Normany to a bleak, sleety December in Holland and Germany, forces of the 1st Canadian Army battled their way along the Channel coast on the left of the Allied line on the Western Front.

The contribution of the Canadians and the other Allied troops which made up this international force under Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, army commander, was immense. The victories of the Canadian Army, the first army formation to take the field in the history of the Dominion, had great bearing on the advance of Allied forces from the Normandy beaches, through France, Belgium and Holland into Germany itself.

Fighting as they did along the Channel and North Sea coast, the Canadians and other troops in the army fought what is acknowledged as the hardest battles in the summer and fall campaign. They had many tough, dirty jobs to do, but every one was accomplished despite casualties and tremendous difficulties.

The 3rd Canadian Division, temporarily serving with the 2nd British Army, shared in the historic D-day landing on June 6, storming ashore with divisions of British and American troops. The 3rd Division took a leading part in the bloody battles of the Caen perimeter and with troops of the 3rd British division captured Caen. The 1st Canadian Army took its place in the field in the subsequent battle of Falaise. The Canadians with the Polish and British troops fighting with them, broke the Caen hinge which sealed the fate of the German Seventh Army.

The Canadians and Poles helped close the Trun gap and the whole army pursued the Germans to the Seine and then on over the Somme and on into Belgium.

The buzz-bomb coast was cleared, with British troops under Gen. Crerar capturing Le Havre and the 2nd Infantry ivision returning to occupy Dieppe after the enemy fled. The 3rd Division came up fast from the Seine, where it had taken Rouen, to storm and capture Boulogne, Calais and Cap Gris Nez. The 4th armored division and the Poles roared into Belgium.

Schelde Estuary Defence

The Germans decided to make a firm stand on the Schelde estuary to deny the Allies the port of Antwerp, which had been captured intact by the British 2nd Army. After all the Channel and North Sea ports, with the exception of Dunkerque had been captured, the Canadian Army turned its attention to the Schelde. Throughout October the battle for the Schelde raged. The 3rd Division cleared the pocket south of the estuary, capturing Breskens and a dozen other keypoint towns. The 2nd Division fought its way north from Antwerp and then stormed through South Beveland Island aided by an amphibious landing made by troops of the British 52nd Lowland Division on the southeast corner of the island.

After South Beveland was cleared the 2nd Division made the initial bridgehead on Walcheren Island, sending troops out along the causeway leading from Beveland. British commandos and 52nd Division troops then landed at Flushing and other commandos at West Kappelle on the western tip of Walcheren. Within a few days German resistance on Walcheren cracked. Flushing was taken; Middleburg and Veere fell and all the German guns covering the Schelde were overrun. The Schelde was cleared. By early November the port of Antwerp was receiving Allied convoys.

While the Schelde battle was going on, the 4th division with British and Polish formations and the 104th American infantry division pushed north and northeast from Antwerp to clear southwest Holland of the enemy. They drove the troops of the German 15th Army back north of the lower Rhine.

Ever since the 1st Canadian Army went into the line as an army formation south of Caen it has had an unusual international character and General Crerar welded a great fighting force from its various components. At different times there have been in the Canadian Army in the west, Canadian, British, Polish, Czech, Dutch and Belgian and American troops.

Fought At Nijmegen

From Caen to Holland, the three Canadian divisions were in action together with practically no rest. In mid-November, following the victories on the Schelde and in southwest Holland the Canadians relieved British troops in the Nijmegen salient and took up positions inside the German border east of Nijmegen.

Commanding the Canadian corps in the army, Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds again proved his capacity as a brilliant field commander, particularly in the battle which broke the Caen hinge and led to the captureof Falaise and in the Schelde operations. For the latter, Gen. Simonds was acting army commander when Gen. Crerar was forced by ill health to leave his command temporarily. Maj.-Gen. R. F. L. Keller commanded the 3rd division from the beaches to Caen where he was wounded and other divisional commanders during the six-months campaign were Maj.-Gen. Charles Foulkes, Maj.-Gen. Harry Foster and Maj.-Gen. Dan Spry. For a brief period Maj.-Gen. George Kitching commanded a division but was succeeded by Gen. Foster.

The outstanding Canadian achievements were the part the 3rd division played in the landing on D-day and its great fight around Caen; the Canadian Army attack which thrust through to Falaise and to Trun; the tremendous pursuit; the capture of the Channel ports and the freeing of the buzz-bomb coast and finally the battle of the Schelde.

Probably the most heroic single action was the crossing of the Leopold Canal in early October by the Western brigade composed of the Royal Winnipeg Rifles, the Regina Rifles and the Canadian Scottish. Under merciless enemy fire and against heavy counter-attacks the westerners held the bridgehead, drew a large German force down on themselves and enabled another brigade to break into the Schelde pocket by a sea-borne landing southeast of Breskens.

Wannamakers Observe 50th Anniversary

HAVELOCK, Dec. 18 — (ENS).— Mr. and Mrs. Manley Wannamaker of Round Lake Settlement celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last week.

Mrs. Wannamaker, now 73 years of age, was Rebecca Hunter, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Hunter of Belmont, where the bride was born. Her mother and father were born in Belmont and Peterborough respectively, both being of Irish descent.

Mr. Wannamaker is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Wannamaker of Rockdale Community, near Havelock. He was born in Hastings and is now 76 years of age. His mother and father were of United Empire Loyalist descent, born near Detroit and in Prince Edward County respectively.

The bride and groom were married in the Methodist Church parsonage at Havelock by Rev. Chas. Coon. On their honeymoon they drove to the home of the bride's sister and brother for their wedding supper and then took up residence on the farm where they now reside.

Mr. and Mrs. Wannamaker have two sons, George and James, both at home, also four daughters, Mrs. Robert Wiggins (Elsa) of Cordova Mines, Mrs. Earl Pollock (Marion) of Rush Point, Mrs George Cooke (Ruth) of Orillia, and Mrs. Earl Cook (Mary) of Rush Point They have six grandsons, one Ray Pollock serving overseas in Italy, one granddaughter, and four great-grandchildren.

Always Farmed

Both Mr. and Mrs. Wannamaker are just in fair health at the present time. They have always farmed, specializing in dairy products. Just now Mr. Wannamaker takes great interest in radio comments on current events, while Mrs. Wannamaker chooses her hobbies from her home interests and reading.

For the anniversary, the dining and sitting rooms were decorated with golden streamers, white bells and flowers.

Many invited relatives were unable to attend the festivities due to the snowstorm that made travelling impossible. However about twenty guests partook of a chicken dinner.

A large anniversary cake made by Mrs. Wannamaker, and iced by Miss M. Sexsmith, with trimmings in gold and white with a "bride and groom" decoration adorned the table centre. The bride of fifty years performed the cake-cutting ceremony at the close of the dinner.

Miss Mary Seeney, half-sister of Mrs. Wannamaker proposed a toast in honor of the couple to which Mr. Wannamaker responded. Miss Seeney also recited a short poem and Mr. Wannamaker presented his wife with a new wedding ring.

Present Flowers

Mrs. Earl Cook on behalf of the family presented her parents with a basket of golden and bronze "pompoms mums" and a purse of money. Their daughter Ruth (Mrs. George Cook) and Mr. Cook who motored from Orillia on Monday were the only relatives from a distance who were able to attend. Mrs. Julia Anderson of Round Lake a lifetime friend of Mrs. Wannamaker was a guest at the dinner.

Two contests were on the program for the afternoon, a "Musical Romance" and "A Wedding Bouquet," with prizes being awarded to the winners.

Mr. and Mrs. Wannamaker recalled among many scenes the first top buggey in the settlement, logging on North River and Round Lake and other pioneer activities. Their home near Round Lake shore has always been the brightest scene in their memory. They were the recipients of a number of useful gifts and many greetings from friends and relatives.

A light luncheon was served to the guests prior to their departure.

ATHENS, SCENE OF GRIM STRUGGLE — Places and scenes in Athens, Greece, known to every school boy, have become, as a glance at the above map will show, backgrounds for the grim struggle between the Left Wing ELAS and British troops. The ELAS, for instance, dug in just beyond the arch of Hadrian, the great stadium and near the temple of Zeus. The Acropolis Hill is virtually the only high spot on which the British are entrenched and this has been under heavy attack. Down below, in sections of the 'New Athens,' there has been fighting in streets and squares and buildings. Practically all Greece is said to be under ELAS control save for a small portion of the Pireaus peninsula, the Port of Athens (shown in map, inset) where the ELAS hold on a vital landing has been challenged.

English Woman Experiences Narrow Escapes

HAVELOCK, Dec. 18—(ENS).— Bromley, Kent, England, because of being situated directly in the path of the German robot bombs, is now being nick-named "Bomb Alley" by the inhabitants, according to a letter received by Mrs. George Wiggins, which tells of the fourth narrow escape which her niece, Miss Ivy Harmsworth, of that place has recently had. She and her sister, Doris, accompanied by a Canadian soldier who was spending the week-end in Bromley, were returning to the Harmsworth home about 9 p.m. and had just entered the house, when a robot bomb came down where they had been but a few minutes previous. Twenty-six persons were instantly killed, seven more died later in hospital, 88 were seriously injured and 33 more were slightly injured. The ceiling came down in the kitchen of the Harmsworth home, but no one was injured.

Machine-Gunned

The first narrow escape Miss Harmsworth experienced was in the early stages of the German blitz against England, when returning to her home she was caught during a bombing raid some distance from an air raid shelter, and was machine-gunned from an enemy plane flying at a low level. She was fortunate to reach home uninjured, although so badly shaken she fell through the gate. Later the entire family, comprising her mother and two sisters, were in their home when it was demolished by a bomb. Miss Harmsworth was buried to the neck in debris. All were injured but survived. Again while on duty, the office in which she works received a direct ht but Mss Harmsworth was unhurt.

Warden Tells Of Finding Men On Preserve

The story of how the first day's hunting of a Smith township party of three men near the eastern end of Stoney Lake was interrupted by the arrival on the scene of two fish and game overseers who confiscated their rifles was told in police court today when Alex C. Nicholls, Ben. Nicholls and Leonard Hawthorne were charged with carrying firearms in the Peterborough County Game Preserve.

J. W. Pierce, Ontario Land surveyor, the first crown witness in the charge against Alex C. Nicholls produced a plan of a portion of Methuen township and said that marked on it was the line of the western boundary of the game preserve, as laid down by order-in-council.

Mr. Pierce said that he had made a survey there in 1937 because there had been some dispute as to where the Methuen boundary ran. Some of the settlers thought it ran through Boyes' Lake.

The witness said that Boyes' Lake was within the game preserve and that a point a mile directly northeast of Boyes' Lake would be seven-eights of a mile inside the preserve. Overseer Stan Windsor swore that on the first day of the deer hunt, November 6, he was at Boyes' Lake and travelled half a mile northeast of it and stopped for lunch. He heard three shots still further northeast and on travelling in the direction of the shots came across Alex C. Nicholls, and two companions each of them carrying a rifle. Nicholls had said that he had fired three shots at a deer but maintained that he did not think he and his companions were in the preserve.

Later the three had been taken to the western boundary of the preserve where a surveyor's cut could be seen, as well as the places where warning signs had been placed, although the latter had been torn down.

Thought He Owned Land

Overseer Vernal Windsor gave similar evidence. John A. Bradshaw who defended Nicholls called the accused's father Ben Nicholls to the witness box for the defence. Nicholls said that they had made arrangements with Stewart Murphy to hunt on his land near the eastern end of Stoney Lake and had rented a cottage from him.

Witness said that they had no idea of being on the game preserve and maintained that the party had been northwest of Boyes' Lake and not northeast when the overseers had arrived.

Alex C. Nicholls and Leonard Hawthorne corroborated this evidence.

Stewart Murphy, the last defence witness, said that he had always thought until this morning that his property included Boyes' Lake. He knew there had been another survey around 1937 but had not heard of the result of it. He also knew that game preserve warning signs had been placed west of the lake and he had notified the overseers that those signs were being put up on his land.

At this stage the court adjourned for luncheon.

3,000 Children Enjoy Christmas Party

Santa Claus took one of his seasonal jaunts from the North Pole Saturday afternoon, to visit more than 3,000 excited youngsters, who packed the Collegiate auditorium in three groups to enjoy the fun and entertainment of the annual C.G.E. Christmas Tree Party. The young guests were children of C.G.E. and Genelco employees.

Santa's appearance on the big decorated stage was the climax of a full afternoon of fun. Cheered by hundreds of young voices singing "Jingle Bells," the red-garbed and bewhiskered old man arrived in his sleigh, complete with jangling bells and two prancing reindeer. A brilliantly-decorated Christmas tree with lights of every color featured the stage sittings.

Cartoon movies, some with appropriate Yuletide settings, and all of them amusing, were shown for the children during the program, and Community singing was also enjoyed. At the conclusion, Santa wandered through the audience shaking hands with little boys and girls, receiving Christmas requests from many, and dispensing the age-old advice pertaining to "being good little children."

As the children left the auditorium, each one was presented with a gift and bag of candies and fruit. The type of gift each child received was varied according to age. Many boys received hockey sticks.

Four trumpeters, playing a fanfare, opened the show. Radio contact with Santa was made shortly after. At that time, Old St. Nick was just passing through Lakefield. Later, radio contact placed him passing through Nassau, on his way to Peterborough. Ian McCrae, works manager, welcomed the children to the party and it was the sixth Christmas Tree to be held while Canada is at war.

Three Shows

Three groups of children were entertained, the first performance beginning at 1.30, the second at 3 o'clock, and the final show at 4.30. For the first performance, 1,153 tickets were distributed to the employees' children; 1,268 tickets were given for the second show, and 720 tickets were given for the final show.

The entire program was under the direction of the C.G.E. and Genelco Social and Athletic Club, of which Dave Menzies, Sr., is president. other officers who played a leading role in the party's formation were Thomas J. Miller, first vice-president, Max Wilson, second vice-president, and the following directors: Fred Jones, Ed. Young, Ned Harding, Bill Bruce, Os. Price, Jack Menzies, Bert Baillie, Bob Batley, and Les Calladine. The four trumpeters were Ben Smith, Ron Routly, Gerald Routly and Bernie Jones.

Do Good Job

Here are other C.G.E. and Genelco members who worked hard so that the Christmas Party might be the huge success which it was: Dave Menzies, director of Christmas gifts; T. J. Miller and Fred Batterson, directors; O. W. Hurrle, treasurer, Reg. Perks, secretary, A. R. Rooke, managing director: donations and stage settings; H. A. Cranfield, H. H. May, G. East, R Kemp, H. Pick, L. Simpson, ushers and door men; and among those who acted as guides for candy and hockey stick distribution were: T. A. Lister, Jack P. Hallihan, C. Logan, D. Grant, F. Watkins, Paddy Burke, J. Price, J. Smith, R. Raddon, C. McDermott, C. Jay, and A. Munro.

Among those who presented gifts were B. I Burgess, Ian F. McCrae, Eddie Williams, J. McCarney, Norman Hewitt, G. Routly, B. Smith, R. Routly, P. Kitchen, W. G. Shiner, Eric Edmondson, E. J. MacDonald, Ron Payne, J. Dunslow, M. T. Breckenridge, B. Julian, E. G. Herron, Charles Low, D. Miller, A. Heather, Les Calladine, Howard Allison, Max Metheral, D. Hall, Max Wilson, U. E. Waterman, D. Allen, C. D. Cowling, W. Cathcart, J. E. Girven, Eddie Starr, J. T. Playford, H. Wilson, B. H. Pammett, P. Weir, D. D. Sproule, G.F. White and Jack Skitch.

At the first performance, Stewart Daniel was in charge of the Public Address system, and Robert Hanscom was absent at that performance.

Everyone who took part in helping the show go over, is to be thanked for the orderly manner in which all activities were carried out. There was no confusion at the first performance, because of the fine manner in which the program was organized.

Gunner Praises Pilot For Landing Ship

PO Henry Stevenson of Toronto who has just been awarded the DFC pays tribute to the skill of his pilot, a Port Hope airman, Flt. Lieut. Bob McCullough, who has also won the DFC.

"We had some trouble on one of our operations when two enemy night fighters kept diving on us. We got one—an ME-110 and the other, JU-88 kept boring in. I was the mid-upper gunner on our Halifax. He really shot us up—gas lines, fuselage and all. But he couldn't get us down—not while Bob McCullough of Port Hope was piloting us. He did a great job. He got us back to our base and set her down as though it were a practice flight — even though the tires were shot flat. The plane? It went ot the salvage drive."

OF PERSIAN ORIGIN

Spinach is probably of Persian origin, and was introduced into Europe about the 15th century.

When Owner Went To Collect His Cheese He Found Coffee Club Had Been There First

Like the cupboard of the nursery rhyme was the counter ice box at the Churchill where G. N. Gordon enquired about a helping of the half pound of more of Roquefort cheese he had stored there presumably for an occasional snack with crackers and black coffee to the dismay of his physician if he ever heard about such dietary aberrations.

The Coffee Club got the cheese. Too much publicity probably was a contributing factor in the disappearance. Bits of information suggest that Fred Hills commented to the Coffee Club the other morning that "G.N." had more cheese in stock than he'd ever need, and any way the Club's name had been drawn into the episode, and something ought to be done about it. Crackers were ordered, and the appetizer with coffee excited some smacking of lips, maybe, in relish of "G.N.'s" good taste in cheese.

Possibly some of the sharers in the cupboard loot at the Churchill restaurant may have been Tom Doughty, Norm Hambly, Jack Steinkrauss, Fred Mann, Ed Riley, Gord Matthews Gord Shier Frank Hughes and a few others.

When Mr. Gordon enquired one afternoon last week how his cheese was keeping or something about it, he was told very regretfully by Mr. Coros that it didn't keep, and the rest is mostly deduction based on fairly sound intimations of what might have been expected once the Club sniffed the Roquefort trail. Very sorry was Mr. Coros, but that feeling did not place good cheese back on the cool shelf.

Requiem Mass Not Said For Lupe Velez

(Copyright, 1944, by The Associated Press)

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Dec. 18 —(AP)—Lupe Velez, divorced actress who took her own life Thursday, will not be buried from the Roman Catholic Church with formal Catholic rites, although friends attempted to obtain a dispensation, The Associated Press learned Saturday.

But the body of the actress was moved Saturday from the non-denominational Forest Lawn cemetery to a Catholic mortuary where Rosary services might have been said by laymen friends at Forest Lawn but a priest could not participate there.

An authority in the archdiocese said that Miss Velez may be buried in Calvary, a Catholic cemetery, and friends announced Saturday that that is where the little Mexican actress will be laid to rest. The church does not grant dispensation for burial in a Catholic cemetery, the authority explained, "when the background of the individual is Catholic although the individual may not have been a practising Catholic." Miss Velez was born a Catholic and was educated in Catholic schools.

Funeral Tuesday

John E. Trezona, Jr., manager for Miss Velez, said Saturday that the body is being moved to a mortuary and that the funeral will be at 11 a.m. Tuesday.

The Los Angeles archdiocese, a spokesman for the church said, did not consider Miss Velez a communicant because she did not return to the church after living publicly in a marriage which the church did not recognize because it was performed in a civil ceremony.

She divorced Johnny Weissmuller in 1938.

That Miss Velez committed suicide did not enter the decision, the spokesman said.

The recitation of the Rosary, a Catholic practice for the dead, is sometimes permissable in such cases, the church authority said, indicating that a priest might be allowed to say such prayers for Miss Velez. Later, however, the same authority said that "on consideration" a priest would not participate in the Rosary services.

Nor will any prayers be said by a priest at the cemetery, the same spokesman said. However, laymen may lead the Rosary service as well as graveside prayers.

The official requiem of the church is the mass, which must be said by a priest in a church. Thus, the religious rites for Lupe will be Catholic in character although not official.

Evacuate Dutch

LONDON, Dec. 18 — (CP). — Some 500 persons daily are being evacuated from flooded Walcheren Island in southwest Holland by a fleet of 18 ships, lifeboats and tugs but an Allied civil affairs colonel said yesterday there was intention of abandoning the Island.

A former employee of the Outboard Marine, he served in Ceylon, Arabia, Africa and India.

Supper Club Holds Carol Service

Christmas carols are among the most beautiful songs that have ever been written and it is one of the regrets of music lovers that they are used for such a short time each year. In ordeer to give these people an extra opportunity of singing them, for the past 10 years the Friday Night Supper Club has sponsored a carol service at the Collegiate, and the enthusiastic audience which attended Sunday night, made it one of the most successful in the club's history.

The feature of the program this year was the Northrop Ensemble which introduced an electric organ for the first time. Harry Northrop at the organ, assisted by Gwen Craw and Stan Northrop at the pianos, provided a delightful variety program, giving novelty touches by combining the organ and pianos in unusual arrangements. Guest soloist was Adam Hawley, well known baritone, and Quirt McKinney directed the carol singing.

During the intermission, the Northrop ensemble played a lively arrangement of Herbert's "March of the Toys," from "Babes In Toyland," the work of the piano duo highlighted by the deeper, resonant chords from the organ. Additional variety was lent to the program with two violin solos played by Stan Northrop. The solemn, soul-stirring music of Gounod's "Ave Maria" was used as a contrast to the sprightly gypsy music of "Czardas" by Monti. One of the most difficult requirements of this number is the nimble fingering.

Dr. James Semple opened the concert with prayer and Jack Sackville, president of the Friday Night Club, acted as chairman for the following program: "Ave Maria," violin solo by Stan Northrop, accompanied by Gwen Craw; violin solo, "Czardas" by Stanley Northrop accompanied by Harry Northrop at the piano; solos, "Polish Carol," "The Holy City" and "Angels We Have Heard On High" by Adam Hawley, accompanied by Harry Northrop and Gwen Craw at the organ and piano; "Jesu Joy Of Man's Desiring" and "March of the Toys" by the Northrop ensemble; carols, "I Saw Three Ships," "Bring A Torch" and "Deck the Halls" by the Northrop ensemble.

Under Mr. McKinney's direction many of the best loved Christmas carols were sung. They included: 'O Come All Ye Faithful,' "Silent Night," "Once In Royal David's City," "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," "The First Noel," "Away In A Manger" and "Joy To The World." In several of thes numbers effective humming arrangements were added. Mr. Hawley introduced the "Polish Carol" and also sang the old favorite, "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks By Night."

The proceeds are used to further the work of the World Service of the Y.M.C.A.

War—4 Years Ago

By The Canadian Press

DEC. 18, 1940—British battleships bombarded the Albanian port of Valona. Britain pledged compensation for adult citizens killed or injured as result of enemy action. R.A.F. made one of heaviest raids of war on Benina airdrome in the Western Desert.

58 Extra Boys Helping On Postal Staff

Working in excellent co-ordination with the rest of the staff, 58 students and discharged veterans of this war are being employed at the Peterborough Post Office for the Christmas rush period, to aid in handling greater mail loads than ever before.

Once the boys get used to the work, they are invaluable helpers, Postmaster Charles Lacheur said today. Many of the temporary workers have had previous experience in postal work in other years. The majority began work today, while others started Saturday.

The boys are divided into two main groups; 20 helpers are doing work with letter carriers, and 38 are doing various other jobs in the Post Office, including sorting mail.

This year, the Post Office has rented space in the J. K. Hughes building, for an office designed to take care of delivery of local parcels. Two high school boys are helping on the trucks at that office, which is under the supervision of Andy Jackson, a senior letter carrier.

In 1943, a total of 60 students and extra helpers were on the Post Office payroll at the end of the season. Although there are only 58 employed up until now this year, it is quite possible others will be added to the staff as the rush becomes greater.

Cards Pour In

Over the week-end, hundreds of people sat down to clean up their Christmas card worries for another year....and as a result, the Post Office handled an extremely large amount of mail Saturday and Sunday. But Tuesday is expected to be the busiest day to date, when the deadline for local mail....the last deadline, is reached.

Through it all, the temporary staff of boys whose ages range from 16 years, is carrying on, Mr. Lacheur said, in an admirable manner. They co-operate closely with permanent staff members, and are willing to learn.

Canada's sixth wartime Christmas finds the Post Office handling a greater amount of mail than ever before. Both civilian and military mail has taken leaps and bounds over last year, it was reported, although as a rule, most people have taken advantage of the deadline dates, and mailed letters, parcels and cards on time.

GREETINGS FROM AFRICA—Donald Schweir, who is serving in Africa with the Norwegian Merchant Marine, has sent Christmas greetings to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Schweir, 499 Albert street. Prior to enlisting, he worked at the CGE, and was a member of the Sea Cadet Jellico Division. The young sailor spent his 17th birthday at sea.

Nineteen years of age, he was born and educated in Cobourg and enlisted at Kingston in July of 1943, going overseas in April of this year. On arrival in England he transferred to the Irish Regiment, going to Italy in May. A brother, Sergeant William Rollings, R.C.A.F., was listed as missing in January of 1943.

Safety Rally First Held Attracts 500

The first safety rally ever to be held in Peterborough took place in the main hall of the Training Centre on Saturday evening. A total of 500 persons were present, representing every firm in the city.

This rally was operated by the Peterborough executives of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations of Ontario and all workmen interested in safety were invited to attend with their wives. The program opened with a bingo game, after which Mr. T. A. Lister, safety engineer of the Canadian General Electric Company, Peterborough Works and Genelco Limited gave a short talk on the activities of the various safety groups in the city. This was followed in turn by an amateur show in which Master Bill Schram gave a selection on the piano accordion, Mrs. Dawson and the Misses Elizabeth and Lila Milburn gave a Hawaiian number on guitars in native costume. The Misses Mable and Betty Coombe favored the company with a vocal duet, and Mr. Don Cole gave a selection on the piano. Misses Mary and Ann Zaharuk gave an exhibition of Ukrainian folk dancing and finally the Outboard Marine Choir under the direction of Robert Johnston, sang Christmas carols. The master of ceremonies, Mr. Harry McLay of radio station CHEX asked the audience to indicate the performance which they found most favorable and the applause meter, operated by Mr. R. M. Hanscom indicated that the Misses Zaharuk were the winners.

At the conclusion of the amateur show a buffet lunch was served, during which the Outboard Marine Choir again favored the company with a few selections. At the conclusion of the evening's entertainment Mr. T. Taylor, the chairman, thanked the committee for their help in making the meeting a success and hoped that more meetings of this type would be held in the future.

An enjoyable program of recorded Christmas music was arranged by Miss Isobel Weddell, assisted by Miss G. Fowler, at the Y.M.C.A. Sunday afternoon, for soldiers from the local Training Centre who are interested in good music.

The musicales are presented twice a month, with the Music Teachers' Association in charge one Sunday, and Miss Weddell and Miss Fowler in charge on the other Sunday. All soldiers who are interested are always cordially invited to attend these programs, and refreshments are served by various women's organizations throughout the city. ## Stamp Sales Help Bomb Victims

Mrs. A. Pink has received a letter from the Departmetn of Clerk of the Justices, Municipal College, Portsmouth, England, thanking her and the members of the Rebekah Lodge in Peterborough, for another shipment of stamps.

The Rebekahs have had this project as one of their war plans for quite some time, and collect all the postage stamps they can, which are then packed, and sent to Portsmouth, where they are auctioned. The proceeds from the sale of stamps are used to help maintain a school house which has been converted into a home for child victims of the bombings.

The letter read as follows: "I am requested by the Lord Mayor of Portsmouth, (Sir Denis L. Daley, K.T.), to thank you for kindly sending the stamps for his air raid distress fund in the city. Your contribution is very acceptable, and we are most grateful for the careful way in which they were prepared and forwarded to us. Sales to date have realized £850. Our objective is £1,000, and more stamps are awaiting auction. Best wishes for Christmas, and victory in 1945." The letter was signed by B. Gray, Clerk to the Justices for the city of Portsmouth.

M. Ketcheson Receives Gift

In appreciation of his efforts during the year, Maurice E. Ketcheson, Worshipful Master of the Loyal True Blue Orange Lodge, was presented with a beautiful gift at the enjoyable Christmas program held recently. Mr. Ketcheson acted as chairman.

The juveniles, under the direction of Mrs. Teneyche, presented the greater part of the numbers. After the program, they were given fruit and candy, and several boxes of food were sold to the highest bidders. Those who did not get a box were served refreshments, and dancing was enjoyed.

The program included the following numbers: a magic demonstration by "Professor Van Dyke" recitations by Miss Jean Martin, Miss Joan Lustic, Billy Temple and Cecil Martin; choruses, "Away in a Manger" and "Silent Night" and "Jingle Bells', and a silent tableau, 'Rock of Ages" by the juveniles; Bible reading, Miss Cooper; reading by Mr. Buck and a solo by Miss M. Little. A comic skit, "Wedding a Wayback" was presented by adult members and "Dr. Killum" gave a shadow operation. Frank Degan gave an address.

Trinity Choir Holds Candle Service

Trinity Church was filled Sunday evening, for the annual Christmas carol and candle-lighting service, when an unusual and lovely program of carols from various countries throughout the world was sung. Rev. J. L. Hodgson was in charge, assisted by Rev. William McDonald.

With lighted tall white tapers on standards on the pews and on the windows and across the pulpit, as the only illumination, and with two huge Christmas trees placed at the front of the church on either side with branches banking the pulpit and choir, the effect within the church was impressive and beautiful.

The choir, in their white gowns, and each carrying a lighted white taper, walked two-by-two for the processional, "O Come All Ye Faithful", and the recessional, "Hark the Herald Angels Sing". The congregation joined in the singing of several of the carols, interspersing the numbers of the program. Miss Helen Parkinson and Miss Alma Blanchard sang the solo parts.

The program was as follows: A Christmas carol from Lapland, arranged by Dickenson; the "Covent Carol; two short women's choruses, "Carol of the Russian Children" (White Russian), and "Carol of the Birds"; "Lullay My Liking" a medieval carol; "Shepherds All Shepherds", an Austrian folk song. "Sing Noel" an old French carol. During the offertory, Miss Mabel Clarry, organist and choir directoress, played the Christmas pastoral from the "Messiah" by Handel.

Education Grant To Peterborough Estimated At $140,640 For 1945

The Ontario Department of Education's new financial policy will mean a saving of roughly $92,640 in 1945 as estimated by John Huggins, secretary-treasurer of the Peterborough Board of Education. Under the new regulations which have appeared in the newspapers Mr. Huggins estimated that the Peterborough Board would receive $140,640 in 1945 from the Provincial Treasurer while in 1944, $23,000 was received and from the city treasurer the equivalent of one mill or $25,000 making a total of $48,000.

The Peterborough Board does not know yet whether it will receive the 35 per cent on the cost of education of May's and Confederation schools in 1945 as these two were not in the costs of education to the citizens in 1944. They were only operated for the last fourth months of the year for the North Monaghan Board for which the Peterborough Board will be paid $10,000.

The grant for the Public schools now in the city which is figured at 35 per cent of the cost is estimated at $72,000. The grant to the Collegiate academic which is on a per pupil basis is estimated at $6,340 plus a 20 per cent of the cost based on the mill rate which would be $15,000. On the vocational side of the collegiate the grant is estimated at $47,300 but there may be some changes in this as the secretary-treasurer of the Board has not yet been advised into which grouping the cost of night classes is to be placed. This make a total grant $140,640.

This year grants totalled $31,300 but of this there was around $8,000 which was a cross entry for teachers' superannuation which was actually paid by the province.

Figuring a mill raising $25,000 it would mean a saving to the ratepayers of over three mills. But members of the Board pointed out that it actually would not be this large as the school rate on the new annexed area will not be sufficient to carry the cost of education of the two schools and also that the county grant will be reduced approximately $8,000 as many of the pupils now attending the collegiate from outside the city come from this area.

Yuletide Season Brings Cheer To Wartime Britain

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Dec 17— (CP) —This will be Britain's brightest and tastiest wartime Yuletide.

Brightest—because of the almost unanimous belief peace carols will prevent a seventh Christmas of conflict in Europe and because street lamps shine and house windows glow for the first time since the country took up arms.

Tastiest—because peacetime commodities that developed overnight into wartime luxuries are back in small quantities as the enemy retreats and because food stocks hoarded in Britain against the Nazi submarine and invasion threat have been released.

The long-awaited Allied invasion has come and gone and Britons got ready for the holiday with the promise that most war factories and shops would shut down for a long Christmas week-end. Comparatively, Berlin reported that a critical food situation would not allow for usual special Christmas rations in Germany this year.

There is sorrow and suffering to more than balance the scale, but generally the very young, who may even get a utility toy or two, and the very old, who can find comfort in an extra tea ration among other things, can't help but have their happiest year-end since the last peacetime Christmas in 1938.

The best present by far for a handful of families came early this month when 2,000 sun-tanned veterans of the Mediterranean war came home on Christmas leave to families they hadn't seen in years.

Changed Conditions

Not all came back to their old homes, however. With thousands upon thousands of other Britons, some had lost dewllings and possessions through flying bombs and rockets. And in hundreds of homes Christmas will be another day of grief for relatives killed on the battlefronts or by Germany's indiscriminate use of V-weapons.

But whether in a bomb-damaged home or temporary "digs," there will be a slice or two of turkey for most and such almost-forgotten things as oranges, nuts and ice cream, will be on many tables.

Extra sugar, sweets, margerine and meat will be allowed. Extra supplies of dried fruit like raisins and dates have enabled housewives to make puddings of almost peacetime richness.

Improved lighting through the country—with London the last place to fall in line because of the varied lighting arrangements in the different boroughs—has lifted the gloom which confined millions to their homes after blackout.

Gifts are much more practical than other wartime years. Vouchers for the price of a good permanent wave are popular, as are vouchers for beauty treatments and manicures. Such articles for the home as vegetable graters and colonders—once considered far too ordinary for Christmas presents—now are considered ideal.

Toymakers have been allowed an extra 25 per cent of normal output and the 9,000,000 children of toy-receiving age will get more playthings this year. Promised shipments of thousands of toys from Belgium will help. As usual, too, organizations in Canada and the United States are shipping Christmas gifts to British children again this year.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy. 103

Millbrook Pupils

completed Grade 12 in one year.

Folk Dances

Following a selection of Christmas carols, sung in both Latin and English by a group of the students, a Danish dance was gracefully executed by Dorothy Coulter, Mary Blair, Audrey Armstrong, Velma Thexton, Betty Forsyth, Marian Rowe, Melba Ball, and Maretta Adamson. The girls wore full, flowered skirts with white blouses, white socks and shoes. Interest ran high as the junior play, "A Ghostly Evening," was cleverly presented by Jean Smith, who deserves special mention for her portrayal of the colored maid. Others taking part were: Esther Armstrong, Joan Martin, Conrad Stinson, Anne Stinson, Eddie Hewitt, Bobby Bigelow Rosemary Stinson.

Between the senior and junior plays, a Norwegian folk dance, "Weaving the Wadmald," was gracefully carried out by Velma Thexton, Pauline Kennedy, Leona Manley, Anne Stinson, Jessie Dawson and Juane Little, after a group of pupils had sung "Santa Lucia," taking it as a two-part number.

For the senior play, "Antic Spring," which depicted the car-ride to a chosen picnic ground, the quarrels and making up, and other untoward happenings on what turned out to be a not-too-happy outing, the cast was: Mary Blair, Juane Little, Dorothy Coulter, Pat Kent, Bertram Bell, Willoughby Belch.

Repetition of the program was to be made on Saturday evening, the special feature being the draw for a pair of handsome electric lamps, the work of Mary Ridge. The proceeds are going to the Red Cross. Her older brother, Major 'Sammy' Ridge, has been in Italy for some time, and has been frequently mentioned in despatches. She has also two other brothers in the Services.

Murderer Escapes

TORONTO, Dec. 18 — (CP). — Toronto City police have been unsuccessful in obtaining any information as to who shot Michael Jakiwchyk, 52-year-old Ukrainian cobbler, while he was working in his shop on Dundas street west shortly after 2 p.m. saturday afternoon. A reward was offered Saturday by Chief Constable D. C. Draper for information which would lead to the arrest and conviction of the unknown assailant who fired two bullets into the cobbler's body.

Heater Explodes

TORONTO, Dec. 18 —(CP) — Three persons were injured, two seriously, when a jacket heater around which they were sitting exploded Saturday night. Captain C. Regimbal and Mrs. M. Corbeil suffered fractured legs, while Mrs. Corbeil's husband sustained lacerations of the leg. All three were taken to hospital and Mr. Corbell was later released.

SAFEGUARD YOUR HUSBAND
Woman Who Feels Pleasing Hubby Too Much Trouble Likely to Lose Him

DEAR MISS DIX — What you write telling women about how to hold their husbands makes me tired. A man that you have to work to hold is not worth having, is the way I feel about it.

ELIZABETH P.

ANSWER—And the way I feel about it, Elizabeth, is that a man who was worth marrying is worth keeping. You take precious good care to protect all of your other valuables so that they will not be mislaid or stolen. Why not take the same trouble to safeguard your husband?

If you have a diamond brooch worth a thousand dollars, you don't leave it lying around loose where any covetous stray female who comes along can pick it up. If you have a fine car, you see that it is well housed in a nice, clean place and keep it well greased, so as to minimize all friction, and you don't subject it to unnecessary bumps and strains.

Certainly a husband is a woman's mose precious possession, so why should she resent having to take the same precautions in taking care of him that she would in caring for her other treasures? As for the work of making yourself attractive to your husband, don't you have to do that for every other human being with whom you come in contact?

Why do you doll yourself up in your best clothes and put on your peaches - and - cream complexion when you go abroad except that you want to look as well as possible and win a glance of admiration from every passerby? Have you a single friend that you do not have to handle with tact? Don't you work like a dray horse talking to bores and listening to egotists who spend their time telling you about how great and wonderful they are, and what infant phenomena their chilldren are?

So if it is worth while to make sacrifices to get along with casual acquaintances, why isn't it worth while to make them get along with your husband? If you have to handle other people with gloves, why not handle him that way? If it pays to soft-soap other people, why not use a little emollient on the domestic situation?

Of course, there are a lot of other wives who feel just as you do—that it is too much trouble to take care of a mere husband. That is why so many women lose their husbands.

Mother's Tears Dampen Marriage Plans

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a woman of 21, engaged to be married to a splendid young man. My mother likes and respects him very much, but every time we mention getting married she cries and begs me not to leave her. My mother has other children and would not be left alone. What shall I do?

SUSIE.

ANSWER—Your mother is a silly, selfish, neurotic woman and you will be extremely foolish to let her ruin your life. Do not pay the slightest attention to her, but go along and get married and when it is all over, she will be as pleased as Punch and forget that she ever objected to your getting married.

No matter how much a girl loves her mother, that love isn't going to satisfy her. She is going to want her own home, her own man, her own children. You have a chance at this now. If you stay with your mother until she dies, it will be too late. Your opportunity will have passed you by. So don't wait. Take your happiness while you can get it.

Romantic Girl Imperils Marriage

DEAR DOROTHY DIX — I am a young married man and have one child. I love my wife and she loves me, but a 17-year-old girl thinks she has fallen in love with me. I am fond of this girl in a brotherly fashion, but I am certainly not in love with her. She is very romantic and takes every opportunity to show me how much she cares for me What shall I do?

TOM.

ANSWER—Well, Tom, if I were you I would have a plain talk with the girl and tell her not to make a fool of herself. Tell her that she is making herself perfectly ridiculous and that she doesn't touch your heart, she makes you laugh. Appeal to her better nature and ask her if she wants to break up your home and make you and your wife miserable and orphan your little child.

When you tell her this, she will burst into tears and throw herself on your breast, and that is when you want to watch your step and dodge her. If you take her in your arms and try to comfort her, you are a goner.

Let me stress this warning—that you are in grave danger. So break this affair at once. Otherwise you are headed for trouble.

"The days of the political game are gone" said the speaker "and they have got to be forgotten". He advised the Progressive Conservative party to strengthen itself by seeing that its policies appealed to the best citizens of the country, that is to those Canadians who were offering their lives for Canada on the sea, on land and in the air.

Ald. Herbert I. Bradburn moved a vote of thanks to the geust speaker for his inspirational address and the meeting then adjourned with the singing of the National Anthem after confidence had been voted in the leadership of John Bracken and Col. George Drew.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, December 19

EXTRAORDINARY and unprecedented events are likely to be precipitated on this day, with amazing and swift development of adventures of unpredictable character. It is probable that such may materialize in the private rather than business life, as the romantic, social, domestic and emotional instincts and tendencies are strongly aspected by mutual relations. Radical disturbances, upsets, change, travel, new ties, elopements or unconventional behavior all are involved under such astral impetus. In this case the influence is benign, promising unforeseen benefits, pleasures, journeys and other happy windfalls.

Birthday Prediction

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of the unusual, irregular, unexpected and unprecedented, with far-reaching effect on all future relations, since the influence is drastic, radical. Strange adventures, sudden journeys or breakups of established responsibilities and ties, perhaps complete reversal of old conditions and aspirations. These may be read as quite progressive, productive, benevolent and joyous, even though explosive. Elopements, hasty marriages, and similar romantc adventures some under such unorthodox signs. One note of warning: refrain from too radical flaunting of accepted codes or public regulations.

A child born on this day will have much originality and skill in unusual channels, perhaps to the point of genius. Dramatic, romantic, unconventional, it may expect a happy and adventurous life.

Obituary

MARY J. BURKE.

A life-long resident of this district, Miss Mary Jane Burke, passed away Saturday after a short illness, at her home, 103 Park Hill Road. She was 77 years of age.

Miss Burke was born in Douro, the daughter of the late Thomas and Bridget Burke. While living in Peterborough, she was a devout member of St. Peter's Cathedral, and also held memberships in the Altar Society and the Catholic Women's League. She received her education in Peterborough.

Miss Burke leaves to mourn her loss two brothers, Thomas J. Burke and Patrick Burke, both of Peterborough, and one nephew, William Burke, also of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held Tuesday morning at nine o'clock, from her residence, 103 Park Hill Road, to St. Peter's Cathedral, where mass will be celebrated. Burial will take place in St. Peter's Cemetery.

She has wandered into an unknown land
And she left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be since she lingers there.
And you — oh, you, who the wildest yearn,
For the old-time step and glad return,
Think of her faring on, as dear
In the love of There, as the love of Here.
Think of her still as the same, I say—
She is not dead — she is just away.

—Ever remembered by husband and family.

Hurricanes Sweep Volleyball Series

Huricanes swept through their series on Saturday afternoon with the Whirlwinds and finished in first place at the end of the fall series in the Y.M.C.A. Volleyball League. Spitfires won two and Mosquitoes one game in the opening series at 2:15 and the Typhoons took two out of three from the Thunderbolts who had been leading the league up to that point. The attendance has been the best of any of the fall series to date and some of the best rallies and good consistent play has been seen. Every team put up a battle in each game and some new players have made their appearance, adding interest to this feature of the "Y" program on Saturday afternon. The Lillico Trophy series will get under way on the first Saturday after the new year.

| Spitfires | 7½ | 15 |
| Typhoons | 7½ | 15 |
| Mosquitoes | 5½ | 11 |
| Whirlwinds | 4½ | 9 |

OVER-RUFFING BY HABIT

WITH MANY players, over-ruffing a trick is an automatic procedure. They just naturally do it as a matter of habit whenever the opportunity for the play presents itself. There are times, however, when it is better not to over-ruff, but discard instead, or even perhaps under-ruff. Each case must be considered from the standpoint of the particular factors bearing on it.

North's correct bid on the first round was 2-Diamonds, and it was funny how his failure to make that bid was followed by East doing it. West naturally led his diamond singleton, East winning with the Q and returning the 5.

South ruffed that with the heart K, and West, governed by old Mr. Force O'Habit, over-ruffed with the A. Right there he kicked away his chance to set the contract. That play limited his possible tricks with trumps to two, whereas by discarding he could have gained three later. He returned a club to the K and South scored the heart Q and J, leaving West the high trump 10. Next he took the spade A and K, led to the club A, dropped the spade J with the Q, scored the spade 10, led the club 9 to the Q, ruffed a diamond with the heart 5, West over-ruffing, and the heart 8 got the returned club, making the contract.

If West had discarded a spade on the ruffed diamond at the second trick, retaining his four trumps, nothing could have kept him from scoring three tricks in the suit later.

Drastic Move Cuts Production

By STERLING F. GREEN
Associated Press Staff Writer
(Copyright, 1944, by the Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—(AP)—The United States War Production Board, in a drastic move to meet vital war needs, has ordered that all civilian production be frozen indefinitely at present levels

The order, dated December 7 and circulated within the War Production Board but not announced, is designed to discourage the movement of labor from war plants into peacetime activity while heavy demand continues for some vital weapons and material.

In effect a 'hold-the-line" order on production, the ruling instructs the W.P.B. staff neither to increase civilian goods production above the level of this quarter nor to relax existing orders if increased output would result.

The move was based on the theory that the volume of civilian goods now programmed is sufficient to meet "essential requirements" and avoid hardship on the home front.

Some slight leeway for expansion was left, however, by two mechanisms provided in the order, which was signed by Samuel Anderson, the W.P.B.'s program vice chairman:

First, the office of civilian requirements or other agency speaking for a segment of the domestic economy, may seek an increase in production by making a "positive demonstration" that a program is clearly below "essential requirements." Even so, rejection will result unless the increase can be made "without serious threat of interference with more essential production," the order states.

Second, the "spot" plan for consumer goods production by individual factories which are not needed for war work is continued in effect and made the sole method of increasing output of any article above the officially approved level.

This might mean an increase in "spot" authorizations in areas which have relatively plentiful labor supply, but the government recently banned new spot approvals for 90 days in some 120 cities of acute labor scarcity.

(The latter action was taken jointly by the W.P.B., War Manpower Commission and the army and navy to channel labor into plants making trucks, tires, big guns and shells and other items for which the military has found need of larger quantities than it had anticipated.

Millbrook Roads Opened For Traffic

MILLBROOK, Dec. 18—(ENS)—The aftermath of the big storm is seen in the six-foot drifts bordering the business section of King Street on the north side, the combined result of the wind driving the snow and what has been shovelled from the front of the stores. They are being bored through to make an opening from the roadway to store entrances and laneways.

For the past two days teams have been employed in drawing the snow away from the south side of King Street in the downtown section, the wind having been in direction that saved this area from such a quantity as was lodged across the road. The county snow plows have made a number of trips in the last two days, opening the roads east and west for motor and other traffic. The schools were closed all day on Tuesday, and all trains were cancelled.

The noon train on Wednesday was two hours late, but came in on time on Thursday, and on the latter day the 5 p.m. train made its first apearance since the storm.

Side streets are now all opened up and teams are coming into the village from all directions. Householders have had aching backs from the strenuous task of removing the snow from walks and driveways, the depth being two feet on the south side, and drifting to an average of three feet and more in front of residences on the north side. Even local trucks had to stop running by noon on Tuesday. There was no milk delivery that day, no local delivery from stores, and no bread trucks were out. All these services were normal by Thursday, though still working under difficulties.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 18 — (ENS) — The December meeting of the Lakefield Public Library Board was held in the Library on Thursday afternoon with Chairman Mrs. W. Gillman, Mrs. W. Leonard, Mrs. Reg. Doubt, Mr. Everett Sloan, and Librarian Miss Grace Yonge present.

The board discussed the problem of children being careless with books from the library, returning them torn and soiled, and decided to withhold books for a short period from these children in an attempt to teach them to take better care of the library books.

Miss Yonge's report showed a total circulation for the month of 948 books, an increase over November of last year of 96. Since January of 1944 the circulation has increased by 242 books.

During November the circulation was classed as follows: Juvenile Fiction 478, non-fiction 93, adult fiction 260, non-fiction 117. New members totalled ten with seven renewals and fees and fines collected amounted to $1.60.

Cavan WI Plans To Send Cigs

CAVAN, Dec. 18 (ENS) — The December meeting of the Cavan Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Archie Kennedy with twelve members present.

The program, which was in charge of Mrs. Norman Braithwaite, was made up of Christmas numbers. Mrs. Reg. Sutton read a Christmas story by Nellie McClung; Miss Malone and Mrs. Borden Morton also gave readings dealing with the Spirit of Christmas. A Turkey contest caused much amnusement and several Christmas carols were sung. Plans were made to send cigarettes to the boys overseas and to give donations of money to the Santa Claus Fund in Toronto. At the conclusion of the program lunch was served by the hostess.

All the members enjoyed a sleigh-ride to and from the hostesses farm home, as the roads were piled full of snow, after the unusually heavy storm.

Reds Swarm Across Czech Area

Entire Hun Salient May Collapse In East Slovakia

LONDON, Dec. 19 —(CP)—Red Army troops swarmed across the Czechoslovak frontier from northeastern Hungary today on a widening front, threatening early collapse of the entire German salient in eastern Slovakia between Poland and Hungary.

Driving down out of the Kecske mountains, Marshal Rodion Y Malinovsky's 2nd Ukraine Army units gained up to 12 miles and poured into the broad Bodva and Hernard river valleys leading to Kassa, the enemy's major east Slovak stronghold.

By yesterday, Moscow said, one of Malinovsky's columns already was within two miles of the Germans' southern highway escape route out of Kassa. Once it is cut the garrison in Hungarian-annexed Kassa would be able to flee only through the patriot-infested Czechoslovak mountains.

By Russian and German account, the Red Army was closing in on Kassa from three directions. Moscow placed vanguards within 14 miles on the southwest and 11½ miles on the southeast, while Berlin reported other units attacking 15 miles to the east.

One of the most extensive new crossings of the frontier occurred in the Horvaty-Janok-Buzita area, 30 miles north of Miskolc and just south of hte communications centre of Moldava. It was here that the Russians, already two miles beyond the border, were approaching the enemy's highway escape route to the west.

The Russians also advanced into Slovakia in the area of captured Banreve, 23 miles northwest of Miskolc. There, they seized the rail station of Kamenec on the Slana river.

Russian infantrymen were fighting within 5½ miles of Budapest, but there was no official word of new gains there.

Ontario Hydro Buys Company

TORONTO, Dec. 19 — (CP). — The Ontario Government to-day announced it has approved purchase by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario of the Northern Ontario Power Company, Limited. Purchase price is $12,500,-0

Anouncement of the purchase in a statement issued from the office of Premier Drew. The statement said that approval was given by the Cabinet to-day an agreement between the Hydro Commission and the Northern Ontario Company for purchase of all the latter's property.

The Northern Ontario Power Company serves such communities as Cobalt, Haileybury, New Liskeard, Englehart, Timmins, Thornloe, and a number of townships in the area. It also supplies power to mining camps in Porcupine, South Porcupine, Cobalt and Kirkland Lake districts.

The company owns eight Hydro-Electric power plants, 739 miles of transmission lines, 157 miles of distribution lines, and 421 miles of telephone lines.

The Commission has been anxious to bring the Northern Ontario Power Company's property into the province-wide publicly-owned system, the statement said. The Commission felt it could improve the service in localities it now serves as well as to extend its operations into rural areas now without any power supply.

Japs Kill 24,000 Prisoners

LONDON, Dec. 19—(CP).—The War Office asserted today that the Japanese had worked more than 60,000 white captives under such brutal and inhuman conditions that 24,000 of them had died. The Japanese themselves have erected a memorial to 25,000 men who died in building the Thailand-Burma railway and road, the War Office said. Of the 25,000 men, the War Office reported, fewer than 1,000 were Japanese and the remainder were English, Australians and Dutch.

In an urge for speed, the Japanese disregarded completely "the cost in human life," the War Office said. Sick prisoners were even carried to work on stretchers. Severe beatings were administered to officers and men, the statement said, and there were also cases "of torture and killing."

The statement supplemented an oral report to Commons by Sir James Grigg, War Secretary, who said the Japanese used at least 60,000 white prisoners "regardless of conditions under which the prisoners worked and of the cost in human life."

"The figure is probably much higher," he added.

Sir James said "the great majority were from the United Kingdom or Australia. In addition many thousands of Asiatics were used and the death rate among them was almost certainly much higher than amongst white men."

Some Improvement.

Sir James reported conditions improved "somewhat" after completion of the railroad in October, 1943, but said "I should make it clear to the House these conditions are far below anything which would be regarded as reasonable for our prisoners of war in Europe.

"Men have, however, adapted themselves and become to some extent inured to these lower standards, while many of the conditions which caused such heavy sick and death rates in jungle camps did not obtain in rear camps to which

LONDON, Dec. 19.—(CP Cable.)—R.C.A.F. fighters based on the continent yesterday forsook their usual sectors to support the United States 1st Army front where the German counter-offensive is in progress.

Normally the Canadian fighters operate in and near the northern sector of the front, held by the 1st Canadian Army.

An R.C.A.F. communique last night said adverse weather limited activity during the day.

Greece Situation Improves Churchill Tells Hecklers

LONDON, Dec. 19—(CP).—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that the situation in Greece "has greatly improved," and, in effect, challenged his heckling opponents to force a new vote of confidence in his government if they wanted another showdown on Britain's policy of intervention.

Later, reiterating his defence of Britain's armed intervention in Belgian disturbances last month, he told the House "we were acting under American instructions when we did that."

The Prime Minister said Gen. Eisenhower had directed that sup-

8th Army Raids Hit West Front

ROME, Dec. 19.—(AP). — Canadian troops of the British 8th Army pushing out from their bridgehead west of the Naviglio Canal in the Adriatic sector of the Italian front still are colliding with strong enemy resistance and bitter fighting continues, Allied headquarters said today.

The communique said fighting centred "around Bagnavanallo and northwest of Faenza."

The Canadians last night were reported moving up to assault Bagnacavallo, strategic highway centre about 10 miles north-northeast of fallen Faenza. Canadian Press War Correspondent William Boss previously reported the Canadian corps was operating "almost in the shade of Bagnacavallo's steeples."

North and northwest of Faenza New Zealand units still were mopping up after their capture of the town Sunday.

To the west Polish units were reported moving through "scattered resistance" towards the River Senio This action was being carried out about 5½ miles southeast of Imola, as the 8th Army probed enemy positions before driving forward again in its Po Valley offensive.

Spain 'Morally Occupied' By Nazi

LONDON, Dec. 19—(CP).—Lord Templewood, who resigned December 17 as British Ambassador to Spain, asserted in the House of Lords today that Spain was "morally occupied" by the Germans during the first part of his five-year stay at Madrid.

Reviewing his Spanish experiences in his maiden speech to the House of Lords, Lord Templewood, who went to Madrid five years ago as Sir Samuel Hoare, instructed to keep Spain neutral if possible, said "Although Spain was not militarily occupied in those early years of the war Spain was morally occupied."

"I have many instances in my own experience of this kind of non-military occupation. I had Gestapo living in the next house looking over the wall between me and them, watching every movement I made.

Lord Templewood related, "I had the Gestapo constantly trying to suborn my domestic staff. I saw the Gestapo taking photographs when riot was stirred up for the purpose of breaking the windows of the British Embassy."

"I saw again what was more sinister. From time to time the Gestapo would seize some man or woman in Spanish territory and take them over the frontier to their death or torture in Germany or one of the occupied countries."

The former Ambassador declared, "I had a conviction this German influence—this terrible German peril—was leaving behind it corruption, bitter hatreds and vendettas and was steadily under-mining all moral standards of life into which it instilled its poison."

Naval Base At Gdynia Heavily Hit

300 Huge Bombers Hit West Front Cut Supply Lines

LONDON, Dec. 19 (CP)—Three hundred Flying Fortresses spread nearly 1,000 tons of explosives on German supply lines immediately behind counter-attacking German troops today in the first mission of its kind in the European war.

The British-based heavy-weights, crammed to capacity with deadly fragmentation bombs and high explosives, struck at three rail and five road junctions on a 50-mile front stretching from Trier north to Gemund.

Baltic Port

LONDON, Dec. 19 (CP)—German warships sheltered in the Baltic port of Gdynia north of Danzig were attacked last night by some 500 R.A.F. Lancasters while other British heavy bombers struck Nurnberg and Munster.

One enemy plane was destroyed in the night operations which also included attacks on airdromes well behind the German lines. Five British planes were missing.

The night blows followed up an emergency daylight mission by 1,100 Britain-based American planes which bombed the Rhine rail hubs of Cologne, Coblenz and Mainz—centres feeding Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's powerful counter-offensive.

The greater part of what remains of the Nazi surface fleet—the pocket battleships Lutzow and Scheer and four cruisers—was the objective of the Lancasters, which carried nearly 2,500 tons of bombs to the Polish harbor. The British planes made a round-trip flight of 1,600 miles.

The air ministry said Gdynia became Germany's main naval base when Kiel and Wilhelmshaven became too vulnerable to air attack.

Lose 190 Planes

Including 20 Nazi aircraft shot down by ground gunners the German air force in two days has suffered at least 190 losses in the Western front area alone, and 101 more of its planes have been damaged or probably destroyed. At least 48 others were belted from the sky by Italy-based planes which attacked

Powerful Hun Push Drives 20 Miles Back Into Belgium

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, ec. 19.—(AP).—American troops and tanks struck back to-day at German armor-powered counter-offensive that had cut 20 miles into Belgium, while to the north 1st Army patrols crossed the Roer river barrier into Duren.

But the Germans at one point where 20 miles or more inside Belgium, and 25 miles south and slightly west of Achen. An air report told of British Typhoons shooting up Nazi armored vehicles "west of Stavelot," which lies 18 airline miles and nearly 22 by road from the German border.

The 1st Army line had been wedged back 15 miles or more at this point. The enemy assault gouging in at Stavelot may have been launched from somewhere west of the Reich border itself.

The 1st Army patrols sent into Duren felt out one of the main strongholds on the Cologne plain, the Germans had pulled back to the east bank of the Roer on a broad front north and south of Duren after weeks of long and costly battle.

Heavy German artillery fire fell on the 1st and 9th Army fronts. Ninth Army men in the Linnich area north of Duren mopped up the towns of Wurm and Mullendorf.

Skirmishing was the only activity reported from the British-Canadian sector in Holland.

Along the southern sector of the long Western front, the U.S. 7th Army hacked at stubborn German resistance along a line running 20 miles northwest from the Rhine. German artillery was extremely active. West of Bitche 7th Army men battled to overcome two holdout Maginot forts. The towns were taken in a two-mile gain northwest of Wissembourg.

Farther west the 3rd Army mopped up all but the factory district of Dillingen, and cleaned up strongpoints in Roden, suburb of Saarlautern. Small gains were scored east and northeast of Sarreguemines.

The crucial battle was centred on the 1st Army sector of the fierce German lash-out, and fighting still was heavy and costly.

News Blackout.

The news blackout was 24 hours old—hours in which much could have happened. The Germans had swept to Stavelot in a day and a half.

This was the second time that news silence had been imposed over an Allied reverse. The first was at Arnhem.

It thus had a strongly sobering influence while word was awaited on the fight that might prove the hinge to the outcome of the whole Western campaign.

Berlin said Hitler himself had planned this recoil drive.

(Berlin dispatches to Bern declared the counter-offensive was designed to retake Aachen and expel Allied forces from Nazi soil.)

Stavelot is but 24 miles from the fortress city of Liege, about 4½ miles southwest of Malmedy. The situation a Malmedy or other towns in line of the drive was shrouded in silence.

The circumstances hardly call for easy optimism, but maps show the Germans might possibly be headed for more trouble than they bargained for.

Obvious Hazard

Their "risk-all" drive could, by a

CAPT. DON WEESE

Capt. Don Weese Is Killed Serving In Italy

Captain Donald Edward Weese, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bryden R. Weese, 559 Harvey street, was recently killed in action with Canadian troops of the 8th British Army in Italy, as officially reported to his parents this morning.

A graduate of the Prince of Wales Rangers, with whom he enlisted on securing leave of absence from the advertising department of The Examiner, Captain Weese rose up from the ranks on his experience with the Peterborough unit which paved the way to earning his commission. Since then he had fought through the campaigns in Sicily and Italy, and was promoted in the field to the rank of captain.

Don Weese enlisted with the Prince of Wales Rangers (R.F.) September 31, 1940, as a private, was promoted to sergeant, and became quartermaster sergeant of "A" Company. He was struck off the strength of the regiment November 1, 1941, leaving as an officer cadet for training at Brockville. On his graduation with a commission he rejoined his regiment, the Prince of Wales Rangers, with its first battalion which had been sent to British Columbia with Colonel John A. Dewart as commanding officer.

In the autumn of 1942, Captain Weese, then a lieutenant, and Lieu-

Allies 30 Miles From Akyab Base

KANDY, Ceylon, Dec. 19—(AP).—Allied vanguards on the west Burma coast are more than 20 miles southeast of Maungdaw in the advance on the important base of Akyab, now less than 30 miles away, a southeast Asia communique disclosed tonight.

Meanwhile in North Burma little more than 80 miles of road separated two Chinese forces steadily approaching one another from Burma and Western China.

When these two armies meet, the first land route to China since 1942 will be opened, although supply convoys may not roll from India to China until several months later.

On the west Burma coast, Allied naval craft shelled a group of Japanese two miles ahead of the vanguards driving down toward Akyab.

Counter-Attack Hit Allied Line At Weakest Point

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 —(AP)—The German counter - offensive struck the weakest part of the Allied line on the Western Front, war department sources disclosed yesterday. They conceded that some Allied units may get bottled up in the advance.

On the whole, however, these sources were inclined to minimize the force of the German thrust. They said it probably was aimed:

1. At drawing Allied reserves from seriously-threatened points on the German defence line.

2. At giving the German home front a lift at Christmas time with a report of "victory."

The sector at which the German attack was thrown, officials explained, was weak because of the wide dispersion of Allied divisions. The sector was lightly held because the terrain in front and behind the line was not considered important.

The Germans, it was said, have thrown in a substantial part of their strategic general reserves, including at least three panzer units, and now have a numerical superiority on that sector two to three times Allied strength.

These sources declined to speculate how far the German offensive might carry, but said that it still could go a lot farther without causing serious damage.

Superforts Hit Kyushu In Japan

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 —(AP)—China-based Superfortresses bombed the Japanese mainland today less than 24 hours after their attack on Hankow, China.

The latest attack was carried out in medium force against industrial targets on Kyushu, one of the main islands of the Japanese homeland, the war department announced. The term "medium force" indicated that up to 40 B29s participated.

The planes were from Maj.-Gen. Curtis Lemay's 20th Bomber command.

Some 200 of the big planes pounded Hankow, communications and supply centre in conquered China, and the giant Hatsudoki aircraft plant at Nagoya yesterday. Nagoya is located on Honshu, the principal Japanese home island.

Large fires were observed at this biggest Nipponese aircraft centre and "good" bombing results were recorded for the Hankow smash.

All planes returned from both strikes.

The Saipan-based bombers whittling at Japan's aircraft production reported "heavy explosions and large fires in the target area of the Mitsubishi aircraft plant," a communique said.

Docks and warehouses at Hankow were pounded. The Superforts knocked down five intercepting planes and damaged seven more.

Saipan raiders uncorked a destructive raid on the Nagoya area Dec. 13.

German Rhineland Drive Great Gamble

Similar Situation Developed In 1918 When Wilhelm Was Defeated

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The great German drive out of the Rhineland bears the earmarks of being a colossal gamble in an effort to disrupt Allied plans for an offensive and so achieve an indefinite delay out of which Berlin hopes might grow a compromise peace.

Speculation at this juncture regarding the immediate future of the attack should be cautious, since the security news blackout imposed by the Allied High Command leaves us without sufficient facts upon which to base a studied judgment. Taking a longer range view, however, we can say that Allied superiority in manpower and material insures our victory. Therefore, while it would be folly to regard the situation lightly, there certainly is no occasion for developing "nerves."

We have plenty of precedent to show how far a battle-front can bend without suffering disaster. For example, this columnist was right in the path of the final tornado of 1918 in the valley of the Somme on the British front. This was the time, you will recall, when Field Marshal Haig issued his famous "back to the wall" order of the day to his armies. That was the Kaisers final fling, and it all but crashed through—but the Allied line held.

Broke His Back

I'm not suggesting the present situation is as bad as was that in the spring of 1918, but there are similarities. The beautiful thought about the Somme show is that it was there the Kaiser broke his back. The same thing could easily happen to the Germans in the present battle.

The way it looks to me now, one of two things is likely to happen: either Field Marshal Von Rundstedt is going to achieve his object of upsetting Allied plans so that the war will drag along, or he's going to get the beating of his life.

The German commander—don't let anybody tell you he isn't a capable soldier—is flinging into this battle all the resources available

In short, the German high command may have decided to make this offensive the decisive battle in the west, instead of waiting for it to be staged on the open plain of Cologne just west of the Rhine. It's a great and dangerous gamble, but it's difficult to criticize the decision as an act of desperation.

Hits Gasoline Reserves

Enemy's Fuel Shortage Believed Near Acute

By ROGER D. GREENE
Associated Press War Correspondent

AT 21ST ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS, Dec. 19 —(AP)— The German air force is dipping into its gasoline reserves at the rate of 630,000 gallons a week in the current counter-offensive, and "the Boche will find it difficult to keep up," an R.A.F. officer said today.

He indicated the enemy's fuel shortage was becoming more and more acute.

But German planes roared in great strength over the American sector yesterday, and staged sporadic hit-run raids on widely-scattered British-Canadian sectors in Holland.

Supporting the Americans, the R.A.F. flew more than 550 sorties over U.S. sectors, but German fliers repeatedly refused to give battle.

Under combined Anglo-American air assault, German ground troops are taking terrible punishment. The state of their nerves was reflected in a captured German order declaring that, "the super-sensitivity of our troops to enemy aircraft must be overcome."

Face Federal Indictment

Norden Bombsight Firm Charged

NEW YORK, Dec. 19 (AP) — A special Federal Grand Jury today indicted Carl L. Norden, Inc., bombsight manufacturers, and a war plant survey firm and four individuals on charges of conspiracy to slow down production of the war-vital Norden bombsights.

The indictments also charged a conspiracy aimed at forcing makers of war goods to employ the Survey Company, Corrigan, Osburne and Wells, Inc., specialists in the installation of production control systems for industrial concerns.

Individuals named were Theodore H. Barth, president, and Ward E. Marvelle, vice-president of the Norden Company; Cmdr. John D. Corrigan of the U.S. Navy, as head of the Survey firm, and Robert H. Wells, vice-president of the concern.

Corrigan's commission as a navy commander has been under suspension since June when inquiry into the case by the Grand Jury, the Justice Department and the Senate War Investigating Committee started.

A Justice Department announcement in Washington said two indictments charge the defendants with conspiring to withhold information on the manufacture of the bombsight from other manufacturers.

Boy 16, Travels 12,000 Miles In Six Months

"In six months I have learned more about history than in all the years I studied my school books," declared Robert Lock, youthful 16-year-old veteran of the Merchant Marine who has travelled 12,000 miles since June.

A former employee of the Raybestos Company and the C. G. E., Lock said he joined the Merchant Marine because he wanted to travel. He was accepted in May, and since that time his wish has been fulfilled. Sailing from the United States he visted Cape Town, South Africa, next ports of all were Ceylon and India and on the way back they came through the Mediterranean and touched at several points in Africa.

His job aboard the Norwegian vessel, where he was one of the crew, was Saloon boy. It was his job to serve the meals to the Captain and other officers and when action stations were sounded, he had to report with four others to one section of the ship to help care for any casualties which might occur if they went into battle. The young sailor said that most of his companions could speak English and before the trip was through, they had managed to teach him to speak a little Norwegian.

Heat Terrible.

Looking young enough to be in first form at the Collegiate, Robert Lock crammed more into 6 months than most adults do in a lifetime. Temperatures of 140 degrees which he enocuntered in the Far East did not exactly endear those countries to him, and as many other Canadians have found, the filth was unbelieveable, after seeing Canadian cities.

When they were in Ceylon and Indian ports like Bombay, the men never left the ships except in groups otherwise they might be knifed and robbed.

While in Ceylon he met two Peterborough boys, Justin Shaughnessy of the Merchant Marine, now back working in the C. G. E. and Jim Curtis. While in Port Said, he ran across another Peterborough lad, Kenneth Huggins, who was sick.

Although there were some things he didn't like about the six months service, Robert Lock is planning to ship out after Christmas again on a new ship. He has decided that this time he would like to try for a run which would take him to England or France. At least it won't be 140 degrees there, he points out. His chum, George Stoneburgh, 21 High street, is anxious to get a berth in the Merchant Marine, and if possible, in the same ship. Both hope to become members of the crew of an American merchantman.

About the only excitement aboard the Norwegian boat was occassioned by a few submarine alarms. Emphasizing the life in the Merchant Navy agreed with him, Lock explained that the meals were so good he had put on 20 pounds in six months. In order to keep in touch with his pals, he is going to Fergus on Wednesday to see two of the boys from his ship.

Although he has no brothers in the forces, a brother-in-law, Cpl. Melville McGill, has been serving overseas four years with a Tank Corps and is now in Italy. He is the son of Frederick Lock, 6 New Chamberlain street, and he is staying with his sister, Mrs. M. McGill, 5 New Chamberlain street.

The latest figure of the total Allied losses was 85 planes.

Despite ground-hugging clouds, fighter-bombers based on the continent made 600 trips along the battlefront south of Aachen yesterday and gave Nazi armor and supply transports the worst mauling since the German 7th Army was pounded in the Falaise Gap in Normandy last summer.

Fighter pilots destroyed or damaged 112 enemy tanks and armored vehicles and knocked out 266 trucks, 60 freight cars and three locomotives and damaged 161 other vehicles. Marauders, Havocs and Invaders bombed 20 fortified buildings and silenced 20 gun positions.

Allied planes supporting the U.S. 1st Army ground troops battling the German counter-offensive shot down 46 enemy aircraft yesterday out of a force of more than 300. Eleven Allied fighters are missing.

4 Index Groups Show Losses

TORONTO, Dec. 19—(CP)—The stock market was heavy in the early session today and all four index groups showed losses at noon. Volume for the first three hours was 296,000 shares, about even with the recent average.

Steep Rock recovered today to 2.55 and was holding around 2.40 this afternoon for a net gain of 15 cents. Lake Dufault and Noranda were a bit heavier and nickel held a minor gain.

Gold issue losing 5 to 10 cents included Giant Yellowknife, San Antonio, Wasa Lake, Madsen, MacLeod-Cockshutt, Chesterville, Conwest, Transcontinental Resources, Macassa and others. Queeston firmed 6 cents to 1.18.

The weak industrial groups included the papers, steels, foods and utilities and in the Western Oil list mild weakness was displayed by Home, Mid-Continent and Pacific Refineries.

the men were withdrawn."

Sir James said the report was confirmed by British troops formerly in Japanese hands who were rescued by the United States Navy from the sea in September after a prison ship was torpedoed.

He told the House of Commons that the protecting Power has been asked to make the "strongest possible protest regarding past conditions in Siam and Burma" and said Britain would continue to press the Japanese to allow all prison camps to be inspected regularly by neutral observers and to make arrangements for Red Cross relief supplies.

All the prisoners travelled from Singapore to Thailand in metal cattle trucks so crowded that the men could not lie down for five days and nights, and were forced to sleep leaning against piles of equipment or against one another, the War Office said.

They were forced to march 80 miles through disease-ridden jungles, so thirsty they drank from the muddy puddles, the statement said, and so exhausted they fell to the water-logged ground at the end of each march, wrapping their heads in anything they could find as protection against the mosquitoes.

The prisoners were forced to work if they could move at all. They were required to move one and a half cubic yards of earth and rock a day—a task sometimes requiring 15 hours' labor. Worn-out clothes were not replaced and some men were reduced to going naked or were clad only a loincloth.

The War Office said the prisoners' rations sometimes included meat, but "the quantities can be judged from the fact that one pig was supposed to provide for 1,200 men."

English Bride Is Welcomed

COBOURG, Dec. 19—(ENS)—"I like Canada very much, already," declared Mrs. Marjorie Russ, war-bride of Pte. Gordon Russ of Cobourg, now fighting in Italy. Mrs. Russ arrived in Cobourg on Sunday where she was met at the train by her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Russ of Cobourg.

Her 11-months-old girl on her knee, Mrs. Russ was enthusiastic about Canada, as she talked while getting the youngster ready to go out and see her new surroundings.

"Everyone has been so good to me that I know that I am going to like it here. I like Canada very much already," she declared. "There were Canadian soldiers on the boat when we came over and often they would look after the baby. They were very kind and took such an interest in the little one. When the boat landed some Canadian Red Cross women took the child to the nursery while I saw to the customs declarations. Everybody has been so kind," she said.

Women are the same, whether on this side of the ocean or the other, and Mrs. Russ confessed that she decided before leaving England that she was going to get a pair of silk stockings in Canada.

"Apparently they are as hard to get over here as in England," she said ruefully. "However there are so many, many things that one can buy here in Canada that we seldom see in England. Just think, only one egg a week over there."

"You can eat a whole dozen if you want to," her mother-in-law smiled.

"I haven't seen an orange for about a year," added Mrs. Marjorie Russ.

Driver Overseas

Before her marriage, she was Marjorie Todd and her home was at Stoke-on-Trent. For eighteen months she served in the A.T.S. as a driver. It was while at Camberley that she met her husband-to-be.

"Another girl and I were having tea at a Y.M.C.A. canteen. That is where I met him. We made it a foursome at tea, he and I, and my girl friend and an English boy. He showed me some snaps of Canada and we became friends. I remember he asked if he could see me again and I said that I would drop him a line if I would. Well, I did. We saw each other often until he was moved quite a distance away and then it was only at times. However he was moved to the same place I was and, well, it was much better. I met him in March 1942 and we were married in January of last year. He is in Italy now," she related.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Russ are very happy with their son's choice.

"We have a very fine daughter and granddaughter now," Mrs. Russ said.

Pte. Gordon Russ enlisted at Chatham with the No. 16, R.C.A.S.C. in August of 1941. He has two brothers, Pte. Kenneth Russ and Sgmn. Everett Russ, both of whome are in Holland.

Capt. Don Weese

tenant Allan Park, formerly of Peterborough, son of Colonel M. H. and Mrs. Park, now of Toronto, took the first draft from the Rangers for service overseas. Captain Weese was then sent to the holding unit for troops from Military District No. 3, Kingston, and was finally attached to the Hastings-Prince Edward Regiment with the First Division. He saw continuous action through the successive campaigns in Sicily and Italy. A few months ago the ambitious and energetic young man going places in the advertising field had become a veteran of this toughest of all wars, and especially through the tremendous difficulties of terrain and weather in Italy, and was promoted to a captaincy.

A Fine Young Officer

"Don Weese was an exceedingly fine young officer," Colonel Dewart commented in tribute this morning. "He was very keen, intelligent and efficient, and a most likeable boy. He came to us when the Rangers were reorganized in 1940, and his work was so good and noticeable that he put up for a commission.

"He was a fine boy, and the news this morning was very saddening. I recall as typical of his initiative that when we were in British Columbia he developed a flair for signalling. To encourage that interest I sent him on a course to Terrace. He took that, came back to us, and when the first draft was called, instead of going on with signalling, he applied to go with that draft. He and Allan Park. Their course with us was much the same. Allan was very seriously injured in Italy."

The Examiner remembers Captain Weese as a smiling boy who first came to the circulation department, helped in the carrier work, and eventually assisted H. B. Cowan Jr., circulation manager, in setting up the system The Examiner still employs in that department. And with it was an enthusiasm and thoroughness that has become a tradition among The Examiner's carriers, the doing of "the little more, and how much it is."

Joined Advertising

Finally he was transferred to the advertising department, and by that time had developed ability and confidence to meet business men. He showed plain and indubitable signs of a successful future. In fact, the enterprise and sincerity of Don Weese sought opportunity for his many-sided interests and capacities in whatever he turned his hand to, tennis, for instance, a pastime in which he played a smart game with the Quaker Tennis Club. That same vital application of his abilities with energy, and as Colonel Dewart said, "with intelligence," was manifested in his military duties with the same ambition and sincerity which had won him progressing responsibility with The Examiner.

Don Weese left The Examiner on October 31, 1941, and the sparkle of character and good humor, a natural gift of making friends of people, and a genuine interest in others were recalled throughout the departments today with mixed feelings of pride and sorrow in a former association with a sterling young Canadian who had disclosed under all the trials of enemy action qualities which had won for him the outstanding rank of captain of such a fighting unit as the Hasty-Pees.

Every member of The Examiner staff remembers him with affection and also with a deep feeling of appreciation of what later years of his life have represented to his country and his friends at home.

Don Weese was born in Peterborough, was educated in the Public Schools and was a member of George Street United Church. Presumably, like most boys in this country he did not find any attraction in the peacetime militia establishment, and yet when he was needed with the youth of his country he displayed an enthusiasm and aptitude that were personal and typical, and suggest the aggregate of such loses to this country and his generation. A gay, bright and wholesome spirit was Don Weese.

Captain Weese was twenty-five years old. He is survived by his parents, one brother and three sisters, Wilford, R. (Bud) Weese, 130 Morrow street; Miss Olive L. Weese, a nurse in New York city; Mrs. Earl Huffman, 246 McDonnel street, whose husband is in Holland with the Algonquin Regiment; and Mrs. Archie Clysdale of this city.

In a recent letter to his parents he had mentioned that he had enjoyed a recent period of rest, featured by a turkey dinner, and that he was expecting to go up to the front lines again in a few days.

To his parents and his brother and sisters the staff of the Examiner, who recently sent him a collective Christmas parcel, offers its deepest sympathy.

FOUR YEARS OVERSEAS—Cpl. Melville John McGill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert McGill, 491 Parnell street, has been overseas four years and is with an Armored Car Regiment in Italy. His wife and daughter live at 5 New Chamberlain street. He enlisted in 1939, and prior to the war had been a Sergeant with the Prince of Wales Rangers (RF).

Dismiss Charges In Assault Case

Declaring taht the evidence was too indefinite to justify a conviction Magistrate O. A. Langley dismissed a charge against Joseph Norman Brick in police court this morning of having assaulted Willie Hum on the night of November 24.

Thornton Brick, elder brother of the accused was convicted last week by Magistrate E. A. Gee of having assaulted Hum Horning on the same night and this morning's charge arose out of the same circumstances.

Willie Hum swore that he had left the restaurant on his way home when he was accosted outside by Norman Brick. He said that Brick asked him about his relationship with Hum Horning and then struck him in the face, knocking off his glasses which were broken.

Hum Horning, who said he had seen the assault from inside the restaurant, corroborated the previous witness' evidence.

The accused denied that he had struck Willie Hum and said that the latter had attacked him and Pat Bianco who said that he saw the affair from across the street also testified that Joseph Norman Brick had been attacked.

W. C. Grant appeared for the accused and Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., prosecuted.

Death Allowances High For This Year

"We have paid in death allowances to families of civic employees this year more than enough to pay the premium on insurance that would provide $1,000 in each death," said Alderman Dutton Monday night in suggesting that the council's policy of temporary salary continuance be extended to the widow of Thomas Roy Howard, employee of the Board of Works, who died suddenly last week. He had been an employee of the city seven years.

Lacking other mortuary benefit the council has for some years been making an allowance of six months' salary in staff deaths. In this case the wages will be continued to the end of the year, and in the meantime definite information will be obtained for the council's guidance.

742 Japs Planes Lost In Week

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Dec. 19.—(AP).—The easiest invasion job of the Pacific war went ahead at full tilt on Mindoro Island to-day without the slightest ground resistance as U.S. commanders announced at least 742 Japanese planes put out of action the past week.

Admiral Nimitz announced at Pearl Harbor that 461 enemy aircraft had been destroyed or damaged in three days of sustained attacks on Manila Bay and elsewhere on Luzon. At least 28 Japanese ships were sunk in the strikes at Luzon and 66 others were damaged.

Gen. MacArthur said to-day many scores of other Japanese aircraft were knocked out of the sky by army and navy fliers supporting the amphibious invasion of Mindoro.

U.S. infantrymen scored gains on Leyte, invaded nearly two months ago. Seventy-seventh Division troops seized an airdrome near Valencia, nine miles from captured Ormoc, in their drive up the Ormoc corridor toward a juncture with the 32nd Division pressing southward. Thousands of crack enemy troops are caught in the squeeze, and the fighting is bloody all the way.

On Mindoro the surprised Americans encountered no ground opposition in their advance northward from the beachheads they established with unprecedented ease Friday dawn. Airfields were nearing completion at Mindoro's southern end to bring Manila within 30 minutes' flying range.

The enemy threw aircraft against the invaders, however. MacArthur reported 23 Japanese planes destroyed by anti-aircraft fire and aerial interception, against the loss of only one Americsan plane.

ply lines through Belgium be kept open and added Britain "had been right to intervene in putting down disorder on the lines of communication at the request of the supreme commander."

He said he had no intention of raising the question of British policy in Greece himself until his scheduled war-review after Christmas. He would not hesitate to debate the question, however, if challenged on another confidence vote.

There seemed little disposition on the part of Mr. Churchill's critics to accept his challenge on those terms.

Mr. Churchill's government won a vote of confidence, 281-32 less than a fortnight, following an earlier debate on Greek affairs.

Labor Leader Arthur Greenwood asked: "Does not the Prime Minister realize that this is not a question of a vote of censure but a quite legitimate demand for the elucidation of a developing and deteriorating situation?

"I do not think the situation is deteriorating," said Mr. Churchill. "I think it has greatly improved."

Emanuel Shinwell, Labor, asked Mr. Churchill whether the suggested establishment of a regency in Greece "is being in any way frustrated or impeded by the attitude of King George II?"

"I said just now that I had no further statement to make at the present on Greece," said the Prime Minister.

"Would it not be wise to advise that all shooting should stop in Greece, and the debate should take place not here but in Athens?" asked William Gallacher, Communist.

"I am afraid you cannot always stop shooting by saying you would like to stop it," replied Mr. Churchill.

Opponents of Britain's policy of intervention then shifted their fire to Belgium, attempting to challenge the accuracy of Mr. Churchill's account of precautionary steps taken in November when truck-loads of armed insurgents were moving on Brussels from Mons.

Checked Facts

The Prime Minister said he had checked his facts with the "best authorities," and that most of the disarming of the insurgents had been done by Belgian authorities, "but in a few cases Belgian civilians willingly approached British troops to surrender their arms and they were naturally helped to do so."

The Prime Minister said Gen. Eisenhower personally visited Brussels "and gave very decided and clear instructions as to the importance of preserving the tranquillity of communications. Therefore — far from withdrawing anything I said in my speech—I may say that mature reflection apart from some small details leads me to reiterate it."

Sir Richard Acland, leader of the Commonwealth party, suggested Mr. Churchill should confirm his sources of information, "which seem to be letting him down all over the world."

The sharp exchange continued as Mr. Churchill gave his account of a demonstration at the Belgian Chamber of Deputies.

"I believe there was also an advance by a large crowd on Parliament House or wherever it was," he began.

"A peaceful demonstration," shouted Sir Richard.

"A peaceful demonstration until you get well mixed up with troops," continued the Prime Minister.

"An unarmed demonstration," broke in Sir Richard.

Bitter Exchange

"You don't know who is armed or who is not in these days when small pistols can be produced from a pocket," said Mr. Churchill. "At any rate there was firing and very regrettable loss of life."

With tempers taut, Aneurin Bevan, Labor, a bitter and frequent critic of Mr. Churchill, scoffed at the Prime Minister's account of the "Coup d'etat" and demanded:

"Will he desist from deceiving the House in this irresponsible manner?"

Amid cries of "withdraw," Mr. Churchill snapped back: "I certainly do not ask Mr. Bevan to withdraw. Insults from him are compliments."

Then he asserted:

"I repeat that supreme American authorities and British authorities on the spot were extremely anxious about the position in Brussels for four or five days surrounding these events."

"I have not tried to deceive the House," he said. "Why should I try to deceive the House? I should certainly not think Mr. Bevan worth trying to deceive."

Rev. C. E. Moore Addresses Lions

Capt. the Rev. C. E. Moore of St. George's Anglican church brought a Christmas message to members of the Peterborough Lions Club, Monday night, at the regular meeting held in Queen's Hotel.

Introduced by Lawrence McCarthy, Mr. Moore said fear lurks in the hearts of men to-day, because of the rapidly changing world, changes in thought, outlook, ideals and world events. He pointed out that when Christ was born the struggle for power between good and evil was going on, and it still goes on with growing fury and vigor.

"The birth of Christ happened a long time ago, but to-day still we should hearken to the song of the angels as they sing "Fear Not."

"To-night we sing carols and meditate on the birth at Bethlehem, and in so doing we should realize that in the hurly-burly of every-day events we often forget the great source of power "The Virgin and the Child."

"The Kingdom of God is our plan for a new social order," he said.

The thanks of the club was voiced by Bruce Sargent.

Jack Armitage, president called on immediate past-president Jim Dutton to accept a parchment as a souvenir of his term of office and we was also given a special Lions pin.

Arrangements are being made to hold another mammoth bingo at the Brock street Summer Gardens on January 15.

Bylaw Passed In 1880 Is Nullified By Council

The municipal clock was turned back sixty-four years by the council Monday night to nullify by bylaw 4,412 an old bylaw passed in 1880 and numbered 413.

City Solicitor Huycke explained that the Midland Railway had desired at that time to obtain some additional land for sidings. The property to which they looked was owned by William Eastland, but it seems that he was opposed to selling. At any rate an agreement was arranged by which the Midland Railway undertook to pay $50 a year to Mr. Eastland, his heirs and assigns, through the city treasury.

Apparently the bylaw required the city to pay the $50 annually to the estate, and the railway was liable to the city.

Mr. Huycke said the terms had been carried out these sixty-four years, of recent years to the estate of Nihil Munroe. The Canadian National Railway, successor of the Midland, now wishes to commute the payments for $1,000 thereby obtaining a release from the Munro estate.

Council Shelves Pension Plan

Involving an amount of $160,000 for past services, a draft plan of pensions for all civic employees encountered an obstacle last night that chased easy and expansive ideas to cover, leaving a request for estimates omitting the 'past services' item.

Concluding its routine business the council retired into committee of the whole with Alderman Sullivan presiding to receive the report which his sub-committee had prepared with the aid of C. A. McFadgen, City Auditor Edward Humpage was also present.

Civic pensions have been proposed from time to time, and finally the special committee appointed by the council tackled the details of enquiry and came up with the report which was reviewed last night.

One of the comments was to the effect a plan which would be retroactive to the extent that it would take past services into the reckoning could not be adopted without approval of the ratepayers. The idea chilled to the marrow when the $160,000 aspect appeared.

UEW Have Christmas Party For Children

Santa Claus brought presents to a happy group of children at the United Electrical Workers' hall Monday night, featuring luncheon and entertainment arranged by their parents and other members of the Union.

The program included Christmas carols led by Mrs. H. Pearce; guitar solo by A. Sappala; accordion solo by Mr. Trouzelle; comic songs by Harry Peace, who also conducted a quiz contest for the youngsters.

Winners of the draw for poultry and cigarettes were: Turkeys: D. Chamberlain, L. Edwards and J. Worrell; chickens: D. MacPhee, Mr. Mills and Mr. Barnon; cigarettes: Miss Zita Mattucci, D. Barringer, and C. Armstrong.

Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary provided lunch, concluding a largely attended Christmas social that everyone enjoyed just about as heartily as the special guest children.

deep wedge, threaten lateral communications between the Allied northern and central fronts but on the other hand, the Germans are pushing into a pocket of their own making—a hazard so obvious that Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt or perhaps even Hitler must have weighed the danger long before committing the German forces in such strength.

The Germans have tried this same desperate game before—and both were times when Hitler snatched control from his generals. He attempted it once in Africa and again about a year ago in the Ukraine with the famed but futile "iron avalanche" counter offensive intended to wrest back Kharkov and split the Red Army offensive.

The weather was bad today but it was bad yesterday when British and American fighter-bombers gave German armor one of its most ruinous batterings. Revised U.S. 9th Air Force figures claimed 112 German tanks, half-tracks and other vehicles destroyed or damaged yesterday, trimming earlier estimates of 95 smashed and 26 destroyed. The British did not report their total for the day.

British Abandon Greek Prison Taken By Rebels

ATHENS, Dec. 19 — (AP). — A strong ELAS attack on the Averoff prison has forced the British to abandon the bastion. Quisling former Premier Jean Rallis, who apparently escaped from the prison during the disorder, was being sought today.

The attack on the prison was made late yesterday. This morning the British launched a counter-thrust to relieve the 115 policemen, 149 wardens and members of the British garrison. A British communique said the garrison and 130 of the Greeks in the prison and "some political prisoners" were successfully withdrawn.

The ELAS immediately began to fortify the prison.

It was estimated that some 205 men and 30 women prisoners out of 475 persons held there, escaped in the disorder. Most of the inmates were awaiting trial on political charges.

The fate of the remainder of the Greek prison attendants and the other prisoners was not immediately known.

Cells Locked.

All cells were locked when the west wing caught fire from mortar shells.

The hunt for Rallis was taken up immediately by the British and Greek forces and undoubtedly by the ELAS.

Rallis became Premier in April, 1943, and resigned by his own decree the day the German commander quit Athens. October 13 the 67-year old lawyer was imprisoned by the government of Premier George Papandreou. In an interview then Rallis contended he took over the Premiership during the German occupation to combat Communism.

British authorities said the recapture of Rallis was considered a "highest level affair." He was reported to have visited his wife's apartment briefly shortly after his escape.

Meanwhile RAF headquarters at Kifissia, 12 miles northeast of Athens, was subjected to a stiff ELAS siege with non-combattant RAF clerks and base officers thus far successfully holding out against 600 ELAS troops seeking to halt strafing by rocket-firing Beaufighters and Spitfires.

The British communique said ELAS troops were being cleared from the main Athens-Piraeus highway and that British troops were consolidating their positions astride the route.

Seven Men Are Fined As Being Found-ins

There were echoes of a provincial police-city police raid on Plaza Billiards, Charlotte street, on the night of December 7 in police court this morning, when seven men pleaded guilty to charges of having been found in a common gaming house.

Edward Alberico of whom Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. stated that he had had six previous convictions on similar offences, was fined $25 and $1.75 costs.

The others M. Herron, T. LeBarr, P. Baundt, John Yelland, Leonard Kennedy and Art. Bennett were all fined $15 and $1.75 costs.

Spiros Zakos, William Ward and Donald Conway, the latter giving his age as 17½ years, were charged jointly with keeping a common gaming house, and all three, defended by T. J. Carley, K.C., pleaded not guilty.

Hearing of the case was deferred until this afternoon.

Magistrate Remands Alleged Assault Case

"This man has already been in jail for nearly the time he could be given if convicted of the offence," said Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning when John Herbert Moloney appeared on a charge of assaulting Mrs. Allore on Sherbrooke street.

His Worship pointed out that the youth was charged with common assault and the case should be proceeded with as soon as possible.

Crown Attorney McElderry said that the woman who was a material witness was not available this morning.

Magistrate Langley remanded the accused until Thursday but ruled that the crown must be prepared to go ahead then.

Prisoner Pleads Guilty In Liquor Case

Changing his plea to guilty before the crown had completed its case in the charge against him of having illegally sold liquor on the night of Sunday, December 10, Sherman Godfrey, 426½ George street, was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court Monday afternoon to two months imprisonment in the county jail.

Godfrey, who was defended by W. C. Grant had pleaded not guilty and four Crown witnesses had been heard when defence counsel intimated that the accused wished to change his plea.

Sgt. W. E. Wigg told of a police raid on Godfrey's apartment on Sunday night, December 10. He said that Godfrey, his wife, his brother Manley and a number of other men had been in the place when the police arrived. Sgt. Wigg testified he had produced a search warrant and said that he was there to search for liquor whereupon Mrs. Godfrey had stated that she had some liquor there and took him to a cupboard from which he had obtained the half-full bottle he produced in court.

On the instructions of Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., the witness tasted the contents of the bottle and declared that the liquid was Canadian rye. He was satisfied that it was the same as described on the label on the bottle, stating that he had often bought and used that paricular brand.

Sgt. Wigg also produced a tumbler found in the Godfrey place and a bottle of ginger ale which he said had been brought in by the Godfrey children.

To Mr. Grant the witness said that the police had made a thorough search of the premises and the half bottle of liquor produced had been all they had found.

Saw No Money Paid

Charles Graham, George street, said that he had gone to the Godfrey apartment on the Sunday night in company with Claude Hopkins and that Hopkins and the Godfreys had had a drink of liquor. Graham said that he did not have a drink himself and did not see Hopkins pay for what he had. He had not even noticed him put his hand in his pocket, he said.

Mr. McElderry, K.C., asked the permission of the court to treat Graham as a hostile witness.

"There has been nothing in the evidence in justifying me in finding him hostile," said Magistrate Langley. "You may have your suspicions of him but that is a different matter."

A fifteen-year-old girl swore that in company with a boy friend she had been in the Godfrey apartment on the Saturday morning before and that the woman there had sold them liquor.

When a young boy next called by the crown swore that on the Sunday night he had seen two men come into the Godfrey apartment and that they had been served drinks by the woman and had put down a one dollar bill on the table Mr. Grant intimated that his client had decided to change his plea and to plead guilty to the offence.

He was allowed to do this and was sentenced to jail for two months.

Charges Dismissed

Charges of illegal consumption against Manley Godfrey, John Ward, John McMahon, Claude Hopkins and Charles Graham who had been arrested when the police raided the Godfrey place were dismissed when the crown offered no evidence.

A charge against Claude Hopkins, to which he had pleaded not guilty, of carnally knowing a young girl between the age of 14 and 16 was also dismissed. Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., informed the court that he did not propose to offer any evidence.

W. C. Grant appeared for all these defendants.

Rotarians Hold Christmas Party

A hope that this year, more than ever before, men and women everywhere will keep Christ in Christmas was expressed Monday afternoon by Rev. F. A. Marrocco, guest speaker at the Peterborough Rotary Club's annual Christmas party, held in the Empress Hotel. The wives of Rotary members were guests of Rotarian Chris Graham and Mrs. Graham.

"Leaving Christ out of Christmas is something which the world has been doing too long," Father Marrocco said.

'The first Christmas is the one event in man's long and tumultuous history which is as real and true today as when it occurred. It made a mark on everything that came before it or came after it. It left a mark on every person. The observance of Christmas each year keeps fresh in men's minds the momentousness of that event, and the importance and greatness of the person. It is wise for us to give one another each year the message Christ brought, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth, peace to men of good will."

Father Marrocco lauded the Rotary Club for its interest in the welfare of children. "It is one of the finest things that Rotary Clubs throughout the world have done."

Bring Gifts

Fun and entertainment was the order of the day, and each Rotary member brought to the party a gift, to be presented to some worthy organization for distribution among children. Some will go to the Children's Shelter of the Children's Aid Society in Peterborough.

Miss Geraldine Collins, guest soloist, sang two Christmas carols, accompanied by Miss Marian Best at the piano. Accordion solos were played by Pte. George Martin of the Training Centre, and special Christmas music was a feature of the occasion. Carols were sung, including the beloved "O Come All Ye Faithful" and "As With Gladness Men of Old."

A special guest of the Rotary Club was Mrs. Florence Dobbin, mother of Ross Dobbin, and on behalf of the Rotary Club in Peterborough, Ian F. McRae presented a bouquet of flowers to Mrs. Chris Graham, the party's hostess.

Arthur Cauley presented Pte. Martin with a gift, and gifts for Miss Collins and Miss Best were set aside for delivery later in the afternoon, as they had left a little earlier.

Gordon Matthews, president of the Rotary Club, requested Ross Dobbin to propose a toast to the women present, and Mrs. T. J. Carley replied to the toast on behalf of the women.

Supervisor Gordon Kennedy of the auxiliary services at the Training Centre introduced Pte. Martin.

At the conclusion, draws were made for 30 baskets of fruit, which were presented to many of the Rotarians' wives.

Adolf Was There

LONDON, Dec. 19—(CP).—A Daily Mail dispatch from the Western front quoted captured German soldiers today as saying Adolf Hitler had visited the front 10 days ago. The prisoners asserted Hitler told troops in the Roer River area to hold on till December 16, when he promised the Americans would be dealt a nasty surprise.

Germans Trying To Gain Reprieve

LONDON, Dec. 19.—(CP).—Berlin propagandists hinted yesterday that Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's counter-offensive might be a "peace offensive" designed, through attrition, to gain for Germany something better than unconditional surrender.

Dr. Karl Scharping, the German radio's chief political commentator, said: "In view of our offensive in the west Germany must force her enemies to go all out to such an extent that their difficulties at home, their losses at the front and their general wear and tear will no longer warrant the value of their political aims. We must make the struggle too costly for the enemy."

German propagandists also were using the counter-attack as an answer to the "where's Hitler?" mystery. The navy military radio said: "We can tell you now why Hitler has been silent. He is not ill but has been busy preparing this new offensive down to the minutest detail."

Bell Telephone Man Dies Of Heart Attack

COBOURG, Dec. 19.—(ENS). — Member of the Bell Telephone staff for 25 years, Murray Thomas died suddenly during the week-end. He was 51 years of age and on Saturday he had working near Port Hope and it is thought that on account of the deep snow he overtaxed himself. Always in good health he was well right up until a heart-seizure on Sunday brought about his sudden death.

The late Mr. Thomas was known as a "combination-man" on the Bell Telephone staff, this term applying to a workman who does maintenance and construction of any type. He was a highly-regarded member of the staff and was a most efficient workman, stated Bell Telephone officials Monday.

The late Mr. Thomas was born at Bronte and prior to coming to Cobourg in 1925, he had been stationed at Hamilton with the Bell Telephone Co. He was married at Hamilton in 1920 to Mildred Dodson of that city. During the Great War he was a member of the 115th Battery of Brantford. Mr. Thomas was recently elected to the directors of Cobourg Kiwanis Club. The funeral will be Wednesday at 2.30, with services conducted by Rev. H. Deering of St. Peter's Anglican church. # Highways Department Refuses Proposal

Some of the council's proposed restrictions on the oil and gasoline distributing properties of the British-American Oil Company and the Canadian Oil Company failed to elicit from the Ontario Department of Highways the complete and immediate sanction that was sought in a recent resolution.

J. D. Miller, deputy minister, wrote in part: "The council requests cancellation of the handling licenses of these companies. I do not believe the Department could take this action as the companies are complying with our regulations insofar as they affect the Department. It is felt this is a matter for the council to handle under bylaw regulation.

I note the reference to the absence of "danger" signs and will bring this to the attention of the companies with the request that these signs be placed."

Temporary exception was made of wire fencing, Mr. Miller informed the council, because of the difficulty of obtaining mesh fence with barb wire. It was understood by the oil companies that after the war wire fencing must be erected. "I am referring your letter for the attention of W. J. Scott, Ontario Fire Marshal, asking if he has anything to add to the views expressed above."

Anniversary Money Helps Boys Overseas

ROSENEATH, Dec 19—(ENS).—The euchre and dance arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Parker as a 30th wedding anniversary party, and held last week in the Orange Hall, resulted in receipts of approximately $40. This will be used to send cigarettes to Alnwick Township's enlistments overseas.

The hosts donated a wool blanket and a goose on which tickets were sold previously, and the draw made during the evening. Mrs. Mueller held the ticket for the blanket and Mrs. Bruce Timlin's ticket won the goose.

Miss Lorna George with a score of 89 and Bruce Timlin with a score of 95, were awarded pries. For selling the greatest number of tickets, Miss Eleanor Brown was presented with a prize.

Dancing was enjoyed and refreshments were served at midnight.

ON WESTERN FRONT

LONDON.—(CP).—The Fife and Forfar Yeomanry, an armored formation, have been fighting on the Western Front since a week after D-Day.

Warm Reception Overwhelms Italy Veteran

It was worth going overseas to experience the grand welcome we received since we landed back in Canada, Pte. Lloyd Young who has been serving in Italy, and who arrived home with a lowered category, said Monday.

"All the way from Halifax to Kingston, every time the train stopped women and children would come through the coaches with oranges, chocolate bars, ice cream, and other things we hadn't seen since leaving Canada. We were overwhelmed with food that we couldn't possibly hope to use, but it was a grand feeling.

"There was a nice reception for us at the Army barracks in Kingston and then we left Sunday, only to reach Port Hope and find we were stranded. I intended to hitch hike, but the mayor of Kingston had notified the mayor of Port Hope, who in turn told Mayor Hamilton that there were some overseas veterans stranded. Mayor Hamilton contacted the Police Department who notified my mother and also the Canadian Legion."

Mel Morrow, welfare officer of the Peterborough branch of the Legion, accompanied by his wife and Mrs. Young motored to Port Hope and met Pte. Young. They also picked up a Lindsay boy in the group. The family of Pte. J. Delaire, 467 Elm street, were on hand to meet him and also drove back a Lindsay boy.

Pte. Young, son of Mrs. A. Young, 195 London street, tried to enlist twice before he was accepted in May 1942. When he went overseas he was attached to the S.D. and G. Highlanders, but later transferred to the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment to go to Italy. Shortly after he arrived in the Mediterranean area, he was transferred once again and became a member of the Carleton and York Regiment.

Of the action he experienced at the Moro River, the young soldier would say little, except that living conditions were tough at the front. He and his pals went for weeks at one time and their feet were never dry. Pte. Young became ill in March and had to be removed from the Regiment and has not seen any action since. Now that he is in Canada, he expects to be kept as an instructor.

Harking back to the Legion's act of kindness, the young soldier reiterated that the men serving overseas had no idea of the interest that the veterans' organization and the people at home took in their home coming.

A brother, Harold Edgar Young, went overseas this fall, and before Pte. Young came home, the two met several times in London and had a chance to catch up on the news.

Brother Answers Sympathy Letter

The following letter was received by the council last night from Edward Prete of St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto:

"A long time has elapsed since you sent to my mother your letter of sympathy upon the death of my brother, Pilot Officer Louis J. Prete. However, may our tardiness in writing be more than compensated by our retention in memory of your kind act.

War seems to be the scourge of every nation taking in its toll the loved ones of many a family. Thus sorrow is rampant through our fair country, as the result of those who have made the supreme sacrifice in the service of their loved land. The consolation of all lives the goodness and mercy of God. Our cross becomes lighter and our yoke sweeter when we bow our heads in humble submission to His will. We hope that after this the world's Calvary we shall experience a joyous resurrection, a new Easter of worldwide Godly happiness.

Thanking you sincerely on behalf of my mother, Mrs. F. De Maio, and thanking you Mr. Outram for your personal sympathies, I shall close wishing God's blessing upon your good work.

Further Remand Given To Borden Soldier

COBOURG, Dec. 19.—(ENS). — Frederick Poole, of Camp Borden, member of No. 11 Machine Gun Training Centre band, was remanded until Thursday when he appeared in police court Monday on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Bandsman Herbert R. Johnson. The case was to have gone on Monday but it was found necessary to postpone it due to the absence of Dr. Erb of Toronto.

Harry Rightmeyer and Gerald Stolkes of Toronto, both 18, pleaded guilty to theft of a bicycle at Campbellford in October of this year, when they appeared in police court Monday. The pair were arrested in Toronto on December 8, for Chief Hardy of Campbellford. They were given 10 days in jail, dating back to their arrest.

Canadians Spending More Money But Range Of Articles Is Limited

By The Canadian Press

Canadians from coast to coast are on one of the greatest Christmas shopping sprees in history in the face of a paradoxical situation which finds them with more money to spend and retail stores with a more limited range of articles to sell.

A dominion-wide survey by The Canadian Press shows that buying everywhere is on a much larger scale than in 1943, the increases ranging from 15 per cent in Quebec to as high as 30 per cent in Edmonton.

Everywhere the demand exceeds the supply. There are shortage of such articles as men's shirts, women's stockings, silverware, leather goods, cuddly dolls and metal toys and novelties and in some places of watches and chocolates.

Shopping Has Been Sustained

The Christmas shopping rush is one of the most sustained on record. Many far-sighted Christmas givers starting buying their gifts in the summer months.

With more money available than usual, there is a heavy demand for luxury goods for domestic gifts. In demand are higher-priced lines of lingerie and toilet articles, jewelry including watches, good books, glassware, china and good toys, which are generally scarce.

Toys generally are of better quality than in 1943 but they are still inferior by pre-war standards.

British Columbia — Shopping began early in October and much of it now is finished except for the usual late rush for toys and similar gifts. Victoria department stores report a 15 per cent increase over last year.

Alberta—In Edmonton some firms report buying as much as 30 per cent more than in in 1943. There is a heavy demand for used pianos and radios.

Saskatchewan—Buying has been going on in Regina for months and Harold Wright, Retail Merchants Association secretary, says there is a 20 to 25 per cent increase over last year. Luxury and ordinary goods are selling fast.

Manitoba—In Winnipeg the buying for overseas parcels was the largest since the war started. Children's clothing and winter sports equipment, especially skates, are in short supply.

Quebec—In Montreal the rush began two weeks earlier than usual and the emphasis is on luxury buying with cheaper goods apparently lacking appeal. In Quebec sales are up 15 per cent with shortages showing in such lines as furniture, pipes and cigars.

Maritimes—Buying is earlier and heavier than usual with the emphasis on better quality goods. Some lines, such as winter goods, already are sold out.

Ontario—More shoppers with more money and early buying have all been general in Ontario. The shopping rush was slowed up in some centres by last Tuesday's storm but has resumed again.

Demand Exceeds Supply

In Toronto the demand exceeds the supply and there are shortages of men's shirts and women's stockings. Business is about 20 per cent ahead of last year. London reports the earliest and heaviest Christmas buying splurge on record. There were two rush periods, one for overseas buying in late September and the domestic rush which started in mid-November. Sales for overseas gifts were 15 per cent ahead of last year.

In Windsor customers "are buying everything they can lay their hands on," one merchant said. Shortages, lineups and other shopping difficulties in Detroit have brought many Americans to Windsor to do their shopping. Hamilton is looking for an all-time sales record in a buying spree which began Nov. 18 and has continued almost unabated ever since.

The early rush in Kitchener and Waterloo was so concentrated that many shelves were bare of merchandise early in December. There is little worry about prices. Buyers will take anything that is offered, regardless of cost. Money is plentiful in Guelph and the buying pace has been so sustained that some stores may be out of stock this week. In Stratford the rush for gifts has been on for two months.

The early buying for overseas gifts in Brantford has already brought word from men in the sevices that their Christmas parcels have been received. Domestic buying has been brisk but all except luxuries are generally in short supply. In Galt the rush began a week earlier than usual and early in December some merchants reported that they had sold 50 per cent of their Christmas mechandise. While toys are in demand, Galt shoppers are shunning military toys. The lively demand in St. Thomas is handicapped by the scarcity of much of the better class of goods. The supply situation in Sarnia has led some merchants to close Wednesday afternoons as usual in December. In most years they remain open that month to accommodate shoppers.

In Peterborough the rush of buying for overseas gifts reduced the supply for domestic purposes but shoppers are cheerfully accepting substitutes. Brockville shoppers are buying more expensive articles than usual and cheaper goods are not moving fast. The shopping rush began so early in Cornwall that merchants do not anticipate any late splurge. Larger population and increased buying power is believed to have contributed to Ottawa's shopping rush, which began as much as a month and a half earlier than usual. The gift supply is better than in other years.

In Sault Ste. Marie, there is a demand for scarce articles.

Jewelry is popular and price seems to be no object with most shoppers. Shelves in North Bay stores are being stripped to a minimum in a shopping rush which began in November, much earlier than usual. Late comers are taking whatever they can get.

$637.74 Legal Bill For Annexation

An account of $637.74 from John R. Corkery for legal service in the proceedings effecting the annexation of parts of North Monaghan was ordered paid by the council last night on Alderman Dutton's motion, seconded by Alderman Cotton, "and that the attention of the council of North Monaghan be called to the fact that certain services were rendered by Mr. Corkery for which this council thinks the township is liable."

Alderman Ovens estimated the North Monaghan liability at about 50 per cent. of the total bill. Alderman Curtis humorously suggested that the adjustment might be considered "when the horse traders get to work on the final settlement."

Land Mix-ups Ironed Out By Councillors

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 19—(ENS)—Final business of 1944 was disposed of at a session by the village council. Lease on the village mill property was drawn up with J. McManus for five years at $10.00 per year for lot five and taxes on the building.

Ralph Kilbon representing the American Nepheline Co. was sold lot 2 for $100. This lot adjoins 3 and 4 which the company purchased back in 1940 for the sum of $500 but which had never had deeds and had never been handed over to the company.

Apparently both the company and the village were under the impression that the deal had been finished four years ago and it was only when the Nepheline Co. applied for lot 2 that the property check-up revealed the transfer had never been made. The hitch apparently occurred when the company refused to accept the fixed road allowance across the lots as described in the village's special surveyed plan.

It seems at that time the Nepheline had already covered the proposed road and had suggested that a "floating" roading be used as the company filled the lot with rock. The outset was nothing was done and the matter had lain dormant for the past four years.

Draw Up Agreement

An agreement between the present council and the Nepheline Company was drawn, in which the permanent right of way will lie along the rear of lots 1, 2, 3 and 4 to lot 5 and the boat houses on the water front. At present the right-of-way lies through swampy ground where no roadway exists and the company will maintain a right-of-way across their property which they are gradually filling, shifting the roadway back as they fill.

To Clear Snow

Everett Dunford and Jack Hampton were hired for snowplowing Ward 1 and Ward 2 at 75c an hour. The agreement being that plowing will be done as soon as the snow is deep enough to warrant plowing, whether this be in the night or not. Chief fault in past contracts appeared to have been that snow plowers were seldom on the job before 8 or 9 o'clock in the morning, regardless of whether it had been snowing all night or not. Many complaints had been received about this and the councillors were careful to stress the fact that they wanted the streets plowed in time for children to get to school and business people to get to work. Mr. Dunford assured the council he was prepared to plow at anytime of the day or night.

Accounts Paid

Accounts were passed as follows: Chief Samis, last half December salary, $51.20; E. H. Northey, Dec. salary as clerk, $50.00; E. H. Northey, registrations, $7.75; Lloyd Allen, snow shovelling, $9.00; Dr. J. C. Smith, expenses to M.O.H. convention; Margaret Tanner for blowing town siren, $75.00 per year; E. J. Millage, furnace repairs, $96.31; Unemployment insurance total to date $94.01. Total $398.27.

Democracy And Dynasties

During the past month there has been an outcry among Leftists in Britain and also on this continent that Winston Churchill and the British Foreign Office are attempting to re-establish monarchies in several of the liberated countries of Europe, Greece and Italy being among them. No good evidence has been brought forward to support the accusation. It was clearly stated in the Atlantic Charter that liberated countries would choose their form of government by ballot, and Britain has taken direct military action to ensure that this shall be so in Greece. It would be more accurate to say that the British Foreign Office is not hostile toward monarchical governments, whereas Leftists are decidedly hostile toward them.

The Leftist hostility toward monarchies is romantic, as is so much Leftist belief. Any monarchy which is restored in Europe after the war will be a constitutional monarchy; the day of absolute rulers passed when the last Czar of Russia was murdered. And a constitutional monarchy may be a very good thing; the whole of the British Commonwealth is a constitutional monarchy, and it is generally acknowledged to have as advanced a form of government as any that exists in the world, and its subjects enjoy as much freedom as any people known to history. The maintenance of the monarchy is extremely convenient as a pin upon which our complicated system of law hangs, and it also provides us with a focal point upon which our pride and hope and aspiration can be turned in moments of great national stress. During this war, for instance, the King and Queen have been very real factors in maintaining national morale; we may suggest that as non-political figures, they have been preferable to Marshal Stalin. Really we cannot see anything wrong with monarchies when they are well managed.

* * *

A monarchy, in fact, acts as a stabilizer in a democratic country. The King is above party and his actions as a national symbol command the full respect of all except determined anti-royalists. In a democratic country where there is no head of the state who is above party there is often discernible a lack of what may be called a national soul, for want of a better term. The liberated countries of Europe need stability more than anything else; they are not accustomed to democracy, and are not unlikely to confuse it with unbridled political opportunism. If a majority in any country wants a monarchy as a brake on its politicians, why should it not have one, and why should not Britain see that it gets a chance to decide in the only fair way?

H. G. Wells, who seems to have become very cantankerous in recent years, ascribes the British policy of leaving the way open for monarchies if they are wanted to what he calls the Premier's belief 'in the invincible snobbishness of mankind'. It might just as well be ascribed to Mr. Churchill's practical knowledge of government. Leftists are extremely old-fashioned in some of their ideas; they still think of themselves in French Revolution terms as enemies of unjust and worthless kings and aristocrats; in point of fact, modern kings are often very worthy people, and the record of British aristocracy in this war has been a great one. Abusively attacking Churchill because he refuses to shut the door on monarchical government is merely Leftist intolerance and short-sightedness. A few monarchies in post-war Europe may level the lump of half-baked communists states, ruled by touring company Stalins.

It is said that Hitler decreed that every hen in the Reich must lay 70 eggs a year or die. But the Fuehrer himself appears to have laid his final egg.

The Fleeting Goal

The newspaper reader must often get the impression that the victory which our forces pursue in Europe is a fleeting goal, and that we no sooner seem ready to put our hands on it than it vanishes again into the distance. During the past year rash commentators have predicted victory for many occasions, but it is still far away, and the game now seems to be to see who can fling it farthest into the future. The latest prophet declares that we cannot win before next autumn, at the earliest.

It may be so. We know nothing about the subject and have no opinion to offer. Mr. Walter Lippman, who has been on the fighting-front in Western Europe for four weeks, and whose acuity in these matters is great, has explained why victory is still far away in a most interesting analysis. The gist of what he says is this: Allied lines of supply are long, and the roads and railways which take our supplies to the troops are in bad condition; Germany is now fighting in a position where her lines of supply are good; winter weather has reduced the power of our mechanized forces and our air power, and we are fighting mostly with infantry and artillery. That is why the fight is desperate and likely to last long.

But our commanders knew this when they decided on a winter offensive. They weighed the cost and thought it better to strike Germany now than to give her a winter in which to recover a part of her strength. We chose to fight now, and we are fighting in our own way, and not in a way forced on us by the enemy.

Germany, says Mr. Lippmann, is defeated and must fall eventually. But Germany still has great determination and recuperative power. And Germany has certain advantages as he points out when he says:

"We are pitted against a great and a most dangerous enemy....Until there is a rupture or a break-through, or unless attrition brings about a pause, the battle is equal. For the power the Germans can exert on a battlefield in Germany is aligned against the power that we can exert across the ocean....If it is said that the Germans have also an Eastern front to defend against the Red Army we must remember that we have another full-scale war to carry on in the Pacific".

This does not sound as though the end were in sight, but wars are not accountable even to such able commentators as Mr. Lippman, and the end may come with surprising suddenness.

Mercy For Murderers

A good deal of public interest is being taken in the stay of execution of the men who murdered a woman in Northern Ontario by holding her on a hot stove; they attempted to get from her the secret of where her money was hidden by this dreadful torture, and the injuries which she suffered killed her. Her torturers were condemned to hang and now one has been reprieved and sentenced to life imprisonment by an act of executive clemency. The other three are appealing for a new trial.

We do not question the advisability of this reprieve because we know nothing of the circumstances which brought it about. Apparently the administrators of the law have seen fit to show mercy toward these men which they certainly did not show toward their victim. But is the mercy really so great? At the very least the murderers will suffer life imprisonment, and that brings up the old question: is it better to die swiftly, or to wear out the remainder of a lifetime in jail? There would be many people, certainly, who would find the latter punishment harder to endure.

Until mankind is more advanced morally than it is at present the attitude of the law toward murderers must be one of ceremonial revenge. If a man takes a life without excuse or extenuation, his own life is forfeit. But if there is a measure of extenuation, we commute the sentence to life imprisonment—a punishment which may be considered more cruel than hanging and which has, moreover, the disadvantage of making the criminal a charge on the state for many years; he is protected and cared for as many free men are not, and his punishment resides in the dreariness and restriction of his life. The men who inflicted several minutes of acute torture upon their victim may be tortured by the state for many years. Is not the mercy which has been shown them largely an illusion?

NOTE AND COMMENT

An Ontario provincial constable has been fined $20 in an Ottawa traffic court for careless driving. When a man bites a dog, it's news.

An advertisement in the Macleod Gazette offers a 'heifer bull' for sale. When we recall that it was not long ago that an Ottawa official advised a Western farmer to keep some of his steers 'for breeding purposes' our conviction that the facts of life are insufficiently known in Canada grows.

The General In The House

(By GRANT DEXTER)

OTTAWA: When General McNaughton appeared before the House of Commons on November 23, the order-in-council imposing overseas conscription had just been announced. It had, in fact, been approved by the Government an hour or two earlier. It was, perhaps, natural that he should try at the outset of his evidence to explain his position. Mr. Ralston, his predecessor in office, who had been retired because the Government would not do for him (Mr. Ralston) the very thing that had just been done, was sitting a few feet away.

"Where my predecessor and I differed", said Gen. McNaughton, "was on the methods which should be used to provide the reinforcements needed. In October last he took his stand on the basis that we had outrun the possibilities of maintaining our forces overseas by voluntary enlistment. At that time, I took the stand that our traditional system which we had used throughout this war and long before, was capable of producing the results we sought and of providing them in time, provided always that it was given the full public support which was requisite".

He went on to say that he thought it would have been dangerous to hazard conscription until the voluntary system was exhausted. He thought it would have been a great mistake to have applied conscription at the time of Mr. Ralston's resignation. "Since then, conditions have altered; public attention has been rivetted on these matters". Gen. McNaughton argued that he had never excluded conscription from his mind.

IT was observed that Gen. McNaughton in this statement had introduced a number of new points. The proviso that his earlier "confession of faith" had been qualified in his own mind by the need of public support, was a surprise. Also his apparent belief that public attention had only been focussed on this problem since November 1, baffled the members. And equally astonishing was his new confession of faith—that while he had believed with every atom of his being in the voluntary system, he had never excluded conscription.

As questioning proceeded, Gen. McNaughton speedily put a different interpretation on other events. "The district commanders", he said (page 6678), "told me quite frankly that they had not much hope that our requirements would be met". And he conceded that the event had shown the commanders to be quite right.

It was absolutely essential, said the General, that there be a substantial reserve of reinforcements to support the overseas armies.

"The numbers required", he went on, "to make up the reserve that is necessary are larger than could be provided in time by the voluntary conversion of trained and fit personnel of our N.R.M.A. men to general service"'.

Only a few days earlier, it was noted, Gen. McNaughton had been asserting dogmatically that only the voluntary system could produce the needed men in time to meet the need.

At this first meeting with the House, Gen. McNaughton seemed to be under the illusion that the voluntary system had not been superseded by conscription. He kept on saying such things as "...it is our purpose to maintain the voluntary system to the limit".

WHILE there was much sympathy for the General, at times the going was rough. Mr. Quelch, of the Social Credit party, closed in on him with a nasty question addressed to Mr. King. Would Mr. Ralston have resigned if the conscription order had been offered to him? Mr. King, in obvious embarrassment, replied that what was impossible at one time might be possible at another. But Mr. Neill, Liberal from British Columbia put into words the question present in most minds. It had reference to Gen. McNaughton's repeated assertions about the superior merits of the voluntary system. Here it is:

"In view of your former position, does not the changed policy of the Government and the fact that you have not changed...justify and compel you as a man of honour to tread the same narrow path of self-sacrifice that was trod by your predecessor and force you to resign, so that someone else can carry out the new policy of the Government which now is so entirely different from that which you advocated this afternoon and this evening?...I ask you the question, again, as man to man. In your honest opinion, would it not be better for the cabinet to which youn belong, for the Liberal party to which you now adhere, to the greater interest of the people of Canada whose interests I know you have at heart, and the welfare of Canada and the best interest of the war, if you gave way to a man who believes in the policies to be carried out by the Government, who can tell us flatly that he is going to do everything he can to carry out the policies of the Government, and whose whole record will be behind carrying out the new policy?"

General McNaughton hesitated before attempting a reply and Mr. King was instantly in the breach with a plea for indulgence. Mr. Neill—an old hand—remarked that the General need not answer—"but if he is the man I think he is, he will." No answer was forthcoming.

That ended the first session attended by Gen. McNaughton.

ON the following day, General McNaughton prefaced his evidence with a statement intended, he said, to clear up the obscurities of the first day. He now said, frankly, that the conscription order applied to all draftees and would be used. Not only were there fewer eulogistic references to the voluntary system, but Gen. McNaughton showed that already the conscription order had been applied: 10,000 draftees had been selected for overseas service; arrangement for the despatch of the first contingent were completed; plans covering further contingents up to May had already been approved.

This was action in earnest. But now Mr. Ralston took a hand in the questioning and it speedily developed that everything done had been waiting only for ministerial sanction. That is, Mr. Ralston had been ready but had been unable to act because he lacked government authorization. General McNaughton complimented Mr. Ralston on having prepared everything in advance. It was an "amazing performance."

By and large, Gen. McNaughton's evidence to the House was far from clear. His declarations of determination to enforce overseas conscription were confused by repeated references to the desirability of retaining the voluntary system. The sense of the House was best expressed by Mr. Ralston, as follows:

....this house and the people of this country, and I myself, will hold the government — and particularly the prime minister and the minister of national defence—to strict account for carrying out vigorously and without wavering their declared intention to reinforce the army with well-trained men from the N.R.M.A. to the fullest and fastest extent possible."

And it was in the belief that Gen. McNaughton means business that the government was given a substantial majority on the final vote of the session.

"JET PROPULSION EXPERIMENT"

Historic Name Returns To News

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

AS this war has brought into the news some places made famous in the Napoleonic Wars, so has it recalled the names of some famous personages of that historic struggle. About a year ago the Duke of Wellington, the descendent of the victor of Waterloo, was killed while serving with the British forces. Now a report from Paris discloses that Louis Joachim, Prince Murat, the 26-year-old descendant of Napoleon's great cavalry marshal, was killed while fighting the Germans on July 26.

Certainly Murat was one of the most colorful of that remarkable group of marshals with which Napoleon surrounded himself and upon whom he depended for carrying out his varied strategy of battle. Having lent his aid to Napoleon at the beginning of his career, he grew in power with Napoleon's rise, becoming Napoleon's brother-in-law and the King of Naples.

As the ruler of Naples he showed wisdom combined with vanity—being called a "monkey" by Napoleon for his dandyish ways. But such dandyism has not infrequently marked great cavalry leaders, and Murat was one of the greatest. He led his first famous cavalry charge at the Battle of the Pyramids during Napoleon's Egyptian campaign. He won decisive cavalry success at Marengo and again at Austerlitz. Only a late estrangement prompted Napoleon to decline the offer of his services in the fateful Hundred Days after Elba. More than one historian has suggested that Murat might have given more concentrated power to those cavalry charges of the French upon which the fate of Waterloo so largely hung.

But not only have a Duke of Wellington and a Prince Murat recalled in this war the names and exploits of their ancestors, but they have each died in a form of service that is historically fitting. The Duke of Wellington died last year in that same dutiful service with the British Army to which his ancestor's life was devoted. To Prince Murat's death there is a touch of that daring quality which marked the life of his ancestor—"Murat the Beau Sabreur." For he was a lieutenant with the French underground resistance movement, with which he had served for two years. He died in the course of a German attack on the resistance post he commanded.

December Grays

(NEW YORK TIMES)

DECEMBER is low twelve of Nature's day. No hope now of a period of Indian summer. From now on it's simply an occasional spell of warmer weather. The venerable Turn Key, Winter, has inserted his implement in the padlock, and snapped the combination. Snow covers the northland; the woodchucks, bears, turtles, frogs and toads are dug in for the long siege.

There's beauty, however, in the gray days of December. The stratus and nimbus clouds are suspended low above the meadows, fields and upland pastures. Of all the months, it's the most peaceful and quiet. The blanket of snow hushes one's footfalls as he tramps over fields and through woods. The stone walls are capped with whiteness and the craggy ledges and granite boulders of the sidehills wear white caps. The weeds in the garden, the stalks of goldenrod in the corners, the jaunty cattails in the swamps, and the grasses that show above the snow have turned from their autumn tans and browns to the grayish shades they will wear for the next months. The weathered, splintery posts at the pasture barway, and the peeled, maple-sapling bars seem a richer sheen of silvery gray against the whiteness that covers the land. The post that bears the R. F. D. box at the edge of the lawn is a gray sentinel.

December is a gray month, but there's no lack of activity. The pheasants come into the garden to search for weed seeds; the white-tailed deer come up from the swamps to paw the snow beneath the Baldwin and Greening trees for frozen fruit. And when the farmer takes his axe to the woodlot and begins to get up next season's woodpile, the chickadees, nuthatches and downies come around to enjoy his company. December is quiet and gray, but it's a soft, relaxing gray. Night falls early in the gray month, but the country man looks forward to the long evenings. With a crackling fire in the stove, a dish of juicy apples and a favourite farm paper, the gray month has compensations.

Mr. King's Victory

Prime Minister Mackenzie King's victory in Canada's overseas conscription crisis adds another significant link to the chain of compromise by which the Dominion has maintained its unity during the war.

Canada's troops on the Continent will get their needed 16,000 reinforcements. Mr. King has won a 143-70 mandate in the House. But the issue was not precisely joined. A separate motion showed French-speaking Canada's disapproval of the Government conscription of home-army draftees to make up the losses in volunteer overseas divisions. Mr. King obtained his vote of confidence by an appeal to the safer issue of general support of the national war effort.

The fundamental issue between French- and English-speaking Canada has been little reconciled. The problem is not, as is at times assumed, that Canada's French-Canadians think of themselves as Frenchmen. It is, rather, that they have not yet come to think of themselves internationally as Canadians.

The situation was aptly illustrated by a public opinion study made during the middle of the present war. Canadians were asked, "Do you think of Canada as an independent country?" The majority of the English-speaking Canadians answered "yes." A majority of French-speaking Canadians answered "no." For French-Canadians generally have not perceived the implications of the progress which the Dominion has made toward genuine independence within the British Commonwealth.

After the war, that independence from London will undoubtedly increase without endangering the final bonds which link the Empire. Then it will be the task of Canadian statesmanship to address itself to the deeper integration of the two racial groups which comprise the Dominion. —Christian Science Monitor.

No Confidence In Tories

Whatever the vote of confidence meant to Prime Minister Mackenzie King in the House of Commons last Thursday night, it certainly helped to show that this country has no confidence in the official opposition. Political ineptitude reached a new low level in the vote of Conservative members against the motion before the House as follows: "That this House will aid the government in maintaining a vigorous war effort".

There could have been little excuse in voting against the motion as originally moved by the Prime Minister, as follows: "That this House will aid the government in its policy of maintaning a vigorous war effort".

In the final debate, however, the C.C.F. leader, Mr. Coldwell, asked that the words "its policy of" should be deleted. The Prime Minister accepted the amendment. He said: "It is entirely what I mean". Even so, Conservative members joined with members from Quebec in opposition to the maintenance of a vigorous war effort. They declared against aid by the House of Commons to the government in Canada's war effort to win the war. It is little wonder wonder that the people of this country, although they are severely critical of the government, have less confidence in the Tory opposition. — Ottawa Citizen.

A Bible Message

And a certain centurion's servant, who was dear unto him, was sick, and ready to die. And when he heard of Jesus, he sent unto him the elders of the Jews, beseeching him that he would come and heal his servant.

And when they came to Jesus, they besought him instantly, saying, That he was worthy for whom he should do this: For he loveth our nation, and he hath built us a synagogue.

Then Jesus went with them. And when he was not far from the house, the centurion sent friends to him, saying unto him, Lord, trouble not thyself: for I am not worthy that thou shouldest enter under my roof: wherefore neither thought I myself worthy to come unto thee: but say in a word, and my servant shall be healed. For I also am a man set under authority, having under me soldiers, and I say unto one, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it.

When Jesus heard these things, he marvelled at him, and turned him about, and said unto the people that followed him, I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel. And they that were sent returning to the house, found the servant whole that had been sick. (Luke 7: 2-10.)

"Living" Memorials

The movement which seems to be spreading among American cities and towns to construct "living" war memorials in the form of public auditoriums and civic and recreation centres, promises a vast improvement over the motley array of shafts and statuary, ranging from works of art to just works of the local iron foundry, which have sprung up after earlier wars. But it would be well for the city fathers to plan carefully even in this more imaginative direction.

An unused building somehow seems more lifeless and futile than a statue, which isn't supposed to do anything anyway, but just stand and remind by its presence. Many communities which erected memorial buildings after World War One with the hope, if not the expectation, that the mere existence of the structure would initiate and develop the activities which would make it functional, found that they had put the cart before the horse. It is sounder planning to think first in terms of appropriate community activities, provide reasonably for their continuity, and then proceed to the matter of a building to house them.

Perhaps because of the traditional linking of stone and bronze with the idea of lasting monuments, a more truly "living" type of memorial is being overlooked: a trust fund, established under broad and flexible stipulations of purpose, and with proper safeguards for continuing public-spirited and non-political administration, to carry on some truly social service for the community. What more fitting memorial could there be, for instance, to the young men and women who did not come back, than to insure, through scholarships, that other promising youngsters are educated to take their place?

Those Belgian 'Zazous'

Let us hope the time has also come for a certain type of girls and boys called "Zazous" to disappear. These young people have also ceased to serve a useful purpose. After the virtues of swindling and frivolity, the virtues of absurdity?

But perhaps outside the walls of Paris, Brussels and a few other continental towns no one knows the appearance and habits of these young native war fauna. To tell the truth, the species was born in the queer early part of the war. If it has multiplied under the occupation it must be chiefly owing to the idleness into which these young people have fallen by force or from choice as a consequence of the innumerable upsets in every sphere of education.

The war cry of the "Zazous" is: "We are 'swing' from top to toe." To be "swing" is, of course, to live only for and by jazz, only to think in terms of the syncopated rhythms of Armstrong and Duke Ellington or their disciples and pupils. Nothing else in head, body or legs. Always ready to burst out into shouts of "swing" and to revolve to its music.

As for the appearance of the "Zazous," it is rather like that of the low comedian at a music hall. The boys: long hair, too long and with a pronounced shingle; trouser-legs tight and too short; white socks. The girls: loose, untidy hair hanging a long way down their backs; jacket like a man's, cut too wide and too long; skirt much to short, showing the nkees; and, nature permitting, plenty of bust and calf. Caricatures? Exactly.—News From Belgium.

Three Pay Fines Had Rifles In Game Preserve

Giving judgment Monday afternoon in the charge against Alex. C. Nicholls of Smith township of having been in possession of a rifle in the Peterborough County game preserve on November 6, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. registered a conviction against the accused.

In doing so His Worship found that Nicholls and his two companions had been in the preserve on the day in question and that they were there for the purpose of hunting. They should have known, he said, that when they engaged in hunting in that area they were near the boundary and he was not satisfied that they had taken every precaution to make sure that they did not enter the preserve.

In his argument in behalf of the defence John A. Bradshaw had contended that the case hinged on the question of whether or not the accused had a guilty mind. He contended that Nicholls and his associate had taken every reasonable care to find out just where it would be legal to hunt.

Magistrate Langley after finding the accused guilty, pointed out that he had been charged under the general section with a minimum penalty of, $10 instead of under the specific section which prescribed a minimum of $50 for the offence.

Accordingly he fined the accused $25 without costs, at the same time suggesting that the prosecution might wish to amend the charges against the other two accused to bring them within the other section.

Others Plead Guilty

An adjournment until after the holiday season was suggested but Mr. Bradshaw, after consulting Ben. Nicholls and Leonard Hawthorne, the other two accused, said that the two were prepared to plead guilty forthwith to the same charge as the one on which Alex. Nichols had been convicted.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., said that he was ready to accept such pleas and the two other defendants then pleaded guilty.

Magistrate Langley imposed fines of $25 with costs of $3.50 in each case.

"I wish, Your Worship, that you would say something about the unsatisfactory nature of the western boundary of the game preserve. If you did so I thing it possible we might get some action from the authorities," said Mr. Bradshaw.

"I will gladly say this," said His Worship, "that it would greatly assist the courts and the department would more readily collect fines if it saw to it that the boundary was properly marked. The courts would be able to decide such cases readily if there was an adequately-marked boundary."

Aviation And Coming Peace

By B. T. RICHARDSON

By B. T. RICHARDSON

Chicago: In their first attempt to establish a post-war international organization to regulate commercial rights among different countries, the United Nations have failed.

The first test case was international civil aviation, in which the traffic may become as great and profitable as ocean shipping, with profound effect upon world society. It is the world's newest example of a business in which the frictions of competition will be accentuated by national rivalries, in the manner that caused wars for commercial rights in the past.

Yet civil aviation will add new dimensions to everyday life. There will be thousands of new jobs in building, flying and servicing airplanes, as air travel expands. The Canadian with $200 or $300 for a vacation will not be limited to a trip inside Canada or a short journey into the U.S.A. Instead, he will fly to Europe. The $500-$700 holiday will be not merely a trip to Europe, but a trip to Asia or the South Seas, the Transvaal or Montevideo.

In his message to the conference President Roosevelt said:

"As we begin to write a new chapter in the fundamental law of the air, let us all remember that we are engaged in a great attempt to build enduring institutions of peace. These peace settlements cannot be endangered by petty considerations or weakened by groundless fears."

Thirty-seven days later, the Chicago conference had written new air law on the operation of airplanes; but it had failed to agree on principles for the orderly development of air transport throughout the world. Thus while aviation is ready to soar to the stratosphere, air traffic business is bonnd still by commercial relations dating back to days when even the sea was still not free. Thus one of the historical opportunities ensuing from World War II has been missed.

Obstacles to agreement included differences of position, of philosophy and of economic interest which lie between the United States and Great Britain. These realities rarely showed on the surface of the conference, but every delegate was aware of them. Britain, like many countries, has suffered enormous economic damage; the United States has become the most gigantic industrial nation in history, ready with planes to fly civil routes around the world. It will be infinitely difficult to reconcile their commercial interests, not in air transport only.

Rights of air traffic, with the conference ended, remain a matter of bargaining on a bilateral basis. Canada, like other nations, must seek the best terms she can, in order to fly to other countries and to have other countries use her airports and routes. Until the "freedom of the air" becomes a multilateral right, air commerce relations cannot be said to rest, as the Atlantic Charter put it, on "the enjoyment by all states, great and small, victor and vanquished, of access on equal terms to the trade and the raw materials of the world which are needed for their economic prosperity." There shall be equality of opportunity and no discrimination! These words are proclaimed in the new aerial convention. But the letter of this law is still lacking where it applies to air transport.

In open competition, London and Washington hold powerful bargaining positions if they elect to wage economic warfare for air traffic. Britain looks to Europe, a short-route air traffic area, where its main business will arise. With imperial connections, Britain may seek global aviation business on the basis of a new Ottawa agreements of the air, if the Dominions would stand for it.

America must bargain to win gateways to Europe and, during the conference the United States actually completed one "gateway" agreement with Spain. America has a long headstart in transport planes, well-developed domestic airways which carried 30 per cent. of the world's scheduled air transport before the war, a great new pool of aeronautical skill, and fresh experience in the world's greatest air courier system, its military transport command system. In terms of naked rivalries, one may hesitate to pick the winner; in terms of international collaboration, they could lead the world speedily into a fabulous era of air travel.

The historian naturally thinks of the freedoms of the seas as the precedent for freedom of the air. Best historian at the Chicago conference was Adolf A. Berle, Jr., leader of the U.S. delegation and president of the conference. He introduced Hugo Grotius in his first speech as the young Dutch lawyer of the 17th century who, "in a controversy over a Dutch ship, undertook to argue the case for the right of friendly intercourse, in a book addressed to the free and independent peoples of Christendom, and thereby began the long march of history toward the law of freedom of the sea in time of peace."

Grotius bobbed up several times at the conference, a ghost in 20th century Chicago. It was he who argued against British lawyers. In his hands, of course, the freedom of the seas represented merely the immediate commercial interests of his country, though his doctrine did in time become the foundation of prosperity in Britain and other seafaring countries.

Unlike the original, the 20th century Grotius, Mr. Berle, did not propose that air rights be administered by an international organization. Far from it. Mr. Berle wanted no "restriction" of that kind. Freedom of the sea became a reality long after Grotius' time, but it took "200 years and a couple of wars" (as Mr. Berle said) for it to be recognized multilaterally and become the governing principle of international maritime law. Aerial law must grow more quickly to prevent disastrous rivalry.

The nations will study Mr. Berle's position at Chicago — though he has been removed from his State Department post in charge of aviation policy—to determine whether America fulfills the role of chief exponent of organized freedom in world commerce. The analogy of Grotius implies that British policy favors commercial monopoly based on "closed zones of the air" or "shadowy barriers in the air marking out for the future huge invisible frontiers, certain to become high future battle lines."

The nations, too, will study British policy to determine whether these accusations framed by Mr. Berle really apply. Much of the "guidance" given to the press by Mr. Berle—as the columns of the New York Times and other newspapers demonstrate—followed this thesis. The lustre of Chicago as name-place for a new abode of United Nations harmony will rest, not on whether the case has been made that the British are closed-air cartellists or that the Americans are high-minded air-freedom idealists, but on the speedy fruition of the concept of organized international relations in air commerce.

Boy In Holland Finds Parcel Useful

ROSENEATH, Dec. 19—(ENS).—Mrs. Elizabeth Braithwaite, convener of Alnwick Township Women's Overseas Parcels Committee, has received the following reply from B.S.M. Ednel Blodgett, Somewhere in Holland:

"Another year has passed and once more I have received a grand Christmas parcel from your society. So as I sit here in my 6 by 6 underground home I take great pleasure in asking you to convey to every woman concerned my deepest appreciation and a million thanks for the grand parcel.

"The morning after I received your parcel I was sent on a detail for 48 hours, which meant I would be away from my unit for that time. So when I loaded my kit in my jeep, I very carefully packed in your parcel. During the trip it turned very cold and wet, and my hands were nearly frozen, when, all of a sudden I remembered that in your parcel was a pair of woollen gloves which I put on at once, so you can judge for yourself just how much I thanked you then and there, and for the remainder of the parcel I was equally as grateful because for those two days I was my own cook.

"I wish each of you A Merry Christmas and the best of luck for the New Year."

B.S.M. Blodgett's mother, Mrs. Fannie Blodgett, operates the telephone exchange at Roseneath, and his wife and two sons live at Norwood.

Montgomery Praises Canuck Army

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE FIRST CANADIAN ARMY IN HOLLAND, Dec. 19 — (CP Cable). — The 1st Canadian Army's hard fight to clear up the Schelde Estuary in Holland so the Port of Antwerp could be opened to seaborne supplies was described yesterday by Field-Marshal Montgomery as the finest operation of the Western Front campaign.

The Commander of the 21st Army group, of which the 1st Canadian Army is a party, expressed hope that his praise of the Canadians might be known in the Dominion and said he felt the Canadian Army had not received the credit it deserved for the important fight it waged along either side of the Schelde Estuary.

He included in his tribute, made at a ceremony when decorations were presented to 70 officers and men of the 2nd Division of the 2nd Canadian Corps, praise for British infantry and Commando troops who participated in the October-November Schelde fighting.

Speaking after the hour-long investiture in the barracks theatre of a town in the Canadian Army area, Field-Marshal Montgomery gave the troops some details of the past and present operations as he praised the Canadian Army's part in the Western Front campaign. His operational comments, however, were "off the record."

It was the first investiture for these formations, and the decorations covered the period from the Normandy landing to the end of the fighting to open Antwerp

Awards received include 10 D.S.O.'s, 17 Military Crosses, four Distinguished Conduct Medals, one Bar to the Military Cross, 35 Military Medals, and three British Empire Medals.

They don't represent all the honors won by these formations, because many others who received awards have since become casualties. One sergeant who was to have received the Military Cross was wounded only on Sunday.

Alderman Sullivan Says Goodbye To Colleagues On Council

"In vacating my chair in the council I wish to express my appreciation of the privilege of serving four years in the administration of the city," Alderman Sullivan said in a farewell to his associates last night. "To you Mr. Mayor I wish to extend my thanks for the courtesy you showed me, and to my colleagues I wish to express my warmest feelings in saying that anything I have been able to accomplish is mostly due to the spirit of co-operation by all the members of the council. I wish also to extend my thanks to the city officials and staff for their kindness to me at all times.

I think all will agree that a great task lies before the council in the next few years with such projects as the new city hall, civic hospital and Memorial Community Centre. It will mean a lot of work for the Mayor and members of the Council, and in the general administration of the city and the carrying out of those projects I extend my sincere good wishes for success."

In acknowledging Alderman Sullivan's tribute, Mayor Hamilton said he felt sure all the members of the council hoped that Alderman Sullivan was not giving up the idea of seeking a seat in the Council some time again. "It is too bad you are not going to be with us to help in the work that is to be done. But, such are the 'fortune of war' and most of us experience them. One has to be prepared for them. As Reeve Rork Ferguson of Norwood said at the Warden's dinner the friendships one makes in public life are its chief compensation. So I feel sure that we have all enjoyed your friendship and companionship, that everyone feels sorry you are not going to be here, and that we all hope you are going to be back again."

Alderman Glover said he agreed with Mayor Hamilton's statement that Alderman Sullivan would be missed. "He showed early his business experience, and that it fitted him for the council's work. From my association with Alderman Sullivan in the Council I found him very fair, and I think it is too bad he is not to be with us to carry on some of the work he has undertaken. He was always open-minded, and tried to take a fair stand on all matters."

Alderman Dutton, chairman of the Board of Health, said Alderman Sullivan brought to the affairs of that body a wealth of experience that meant a great deal. He had a single mind so far as the Board was concerned, and was animated by the one desire to promote the health and well-being of the city and its citizens. I wish to express my regret that Alderman Sullivan is not to be with us next year."

"Thank you, gentlemen," was Alderman Sullivan's reply.

Toe Blake Tops Scoring List In N.H. League

MONTREAL, Dec. 19 —(CP)— Montreal's veteran Toe Blake climbed into the leadership among National Hockey League pointgetters during the last week, with today's official figures showing him out ahead of Boston's Bill Cowley by a single point.

Two goals and two assists as Canadiens defeated Boston 8-5 at Montreal Saturday night shot Blake up into a tie with the former leader, and another point Sunday night at New York put him out in front.

Blake's 33 points were made up of 16 goals and 18 assists, while Cowley was right behind with 11 goals and 21 assists. Blake's line-mates, Elmer Lach and Maurice Richard, held down third and fourth places respectively, with 26 points and 25 points. Clint Smith of Chicago slipped to fourth spot with 22, one more than team-mate Bill Mosienko, Gus Bodnar of Toronto and Herbie Cain of Boston.

Canadien's big line dominated the statistics for the week, with Blake leading on points, Lach tied with Cowley among the play-makers, and Richard leading the league in goals. Cowley and Lach each had 21 assists, for a comfortable margin on Blake, who had 18.

Jury Selected In Chaplin Trial

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—(AP). —A jury of seven women and five men was chosen late yesterday to hear the suit in which Joan Berry asks that Charles Chaplin be named the father of her 14-month-old daughter, Carol Ann.

Among the jurors, most of whom are middle-aged, are a retired navy man, the wife of a philatelist, a divorcee, the wife of a postal supervisor, a Beverely Hills property manager, a real estate broker, an interior decorator, the wife of a floo finisher and a retired telegraph company employee.

They were chosen and sworn at the end of the third day of questioning veniremen. Mr. Chaplin's attorney, Charles A. Millikan, repeatedly asked candidates whether they had any reluctance toward accepting testimony by physicians concerning blood tests concerning paternity.

He also inquired whether they would consider an admission by Mr. Chaplin of sexual intimacies prior to December, 1942, as evidence also of such acts in that month, when Miss Berry alleges that conception occurred.

Each side had six peremptory challenges. Miss Berry's lawyer used four and Mr. Chaplin's six.

Following the decision of the Royal Canadian Golf Association to revive the Canadian open in 1945, it was announced yesterday at San Francisco that the U.S. Golf Association would conduct the national open next summer for the first time since 1941, when Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N.Y., won the title at Fort Worth, Tex. Wood himself is quoted as opposing the revival of the competition in wartime on the ground that it would be unfair to many good players now in the armed services.

Ann Curtis, 18, of San Francisco, holder of 18 U.S. swimming records, yesterday was named "Woman Athlete of the Year" in a poll of The Associated Press in which 31 of the 71 participating editors gave her top ranking for the title. Mildred Didrikson Zaharias, who now specializes in golf, was second in the voting; Pauline Betz, tennis, drew third, and Dorothy Germain, golf, came fourth.

Paul Courteau of Providence Reds continued to lead the weekly individual scoring record of the American Hockey League, announced yesterday at New Haven, Conn., with 36 points. Three were tied for runner-up position with 30 points, these being Pete Leswick and Byron Macdonald of Indianapolis Capitals, and Tom Burlington of Cleveland Barons.

Betty Mitchell, junior champion of Manitoba, and Eileen Whalley, senior titleholder, both of Winnipeg, have been invited to compete in the mid-western speed skating championships at Detroit January 1.

Official records of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, issued at Montreal last night, showed Nils Trembley of Quebec Aces holding the lead in individual scoring with 16 points. Second with 13 points were Jack Carthy and Smiley Meronek, both of Montreal Royals who are a-top the team standing.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

The sudden death in Lindsay Sunday of Albert Smoke marks the passing of the most famous graduate of The Examiner's Thanksgiving Day road race, one of the major sports events in the years before the first Great War. Smoke, a native of Curve Lake reserve, arose to the heights as a long distance runner after he had come to the fore as a perennial winner of this paper's annual Lakefield-to-Peterborough race. He was one of two district marathon runners who caught places on Canada's Olympic team, after starting their career in the Examiner's Thanksgiving Day event. The other, also an Indian, was Fred Simpson, then of Hiawatha and now of Alderville who was a member of the Canadian Olympic team at London, Eng., in 1908 and was the first Canadian to finish in the famous contest which saw Dorando, the Italian runner disqualified and the Marathon awarded to J. J. Hayes the American marathoner who had finished second to the Italian. Smoke came to the front after Simpson's running days were over and soon became famous. His easy loping style ate up the distance and he seemed to be tireless. Citizens who remember The Examiner races will recall how the Chemong Indian would finish with a sprint of a block or more then as soon as he crossed the line would run back to the Y.M.C.A., showing not a sign of having galloped 10 miles.

* * * * * *

Smoke won the Examiner event four times and set a record for the Lakefield-to-Peterborough contest that has never been approached when he negotiated the 10 miles in 52.30. Afterward he went out after bigger game and his exploits on the road made his name a household one. He cleaned up the Detroit Marathon, ran second in the famous Boston Marathon, won the Hamilton Herald contest, and was always a prominent competitor in the modified marathons in Toronto. During the later years of his successful career he was under the patronage of the late Arthur Johnston who gave him every chance to make a name for himself. In 1920 Smoke was a candidate for the Canadian Olympic team and made such a good showing in the trials that he was chosen for the Maple Leaf squad and went to Antwerp, Belgium, for the games. Then he had a tough break. While training in Belgium for the Marathon, a careless motorcyclist collided with him and he was injured so badly in the crash that his chances to win points for Canada in the long distance event were ruined. There was a feeling among Canadians that the fleet-footed Indian would have given a good account of himself against the world's best, had it not been for that accident.

* * * * * *

Now It Can Be Told

A little bit of ancient history about Smoke's connection with the Examiner's race comes to mind. The Chemong runner had won the event three times in a row and his chief competitor had been Charlie Thorpe. When the time for the next race came around Smoke announced that he did not intend to enter. Then the Examiner management, regarding the race as a sure thing for Thorpe, with the Indian out of the running, decided that the persistence of Thorpe who had made it a race each year by making Smoke extend himself to win should be suitably rewarded. Accordingly an especially good watch was selected as first prize for the event. Then on the night before Thanksgiving Day along came Smoke with the announcement that he had changed his mind and wanted to enter. There was no reason why he should be denied the privilege and so the Indian lined up with the other competitors at Lakefield for the start the next morning. He breezed home a winner for the fourth time and of course waltzed away with the extra special first prize watch that the management had quite confidently expected to hand over to another competitor.

Peterborough C.V.S. footballers who had to bow to Niagara Collegiate in the Cossa finals this past season will be interested in the following paragraph by Bill Gaynon in the Niagara Falls Review: "Gordon Dorst, who stole a march on other district Cossa coaches the past year by getting his football practices underway in August, is convinced that the early conditioning had considerable to do with the team's success, so he is prepared to leave the barrier at the same time in 1945. His task will be double the next campaign in view of the fact that a junior club will also be operated, but he cannot vision any scarcity of material. Of the 27 men who finished the 1944 schedule, he expects 21 to be ready for the practicing gun next race, and he claims the school has many more to try for senior berths and fill the junior roster. Ken Borisuk, who assisted Gordon this autumn, is counted on to return, and considering the fine job accomplished by this duo the year just concluded, the Epworth seat of learning should be heard from in grid circles a while longer."

Wings Are Lucky

Doug Vaughan, Windsor Star sport columnist, contrasts the luck the Detroit Red Wings have been having in regard to players with the tough breaks the Leafs have been getting—and incidentally Jackie McLean has become a casualty since this item was written. Says Vaughan: "In one respect, at least, the Wings have been fortunate so far this season. They have had mighty few injuries and have never, like the Toronto Leafs, been short of manpower. Carl Liscombe was out for two or three games at the start of the season with a leg injury while the veteran Mud Bruneteau spent several games on the sidelines with a sprained back. But that has been the extent of the club's mishaps and they have always been able to put a full team on the ice for every engagement. In direct contrast has been the fate of the Toronto Leafs. Nothing but double trouble has dogged the strides of Hap Day and his charges since the first two weeks of the season. The Toronto club suffered its first real jolt when it lost the services of the league's best left winger, Sweeney Schriner. Sweeney is still out and won't be back until after the first of the year. But Schriner, although the major, is only one of the all too numerous Toronto casualties. Lorne Carr, Gus Bodnar, Elwyn Morris and Windy O'Neill have all been on the hospital list at various times. With so much tough luck it is a wonder the Leafs have done as well as they have."

Hockey will get a welcome boost in the area east of Peterborough by the formation of a junior B group of six clubs that includes in its membership teams from Hastings and Campbellford. The other four clubs are Stirling, Tweed, Belleville and Trenton. Thus four of the six outfits are from towns who used to be prominent in the old Trent Valley League when that circuit was providing plenty of entertainment and incidentally plenty of betting opportunities for the fans who took their hockey seriously—and when has there been a hockey fan who didn't. This strong junior B loop should prove a most valuable developer of hockey material and furnish a lot of exciting competition before a winner is established. The schedule has not yet been drawn up but opening dates have been arranged with Campbellford opening at Trenton on January 2 and Stirling playing at Hastings and Belleville at Tweed on the following night.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Cincinnati's Heusser Leads National Loop Hurlers

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 19 —(AP)—Ed Heusser, Cincinnati's much-travelled 35-year-old right-handed hurler, who has pitched for 15 teams in 10 different leagues since entering organized baseball in 1929, led National League pitchers in earned-run rating with 2.38, official 1944 averages showed today.

The veteran curve-baller of Bountiful, Utah, gave up 51 earned runs in 193 innings, while winning 13 games and losing 11, to nose out teammate Bucky Walters by two percentage points. Walters, first in 1939 and '40, finished with 2.40, pitching 285 innings and 27 complete games.

Following Heusser and Walters came Mort Cooper, 2.46; Ted Wilkes, 2.64; and Max Lanier, 2.65, all of the champion St. Louis Cards.

Wilks had the best won-and-lost average, 17 victories against five defeats for a percentage of .810 to become the first freshman to lead the league in this department. He also had the longest winning streak, 11 straight, starting July 2 against Brooklyn and ending Sept. 2 against Pittsburg. The streak established a league record for a rookie pitcher.

Four hurlers won more than 20 games, Walters topping the list with 23. Cooper was one behind and Bill Voiselle of the New York Giants and Truett Sewell of Pittsburg each won 21. Cooper hurled the most shutouts, seven, one more than Walters.

Voiselle, the Giants' sensational rookie, was the iron man of the league, hurling the most innings, 313; facing the most batsmen, 1327; and starting the most games, 41. He completed 25 games, three less than Boston's leading Jim Tobin. Voiselle also led the loop in strikeouts, 161.

Hank Wyse of Chicago allowed the most hits, 277, and Philadelphia's Ken Raffensberger lost the most games 20.

Harold Gregg of Brooklyn earned the dubious distinction of hitting the most batters, 9; allowing the most bases on balls, 137; making the most wild pitches, 10; allowing the most runs, 142; and the most earned runs, 142; and the most unearned runs, 120. Gregg also suffered the longest losing streak, 9.

The Canadian Way

The Spirit of Accomplishment

THIS is our citizen of tomorrow... our business man of the future. Unknowingly, he carries on the tradition of individual accomplishment . . . a most vital part of our Canadian way of life... as he leaves your newspaper on your doorstep. In reality, it is more than individual accomplishment. For this Canadian youth, even though he is building his own future, is also building the future of Canada. In this nation where freedom and opportunity are every man's right . . . where every man can rise from the ranks to heights as yet not fully explored... it is our youth who can shape the destiny of the future and guarantee our prosperity.

It is the youth of Canada who will build the factories... invent the machines... plan our economy. It is our youth who can keep the spirit of accomplishment alive. Let's never allow anything to stand in the way of individual accomplishment... for if anything should, Canada cannot survive!

SERVING THE UNITED NATIONS WITH WAR ALCOHOL

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

—By J. R. Scott

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Dec. 19. — (CP).—Just as track and field men look for a four-minute mile some day, somehow, so swimming experts believe that present-day marks will continue to be scaled down year after year to what now seem impossible limits. One coach who is firmly convinced that speed swimming can produce plenty more records is Art Sidwell of the "Y" and University of Manitoba in Winnipeg.

Sidwell in an interview with Les Russell of the Winnipeg Free Press said that competitive swimming should enjoy a boom in popularity after the war. Given plenty of competition, the young swimmers being developed now should start toppling the old records.

Incidentally, "Pop" as he is known, picks Adolph Kiefer, Alan Ford, Bill Smith and Jimmy McLane of the U.S as top swimmers in the world to-day. His choice as the greatest swimmer he ever saw in action is Bob Pirie, Toronto swimmer who held numerous Canadian and Empire titles before entering the R.C.A.F. Pirie was seriously injured overseas, and may never swim again.

Brother acts:

Performance of Eddie and "Mud" Bruneteau of Detroit Red Wings prompted Bill (Niagara Falls Evening Review) Gaynon to glance back over other noted brother and family acts in hockey. Starting at the beginning of the century he listed Alf, Harry and Tom Smith Lester and Frank Patrick, Buck, Bill and Frankie Boucher, Sprague and Odie Cleghorn, Cy and Corbett Denneney, Lionel and Charlie Conacher, followed by Roy, Tiny and Paul Thompson, Busher and Art Jackson, Bill and Bun Cook.

Some of these played on the same team for a time—the Cooks were permanent fixtures with New York Rangers—while others spent most of their N.H.L. careers battling one another.

Here and there:

The New York Rangers' famous line of Frankie Boucher-Bill Cook-Bun Cook would make present-day opponents in the N.H.L. "look like less than that proverbial 30 cents," says Mike (Kingston Whig-Standard) Rodden.....Semi-pro baseball on the West Coast has been hard hit by refusal of the Pacific Coast "AA" loop to continue farming out young players to the clubs. Baseball ivory in semi-pro loops is fair game for any talent hunter and the Coast league teams won't take the chance of losing good players .....Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson still hasn't forgiven Coach Hap Day of Toronto Maple Leafs for his bum steer last spring. Day told Fergie that "play-off" or tight cup play hockey was a thing of the past, then Leafs played just that kind of hockey to hand the Canadiens their only home ice defeat of the past season.

Army Selected Team Of Year

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(AP). —Army's explosive unbeaten and untied football team that rolled up 504 points in gaining the mythical United States' national championship to-day was picked the 1944 team-of-the-year in the annual Associated Press year-end poll.

Breaking a 12-year monopoly by major league baseball teams, the Cadets polled a total of 209 points to finish the year far ahead of the 104 garnered by the second-place world champion St. Louis Cardinals.

The unbeaten and untied football teams of Randolph Field and Ohio State were third and fourth, respectively, with 28 and 23 points. Completing the first five was the St. Louis Browns, whose feat of winning their frist American League pennant earned them 21 points.

Montreal Canadiens, Stanley Cup holders and National Leage titlists last spring, took sixth place with a six point total.

Sparked by Hula-Hipped Glenn Davis, national high scorer with 120 points, and a pile-driving fullback in Felix (Doc) Blanchard, the Cadets snowed under North Carolina, Brown, Pitt, Coast Guard, Academy, Duke, Villanova, Notre Dame, Pennsylvania and Navy for their first perfect season since 1916.

Frankie Parker Number 1 Tennis Player

NEW YORK, Dec. 19 — (AP).—Frankie Parker makes his 12th consecutive appearance in tennis' top 10 to-day, but this time the veteran with the much-discussed forehand is ranked No. 1.

Pauline Betz, red-haired shotmaker from Los Angeles, is No. 1 on the women's list for the third straight year, while Parker, No. 8 in 1943, replaces Lieut. Joe R. Hunt of the United States Navy on the top rung among the men.

The 1944 listings were released Saturday by the United States Lawn Tennis Ranking Committee, but they do not become official until approved by the parent body at the annual meeting here January 20.

Parker, who won the United States singles crown at Forest Hills in September after 15 years of trying, was followed by William Talbert of Indianapolis, Francisco Segura of Ecuador, Lieut. Don McNeill of the United States Navy, Lieut. Seymour Greenberg of the Navy, Aviation Cadet Robert Falkenburg of Hollywood, Jack Jossi of San Francisco, Charles W. Oliver of Perth Amboy, N.J., and Jack McManis and J. Gilbert Hall, both of New York.

Miss Betz, who repeated as the Queen of the Courts in the 1944 nationals, was followed in the ranking by Margaret Osborne of San Francisco, A. Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Cal., Dorothy May Bundy of Santa Monica, Mary Arnold of Los Angeles, Doris Hart of Miami, Mrs. Frank Kovacs of San Francisco, Shirley June Fry of Akron, O., Mrs. Patricia C. Todd of Hidden Valley, Cal., and Dorothy Head of Alameda, Cal.

With both Hunt and Ensign John Kramer of the Coast Guard unranked because of their service duties kept them from competition, the top 10 underwent one of its greatest shakeups although Segura retained third place.

Talbert, fourth a year ago, shot to second off his drive to the finals in the 1944 nationals. He was defeated by Parker's mechanically perfect game in the title round 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3. McNeill returned to the elite group after a two-year absence as a naval attache in Buenos Aires.

Miss Brough, twice runner-up to Miss Betz in the nationals, and also in the rankings of 1942 and 1943 tumbled to third after having failed to reach the final round at Forest Hills, and the No. 2 spot went to Miss Osborne. Miss Betz triumphed 6-3, 8-6, in the match for the crown.

Habitant Trio Specializes In Goal-Getting

By BOB NIELSEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal Canadiens are so generally regarded as keep-'em-out marvels that it's sometimes overlooked that their present high estate, in a large measure, can be credited to a trio that specializes in putting them in—Toe Blake, Elmer Lach and Maurice Richard.

This unit is probably the only present-day N. H. L. unit that would have stood out in pre-war hockey, as one of its members, redoubtable wingman Blake, who has just recaptured the league scoring leadership, actually did.

On Blake's opposite wing is the ever-dangerous comet, Richard, headed for the goal-getting title with 19. Rugged Elmer Lach who pivots this talented pair rates high on the list of all-time centre-ice generals, both offensively and defensively.

The trio packs more than 50 per cent of the champions' scoring wallop, with 39 goals of a team total of 72, and probably controls the play more completely than any other line in the league.

Second in point of goal getting potency, but probably not in all-round effectiveness, are Boston's Herb Cain, Bill Cowley and Bill Jennings who have a total of 35 goals. These men are sharp-shooting opportunists who show little inclination for back-checking.

Chicago Black Hawks' effective unit of Pete Horeck, Clint Smith and Bill Mosienko are third in scoring with 25 goals, two more than Toronto's front line of Sweeney Schriner, Gus Bodnar and Lorne Carr, which has not operated in its entirety since Nov. 18. The Maple Leaf trio probably would be crowding the great Habitant line had it been intact throughout.

St. Mike's Clip Falcons By 9-2 Count

By The Canadian Press.

The Junior O.H.A. game of the year turned out to be almost like any other—for St. Michaels. At Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens last night the students took St. Catharines Falcons in their stride, 9-2, and continued on their unbeaten and untied way with seven scalps hanging to their collective belt.

For the faltering Falcons it was the first setback after six straight successes and the result split the co-operative leadership of the rivals in the league race, sending St. Catharines into second place but still four clear points ahead of Galt and Red Wings.

Falcons' hopes soared when Smellie found the twine for the initial score at 5.9, but Blute equalized three seconds before the close of the opening period and, after that, it was mainly the college boys. The second stanza closed 3-2, then the school staged a splurge of six straight scores as the visitors weakened.

Leading St. Mikes spree was Gravelle with two goals and three assists, while both Johnny Blute and Johnny McCormack were in there for goals and one assist. Turik also made a brace of goals.

T. Smelle made both St. Catharines tallies and Peterson assisted on each of them.

Sudbury Boxer Loses Decision

TORONTO, Dec. 19.—(CP).—Joey Ferrier, of Toronto, punched out a clean-cut decision over Sudbury's Pat Kelly in five rounds last night at Massey Hall here in one of the feature bouts of the card. Ferrier's ringmanship and greater experience enabled him to make every round a winning one. Both weighed 130 pounds.

Kelly tried hard from the start, but Ferrier was too crafty for him and the Sudbury boy was in difficulty several times.

In the semi-final, Frank Pucci of Toronto, was hard pressed to earn a five-round decision over Steve Hagen of Windsor. Hagen looked good for three rounds, but weakened considerably in the last two stanzas.

In preliminaries Mike Zeduk, Guelph, decisioned Jimmy Sicurella, of Hamilton, in three rounds; Manny Sarbora won a three round decision over Albert Whitney of Hamilton; and Red Carroll of Guelph won in three rounds over Jimmy Dumas, of Montreal.

Floating Night Clubs

LONDON, Dec. 19 — (CP). — Britain will send three floating "night clubs" to the Pacific to entertain her troops.

In answer to mounting criticism that soldiers battling the Japanese are being neglected, the Government is fitting out three big liners. Each is equipped with its own brewery, bar, orchestra, and floor show. The ships will brew beer as they sail.

THREE CANADIAN FOOTBALLERS SERVE ON SAME STATION — Three well-known Canadian footballers, all serving at the same RCAF station in Northern Ireland, with flying boat squadrons. Left to Right, they are FO. Art Evans, FO. Bill Stukus, and FO. "Budge" Stevens. Evans and Stukus played on the Toronto Argonauts together and were with the Dominion champs in 1937 and 1938. Stevens played for the Hamilton Tigers from 1938 to 1940. Both Evans and Stukus played for the RCAF Hurricanes in 1942 when they won the Dominion final. The three footballers have been together for a long time. They were in SFTS together and went overseas together.

40-Year-Old Veteran Leads Jockeys

By ALLAN NICKLESON

LONDON, Dec. 19 (CP)—A 40-year-old veteran in an oversized silk cap has become Britain's champion jockey for the 17th time and an Indian potentate who lives in Switzerland amassed a wartime record in stake winnings as England's fifth—and best — wartime racing season ended on an optimistic note that the turf might return to peacetime splendor in 1945.

Gordon Richards, perennial winner of riding honors, had his best wartime season. The little fellow rode 88 winners, compared to 65 when he won the jockey title last year, placed second 51 times and rode 149 third-placers. He was an "also-ran" on 149 mounts.

The fabulously-wealthy Aga Khan, who went to Switzerland from France shortly after war began, won 23 races with a value of $62,900. Of that total Tehran contributed nearly $28,000 and proved himself the best of the season's three-year-olds in winning the classic St. Leger with Richards up, and placing in two other classics, the Derby and the 2,000 Guineas.

The country's leading trainer was suave Frank Butters, who handled the Aga Khan's string and who has been atop the training list many times. The 18 horses he prepared for various owners won 34 races and $80,000.

Butters' best winner, apart from Tehran and Umiddad, was Sir Alfred Butt's 2-year-old Paper Weight, who won his last five races. Umiddad, owned by the Aga Khan and ridden by Richards, took the important Gold Cup.

Lord Roseberry placed second behind the Aga Khan in the owners' list with $45,775 in stakes derived from 13 races won. Of that amount, nearly $43,000 was accumulated by nine horses which he bred and which earned him the title of leading breeder of 1944.

Richards, a triple winner on the season's last day, finished far ahead in seasonal honors. The second-place holder, Bill Nevett, rode 37 winners including the Derby victor, while Michael Beary, in third place, had 34. Richards, however, is not in the services and probably had more opportunity to ride than any other experienced jockey.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 19 (AP)—The way Elmer Layden puts it, there'll never be a serious conflict between pro football and baseball . . . "We're getting along very well," he says. "They have the parks and the ticket staffs; we have the football clubs. Each takes care of one set of headaches." . . . Publicitor Broadway Johnny Cox protests the omission of 16-year-old Bernard Docusen from a recent listing of "new generation" boxers who may hit the top . . . Says Johnny: "He's the greatest fighter developed in New Orleans since Joe Mandot, Tony Canzoneri and Pete Herman."

Help Wanted:

President Jack Mara of the Football Giants ruefully tells of a quip tossed him during the pro play-off Sunday . . . While the customers were witnessing a between-halves entertainment featuring acrobats and jugglers, Jack headed for the clubhouse . . . As he passed the bleachers a fan yelled: "Hey, Mara, you've given us a circus. Now how about a first down.

Cleaning the Cuff:

Lou Nova (maybe with an assist from Jimmy Johnston) is expressing a loud "beef" over Abe Green's reference to him in a magazine article about punch-drunk fighters. Lou says he'll undergo an examination by any doctor Green picks, providing the N.B.A. president takes the same exam, "then we'll see who's punch drunk."

Remove O.A.C. From Politics Says Kennedy

TORONTO, Dec. 19 — (CP) — Col. T. L. Kennedy, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, said today legislation will be introduced at the next session of the legislature to provide for independent administration of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph. The O.A.C. now is administrated by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

"Our idea is to remove the administration of the college from politics," Col. Kennedy said. "It is not the intention to make it a separate university. It will continue as part of the University of Toronto and will be administered by an independent board. The relationship will be the same as for other colleges affiliated with the university."

The O.A.C. has been affiliated with the University of Toronto for about 20 years, the minister recalled.

"But I don't see why it should be administered by my department. Dr. Vivian, Minister of Health, doesn't administer the University of Toronto medical school and the attorney-general doesn't administer the law school at Osgoode Hall."

Col. Kennedy described a report in the Toronto Globe and Mail that the O.A.C. would become a separate university as "conjecture." "I know that has been talked about by some members of the committee" appointed to investigate the college but "that isn't our plan at present."

Pig To The Rescue

ELBERTON, Ga., Dec. 19—(AP).—Herbert Wilcox reports that a chicken hawk swept down the other day to grab a hen that was feeding in a hog pen on the farm of S. C. Anderson. The hen let out a tremendous squawk, and the hog went to her assistance. When the battle was over, the hawk was dead and the hog and the hen continued eating.

CREMATORY IN GERMAN CAMP—Mountain patriots of the French Forces of the Interior are examining the furnace in which the Germans burned their dead slaves in the Vosges Mountain camp, found recently near the village of Natzwiller, France. Villagers said the Nazis kept about 4,000 prisoners here, herded by S.S. guards. Dental forceps were found beside this furnace, indicating that the furnaceman removed gold-filled teeth from the victims before burning them.

Farms To See Great Changes When War Ends

By the Ottawa Staff of The Canadian Press

OTTAWA, Dec. 19 — (CP) — One of the most important events of the labor horizon is a move by the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) to obtain a national agreement covering employees in three General Motors plants in Ontario—Oshawa, St. Catharines and Windsor.

Separate agreements covering these plants are about to come up for review and George Burt of Windsor, Ont., Canadian director of the union, has advanced the proposal that they should be combined in a national agreement.

The union is also seeking union shop provisions which would require all General Motors employees to become members of the union. So far there has been no reaction from the company to these requests. The union bases its claim to a national agreement on the ground that the existing contracts run almost concurrently and are generally similar in terms.

Want Equality.

Reconstruction authorities think that the greatest post-war changes in living comforts will be on the farm. Building experts have indicated that the post-war city house will not be much different from that found in Canada to-day as heating by sunlight and cooking by pressing a button are still far from practical operations.

But down on the farm the changes will be without number. Authorities in all provinces agree that young people who have been in the forces and war industry will not be satisfied with shacks and oil lamps when they return to the farm. They will demand electricity, plumbing, good roads and community centres where they can enjoy the amenities of life on a basis comparable to that of city residents.

Filling these demands, whether the work is done by Dominion, Provincial or Municiapl governments, or by private companies, will give extensive employment. And the provision of adequate employment above all, is the objective of all government bodies after the war.

Toronto Man Given Year Sentence

COBOURG, Dec. 19 — (ENS) — James Devlin of Toronto was sentenced to one year definite and two months indefinite in the reformatory when he appeared before Judge J. C. M. German during the week-end. Devlin had pleaded guilty to the theft of a car owned by Fred Richardson, Cobourg lawyer, from Port Hope on October 24. Mr. Richardson had left his car near his Port Hope office around 2 p.m. and when he came out at 3 p.m. the car was gone.

Bruce Rodden of Toronto, charged jointly with theft of the car, was found not guilty after Lawrence Banks, Toronto, swore that at the time of the theft, Rodden was helping him to move in Toronto. Banks, incidently was a Crown witness. Judge German asked Crown Attorney Harry Deyman if he wanted to proceed with Banks as an adverse witness but Mr. Deyman said that he would let the matter stand as it was. Banks was sentenced some weeks ago to three months in jail on a charge of stealing tires from Fred Richardson's car after it had been taken to Toronto the day of the theft.

Chief William Carson of Port Hope, testified that he saw Rodden and Devlin at Port Hope in a stolen Kington car on October 24 and that after Mr. Richardson's car was reported stolen, the Kingston car was found abandoned in Port Hope. Later he identified Rodden and Devlin when they were in custody in Toronto.

Banks testified that on October 24 in Toronto, Rodden and Devlin drove out to St. Clair avenue with him in his car to where a Ford V-8, Mr. Richardson's car, was parked. Banks told of helping them strip it of its tires. Banks swore that from 2 p.m. that day until 3.30 Rodden was helping him to move.

PLAN RENEWED

Arrangements by suburban Smith for city fire protection will be renewed for 1945 by a motion Monday night by Alderman Sullivan, seconded by Alderman Glover. It was stated there was only one fire this year. A basic service levy is also made as a retainer to the city.

RADIO FOR SOLDIERS

Members of the 4th (R) Battery, Heavy Anti-Aircraft are still looking for a cabinet radio to put in their new recreation room in the Armouries. Even if minor repairs are necessary, Battery soldiers will gladly accept it, and arrange immediate transportation. If there is anyone in Peterborough who might have such a radio in an attic or down the cellar, they are asked to phone 3808. The Battery recreation room will be complete, when somebody helps them find a radio.

GOOSE SITUATION

Jack F. Coulter, of the Cooperative Services, said today to his knowledge there is no shortage of geese, but there is an increased demand. The Co-op, he pointed out, is not receiving any geese because there is a ceiling price in effect, and the producers are going direct to the consumer with the product, in order to receive the retail ceiling price rather than the wholesale one. This could be done through the Farmers' Market, or by door to door sales. The goose situation in Peterborough though seems to be obscure.

HE KILLED HER!

A girl overheard in the Post Office today: "I heard Frank sing 'The Trolley Song,' and sister he slew me!"

LAST CALL

All local mail should be posted today for delivery by Christmas Day. This is the last mail deadline for the Christmas rush.

DEVOTED

One gentleman in a restaurant Monday evening certainly proved his devotion to his favorite song. He inserted a 25 cent piece in the juke-box, and played one selection five times over.

FRACTURES HER WRIST

Falling near the corner of Armour Road and Hunter street, Mary Menogue, 493 Roger street, an employee of the Western Clock Company, sustained a fracture of her right wrist.

THERE ISN'T ANY.

Jack-knives and pen-knives can now be added to that list of articles which have gone for the duration. A recent check found only one jack-knife in this district, and that one was at Shearer's store in Buckhorn. And now it's sold.

SETS AN EXAMPLE

The stirring reception given four Peterborough airmen this morning upon their arrival home from overseas sets an excellent example for other welcoming parties to cheer Peterborough boys as they arrive back to their own home town.

SOLDIER'S FAVORITE

Judging from interviews of many soldiers, sailors, and airmen, who have returned from overseas during the past few months, the Number One popularity food on their "must" list when they arrive in Canada is bacon and eggs. Oranges and ice-cream run a close second.

EXPETED SOON.

Warrant Officer Frederick Francis Bayliss, whose wife lives on Brock street, is now at Lachine, Quebec, after arriving in Canada recently from service wtih the R.C.A.F. in Ceylon. Overseas for three years, he is a former employee of the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company.

HEAVY MAIL

The load of mail handled by the Post Office Monday was one of the largest amounts to date, and accounted for the Post Office's busiest day of the season. Shortly after 11 o'clock this morning, all indications were that today's load will be even greater. Workers throughout the Post office, and particularly in the parcel division, are being handicapped by a general lack of space.

WOULDN'T TALK!

When firemen responded to an alarm at 3:51 Monday afternoon to Box 12, the corner of Lansdowne and George street, all they found was a five-year-old boy, perched on a snow-bank, who wouldn't talk! No matter how much the firefighters coaxed, the little tot refused to say a word. His father came along shortly after and took him home!

MISSING AT SEA—Mrs. David Stewart of Cobourg, whose husband has been serving with the Merchant Marine, has been notified that he is reported missing at sea. He was expected to be home during the Christmas season.

$150 Contributed By Cheerful Workers Group

Cheerfulness can be something of a very contagious nature, the spreading of which in a world filled to almost overflowing with distress through a grievous war, should be a great asset to any community or country.

When to this is added a real practical assistance by such people to others in distress, it takes on further importance which all the more such people, in whatever branch of uplifting endeavor they may be engaged in.

The Cheerful Workers Class at St. James United Church come fully into this category, for they have been the means of spreading much cheerfulness to the people of Britain at each Yuletide season since the local and district British War Victims' Fund first began to operate. Each succeeding Christmastide since that time has seen them make a donation of $100 for this purpose, which this year they have increased to $150 to assist in taking care of the bringing of some cheer at that time, to the larger number of children away from their own homes due to increased devastation caused by the robot bomb.

In this way they very much uphold the tenets of the Christian faith to which they adhere, through the auspices under which they have become associated with each other. There could be no better way to mark this celebration of the advent of the Prince of Peace, than thus doing some good for others in distress.

Another church in the south-end, Park Street Baptist church also is reported today, their contribution of $26.62 through Mrs. J. Benson, the treasurer of their Sunday School, being the result of a White Gift service held on Sunday, which also during the past few years has been made the means of assisting in the Christmas donation.

Instead of the varied offerings suitable for sending out baskets, the children brought money in white envelopes for this purpose, which testifies to their goodwill for those so much less fortunate than themselves.

Legion Exceeds $2,500

The help that the veterans of the last Great War locally have been to this fund all along the line, is probably without parallel in this sphere of endeavor in the whole Dominion. They have been represented in a substantial manner in every one of the 31 donations that the fund has sent over since it first began to operate, which also includes every special Christmas donation.

Today another gift of $79.25 is listed to their credit through G. Gimblett their president, and G. G. Torrance their secretary, which brings their total gifts well over the $2,500 mark.

From the De Laval Social and Athletic Association through G. W. Fitzgerald, president, and Miss Doris McConnell, treasurer, comes a splendid gift of $50 to assist in this good cause even the stationery conveying the good news to the secretary of the fund, breathing the Christmas spirit with its stars and good wishes.

Then the employees of the Fisher Guage Works clubbed together through Don Gifford, and there was evident joy when he handed over $15 in their name, also credited today, while the Parkhill Fellowship Group who are doing a worthwhile welfare work, added another $5 to this day's list.

Four schools are represented today, the lead being taken by the St. David's Nursery School through Mrs. W. Robertson Davies on their behalf, their participation in this community effort for other children so much less fortunately situated than themselves being another evidence of how widespread is the support this Christmas appeal is receiving, when folk as young as these are taking a part.

Others in this group includes Grade 5 at Central School, Grade 7 at King George School, and the Blacksquirrels of the Junior Red Cross of Mount Julian School taught by Mrs. William Church.

Business Houses Take Part

Sharing equally in a total of $100 two business houses give a fine boost to the day's receipts, the first being handed in by Warne's Jewelry Store, to be followed shortly afterwards by Fanning's Launderers and Dry Cleaners.

Last but not least, there are seven purely personal gifts, each of whom may feel that they have an individual part in spreading this good cheer to those in need, among which to some extent could be included the proceeds of the sale of Kaleidescopes donated by the Roy Powell family, a number of which are still available for those who find it difficult to procure otherwise suitable Christmas gifts.

These latter also include one given as a tribute to the carol singing by the choir at the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co. of Canada Ltd., another from the former members of the Get Togther Club, and "In Memoriam, December 19" which bears almost a sacred at-

DEC. 19, 1940—Prime Minister Churchill reviewed the offensive in western Egypt, warning that threat of German invasion of Britain persists. Admiralty issued communique of Mediterranean naval operations against Italy. Risto Ryti elected president of Finland.

RELATIVES AND FRIENDS GREET RETURNING AIRMEN — Below-zero weather couldn't stop a host of friends and relatives from gathering at the CPR station at five o'clock this morning to welcome four Peterborough airmen who arrived here after serving for more than three years overseas. (Top) Overjoyed at the prospects for their first Canadian Christmas in more than three years, the airmen are, from Left to Right, Cpl. Joe Hickey, 306 Simcoe street; Cpl. S. McCormick, 67 St. James street; Cpl. De Salle Scully, 385 Reid street, and Cpl. C. Clark, 51 Maria street. (Lower) Here are a few of the "welcoming committee" of friends and relatives, from Left to Right: Miss Peggy Milloy, Miss Jeanne Girard, Cpl. Scully, Mrs. Cyril Giroux, Cyril Giroux, and Mrs. Therese Girard.

4 Fliers Welcomed Home After 3 Years Overseas

The first airmen back from overseas to reach Peterborough as a group, arrived at 5 o'clock this morning in time for their first Canadian Christmas in more than three years. Alderman William Ovens, representing the City Council, was on hand to give the veterans a warm welcome back to their home town.

Hardly had the big train wheels ceased moving when the four airmen, Cpl. Joe Hickey, Cpl. S. McCormick, Cpl. DeSalle Scully, and Cpl. C. Clark, dashed down the steps to the platform. They were met by a host of friends and relatives waving flags, while tears of joy sparkled in their eyes.

"Being home for Christmas is the best thing a man could wish for, and I can't put into words the way I feel about it", smiled Cpl. Scully, who is the son of Mrs. Cyril Giroux, 385 Reid street. "And what a reception we received at the station this morning; flags, and flash cameras, and all those people who came down including Alderman Ovens, representing the city . . . well, we certainly didn't expect anything like that but it sure was nice."

Fell Off Ladder

Cpl. Scully is a veteran of a great many air raids in England, but has never been hurt by enemy action. However, a ladder caused his downfall when even the Nazis couldn't, and after falling off one while working on an aircraft, he was forced to have several stitches taken. He is home on leave for 30 days. Among those to lay out the welcome mat for him at the station were Miss Jeanne Girard, an aunt, Mrs. T. Girard, his grandmother, and Miss Peggy Milloy, 524 Parnell street, friend. Cpl. Scully enlisted in February, 1941 and went overseas in October of the same year.

"Ever since I landed in Canada I've been eating, and eating, and eating," observed Cpl. Hickey, son of Mrs. Barbara Hickey, 306 Simcoe street. "We could never get oranges and apples and ice cream like we have it in Canada, and it sure is good to have them now."

Cheered Snow

Next to food, Cpl. Hickey is most impressed with the snow in Peterborough. "We heard the news bulletins on the ship about all the snow in Ontario, and believe it or not, all the boys cheered because of it. Another thing I'm glad to see is that the Canadian girls still look as good as they did three years ago. Don't print this, but now I'm glad I'm still single".

Cpl. Hickey, who worked on air tests much of the time overseas, has been to the Shetland Islands, Ireland, Scotland and the Hebrides in the course of his work. Ireland, however, was a favorite spot for leaves, and he visited the city of Dublin many times.

Cpl. Hickey has had several encounters with the German buzz-bombs in Britain, and once, a robot bomb landed only a street away from him as he stood on a railway station platform. Although jarred quite badly, he was not hurt. "I just stood there and held my breath".

Along with his mother, his sister Joan and brother George, met him at the station. As with the rest of the men, Christmas at home is being happily anticipated. "It's like a dream come true."

Overseas for more than three years, Cpl. Stan McCormick is a mechanic with the R.C.A.F. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James McCormick, 67 St. James street, and formerly was employed at the Outboard Marine and C.G.E. A ground crew member, he enlisted in 1941.

Surprise Leave

"When I learned that I was going home, it certainly came as quite a shock", said Cpl. Clark, the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Clark, 51 Maria street.

His plan for the next few days is to stay with the family for a while to talk things over, then go out and visit his friends and relatives, many of whom do not yet know of his arrival home. Overseas, he served with the Coastal Command, and was attached to a North Atlantic patrol for a time. After the war, he hopes to attain a position with T.C.A.

Rockets and buzz-bombs are old acquaintances of this airman, who has had many experiences with them in England. A single German plane can make the ground immediately below quite uncomfortable too, he revealed, telling of a lone German raider that attacked an industrial centre once.

Among those to greet him before dawn at the station were his sister, Mrs. Manse Wilson, 166 Ade-

Bancroft Boy Sentenced On 3 Charges

Mervins Robbins, 17, of Bancroft, was sentenced to jail on three different charges by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K. C., in police court this morning.

For the theft of a bicycle in Wellington, to which he had pleaded guilty Robbins was sentenced to a month's imprisonment.

On a charge of stealing a bicycle here the sentence was two months in the county jail and for the theft of the automobile he was sentenced to the same institution for two months and two weeks, all three sentences to run concurrently.

"Sending you to the reformatory does not seem to have helped much", said Magistrate Langley after looking at the boy's record.

Robbins said, in answer to a question from the magistrate, that he had been released in order to go to work on a farm.

Two other charges against the accused of having stolen articles of clothing here were dismissed, one after the crown's evidence had been heard and the other because Crown Attorney McElderry, K. C., stated that no evidenec would be given.

Ellsworth Scott, up for sentence for stealing a pension cheque, will be sent to Whitby for observation, His Worship intimated when the case was called this morning.

W. C. Grant appearing on behalf of Harvey Greene, Toronto, charged with drunken driving, asked and was granted another adjournment in the case. The hearing was set for December 28.

FO. Sorenson Is Missing

Flying Officer Frank A. Sorenson of the Royal Australian Air Force, and husband of Iris Marion Kerr, daughter of Mrs. Flora H. Kerr of Benson avenue, is missing off the coast of Canada according to word received to-day by The Examiner.

Kerr was erroneously reported last week as killed in an accident at Lachine. The mistake was made in connecting his name with the crash of an R.A.F. Ferry Command plane in the St. Lawrence river, and The Examiner deeply regrets this unfortunate error.

Kerr's plane, a Mosquito bomber, is reported as missing, but as yet no details of the crash are available.

CLINCH YOUR JOBS NOW GIRLS

Incompetent Sure to be Let Out When Boys Come Home From War

GIRLS, you bobby-sockers, you teen-agers, you permanent twenty-niners, stop, look and listen! Do you realize that there are hundreds of thousands of you who are hearing the last call to the dining car and if you don't clinch your reservation now, it is a hundred to one shot that you will never get in to where the pie is being passed around?

For the war, which has given you your big chance, is nearly over and when peace comes, you are going to find the "no admittance" sign on many of the doors which have gaped wide open for you and had "welcome" on the mats. With so many of the men gone to the war, any little cutie could get a job with the salary of an expert, no matter whether she could spell or not, count up to four or read the label on a can of beans.

She didn't have to be reliable and dependable. She could be here today and gone to a picnic tomorrow. She didn't have to manifest the slightest interest in what she was doing. She didn't even have to be polite. When she was telling the girl at the next counter about what a hot time they had at the party last night, she could just shift her gum to the other side of her mouth and say, "Haven't got any," to a customer and go on with her narrative. And get away with it.

Golden Days Will Be Memory

But the golden days of the incompetent are drawing to a close and soon the fat pay envelope for bad service will be nothing but a beautiful memory. For the boys will be marching home—millions of 'em—and every one of them will be headed straight for a job—your job—and he will get it, if you haven't made good on it.

Don't fool yourselves about that, girls. Don't deceive yourselves by think that you can count on woman's immemorial way of solving the bread and butter and clothes problem by marriage. After the war, there will be several million more women in this country than there are men, and added to this husband deficit will be the great number of men who, because of physical disabilities, will be unable to take on the support of families.

Change of Marrying Meal Ticket Slim

So face the fact that your chances of marrying a meal ticket are pretty slim. The odds are that you will have to stand on your own feet and earn your own living and provide yourselves with your own sources of happiness. So quit playing at work. Grapple with it in earnest. Put all the intelligence and energy you possess into making yourselves such experts in it that you can command good salaries and not only enjoy the comforts and luxuries that money buys, but also provide yourself with an occupation that will fill your days with interest. Believe me, daughters, the woman who espouses a career instead of a man doesn't always make a bad bargain.

So I urge you to put in the time between now and the signing of the armistice in trying to fit yourselves for the new world in which you will have to live after the war. Many of you have thrown away the opportunity that the war gave you to get a special training that men, who were experts in their lines, tried to give you. Don't make that mistake a second time. Fit yourselves to be "Our Indispensable Miss Smith."

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday December 20

A MOST propitious time for the consideration of important changes, the consideration and engineering of new deals, contracts, agreements, propositions of major importance in which fresh ideas, plans and resources may find surprising support from those in influential places. Analyze and discuss these with candor and enthusiasm, but without inciting to quarrels or disagreements. Be careful as to legal aspects and entanglements. Also, shun wrangling or reckless conversations in all private retlations.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have an auspicious opening for new agreements, contracts or alliances during the year, largely because of novel, clever, progressive ideas or propositions, in which new resources and capital may be sought from those in influence and power. Seek such with confidence, but analyze and discuss with cool judgment and tact rather than verbal incitements to wrangling or disagreements. Have an eye to legal soundness and safety. As well preserve the same equanimity and graciousness in domestic and affectional contacts, lest there be friction and nervous tension.

A child born on this day will be talented, original, capable of winning cooperation for important ideas from those in high places.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

To-day my talk and recipes will be on salads. As we all know there is nothing more tempting to the appetite, or, so good for the health as a salad, and if well made everyone will like it. A week or two ago, I gave some salad recipes in this column and now I have a few more for you, which, I know if you try them once, you certainly will again and again.

Tomato Jelly Salad

3 cups stewed tomatoes, ¼ cup chopped onion, ½ cup chopped celery, 1 bay leaf, 1 clove, ¼ green pepper pod, 1 teaspoon sugar, salt, 1 tablespoon gelatine, ½ cup cold water, lettuce, mayonnaise. Cook gelatine in cold water, add to boiling tomatoes, strain, and pour into cups about the size of a tomato. Make a nest of small green lettuce leaves for each mold when serving, and place one tablespoon of mayonnaise on top of each tomato as it is turned from the mold. Tomato jelly is often molded in a square pan, and cut in diamond shapes or cubes, when it makes an attractive garnish.

Tomato Surprise Salad

6 tomatoes, cup diced cucumber, ½ cup diced cooked chicken, ¼ cup choopped nuts, ¼ up mayonnaise dressing, lettuce, parsley, cauliflower buds. Select medium-sized smooth tomatoes. Scald, peel and chill. Carefully scoop the inside out of the tomatoes. Remove the seeds from the pulp. Chill all ingredients, and, when ready to serve, mix the chicken, cucumber, tomato pulp and nuts with mayonnaise dressing. Add more salt if needed. Fill the tomatoes. Arrange on lettuce leaves. Garnish with mayonnaise, and decorate each tomato top with parsley and cauliflower buds.

Cooked Salad Dressing

1 egg (1 dessert spoon corn starch, 1 cup sugar, 1 small teaspoon mustard). Mix the three together while dry, add egg and mix well. Put in a saucepan 1 cup vinegar, add the above mixture and boil until as thick as cream. Put in a jar, and when wanted to use, take half, add milk to make thickness of cream. Pour over salad.

As the Christmas season draws nearer day by day, I am going to give a few recipes for small cakes, for there is nothing so handy to have on hand at this particular season of the year, as several different kinds of small cakes, which, when someone calls in the afternoon or evening, can be served with a cup of coffee.

Butter Ginger Cookies

1 egg, ¾ cup butter, 1 cup brown sugar, beat well together, 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon ginger, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon cream of tartar, sift all together, and add to first three ingredients. Drop or roll into a ball, and flatten with a fork. Bake in a quick oven.

Grapefruit Cookies

1 cup brown sugar, ½ cup lard or butter, 2 eggs, ½ cup buttermilk, ½ cup raisins, ¼ cup rolled oats, 1 cup grapefruits, 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon. Drop by teaspoonsful on greased pan, and bake 10 to 12 minutes.

Filled Date Cookies

Cookies: 2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon mace, 2 cups rolled oats, 1 cup light brown sugar, ¾ cup butter, ½ cup milk. Mix butter, sugar, milk and dry ingredients. Roll ⅛ to ¼ inch in thickness, cut in strips 2 x 4 inches. Place 1 teaspoon filler at one end, and lap other end of strip over. Pinch together and place on cookie sheet. Pre-heat oven, bake at 375 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes. Filler: 1 cup sliced dates, 1 cup light brown sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ½ cup water. Cook over a slow fire until paste forms. Set aside to cool, and use ½ to 1 teaspoonful between each cookie.

Sour Cream Cookie

1 cup sugar, ½ cup lard, 1 egg ½ cup sour cream, 2 teaspoons baking powder. Flavor to suit taste. 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon soda, 3½ cups flour. Mix and roll out, and bake in a preheated oven at 400 degrees for 12 minutes.

Christmas Party Enjoyed at Y.W.

The Green Room of the YWCA was gay with evergreens and lighted candles for the annual Christmas dinner of the Business and Professional Women's Club Monday evening. Following the singing of several well-known Christmas carols, Mrs. A. E. DeNure sang two selections, "The Birthday of a King" and "Jesu Bambino."

Receipts from the rummage sale were reported at $63, and it was announced that used clothing for Bundles for Britain is being collected at the Lyda Telford Shop. A donation of $10 was voted to the British War Victims' Fund, and Miss Bessie Ross was appointed as representative to the Health League, with Miss A. Jamieson as alternative.

During the evening, several members mysteriously disappeared, and a jolly Santa and his reindeer appeared, with Santa riding in state behind his prancing steeds, his bag filled with good things to eat. Mrs. R. Paris was at the piano for a sing-song of familiar carols, which brought the evening to a close.

St. Andrew's Has Special Service

Members of St. Andrew's Sunday School held their white gift service Sunday afternoon. Following the singing of several Christmas hymns, the children formed a procession to the platform, depositing their gifts at the foot of a manger scene, arranged and portrayed by several students. Miss Marion Chase read a story, "The Star". Those taking part in the scene were Marion Chase, Mary Bradburn, Ruth Lancaster, Betty Warren and Peter Turner. Dr. E. W. Young was in charge.

At a meeting of the Sunday School teachers, final arrangements were made for the Christmas social and concert, to be held Friday evening. Each class is to be responsible for several items on the program, and Miss M. Rodney was named to arrange them for the concert. About a half-hour of games will be enjoyed following the program.

Sorority Enjoys Yuletide Party

Members of Alpha Theta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phil, enjoyed their Christmas party Monday evening, in the Y. W. C. A. Guest speaker for the occassion was Lieut. Muriel Robertson, who is in Peterborough addressing a great number of women's groups, telling them about the Canadian Women's Army Corps.

She told of her trip across Canada with the C. W. A. C. brass and pipe bands, and described the growth of the C. W. A. C.'s, telling of their work, their life and recreation. Lieut. Robertson explained the vital part the Corps was playing in this war, and outlined the various jobs which a C. W. A. C. could take, to release a man for active duty.

"Everything from driving a truck through cooking, to wireless and decoding, is open to a C. W. A. C." she laughed, "and they all are doing magnificent jobs." She explained that a girl signs for active duty anywhere in Canada or the world, for the duration of the war, and for a period of 12 months thereafter, and that each C. W. A. C. wears a general service badge, except the officers, who are automatically on general service. "We are tremendously proud of the work being done by C. W. A. C.'s in England, France, Holland and Belgium and also a little bit jealous of them," she laughed. She added that no girl was sent overseas until she was 21.

"Canada has total of 45,00 women serving in this war," she continued, "an enviable record, considering our population." She explained that the Women's Division of the R.C.A.F. would soon be almost entirely disbanded, and that she was happy that about 50 per cent. of the W.D.'s were planning to transfer to the Army. However, she went on, there is still an urgent need for 5,000 more recruits for the C.W.A.C. Stressing the marvellous training and experience offered by the corps, Lieut. Robertson urged the members to present the true facts whenever they heard the subject discussed.

Mrs. A. C. McRae, president, introduced the speaker, and Miss Margaret Preston thanked Lieut. Robertson, on behalf of the members, for her address.

Mrs. M. Holt, director of the chapter, took the Invitation to Life, reading again the pledge ritual, and explaining its significance. In the business period, it was announced that the Ritual of Jewels ceremony and the banquet would be held January 10 in the Empress Hotel.

Each member had brought a small gift, a toy, for her secret pal, and after they had been distributed by Mrs. L. Craig, they were packed in a box, to be given to the Y.W.C.A. for their Christmas tree for the children. Amusing contests were conducted by Misses Maralyn Munro and Margaret Preston, and the group enjoyed refreshments served by several of the members, with Mrs. W. Preston, social convener, in charge.

Choral Numbers Feature S.A. Yule Concert

An audience which filled every nook and cranny of the Salvation Army Temple gathered Monday night to enjoy the annual Sunday School Christmas program, arranged by Ronald Routly.

A large, gaily decorated tree, studded with vari-colored lights provided a pleasing program for the opening carol, "As With Gladness Men Of Old." Agnes Rose recited "Christmas" and the primary department, directed by Mrs. S. J. Richardson, numbering about seventy-five children, delighted the audience with their rendition of a number of action choruses and in a second item with the manger scene, in which little Marian Routly, representing an angel, sang "Away In A Manger" and Carol Routly took the part of the mother. The boys' band, under the baton of their newly-appointed leader, Frank Robinson, played a brilliant march, "Heavenward Bound." Miss Marjorie Shadgett's primary class presented a descriptive number, "'Twas the Night Before Christmas."

"A Wondrous Word" was the title of the sweet vocal selection given by the Singing Company, under Mrs. Murray Thomas, while the manger scene was again shown in a different setting by members of the Brownie Pack, who are in charge of Brown Owl Anna Hubel. Following this the Guides serenaded the audience as a kazoo orchestra, being led by "Bandmaster" Mary Masters, and playing a medley of carols. "Follow the Star" was the title of the significant pageant presented by the Corps Cadet Class and led by Mrs. Gordon Kennedy. The chief characters were Miss Barbara Rose as the Spirit of Christmas, Miss Shirley Barringer as the Spirit of Light and Miss Dorothy Carr as the Spirit of Faith. The background of this beeautiful tableau showed the Shepherds of Bethlehem and the three wise men with their gifts for the King.

A novel note was struck by a group of girls in their outdoor clothes singing carols to some little chums who were shut in with "measles." Concluding the program was the singing of bright choruses from the lantern sheet, led by Mr. Routly. And then came the long-awaited Santa Claus and a treat was given every person present.

Munro, Grades seven and eight sang a number of carols in three parts, among them "Good King Wencelas" and "Silent Night."

PRINCE OF WALES

The annual Christmas concert for the children of the school was held Monday evening at Prince of Wales School, at the meeting of the Home and School Association. P. D. Windrem was chairman for the evening, and expressed his thanks to the visiting artists and the students taking part.

The program was opened by a choir made up of pupils from several grades, directed by Miss M. Richardson, singing, "Good King Wenceslas." They also sang the concluding numbers of the evening, "Let us with a Gladsome Mind," and "Silent Night." L. Bird showed several moving pictures, "A Ukrainian Christmas," "Polar Expedition" — showing the hunt for polar bears for zoos, and two comedies.

Victor O'Connor, assisted by Don Williams, presented a series of sleight of hand tricks, and H. Lewis, a ventriloquist, also kept his audience amused with his versatile repertoire. Miss Mignon Mayneard, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. E. Foster, presented two whistling solos, "Alice Blue Gown," and "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling." Tommy Krogh played two cornet solos, "Melody in F" and "Santa Claus is Coming to Town." Mrs. Foster also accompanied him.

Ex-president To Get Life Membership

ROSENEATH, Dec. 19—(ENS).—The Roseneath United Church W.M.S, is presenting Mrs. Lily Turner with a life membership certificate, and the members are presenting her with a life membership pin. Final arrangements for presenting the gifts were made at the regular meeting of the society at the week-end.

They will be forwarded to Mrs. Turner with an accompanying address. Mrs. Turner, now resident in Toronto, was one of the original members of the society at its organization about 25 years ago, and while resident in Roseneath, one of the society's faithful members, having served as president at different times. Since leaving Roseneath she has contributed substantial gifts of money to the group.

Candle-light Service.

The meeting was held in Mrs. C. W. Varcoe's home, having been postponed several days owing to weather conditions. Mrs. A. Halstead, second vice-president, presided.

Features of the devotional exercises were carol singing and candle-lighting service, when candles of friendship were lighted by Mrs. A. J. Campbell for the Jews of Canada, the race into which Christ was born; by Mrs. Varcoe for the French-Canadians, who worship with us in the Catholic, the universal Church of Jesus Christ; by Mrs. W Smith for the newcomers of Catholic faith from Europe who have come to make their home in Canada; by Mrs. A. Nill for the Germans, Scandinavians, and the British settlers who planted the Protestant churches in our land; and by Mrs. R. C. White for all who had come to Canada from Africa and Asia.

During a business session sandwiched between the devotional exercises and program period, items of business included a financial statement showing receipts up to date of $229.67; a report by Mrs. W. Smith, community friendship secretary, revealing 38 calls made on shut-ins, 5 cards sent to patients in hospital, 11 sympathy cards mailed and removal slips issued, in addition to gifts of flowers made personally by Mrs. Smith in the course of sick calls.

More Reports.

Mrs. M. Davey, recording recretary, reported 13 members on the roll, 12 regular meetings held with an average attendance of 13.

The January meeting will be held in Mrs. A. Nill's home, Mrs. C. W. Varcoe will be program convener, and Mrs. A. J. Campbell will conduct the study.

The program in charge of Mrs. Nill was as follows:

Polish carol sung, sung by Mrs. R. C. White; a Christmas story, "The Manger Babe" told by Miss Helen Weir; a vocal duet, "Once in Royal Davids City," by Mrs. Sam Black and Miss Clarice Atkinson. Mrs. Campbell told the story of the origin of "Hymns that Never Die," while Miss Clarice Atkinson accompanied softly on the piano. Mrs. Black sang "I had a little Talk with the Lord."

Displays Crest.

The concluding number was an address by Rev. R. C. White when he told of the establishment of a crest or seal in the United Church organization and demonstrated the crest. The centre is a Greek letter Chi, corresponding to the letter X representing Jesus Christ, Son of God, Saviour. Placed at the top of the letter is a dove, the symbol of Methodism, representing the Holy Spirit At the left of the letter is an open Bible, the official sign of the Congregational body. At the right is the Burning Bush, the symbol of the Presbyterian Church, "Burning, yet not Consumed." To complete the crest, at the bottom of the letter is placed a sign introducing the Hebrew alphabet of the three great languages through which the Bible has come down, "I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end." Around the crest and to complete it is a border, on which is written United Church of Canada and "That they all may be one, as Thou Father art in me and I in Thee, that they also may be one in us."—John 17, 21.

Mr. White conducted the installation of officers and pronounced the benediction.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her daughter Mrs. Black, and a social time was enjoyed.

Hun Offensive Carefully Timed

By E. V. W. JONES
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Dec. 19 (AP)—Observers in this war capital today were in general agreement that the German counter-offensive was timed carefully to have the greatest possible political effects on Allied home fronts as well as being an effort to upset Gen. Eisenhower's offensive plans on the battlefront.

Staged while civil warfare is going on in Greece and the Russian-Polish question is being sharply debated, the Germans may have struck sooner than they originally had planned in order to add a military setback to other current Allied problems.

The Germans also hope, it is believed, that large Allied casualty lists might have a depressing effect on home fronts.

"The German push today, unlike that of 1918, is not an attack but a counter-attack," the Daily Mail said. "Its object is not by itself to win the war but to prolong it to a point at which the Allies may be induced to offer terms. More important still, their object is to create further dissension among the United Nations and to dishearten Allied peoples."

The Daily Herald, observing the Allies are being taught a lesson in the hazards of war, added: "The full defeat of fascism requires a military victory and a positive political strategy."

The Daily Express said the attack may be welcomed insofar that destruction of Germans is more important than loss of territory, providing the territory lost is not big enough to affect Allied plans.

Premier Agrees To Blackout

LONDON, Dec. 19 — (CP). — Prime Minister Churchill, telling the House of Commons "a great battle is proceeding now," to-day maintained the news blackout on the Western Front at the request of Gen. Eisenhower.

The Prime Minister turned down until after the Christmas recess a request for a general war review.

Mr. Churchill's declaration came after one member observed that newspapers were publishing stories from German sources and asked him "to see that the British press had the fullest information from British sources in regard to British prowess."

"The question of a temporary news blackout on the Western Front," said the Prime Minister, "is one for the Supreme Commander to settle on the spot, and we, of course, support him."

Mr. Churchill will speak in the House of Commons to-morrow on welfare conditions in India and the South-east Asia Command, Sir Edward Grigg, Secretary for War, announced to-day.

F.D.R. Returns To White House

By D. HAROLD OLIVER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGHTON, Dec. 19.—(AP). —President Roosevelt returned today from a three weeks' vacation at Warm Springs, Ga.

Among these accompanying the President was Leighton McCarthy, retiring Canadian ambassador to Washington who is also a trustee of the Warm Springs Foundation.

Facing momentous months in the fields of war and Allied diplomacy—plus the beginning of a fourth term and organization of a new Congress—the President came back to the capital sun-tanned and a few pounds heavier. He arrived by special train and went immediately to the White House to start a routine day.

He returned from Georgia via Camp Lejeune, on New River at Jacksonville, N.C., where yesterday he made a two-hour inspection tour of a marine combat reservation. This was his only side trip outside of Georgia during his absence from Washington.

Mr. Roosevelt planned to hold his regular news conference late today, the first since the special one he called Nov. 27, the day he left for Warm Springs, at which he announced the resignation of Cordell Hull as Secretary of State.

33 Jap Ships Sunk By Subs

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—(AP). —Thirty-three more Japanese ships have been accounted for by United States undersea raiders.

A navy communique yesterday reported the new successes of its submarines which are hunting in the far Pacific. The announcement boosts the total of Japanese ships sunk by United States submarines to 907 of which 94 were fighting ships.

In this latest tally (the last announcement was Dec. 4) are 12 combatant ships — a light cruiser, three destroyers, six escort vessels, a mine-weeper and a mine-layer.

The navy never announces details of the place or circumstance under which one of its submarines makes a kill, but the categories mentioned in the communique suggests that enemy convoys furnished most of the targets.

Minister Dies Served Lakefield

AURORA, Dec. 19—For nearly 50 years active in the ministry of the Baptist church, Rev. Walter Lelew Palframan, 79, died Monday at his home. He had been in ill health for two years, and a resident of Aurora since his retirement in 1936.

Mr. Palframan was born in Natal, South Africa, moving to England as a child. Joining the staff of Tid-Bits in Manchester, Eng., he later was associated with the magazine in London, and was sent as a representative to New York. Coming to Canada in 1884, he attended McMaster University, and was ordained a minister in the Baptist church at Barston, Que., in 1889. Among churches to which he ministered were Lakefield, North Bay and Glamis.

Surviving are his widow, M. Lillian Chalmers Palframan; a daughter, Mrs. Walter Burgess, Parry Sound, and a son, Lelew Palframan, Val d'Or, Que.

Hansard Popular Christmas Gift

OTTAWA, Dec. 19 (CP)—Santa Claus will come rollicking down many a chimney this Christmas witih a load of—yes, its true—Hansards.

The Commons debates branch said today, there have been numerous inquiries about the price of Hansard as a gift. Officials said they could not recall any greater demand for the record of Commons discussions than has developed since the special sitting which began on Nov. 22.

Sales of reports of the speeches by Prime Minister Mackenzie King on Nov. 27 and former Defence Minister Ralston on Nov. 29 already are 2,500 above normal. There also has been a heavy demand for the Nov. 22 Hansard containing the exchange of letters between Mr. King and Col. Ralston on the latter's resignation.

LT.-COL. CLIFTON DIES

LONDON.—(CP).—Lt.-Col. Percy Robert Clifton, C.M.G., D.S.O., 72, who in the last war served as assistant director of railways and fought Gallipoli and in Palestine under Allenby, has died suddenly.

A Second Rescue

PORTLAND, Me., Dec. 19—(AP).—For the second time in little more than a year, Joan Connolly, 12, rescued her brothers from a fire in their home last night. Joan snatched six-weeks-old William from his crib, tucked Ronald, three, under one arm and led Robert, six, and Edward J., Jr., five, out of their apartment. Firemen extinguished the blaze. Joan's parents were temporarily absent, as they were December 14, 1943, when Joan rescued her brothers in a blaze that destroyed their former home in South Portland.

YOUR PAIR'S BEST SUIT

WHAT YOU care about, in the selection of a trump suit, is finding the one which is best for your side, not necessarily the one which is best in your own hand. There are occasions on which you can read your partner as having five or more cards in a particular suit, so that you require only three for it to meet the usual requirements of eight held by your side against only five by your opponents.

North, the brilliant Henry C. Meyer of New York's Union League club, made the ideal bid opposite one of the shrewdest partners that could be found in his organization, Edwin C. Moore, chairman of the Card committee. When the doubled bid of the opponents' suit reached him, Mr. Moore of course knew that it betokened a hand on which Mr. Meyer was willing to take full responsibility for the side having enough strength for anything Mr. Moore might have to bid.

The question was what suit to bid. In view of the opponents' emphatic fit in hearts, it was almost a dead certainty Mr. Meyer had no cards of the suit, especially with four of them in the South hand. A lesser player than Mr. Moore would have considered it obvious that 5-Clubs should be bid. But reflection showed him that the game contract in spades, at one level lower, or only 4-Spades, would be a sounder venture. He considered, correctly, that Mr. Meyer almost surely had at least five spades, so that his own three would make that suit a good try.

It took confidence and courage for him to pass the double of 4-Spades and refrain from bidding 5-Clubs then. The obvious heart opening was ruffed in dummy, the diamond Q led to the A, and the diamond 5 returned to the K. The club A was scored, a club given up, and later the spade A won, the contract being made on the head. Of course, if West returned another heart on the third trick—but he didn't.

Medical Corps Battles To Eliminate V.D.

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC FRONT, Dec. 19 — (CP) — A little legion of medical men, giving their attention exclusively to the one subject, are waging a war against syphilis, gonorrhoea, and their lesser kin which they predict, with the proper co-operation from the troops, can beat venereal disease in the Canadian Corps in Italy within three months.

Their attack, mounted first in August near the end of the long summer rest that saw the incidence of V.D. leap to record heights, has moved ahead to "definite results" on the strength of these contributing factors:

1. Appointment of V.D. control officers, one for each division, one for Corps troops, one for 1st Echelon, who, among other things, have trained a group of C.O.'s to lecture throughout the various units on the subject.

2. Use of new methods for treatment, including the rapid arsenotherapy, a nearly purely Canadian method, which can clear up syphilis in 21 days, and penicillin, which with few exceptions has proved itself capable of eliminating gonorrhoea within three days.

3. The work of the V.D. treatment units, one with a general hospital, the other, with its mobile laboratory, a unit in itself. Through these facilities the medical men have been able to make the blood test much more available than before, with the result that within six weeks of October and November 2,500 men from one division came forward to be tested.

Fully aware of the not infrequently sheepish, even furtive outlook of the average man towards the diseases, the medicals have directed their educational and moral offensive at the common sense inherent in some degree in every soldier. For on thing, he has been asked to come forward for a blood test as a volunteer, not under compulsion.

As sound a method as any was put into practice recently in a coastal resort town.

Hundreds of soldiers saw the educational films shown twice daily, terse admonitions of the value of prophylactics, of the dangers of V.D., of the virtue and sense of abstention.

Here, too, they could have their blood tested and from the charts that ranged the walls they could see how their unit compared with other units, how their division compared with other formations, how their corps compared with other corps and armies in their rate of V.D.

V.D. control officers include Majors Ed. Flahiff, Paris, Ont., John Colthart, Rodney, Ont., William Turner and G. E. Duff Wilson, Ayr, Ont. They work with hygiene sections of the R.C.A.M.C.

Huns Withdraw Toward Senio

By WILLIAM BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC, Dec. 15—(Delayed)—(CP Cable.)—The battle for the bridgehead on the west side of the Naviglio Canal — one of the grimmest waged by the Canadian Corps in its difficult advance into the Po Valley on the British 8th Army's right flank—settled down to a pitch of normal close contact fighting after Canadian units stood off 14 armored counter-attacks within two days.

The foothold won across this waterway last Tuesday night by night (Friday night) had been widened to four miles and its depth extended to ⅝ths of a mile.

(A Rome dispatch Saturday said the depth of the bridgehead in the Canadian sector between Faenza and the Adriatic sea was 1 2-3 miles and a Sunday dispatch reported it had been extended further, although the width of the holding was given as only three miles).

Throughout this bridgehead—the Anzio of the Adriatic—the Canadians last night (Friday) experienced the heaviest shell and mortar fire since last May's battles for the Hitler Line, which the Germans sought unsuccessfully to hold after the Gustav Line defending Cassino was breached

A 300-yard gain was carved by an Alberta infantry company under Lieut. E. L. M. McGregor, a western Canadian, while a company of British Columbia Highlanders under Maj. on Duncan of Hamilton, Ont., gained 300 yards and took 22 prisoners.

Other companies under Majors Colin MacDougall of Montreal, P. D. Grofton of Sault Springs Island, B.C., and Sam Potts of Saskatoon, improved their positions.

A Toronto battalion holds the flank between the Naviglio and the Lamone river, which the Canadians crossed a week ago last night. French-speaking and Nova Scotia troops are working their way toward Bagnacavallo.

On the right flank, British Columbia and Ontario units are in contact with the enemy while armored regiments in that area are operating north and south of Highway 16, the Ravenna-Ferrara Road.

The Germans, extending the already considerable use of Nebelwerfer weapons (multiple-barrelled mortars) were reported using a new mobile variety mounted on tanks for the first time in this theatre.

Mrs. Reg. Bell Heads Selwyn War Workers

SELWYN, Dec. 19 — (ENS) — The regular meeting of the war workers was held at the home of Mrs. Clayton Fitzgerald on Wednesday with fourteen present. The annual reports were given by the secretary, treasure and wool convener as follows: In the past year 53 pairs socks, seven scarfs and three sweaters have been knit; 75 quilts tied down and four quilts quilted. There were thirteen meetings held with an average attendance of thirteen. The branch donated $15 to the Salvation Army for ditty bags. The treasurer reported the total expenses for the year $182.66, total income, $147.00, collections $16.27, balance on hand $55.16.

The secretary read a very interesting letter received by Mrs. Harold McIlmoyl from a woman in England who had received one of the quilts made by this group, and in which she expressed both her own and her family's sincere thanks.

The election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Reg. Bell; secretary, Mrs. Howard Sanderson; treasurer, Mrs. George Mathieson; buying committee, Mrs. Gilbert McIlmoyl and Mrs. Clarence Elliott, and wool convener, Mrs. Gordon Fitzgerald.

Five quilts were tied down in the day's work and a pot-luck dinner enjoyed.

The next meeting will be held on Wednesday, January 24th at the home of Mrs. Stuart Sanderson.

Mother Not to Blame for the Children's Colds

Despite all the mother can do the kiddies will run out of doors not properly wrapped up; have on too much clothing; get overheated and cool off too suddenly; get their feet wet; kick off the bed clothes, and do a dozen things the mother cannot help.

Half the battle in treating children's colds is to give them something they will like; something they will take without any fuss, and this the mother will find in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, a remedy used by Canadian mothers, for the past 48 years.

City Council Holds 34 Meetings In Year

Time requirements of citizens who accept elective places in the municipal administration are indicated from the fact of thirty-three meetings of the city council this year not including the final tonight, and 107 committee meetings.

City Clerk Outram mentioned this morning that the committee meetings listed in the 107 did not include hospital and town planning committees and some other subcommittees.

Meetings which he also attended as secretary and clerk were 13 sessions of the Police Commission, 14 of the Board of Health, 12 sittings of the Court of Revision and 15 meetings of the welfare and fuel committee.

World Peace Depends On Freedom Of News

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 19 — (AP) — John S. Knight, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, said on Saturday the society is "taking such an active role in the fight for world freedom of news because its members are convinced that without it, no plan for world peace can possibly succeed."

The publisher said that "if, on the other hand, the peoples of the world can come to know and understand one another through the freedom af international news exchange, many of the causes of war will have been eliminated."

He spoke at a luncheon given by the Miami Herald, one of the four Knight-owned newspapers.

Mr. Knight said the first act of every ambitious dictator is to seize control of the press. "In this way," he said, "he prevents his own people from knowing the truth and through its own subservient news agency, distributes to the rest of the world the kind and type of news that best suits his own aims and ambitions."

Banker Dies

TORONTO, Dec. 19 — (CP) — George Stewart Gardner, 49, assistant manager of the Bank of Montreal here, died of a heart attack at his home yesterday. A native of Scotland, he came to Canada after serving in the first Great War and served in Bank of Montreal branches in Stratford, London, Windsor, Hamilton and Ottawa before coming here in 1938.

CLOSE-UP OF ROADS TO COLOGNE—With Duren besieged by American forces, importance of this vital gate to Cologne can be gathered by a glance at the above map showing the direct highway and rail connections (indicated in shaded area). This short-cut to Cologne as well as the superhighway out of Aachen is now definitely threatened by the U.S. troops, while to the south, the American 1st Army has begun a drive from Hurtgen toward Bonn, another Rhine River strongpoint on the road into Germany.

Allies Unite Burma Armies

KANDY, Dec. 19 — (AP) — North Burma's scattered fronts were united into a single line when the Royal Scots Fusiliers, advancing toward the south, linked up yesterday with British 14th Army elements pushing toward the east in the jungle area west of Indaw on the Myitkyima-Mandalay Railway.

An area containing 2,000 inhabited localities, was freed from the last vestige of Japanese domination by the junction. Pinlebu, important enemy base and communications centre from which the invasion of India was launched last spring, was captured during the operations leading up to the meeting.

Prior to the present link-up the 5th Indian Division striking out from the Imphal Valley, and the 11th East African Division, driving down the Kalewa Valley, had made a junction near Kalemyo, about 145 miles southwest of Indaw.

American infantry and artillery, known as the "Mars Task Force," now are fighting in the north Burma theatre and are closer to Mandalay than any other Allied units.

The force last was reported operating in the vicinity of Tonkwa, 120 miles north of Mandalay and about 100 miles southeast of Indaw.

Institute Reports Balance Of $150.35

WARSAW, Dec. 19 — (ENS) — Fourteen members attended the Women's Institute meeting on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Arthur Payne.

Mrs. Stewart Clysdale presided. It was decided to ask the war committee for a report of work done at each Institute meeting.

The treasurer reported a balance of $150.35 on hand.

Mrs. Gordon Quirk gave a very detailed and interesting report of the Central Ontario Convention, bringing many thoughts and useful suggestions for future programs to her audience.

The topic for January will be "War Work", and afternoon tea will be served. Mrs. Digweed will be the convener.

After the meeting eighteen boxes for boys in the service who are still in Canada, were packed.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Payne and Mrs. Weller.

British 8th Stalls German Push

Senio River Area Battleground In Last 2 Weeks

ROME, Dec. 20—(AP). — Polish and Indian troops of the British 8th Army have cleared out virtually all enemy resistance south of the Senio River, west of the main Bologna-Rimini Highway in Italy, where the Germans have been putting up a stubborn fight for the last two weeks, it was announced to-day.

The communique did not mention action along the Canadian Corps' Naviglio Canal bridgehead, where last night continued enemy counter-attacks were reported.

Strong German resistance held other 8th Army units to limited gains north and north-east of Faenza. Headquarters disclosed last night that a savage enemy counter-attack in that area had forced Allied troops to fall back to the northern edge of the highway city.

The Germans still hold a nine-mile-wide salient between Faenza and Bagnacavalo to the north.

On the Allied 5th Army front in the mountains south of Bologna there were no appreciable changes in position, the communique said.

Heavy bombers of the U.S. 15th Air Force attacked oil refineries yesterday in Germany and rail yards in Germany, Austria and Yugoslavia.

French Canadian Organized Maquis Units

By PAUL AUDET,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

MONTREAL, Dec. 20 — (CP) — Fiction-like adventures which a short time ago were part of his day-to-day life were recalled to-day by Captain Guy D'Artois, young French-speaking officer of the Canadian army, as he told of sudden death, women spies and romance with the French Maquis.

The 28 year-old captain bailed out over France four months before D-Day, landing in the department of Saone and Loire, near Switzerland, to organize and lead the Maquis in a ruthless struggle that was to end with the appearance of the first spear-heads of the French-American 7th army.

There was more than danger for D'Artois. Romance was woven into the picture too, and he returned to Canada without a cratch and with a wife.

Capt. D'Artois, attached to the first Canadian-American Special Service Force, was the only experienced paratrooper of his group when it started training personnel and was assigned to "cheer up" a party of five young women about to make their first parachute jump. He was "making jokes" about his assignment when his attention was attracted to one of the girls as she jumped from the plane.

Both in France.

"I'm going to marry that girl," D'Artois said to himself .... and he did.

The girl was Sonia Butts, 20, of Woking, London suburb, and they were married shortly before both of them parachuted over France.

FourColumns Converge On City Of Kassa

Main Escape Route Severed

Patriot Bands Active

MOSCOW, Dec. 20.—(AP).—Four Red Army columns were converging in heavy attacks today on the city of Kassa, anchor of the entire German defence system in the mountains of Eastern Czechoslovakia.

Advanced forces already were reported within easy artillery range of the old provincial centre.

A communique last night announced fall of the village of Senya, only nine miles to the south. Other Soviet columns were boring in from the southwest, southeast and east. Field dispatches reported steady progress.

On the southwest, the main German highway-rail escape route was cut. Other routes leading through the mountains of Middle Slovakia are reported continually harassed by patriot bands.

The drive for the coveted town was a co-ordinated effort of two powerful Russian forces—Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2nd Ukrainian and Gen. Ivan Petrov's 4th 4th Ukrainian armies.

The drive on Kassa was part of general advances on a front of more than 80 miles north of the southern borders of Slovakia and in Northern Hungary. The border was crossed at many new points.

The strength of the German defence was indicated in enemy casualty figures announced by the Russian command. At Senya alone, the communique said, Red Army troops killed 400 Germans and Hungarians and captured more than 2,000.

The highway and rail escape routes for the Germans were cut as the Russians swung across the border 20 miles southwest of Kassa, capturing the railway station of Turnava and the adjacent highway town of Turna.

Under the impact of the Russian drive Hungarian troops were reputed steadily deserting, although they are mixed in with German units and many of their officers have been replaced by trusted Nazis.

The communique made no mention of the continuing siege of Budapest.

Soldiers, Brides Reach Canada In Large Group

OTTAWA, Dec. 20 — (CP). — Catching their first fleeting glimpse of Canada through rifts in a snowstorm, several hundred more British "war brides" of Canadian servicemen have arrived in the Dominion to establish new homes in their adopted country.

Some were en route to join husbands already in Canada. Many brought young babies with them. A few already were widowed and were to join their husbands' families.

Arriving in the same contingent were small number of servicemen, including R.C.A.F. personnel, a few Army officers and a group of four nursing sisters who had seen service in Italy.

The nursing sisters were Isobel Gervin and Constance Nicholson of Winnipeg, who had served with a Canadian hospital in Rome, and Kathleen Bayley and Gladys Clark of Ottawa, who were attached to a hospital on the Adriatic sector.

A widow among the war brides was Mrs. Lillian Bell, whose husband, Sgt. Alvin Bell of Gilbert Plains, Alta., had been killed in action. "It as hard to lose him so soon," she said, "but at least I'll have our baby in his country."

3-Year-Old Boy.

Mrs. Vera Larson was heading for Saskatoon to join L.-Cpl. Peter Larson, discharged on medical grounds after service in Italy. She had their three-year-old son Robert.

Another wife, with a youngster was Mrs. Thomas Thibodeau, who was hoping her Army sergeant husgand, an instructor at Camp Borden, Ont., would be able to join her at his Moncton, N.B., home. Mrs. Thibodeau, formerly on the staff of the London Express, was accompanied by her two-year-old daughter Ann.

Two Canadian Army brigadiers have arrived for conferences at National Defence Headquarters in Ottawa.

They are Brig. Eric W. Haldenby of Toronto, who took the 48th Highlanders overseas five years ago, and Brig. J. E. Ganong of Toronto, who sailed with the same outfit as a company commander in 1939.

Brig. Haldenby led the 48th into France during the short-lived invasion of that year "and led them out again," he recalled with a grin —and later he was torpedoed while on the way to Italy. The torpedoed ship carried a hospital group, all of the personel of which were saved.

Brig. Haldenby has been commanding a reinforcement group in Italy.

U.S. Tanks And Troops Are Said To Be Holding Firm In Some Sectors Of Front

German Armored Columns Have Advanced More Than 20 Miles Into Belgium; Situation Is Termed "Definitely Better"

By JAMES M. LONG—Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Dec. 20—(AP).—German infantry pushed today behind swift armored columns advancing more than 20 miles into Belgium, but U.S. tanks and troops were holding firm in some sectors of the enemy break-through channel. One front dispatch said the United States 1st Army's situation was officially termed "definitely better" last night, with hardening of the American flanks north and south of the four-pronged German counter - offensive. American tanks and tank destroyers hit in from these sides.

Supreme Headquarters disclosed the Germans had smashed five to 20 miles ahead by Monday noon in four columns driving into Belgium and Luxembourg.

Deeper Into Belgium.

But today the German Wildcat armored columns struck deeper into Belgium, and German infantry was beginning to back up these probing fingers "in some strength," a 1st Army front dispatch said.

This would put the Germans more than 20 miles into that lowland country. The deepest disclosed penetration had been to Stavelot, 20 miles inside Belgium and only 22 from the fortress of Liege.

A middle German column has achieved the greatest advance, dispatches said, hammering beyond the column that reached Stavelot.

Precise details were withheld.

The fast-ranging German mechanized columns were obviously in quest of American supplies, but were reported meeting little success.

One 1st Army officer said the enemy had drained troops from other sectors for this "very bold" move, and that if the counter-offensive were crushed "the war can be won right here."

Americans knocked back numerous enemy counter-attacks on the eastern end of the northern flank, two of them before dawn today, east of Malmedy "in the corridor where infantry first met the main force of the enemy onslaught," said AP War Correspondent William Boni.

A deluge of flying bombs accompanied the German blows.

(The German high command claimed without confirmation that more than 10,000 Americans had been captured so far.)

Troops Are By-Passed

U.S. troops were holding out in some key towns and pockets, by-passed by the main German forces in this wholly fluid warfare.

Supreme Headquarters partly lifted the cloak of secrecy to tell of the five-to-20-mile advances up to Monday noon in the winter counter-offensive.

The Germans were crushing into increasingly dense defences thrown together by the 1st Army.

American anti-aircraft guns halted German tanks near Stavelot yesterday, but elsewhere the armored spearheads moved forward. Stavelot and St. Vith, 11 miles to the southeast, both were in U.S. hands yesterday morning, a dispatch said, with heavy fighting east of St. Vith.

American anti-aircraft gunners claimed more than 200 German planes shot down in three days.

Continued silence on later developments suggested that the front had not yet been stabilized against the ramming columns of German armor and fresh infantry seeking a major break-through.

The partial lifting of the security blackout gave the first official disclosure of the depth and danger of the German recoil offensive mounted with all the power of the enemy's arsenal — rested crack divisions.

Worthless Stock Boon To Canuck Soldier

TORONTO, Dec. 20 — (CP). — Spr. Martin Vancleaf, former gold miner and prospector, returned home this week after more than four years overseas, to learn that the gold mining stock which was worthless when he enlisted now has a market value of nearly $70,000.

The 35-year-old native of Bracebridge and two partners staked a property which now is Wasa Lake Gold Mines in Northern Quebec. He received 50,000 shares in the company as his vendor interest. In recent months the property has become one of the new development sensations in the Northern Quebec gold fields and the stock now is selling at $1.30 a share.

"I can hardly believe it and have to pinch myself—but I always had faith in the property I staked," the sturdy member of the Royal Canadian Engineers said in an interview. "What a Christmas-birthday present." He will be 36 on December 24.

Vancleaf, home on a 30-day Christmas leave, was met here by his wife and their seven-year-old daughter, Doris Jean. They left last night for his parents home in Bracebridge, loaded with presents. Mrs. Vancleaf now lives at MacTier and lived for a time at Kingston.

"I staked the Wasa Lake ground in 1936, just before my daughter was born," he said. "I had worked through the north and was employed at Beattie Gold and Francoeur Gold. I'm sure glad I kept hold of my interest in that wildcat—you know it was once called the wildcat mine."

He hasn't made any plans for after the war. He accepts his fortune calmly and guesses "the north is the place for men, around mining."

Vancleaf enlisted at New Liskeard after he and Mrs. Vancleaf gave up their home at Artnfield, Que. He went overseas with the 2nd Battalion. ## Labor Leader Greenwood Resents Churchill Manner

LONDON, Dec. 20—(CP).—Foreign Secretary Eden, replying for the Government today to Labor-Liberal criticism of its diplomatic policy, told the House of Commons that there was "no question" of Britain's armed intervention in Greece "without consulting our allies." "I do not know what other decision we could have taken but to go into Greece," the Foreign Secretary said after Government policy had been criticized by such members as Arthur Greenwood, leader of the Labor Opposition, Sir Percy Harris, Liberal, and Aneurin Bevan, bitter Labor Party critic of Mr. Churchill

Tories Only.

Mr. Bevan warned that if after the Christmas recess the Greek crisis was not solved and if the Labor Party "does not put a vote of censure on the Government some of us will...have to make clear they are the policies of Tories alone and not of this House."

The Foreign Secretary made it clear that the Government was not withdrawing from its stand that intervention was necessary. Indeed, he said, "we could perhaps have been censured for not having intervened in Athens on behalf of law and order at an earlier date."

Mr. Greenwood had said there was great perturbation among Britons and their allies as to the situation in Greece.

Opening a debate in the House of Commons on British intervention in Greece, he stressed "this is not an occasion for a vote of censure"

V.C. Winner Unemployed

OTTAWA, Dec. 20—(CP)—Canada's eighth Victoria Cross winner—Private Ernest Alvia (Smokey) Smith, 30, a Seaforth Highlander from New Westminster, B.C.—will be home for Christmas and probably will arrive at Dorval, Que., by air today or Thursday, military circles said.

An unemployed day laborer before the war, Smokey won the V.C. for almost single-handedly holding a vital Italian bridgehead against German tanks, self-propelled guns and infantry.

Twice wounded before the action that won him the award, Smokey has been described as "a one-man army" for his gallantry Oct. 21 in a Savio river operation that was vital to the capture of Cesena and the advance to the Ronco River.

Germans Captured 10,000 Prisoners

LONDON, Dec. 20.—(CP).—The German High Command declared to-day that more than 10,000 prisoners had been taken in the German counter-offensive on the Western front and said spearheads still were advancing.

The Berlin communique said 200 American tanks had been destroyed or captured and 124 Allied planes shot down.

"A large part of enemy bases left behind the front were cleaned up," the broadcast bulletin added. "Fighting ensued at many points with single groups of enemy reserves which had been hurriendly drawn up and immediately put into action."

American pressure in the Aachen and Saar areas has decreased, the communique said.

Tokyo Bombed By 3 Superforts

SAIPAN, Marianas, Dec. 20 — (Via Navy Radio)— (AP) —Three Saipan-based Superfortresses bombed Tokyo before dawn today.

They found all of Honshu, the main island of Japan, blacked out in expectation of the return of B29s on nightly flights to report the weather over Japan. Two B29s bombed Nagoya early yesterday, some 12 hours after the second major Superfortress raid on that city.

The crew of the first plane attacking today saw 10 bomb blasts followed by fires covering a large square area.

Anti-aircraft was meagre and two night fighters which came up kept their distance.

Nine minutes later, men in a second plane saw fires in the industrial area.

Allied Patrols Score Gains In Burma

KANDY, Ceylon, Dec. 20 (AP)—Allied patrols advancing down the west Burma coast toward the important Japanese base of Akyab have reached positions more than 21 miles southeast of Maungdaw southeast Asia communique said today.

West African troops have occupied Kandaung, six miles southwest of Buthedaung.

In the northern combat area, American units of the Mars task force engaged in a strong patrol action near Tonkwa, and troops of the 36th British Division occupied Kanbaung, 12 miles south of Indaw.

Free News Urged As Aid To Peace

LONDON, Dec. 20. — (CP).—Pledging the support of his organization for an "honesty in news between nations" program, Christopher Chancellor, general manager of Reuters News Agency, asserted today that a world-wide system of free news agencies would do much to make permanent the coming peace.

Writing in the Christmas issue of World's Press News, Britain's foremost newspaper trade magazine, Mr. Chancellor praised a freedom-in-international-news plan sponsored by Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press.

He named Reuter and the two United States agencies, the Associated Press and the United Press, as the only organizations which could be termed "world news agencies," and said all three "have pledged themselves to work for the establishment of certain standards in the international news business." (The Canadian Press, co-operative of Canada's daily newspapers, distributes the world service of both Reuters and the Associated Press.)

"The three world news agencies," Mr. Chancellor said, "are the most potent factors to-day in keeping the news streams of the world clear. They feed news to the newspapers in every country in the globe.

"A world-wide system of free news agencies — independent, impartial reporting the news of their own countries and the rest of the world with no other motive than to supply the truth—can do much to ensure the permanence of the common peace.

"I am certain that one of the strongest contributory factors to war is the distortion of news, the creation of barriers in international news traffic, the suppression of truth and the feeding of propaganda into the news chahnels of the world. It is hard therefore to exaggerate the responsibility facing the world news agencies in the years lying ahead.

Values Upheld

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 20—(CP).—A blanket appeal against the assessments on about $1,250,000 worth of Canadian National Railways buildings and properties in London was rejected last night by the city court of revision. Values placed by the city assessment department were upheld.

Allied Position Critical On West Front

Battle Centres Around Aachen Area; Allied Troops Show Strength On Flanks

By DeWITT MACKENZIE,
Associated Press War Analyst.

Fighting continues along the 70-mile front of the mighty German counter-offensive which thundered out of the the Rhineland so suddenly. It's a critical moment, but, as this column remarked yesterday, there's no occasion for panic.

Unofficial reports say that the U. S. 1st Army, along whose front the Germans have flung the bulk of their weight, appears to be holding the flanks of the enemy offensive. If that's confirmed it is indeed good news, for its will mean that thus far the Allies have avoided the grave danger of a complete break-through and the turning of Allied flanks.

The greatest threat to the Allied front seems to be in the Aachen sector. Aachen, captured after a blistering siege, is the funnel through which the Allies have been pouring their weight against the Roer river and Duren — anchor of the German line there. Duren is the gateway to the Cologne plain, which in turn gives access to the Rhenish city of Cologne and Germany's great industrial area of the Ruhr.

The Allied drive against Duren has presented the biggest danger to the German defence against invasion. Undoubtedly it was because the enemy High Command foresaw a great Allied offensive into the Cologne plain in the immediate future that the counter-offensive was launched.

Now one of Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's chief objective is to cut the U. S. 1st Army front southeast of Aachen and turn Lt.-Gen. Hodges' flank so that he will have to swing back northward and abandon Aachen. This also would be calculated to give the Germans possession of the Belgian fortified city of Liege—a disaster for the Allies, because this rail and road hub is the main distributional centre for Allied supplies and reinforcements intended for the front from north of Aachen all the way to Luxembourg.

Should the Allies lose Aachen and Liege, the Germans might even have dreams of capturing Antwerp, the great Canadian-won port upon which General Eisenhower is so heavily dependent for all his supplies from overseas.

However, latest reports indicated that Hodges not only was holding along the Aachen sector but was counter-attacking and had even sent patrols into Duren, on the east bank of the Roer. The German advance has been south of there against a comparatively thinly held line.

Lonely Soldiers Discussed

To Get More Beer And Cigarettes

LONDON, Dec. 20 — (CP) — A Christmas present from Prime Minister Churchill today was the promise to men serving in India and Burma that their beer and cigaret rations shortly will be increased—and that they may soon have a chance to meet some women from home.

Discussion of lonely soldiers serving in distant outposts—whom critics of the government have labelled "forgotten men"—was staged in the House of Commons as the prime minister delivered a lengthy report on their welfare.

Mr. Churchill told the House steps were being taken to make life more enjoyable for the men — many of whom have been away from home more than three years.

He paid special tribute to British women who carry on social and entertainment work in the outposts.

"Steps are now being taken to encourage more British women—both those residents in India now and volunteers from home—to undertake this important and valuable contribution to the welfare of the troops," he said.

Facing Severe Hardships

Senator Davies Says British Morale High

OTTAWA, Dec. 20— (CP)— Back in Canada after a month in the United Kingdom, Senator W. Rupert Davies declared Britons still are making "tremendous sacrifices" to help win the war and their spirit is high.

Senator Davies, publisher of the Kingston, Ont., Whig-Standard, and a director of The Canadian Press, returned with Roy H. Thomson of the Thomson dailies. Mr. Thomson is a vice-president of Press News, the radio affiliate of The Canadian Press.

Both newspapermen said the coverage given Canadians on news from Britain and the fighting fronts was "very good." Senator Davies noted also that Canada's conscription issue had been fully covered in the British press and that the British public had shown tremendous interest in the situation.

As for Britain itself, Senator Davies said, the population was undergoing severe hardships. V-bombs were still creating damage, but "the people are not unduly worried."

Mr. Thomson, who travelled to Paris during his stay abroad, found France "very disorganized."

"The black market is rampant," he said. "There is little or no transport, and many other facilities are still lacking."

Political Chiefs Favor News Freedom

OTTAWA, Dec. 20.—(CP).—National leaders of the four major political parties in Canada hold the common view that a world-wide freedom of exchange of news is essential to the well-being of mankind.

In positive terms the four leaders made known their stand in statements to The Canadian Press, released today.

Prime Minister MacKenzie King, leader of the Liberal party, said the matter of protecting news freedom by international compact "is receiving careful attention from the Government," and that "it is also under examination by the other Allied Governments."

John Bracken, leader of the Progressive Conservative party; M. J. Coldwell, leader of the C.C.F. party, and John Blackmore, leader of the New Democracy party, went emphatically on record as in favor of news freedom being written into the peace treaties.

The leaders' statements, solicited in order to ascertain parliamentary opinion on freedom of news, were a sequel to a resolution passed unanimously by the board of directors of The Canadian Press last September.

A Resolution

The resolution said:

"This board expressed its belief in the world-wide right of interchange of news by news-gathering and distributing agencies, whether individual or associate, and in the right of free access to news sources by any newspaper of any country; and that these rights should be protected by international compact."

Prime Minister MacKenzie King, adding a hope for early removal of wartime censorship, said:

"I believe that freedom of exchange of international news is essential for informed opinion on international affairs and that this is indispensable to the maintenance of peace. I hope that the controls of wartime censorship may be removed as soon as they are no longer necessary and trust that in the post-war world no government will attempt to insulate its people against the free flow of news into and from its national boundaries.

"I believe, too, that all who are interested in the freedom of news should give careful consideration to the importance of equal transmission facilities."

Mr. Bracken's statement (300) on "Freedom of the Press," said in part:

"Democratic nations the world over will face a grave and menacing crisis if the peace does not bring with it a guarantee of freedom of the press — an unlimited guarantee written into the peace treaties in language that will not permit of quibble or misinterpretation. There must be every assurance that there will be no international bar to the free dissemination of news . . . had we had a universally free press in the past we might have stood off the tyrants and ideologies that precipitated the present frightful conflict."

C.C.F. In Accord

Mr. Coldwell, in expressing his "hearty accord" with the resolution, said:

"I believe that the people of the world are entitled to factual news of events wherever they occur. This, I believe, The Canadian Press has endeavored to give the Canadian public, and I hope that an international agreement may be reached to ensure the dissemination of correct and unbiased news service on a world-wide scale. Accurate news and free discussion are among the foundations of democracy, which the C.C.F. is anxious not only to maintain but to extend."

Mr. Blackmore, commenting on the CP resolution, said he is "wholly behind any move to ensure the free exchange of news and freedom of the press generally." Such a move "is one of the bulwarks of our freedom."

Publication of the leaders' statements came on the heels of a national broadcast Sunday by Senator W. A. Buchanan, president of The Canadian Press, calling on parliament to declare for a freedom-of-news clause in the peace treaties.

Yesterday in Toronto, Glen Bannerman, president of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, expressed approval of Senator Buchanan's stand.

D'Artois landed in the Soane-Loire department and his wife in the department of Sarthe, just below Britanny. Both helped to organize the French Maquis and met in Paris a few months later. Now Mrs. D'Artois gathered some 3,000 men, most of them miners, and taught them guerilla warfare tactics.

To feed them he made "fake" raids against French farms. The raids were "fake" because the farmers were paid in advance and "smashing windows was just a question of making it look good to the Germans."

D'Artois had his own secret telephone line, "the only one of the kind in France," with telephone men hired by the Germans working for him.

The gestapo tried to get rid of him.

"Once," said D'Artois, "they put a beautiful blond Polish girl after me. But we got the girl and she was shot."

Forty-two women were shot as spies in his sector.

Herman Soldier On 30-Day Leave

BANCROFT, December 20 (ENS)—Pte. Henry Ruttan, of Herman, has arrived home on long service leave for 30 days, during which time he will spend his first Christmas at home in more than four years. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Ruttan.

Pte. Ruttan enlisted with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in January, 1940, and went overseas in May, of the same year. Since then, he has been attached to the infantry forces in Italy.

After his 30 days have been completed, Pte. Rutton expects to go on a six-months' tour of Canadian training centres. A brother, Bazil, served overseas also, but was wounded in 1942, and has since been discharged.

tanks, planes, V-weapons, parachute troops and amphibious vehicles.

Dispatches from the counter-attack line, however, declared Lt.-Gen. Hodges had flung in infantry and armor in attempts to stem the onslaught.

In fluid, confused battle, some infantrymen fought until they were overrun in their foxholes by tanks. German parachute troopers seized one American hospital, but infantry rewon it, freeing the captives.

Up to Monday noon the greatest German penetration was to Stavelot, 22 miles southeast of Liege and 25 southwest of Aachen. Unconfirmed reports in Paris said a precautionary civilian evacuation of Liege had been ordered last night.

One German column struck in force across the border from near Honsfled—27 miles southwest of Aachen—and then split. One unit veered to the vicinity of Butgenbach eight miles northeast of Malmedy. A second jabbed on to Stavlot, five miles southwest of Malmedy and eight miles south of Spa, famous resort town.

The second enemy drive was a pincer thrust on the important road hub of St. Vith, four miles inside Belgium and about 12 miles south of Malmedy.

It cut off some American troops, but up to Monday noon at least they were holding out in tight defence pockets, and St. Vith itself was being barred to the Germans by screening forces.

Elsewhere a fog-shrouded lull continued on the fronts of the 1st Canadian and British 2nd Armies—which make up the 21st Army group.

Some enemy movements were sighted across the Roer river from the U.S. 9th Army front.

A 9th Army dispatch said German prisoners were extremely confident about the offensive beating into the U.S. 1st Army lines. Buoyed by propaganda, some said this was but the beginning, and that Antwerp would fall in a few days.

Evidence continued to accumulate that Field-Marshal Von Rundstedt had not launched this push merely to gain time or to upset plans for an Allied offensive, but had begun an all-out effort to crack the Western Front.

The continued unstinted use of German planes in spite of costly losses, the concentration of armor and motor transport and the appearance in the line of certain crack German elements known to have been in reserve for a "last ditch" defence of the Fatherland seemed to indicate Von Rundstedt's purpose.

One front dispatch said the main German effort had been fairly well channelized and contained on its flanks but that elements of crack German divisions still were probing into Belgium.

Twin Penetration.

Another dispatch from Belgium said the Germans appeared to be unable to widen materially the base of their twin penetration triangles, but the points of those triangles were pushing deeper into Belgium.

Build Hockey Rink On Confederation Square

Alderman Curtis was given a free hand by the council Monday night in laying out a hockey rink in Confederation Square.

"You've done a lot of good things," said Alderman Glover, "and we are unanimous for you to keep on."

The chairman of parks estimated the cost at $250. It is intended as a central rink for junior hockey games. Alderman Curtis said there are practice rinks at the Ashburnham Bowl, King Edward Park and Donegal street, and with the co-operation of the Hockey Club an additional rink will be prepared in front of the Collegiate Institute. The Board of Education does not object, and everyone else is in favor of it.

Lakefield White Gift Service Brings $105 To Christmas Fund

The record of early biblical days show that gifts were placed upon the altar of God, both the act and sacrifice having a real place in the worship of those days. This custom still survives, although the form may vary from that of olden times, but in effect the motive remains the same.

One of the forms which emulate this same custom is now known as a white gift service, both the symbolism it displays and the good it does in a material way, having a great teaching for the young as well as people of more riper years.

Having a minister who excells in the telling of the Christmas story, the United Church at Lakefield has also excelled in the assistance given the past few years to the Christmas Cheer Fund for British children, through the local and district fund raised for that purpose.

Each year this has reached the three figure mark, this year being no exception, for today the fine sum of $105 is credited in their name, from their white gift service held last Sunday, which will do much good in giving cheer to the boys and girls in Britain who have lost their homes.

Gives Twice For Christmas

When the first appeal went forth for this year's special donation for Christmas, the employees of the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Ltd. were the first to respond from two funds operating within the plant which together amounted to $150.

This has now been augmented by a further gift of $50 for the same purpose, giving them a larger part in the good that the fund as a whole will do for those in need in Britain.

Three fraternal groups are also represented in today's gifts for a total of $70.60, one of them coming from far away Moncton in the province of New Brunswick, at the inspiration of a local citizen, to whom a tribute would naturally follow from their act.

Some ten personal gifts are also recorded, a number of whom have on many occasions supported the fund, the whole displaying a personal interest in the fund obtaining its objective in the humanitarian work it seeks to carry on.

The war workers' group of the Trent River Women's Institute are also numbered among those who have supported the Christmas Cheer Fund in former years, besides assisting at other times, they too taking a hand in this year's donation, with a nice gift of $25, through Mrs. Harry Mann, of Trent River.

C. G. E. Total $686.

Some 19 different departments in the Canadian General Electric Co., Ltd., plant are represented in today's list for a total of $152.51, which now gives the employees of this one plant a total credit of $686.84 in this special donation for Christmas.

Prominant among these may be noted the Induction Motors with F. C. Huppe as foreman, the Structural Steel as foreman, the Induction Motor Winding with L. Millard as foreman, the Machine Repair with D. Menzies, sr., as foreman, and the Industrial Control headed by P. Killingbeck as foreman.

This later group of workers have turned in a notable job all through this year, this marking their 12th contribution in that period to give them a total of $298.08 for that time.

The fund now needs the sum of $918.00 to complete its objective, with very little time remaining before it must be cabled over to the Lord Mayor with its message of good cheer.

and said there is no challenge to the government.

"I must say this and I say it far more in sorrow than in anger with a full sense of responsibility, the Prime Minister has not handled this situation in the way it should have been handled," he said.

Only a week ago Mr. Greenwood had cautioned the Labor Party Conference against adopting any resolutions that would be considered "chastisement" of Prime Minister Churchill in order not to embarrass the position of Labor members in the government.

Mr. Greenwood called the situation in Greece a "test case."

"If the Prime Minister had been a little more responsive and generous in the words he used there need have been no occasion for a special debate today," said Mr. Greenwood, referring to the Dec. 8 debate in which the government was sustained on a vote of confidence after a long speech by Mr. Churchill.

Waving a Stick

"The Prime Minister really should not have come down as a schoolmaster prior to the Christmas holidays waving his birch in front of him."

Mr. Greenwood conceded that Britain went into Greece "with a perfectly good motive" and that the government now has "got to see it through."

He warned, however, that Britain would "lose her good name in Europe if she went into each liberated nation as a sort of Gestapo."

The Labor spokesman accused the Prime Minister of tending to "divide people into sheep and goats—trying to convey the impression . . . that everyone who was an E.A.M. (member of the Greek Natonal Liberation Front) was a gangster."

It was "generally agreed," Said Mr. Greenwood, that the vast majority of the Greek people were in favor of a Regency and he called it "unfortunate that the King of Greece should have expressed great reluctance against establishing one."

"I am prepared to forget the Darlans and Badoglios," Mr. Greenwood said, "but I am not prepared to forget Greece because we have taken this responsibility on ourselves for purely humanitarian reasons.

"I beg the government in the interests of Greece, in the interest of the future and in those of the honor of our people in the eyes of the world to get rid of the shooting"

Pressed as to whether there was "no complete co-operation and accord" among Britain, the United States and Russia on British policy in Greece, Mr. Churchill replied:

"The burden of attending to troubles in Greece has fallen upon Great Britain and we have not so far been able to discharge this task without criticism, even here at home, which has added to our difficulties.

"The three great powers are in entire agreement upon the general aims which bind our alliance and we have every need to keep in the closest association in this dangerous and momentous phase of the war."

Before Mr. Churchill took the floor Foreign Secretary Eden reviewed the requirements Lt.-Gen. R. M. Scobie, commander of British forces in Greece, had laid down to the E.L.A.S. forces to evacuate the province of Attica, to order all members in Athens and Piraeus to cease resistance, and to hand in their arms.

Discussion of foreign policy was suspended while Mr. Churchill delivered a lengthy report on the welfare of British troops in India and Burma.

Investigations Increase Work Of Aid Officers

Continued requests for investigations to be made for the Department of National Defence, the R. C. A. F., and Selective Service, and increasing requests for special enquiries for the Dependents Board of Trustees, in addition to the regular case load, were reported by Miss Rachael Young in her superintendent's review, presented to the Board of the Children's Aid Society Tuesday afternoon.

Miss Young said that the society was being used increasingly as a central bureau, having the advantage of preventing supplication of effort and service. She felt that these requests showed that there was a definite recognition of the place of Children's Aid societies in their communities, since others were also making these investigations. However, she advocated the working out of some type of policy with the organizations who use this service.

Child Placements.

Among the problems presented during November were mental illness, children without supervision, inadequate housing accommodation non-support, drinking, incompatibility, investigation for other societies, juvenile delinquency unmarried parents' work and adoptions, and a total of sixty-seven cases were referred to the Society during the month. Office interviews totalled 143, while visits totalled 397. Miss Young mentioned again the difficulty in preventing placements of children where they did not suit the home, and the home did not suit them. Four children came to the attention of the Society with regard to adoption, and one adoption was completed. A ward of another society returned to his own county, and three children staying at the shelter while a parent was ill have been returned to their home. She also mentioned the difficulty of finding foster homes for children under their care.

Concluding her report, Miss Young expressed the Society's thanks to interested persons who were helping to make Christmas possible for the children. She said that two parties had already been enjoyed, and that they were eagerly looking forward to their Christmas tree. She urged all board members to attend if possible, since their presence meant a great deal to the children. On behalf of the staff, she expressed appreciation for the support and guidance of the Board, and extended to all sincere season's greetings.

Mend 120 Articles.

Barrie, Mrs. J. S. Fanning, Mrs. C. Wooll, Mrs. G. Sproul, Mrs. B. Ross and Mrs. Marshall. Since establishing the collection committee, 22 calls have been made at homes for clothing.

Four children were in the shelter on the first of December. She also spoke of the Christmas party to be held to-night at the shelter, and urged everyone to attend. Mrs. K. Lech is in charge of the program, and Santa Claus will pay a visit.

Miss A. McCabe, a field supervisor of Children's Aid Societies for Ontario, who was in Peterough on Tuesday, told of her pleasure at seeing such an excellent attendance of Board members, especially in the Christmas week. She also echoed Miss Young's opinion on the need for a policy with regard to investigations, and mentioned the housing problem, which is acute everywhere.

By a unanimous vote, the Board decided to ask A. W. Archibald to continue his excellent work as a member of the Board.

Reeve Johnston Chairman Of New Council

Reeve Melville H. Johnston of North Monaghan was appointed chairman of the Peterborough County Agricultural Council at its organization meeting Tuesday afternoon.

The Vice-chairman is Col. F. E. Birdsall, and the executive members are Lorne Reynolds, Chas. E. Moore and John Kitney. The other members of the council are George Elliott of Norwood, Elmer Milburn, Alex Huston, Jerry Mahoney, and Harvard White with Frank C. Paterson as secretary-treasurer.

The County Agricultural Council was inspired by the provincial Minister of Agriculture, the Hon. T. L. Kennedy, partly as a means of obtaining from the farmers of Ontario suggestions and other forms of cooperation for the welfare of Ontario agriculture as a whole. Many of the counties are already organized, following a general plan of commodity representation. All the members except one responded to the inaugural meeting, and car trouble caused his absence.

The first session brought forth from the members reviews of their special interests in relation to the whole industry of agriculture, with ideas indicating some of the affairs which the council may take up in the near future. A course of meetings has been proposed for the winter months, and it may be that the council may arrange to meet every two or three weeks. It has the government's support to a certain extent, and for that reason is expected to contribute helpful proposals and even projects for the consideration of the Department.

County Nominations Friday Afternoon

Municipal nominations throughout the county will be held Friday from 1 to 2 p.m., excepting North Monaghan, which will retain their evening meeting at 7.30 o'clock in May's School.

The Smith ratepayers meet in the county council chamber at the Court House. Elections are on New Year's Day.

Suburban residents of Monaghan have already voted in the city's elections, and as a result of annexation the township regains most of its rural complexion.

Christmas Program Presented

FRASERVILLE, Dec. 20—(ENS)—The Orange Hall at Fraserville was well filled for the annual Christmas concert in spite of the bad roads and stormy night. The greater part of the program was put on by the Cairo School pupils, trained by their teacher Miss Wilda Harker.

William Potter of Peterborough, their music teacher, was present, and led the children in singing and accompanied them on the piano. Willard Waterman asted as chairman in place of the Sunday School superintendent, Ray Findlay, who was unable to be present.

The program was as follows:

Address of welcome by Neil Whitfield; chorus by the school, "Deck the Hall"; greeting card drill by 9 pupils; chorus by the school, "As Joseph Went a'Walking"; recitation by Lloyd Sweeting; chorus by the school, "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night"; recitations by Mary Waterman, Herbie Hewitt, Irene McIlroy, Glenn Kellar, and Lloyd Moncrief; motion drill by 9 girls dressed in white; dialogue by Miss Lorraine Pue and Miss Margaret Waterman; folk dance by the pupils of Cairo School; piano solo by Earl Lackey; monologue by Audrey Ferguson; play, "The Christmas Wish" by pupils of the Cairo School; play put on by pupils of the South School; chorus by the school, "The Santa Claus Express," followed by the closing recitation by Glen Bothwell.

A vote of thanks was offered to Mr. Potter and Miss Harker

Santa Claus then arrived and distributed the gifts from the well-laden Christmas tree, and the treat from the Sunday School was given to all the children.

Trent River W.I. Hears Report Of Convention

TRENT RIVER, Dec. 20 (ENS)—The Christmas spirit was emphasized at the December meeting of the Women's Institute held at the War Workers' rooms, for which Mrs. George Brooks was hostess. Thirty-four members and guests were present, and in the absence of the president, Mrs. T. Wight, vice-president, took the chair.

The war prayer was read by Mrs. G. Brooks, and the motto "Scatter gladness, joy and mirth, all along the ways of earth," was taken by Mrs. J. Tedford.

Communications and bills included three Christmas cards and six letters from boys serving overseas in appreciation of Christmas parcels and cigarettes received. The sent to the sick and $25 was voted to the Christmas cheer fund for British children to be sent to the British War Victims' Fund in Peterborough.

It was decided to postpone the card party scheduled for December 22 and hold it the following week December 29, owing to the various Christmas entertainments in the vicinity. Mrs. F. Ruttan and Mrs. R. Colby will be hostesses for the card party.

Convention Report

Mrs. Ray Scott, delegate to the Toronto convention in November, gave a splendid report. She said that the 43rd convention of the Women's Institute opened with Mrs. J. Houcke, Brampton, as chairman, and Mrs. J. McCullock, Brampton, as secretary-treasurer.

Alderman Bogart, Toronto, substituting for Mayor Conboy, gave the welcoming address and others on the platform were Miss Clark, superintendent, and Dr. Charlotte Whitton of Renfrew. Dr. Whitton discussed "Are Women Responsible Citizens." She seemed doubtful that they were, since they were allowing Parliaments or Legislatives to become general bodies, passing this and that, and leaving the rest to civil servants.

Must Learn Background

No matter how driven or tired women must leave time to understand, know why and in what way these things of government are being done. Active participation of women in all levels of government from the municipal council up, is essential to good citizenship. She mentioned, on the Home Nursing and First Aid Board, there is not one woman, and women are drastically needed on the "Peace Conference Table" and women should be more enthusiastic over the big things in life. If they do not make this effort, they will have a much worse mess to clean up in the household of the Dominion.

Mrs. Reesor, Scarboro, Citizenship convener reported from 12 out of 15 districts. She recommended religious training the home, along with good citizenship. She said parents were already becoming more familiar with what is being taught in the schools and are studying civic and social matters. Her idea was—there should be one woman on every school board. The teachers should be entertained more, often by the parents, and Hallowe'en parties should be encouraged, providing amusement for the children, and practical peace for the rest of the citizens.

Miss Parsons, educational secretary of the Consumers' Branch of the Prices and Trade Board, spoke on the different methods of keeping prices under control, to avoid inflation, and Miss Clark, superintendent of Women's Institute of Ontario, emphasized co-operation, which she deemed a new word learned especially from the war, where it has been so important, and should be used more extensively in Institute work. Mrs. George Weller of Warsaw gave the report on war activities, making special mention of Trent River Branch, which had raised nearly $500 in quilts and in quilting. She stated that $2,225 more than last year had been raised. In all, the Institutes of the convention area reported $10,523.30 spent on war work. She reminded them of national morale and the maintaining of happy family life, and in talking of war only with the foundation of peace, respecting all nationalities, and seeing that the poorer families have a better chance.

Tells of Nurseries.

Miss Eleanor Hamilton gave a splendid talk on British day-nurseries, where she had spent the last two years in service. One thousand dollars of Miss Hamilton's expenses had been paid by the Women's Institutes and Miss Clark referred to her as "our investment," she said.

Mrs. Allan Colerick of the Farm Service Force Committee of the Y.W.C.A. told of 24 camps for farm girls, while Miss Florence Eadie sponsored the demonstrations of the Junior Institutes. Other speakers were Col. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, and Rev. Dr Stanley Russell of Deer Park United Church in Toronto.

H. R. Beattie, newly appointed child guidance director of the Board of Education, explained how necessary it was to have a program of child guidance, whereby children would be helped to make their own decisions as to the place they were to fill in future years.

Dr. Vivian, Ontario Minister of Health, advised the most important thing in this country is the health of the people, and asked the aid of the Womens Institute to help stamp out the growing menace of venereal disease.

Mrs. G. McPhatter, Kemble, reported on Home Economics, stating that 12 districts out of 15 sent reports, the three delinquents being Dufferin, South Grey, and Peterborough. The program convener Mrs. George Brooks, had charge of community singing, and a draw which was won by Mrs. Douglas Liberty.

The roll-call was left to the end of the program and as the annual exchange of Christmas gifts. A

CSM Ken Goody Back From Italy

COBOURG, Dec. 20.—(ENS). — First Cobourg boy to secure the 30-day leave which has been granted to a selected number of long-service Canadians, C.S.M. Kenneth Goody, son of Mrs. Ethel Goody of Cobourg, has arrived home.

C.S.M. Goody enlisted with the R.C.A.S.C. in the first month of the war, September, 1939, and went overseas the same year. He was in France in 1940 when Paris fell, but was returned to England. Going to Africa in June, 1943, he took part in the invasion of Sicily in July of that year, and went on into Italy, where he has been ever since with the British Eighth Army.

Well known for his athletic ability, as were his brothers, C.S.M. Goody played hockey on several outstanding Canadian army teams overseas. He was married while in England.

Cobourg and district boasts a great number of long-service men but the necessity for maintaining front line units at war strength made it possible for only a few hundred of the thousands of Canadian troops to be allowed home for Christmas.

Legal Costs $1,850 For Annexation

When the city and North Monaghan councils equate their respective accounts for legal services in accomplishing annexation on January 1, Mayor Hamilton and his company of aldermen are likely to encounter a sharp surprise if they think that phase of the settlement is going to lean against the township.

That expectation was plainly manifest in the opinion of Alderman Ovens that the township appeared to be liable for "50 per cent of the legal bill from John R. Corkery," and likewise in the approving estimate of the other members of the council at the broad humor of Alderman Curtis saying the 'horse-traders could fix things in the final settlement."

Mr. Corkery's bill was for some $637.74, and it transpires from a rural source that the township received and presumably paid an account from F. D. Kerr, K.C., for $1,200. And Monaghan contention is reported as computing and expecting the city to assume a substantial part of the latter item.

If it becomes a fifty-fifty deal all around in reaching agreement on the legal costs it would seem that the city will have to write a cheque to the county or otherwise concede a credit for the ultimate horse-trading sessions.

4th Battery Veteran Dies In Christie St.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon of Percy Golds, 249 London street, who passed away Saturday in Christie Street Hospital in Toronto, at the age of 65 years.

Mr. Golds was one of Peterborough's best-known veterans of the First World War, and one of the few remaining original members of the 4th Battery, Canadian Field Artillery. He enlisted in 1914, shortly after the outbreak of hostilities in Europe.

He was born in Yorkshire, England, and came to Peterborough from England 34 years ago. For some time, Mr. Golds was engaged in the roofing business, and he took an active interest in the work and activities of the Canadian Legion, where he was a prominent member of Peterborough Branch 52, for many years. At the graveside services in Little Lake Cemetery, where interment took place, red poppies sprinkled on his grave by Legion members marked the final salute to a hard-working and valued member of Branch 52. He was a member of St. John's Anglican Church when in Peterborough.

Mr. Golds leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing wife, who was formerly Ada Newton, a brother, Arthur Golds, in Essex, England, and a sister, Emma Golds, also in Essex.

The funeral was held from the Funeral Home of A. Comstock and Sons, 305 Water street. Canon W. P. Robertson of St. John's Anglican Church conducted the service.

Mission Band Hears Talk On Japanese

ROSENEATH, Dec. 20.—(ENS).—A special feature of the regular meeting of Roseneath Mission Band was a talk delivered by Mrs. Warren Atkinson on customs and habits of Japan, encountered during her years of service there as a missionary. She also showed curios from that country.

The president, Donna Pringle, presided. During the opening exercises Barbara Skuce, Frieda Broadworth, George Linton and Grant Waldie recited in unison the scripture story, "Peace Be Still."

The program, in addition to Mrs. Atkinson's address, included numbers as follows: Recitations by Gerald Adams and Mary Skuce; a reading, "Stone Soup," by George Linton; and a song, "Let's Pretend," sung by Frieda Broadworth and Phyllis O'Connel.

WEDNESDAY DECEMBER 20, 1944

Horrors And The CBC

The CBC is urging privately-owned radio stations not to renew contracts for 'horror programs'. The House of Commons Radio Committee does not like them, and it does not like soap operas or patent medicine programs, which it describes as being in 'bad taste'. Dr. Augustin Frigon, the general manager of the CBC, has made the wishes of the Committee known, and has said that the corporation prefers to use persuasion to ensure that these programs are dropped, rather than the arbitrary power which it possesses. But it is clear that the CBC will use its arbitrary power if it does not get its way.

This is interesting, and several papers have discussed it already. Some of them make the very sensible remark that people who do not want to listen to horror programs can tune in to something else; others have said that the public is arbiter in such matters, and that if the public wants horrors, the CBC has no right to deny them their fun. One paper points out that horror is an ingredient of some of the greatest drama, and that to insist that radio programs be free of horror is to ban several great dramatic works from the air. This seems to us to be an important point.

After all, who says that horror is bad for us? To be thrilled is one of the pleasantest of human emotions, and it may be experienced on a variety of artistic levels. We may be thrilled when Othello strangles Desdemona, or when Oedipus puts out his own eyes, or we may be thrilled as Pearl White is borne powerless toward a whirling buzz-saw; the thrill is much the same but the artistic level is different. If the CBC insisted that the artistic level of radio programs in Canada should be raised we would know what it was talking about, and we should advise it to begin at once on its own programs.

But neither the CBC nor the House of Commons Radio Committee is much interested in art. Indeed, we cannot recollect offhand any member of the House Committee who has any qualification to discuss the artistic side of radio in an informed manner. The House Committee, like all committees when they find themselves short of artistic qualifications, is trying to make up for that crippling lack by moral grandeur, and has picked on horror programs and soap operas as convenient subjects for a repressive measure. We advise the Committee to get off its high horse, and recruit a few members who know something about the arts as they apply to radio.

It is neither possible nor desirable that the radio should attempt to raise the level of public taste in Canada. But it is possible and desirable that the CBC, which is a national organization, should give more attention to the body of listeners who like the better sort of radio programs. The private stations perform for the benefit of the majority, and the quality of their programs never rises very high, in consequence; the CBC might pay some attention to the highly intelligent and cultivated minority which looks to it in vain for attractive radio fare. But the CBC and the House Committee on Radio appear to be artistically impotent, and therefore they can do nothing but scold their competitors and make fussy rules. Artistic sterility, and not horrors and soap operas, causes the dissatisfaction.

A Ridiculous Story

A ridiculous story was published recently in the Oswego Times, a weekly paper printed at Oswego in New York State. It tells of a couple from Waverly—which appears to be a small place near Oswego—who visited Canada on a fishing trip, and went into a store to buy some butter. They were told that they could buy all they wanted, so they bought six pounds, at 38 cents a pound, and took it home; when they unwrapped it they found the wrappers stamped "Lease-Lend Waverly N.Y". The Oswego paper advises its readers to remember this when they pay 48 to 55 cents a pound for butter, as well as handing over ration stamps—Canadians are gobbling unrationed butter supplied by the long-suffering U.S.!

There are a few things wrong with the story. The first is that Canada has never had so much as a safety-pin on Lease-Lend from the U.S.; we have paid cash for all our purchases. The second is that butter is rationed in Canada, the allowance being six ounces for each person in a week. The third is that butter costs less here than it does in the States because our prices are controlled and we subsidize butter-making; it certainly is not because we are selling borrowed goods.

We presume that very few readers of the Oswego Times will know these things, and they may be very angry about the adventure of the Waverly couple, and they may cherish a resentment against Canada for a long time. We think that the Times should have checked the story before printing it.

But what we really want to know is where the story came from? It cannot have any basis in fact, and therefore somebody must have invented it to make bad feeling between us and our neighbour. There are still plenty of people on this continent whose business is to make mischief.

New Ambassador At Washington

The people of Peterborough will be particularly interested in the appointment of Mr. Lester B. Pearson to the post of Canadian Ambassador to the U.S., for he spent a part of his boyhood in this city, and attended the Peterborough Collegiate while his father was minister of George Street Methodist Church. Mr. Pearson's subsequent academic career was a notable one, for he was a Rhodes scholar, and was for a time a university lecturer. His taste was for a more active life, however, and he entered the service of the Department of External Affairs at Ottawa.

He has been with the Department for 16 years and is an excellent example of what is called a 'career diplomat', a type which has developed slowly here, but which we shall need more and more in the postwar years. Mr. Pearson was six years at Canada House in London, and returned to take over senior Department duties in Ottawa. He went to Washington to work on UNRRA, serving as chairman of its principal committee on supplies, as Canadian member of the Council, and as permanent chairman of the recent UNRRA conference in Montreal. He distinguished himself in these complex duties, and set a standard for Canadian diplomacy abroad which will be a mark for future representatives of the Dominion to shoot at. He will be an admirable Ambassador, and as he is now only 46 this high office may lead to even greater achievements.

The Hon. Leighton McCarthy, whom Mr. Pearson succeeds, has done well for us at Washington, but he reached the age of 75 last Friday and he has earned a rest. He took on the Washington job in 1941, when it needed very careful handling, and he mingled diplomatic skill with good-fellowship in a particularly happy combination. He has made it clear that he was anxious to be relieved of his duties, and a better successor than Mr. Pearson could hardly have been found.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The Japs on Rabaul, we read, "are reducing to eating snakes". Cannibalism?

"Wet weather is hard on dogs", says the Victoria Colonist. Lost your rubbers?

Toronto The Good is now also Toronto the Snow-White.

You had better enjoy your White Christmas early. This stuff has a tendency to go black.

"U.S. Cigarette Shortage Results In More War Bond Buying" says a heading. From fags to riches?

In Toronto pedestrians must give hand signals, like motorists. It's just a step from that to tail-lights fastened to the back of the overcoat.

However we may retreat on other fronts, the advance of delicacy is continuous. We now possess in Canada several 'horse-processing plants', where formerly stood humble horse-meat factories. "Please, daddy, what is a processed horse?" "It is a delicious sandwich spread, my child, and it comes from the dainty Dominion".

Dickens' Rowdy Benediction

By
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

CHRISTMAS is a time of rites and ceremonials, and I count myself one of that happy number who never allow the greatest of all feasts to pass by without re-reading at least one of Charles Dickens' "Christmas Books." Dickens has sometimes been spoken of as the man who 'made' Christmas. That is not the truth, or anything near it. But it is not inaccurate to say that Dickens revived Christmas as a great family feast and season of goodwill, and in doing so he overlaid the medieval concept of Christmas with much of his own robust Early Victorian jollity. In the Middle Ages Christmas was essentially a religious celebration, and as medieval religion was not divorced from eating and drinking, and having a good time, it was the greatest holiday—as well as the greatest holy day—of the year. But the eighteenth century, the Age of Reason, almost finished it. By the time that grisly and marmoreal era was completed, Christmas needed a physician, and Dickens was the very man for the job.

BUT Dickens, the greatest original genius—after Shakespeare—in English literature, was no mere reviver of expiring medieval observances; he cared nothing for the Middle Ages, and he was a creator rather than a scholar. He gave us a new attitude toward Christmas, which he evolved from the richness of his own nature, and so strong was his influence that we still think of Christmas very much on his terms. Commercialism has done its utmost to put Christmas on a par with Mother's Day and similar factitious spending sprees, but it has never prevailed against the "rowdy benediction" as G. K. Chesterton called it, of Dickens' attitude toward Christmas—an attitude which infects us yet, even though we may never have heard of Dickens.

THE Christmas of Dickens is a religious feast, but it is not specifically Christian, as the medieval Christmas was. I have known Jews who kept Christmas with the greatest goodwill, and I am certain that their inspiration in doing so was their love for Dickens, rather than any leaning toward orthodox Christianity; and I have also known atheists who kept Christmas joyfully, and even put a Star of Bethlehem on their evergreen tree, and they frankly admitted their debt to Dickens, who they declared was a good atheist himself — a staggering assertion which need not be debated on a Christmas afternoon. Dickens taught millions of people what to feel about Christmas, just as Shakespeare taught millions of people what to feel above love. For we might as well recognize that most of our feelings in these matters are derived from literature, and supplement and mould the emotion which arises in our own breasts.

DICKENS' "Christmas Books" were gifts which the popular author offered to his public during the holiday season. The first, and best, was "A Christmas Carol," of which Thackeray said that it came as a personal act of benevolence to everyone who read it—a most generous tribute from one great writer to another. It appeared in 1843, and its centenary was celebrated in this column last year at this time. The book which followed it was "The Chimes," and some good authorities say that it first appeared in 1844, and others, equally good, that it came out in 1845. Therefore its centenary may be this year, or it may not; I do not know and I do not greatly care.

A SURPRISING number of people have not read "The Chimes," and there is no question but that it is a disappointment after the "Carol." The author was seeking to recapture his previous success, and he strained too hard after it. In the "Carol" he made his readers laugh and weep, and his "rowdy benediction" was at its richest. In "The Chimes" there are excellent comic inventions, but nothing equal to Scrooge or Old Fezziwig; and the scenes of pathos are long and often mawkish. But it is far from being a failure; it is not a masterpiece, like the "Carol," but it is a moving and sincere plea for the poor and desperate. Trotty Veck is not a creature to whom we can give our hearts unreservedly, but he has his moments.

THE reader who comes to "The Chimes" without previous knowledge will be affronted by the brazenly mechanical nature of the plot. Briefly, it is this: Trotty Veck, an old messenger, hears his betters discussing the lot of the poor, and they reach the conclusion that the poor are damned creatures who can never come to any good; then poor Trotty foresees that his beloved daughter has been doomed to a life of misery, that his prospective son-in-law has become a drunkard and a disgraced man, that his friend has suffered severe injustice, and that the friend's child has been brought to the life of a harlot; Trotty protests piteously against this train of misery, and wakes to find that it was all a dream, and that his fortunes and those of all his dear ones have taken a sharp turn for the better; the misery which he saw was a dream caused by an unwise meal of tripe! Here the irreverent may cry "Tripe indeed!" and hurl the book across the room. Excellent though much of the story is, the device upon which it is built is inexcusably thin. The "Carol" is founded upon a similar trick, but the "Carol" covers it up with the fine exuberance of genius.

TO condemn "The Chimes" as a mere tear-jerker is unjust, but it is not Dickens at his best. He wrote it during a particularly unhappy period of his unhappy life, when he was living in Italy. He wrote "Martin Chuzzlewit" in the same year, and the strain of composing such a long and brilliant novel may have left the well of his invention low. "Chuzzlewit" is great: "The Chimes" is small beer. But it still has flashes of the Dickensian "rowdy benediction," and it is worth re-reading at this season, when much may be forgiven, even to authors.

Unconsidered Trifles

Tom had just put one over on Jim. The latter, out to even things, leant across the table to ask, with a grin:

"Do you know that of the 50,000 people in this town, three-fourths are clergymen."

"Rot!" snapped Tom.

"It's true. The Rev. Fourth and his two parson sons!"

THE LONG CLIMB —By Goldberg

A Visit To Dover

(By SENATOR RUPERT DAVIES)

I have loved England, dearly and deeply
  Since that first morning, shining and pure,
The white cliffs of Dover I saw rising steeply
  Out of the sea that once made her secure.

I had no thought then of husband or lover,
  I was a traveller, the guest of the week;
Yet when they pointed 'the white cliffs of Dover',
  Startled I found there were tears on my cheek.

I have loved England, and still as a stranger,
  Here is my home and I still am alone.
Now, in her hour of trial and danger,
  Only the English are really her own.

—Alice Duer Miller.

I BEGIN this article by quoting the first three verses of Alice Duer Miller's beautiful poem, because I have just been to Dover and I want to write about it. I want to tell the readers of The Peterborough Examiner something about this, shall I say, "ghost town" of today, and what its people have been through. I quote the three verses above, also, because strangely enough I had much the same feeling as those expressed by the poetess:

"in her hour of trial and danger,
Only the English are really her own."

No one who loves England can read the poem without "tears on my cheek". I thought it was a great pity that Hollywood failed quite to catch the spirit of the poem when making the film, but even if it did not rise to such great heights it was a splendid film, nevertheless.

I HAVE been to Dover. I caught my first glimpse of the white cliffs from the train this time, and saw them through pouring rain. But there they were, rain or no rain, "rising steeply out of the sea", grim and formidable, the everlasting sentries of England. I have visited Dover a number of times, in happier days. The last time was when I waited all day at the Lord Warden Hotel for my car to come from Calais, just one week before Britain declared war on Germany. I remember the scramble to get out of France, the awful hotel (all the accommodation we could get) in which we spent the night in Calais, the long queues at the ferry ticket office and the feeling of relief when I set foot on English soil once again. Then the homes of Dover were bright with paint and brass knockers, chintz curtains at the windows and flowers in the front gardens. The shops of the main street were full of goods, well displayed to tempt the buyers of Dover and district. Today it is all changed. From a popular little coastal city of nearly 40,000 it is but a shadow of its former self, with a population of not more than 17,000. We drove through street after street of fine homes, not one of them occupied. Some of the windows were boarded up, but others were just as they had been left after a shell had wrecked them, glass gone, roofs gone, nothing but walls, and in some cases not these. The main street has some shops yet, open and doing business, but they are very few. As we drove up and down it three or four times, I figured that about one shop in six is doing business today, and often with its windows partly boarded up. The morning before I left for Dover I had received a cable telling me that Canada was going over the top in the Victory Loan, and I was feeling very proud that I was a Canadian. But when I saw Dover, and realized what it had suffered, my pride suffered a shock and I was humbled. We had merely loaned our money to the government at three per cent. Yet the people of Dover had been shelled from the French coast 180 times; on one occasion continuously for 13½ hours, and during three hours of that time 140 shells dropped on their little town, bringing death and destruction to them and their homes.

IN addition to the shelling from France, Dover was bombed from the air nearly 200 times. We can perhaps get some idea of what the people went through when we realize that in four years there were 3,051 alert signals—more alert signals than were necessary in much-bombed Malta. No wonder that the Dover area was named "Hell Fire Corner". It is interesting to note that the shelling range of the big German guns was 57 miles. The last shelling took place on the 26th of September. On that evening one shell hit right near a cinema where there was a queue waiting to get in. Miraculously only one person was killed. In this action a big clothing store on a prominent corner was destroyed. It had survived all other raids from the air and shelling from the French coast, but the last attack finished it. The last alert was on September 29th. Since then the people of Dover have been able to sleep in peace and it is heart-warming to hear them praise the Canadian soldiers and airmen for the way they cleaned out the Germans from the coastal areas of France.

THE town of Dover has a romantic history. It was a landing place of importance, in the time of the Romans, and was the starting point of Watling Street, the great Roman road to London via Canterbury. It really emerged into a place of historical importance, however, under the early Norman kings. The castle about that time came to be regarded as "The Key of England", and in 1216, successfully withstood a long siege by the Dauphin and King John's rebellious barons. About 1295 Dover was pillaged by the French, and in 1642, during the Civil War, it was captured by the Parliamentarians. It was at Dover that King Charles II landed after the Restoration. More recent history was made at Dover, on December 26th, 1918, when President Woodrow Wilson, the first President of the United States to visit England, landed there, and departed from the same place on the 31st.

The Straits of Dover are 17 miles wide between Dover and Calais and Cape Gris Nez, the narrowest parts of the channel. It was here within sight of this town that the Spanish Armada in 1588 received its first shatterng blow. The maintenance of this "highway" to the Continent during the Great War, was no less a great tribute to Britain's sea power. It is now again in British hands after a terrific struggle of four years, and once again the British Navy, and no less the Canadian Navy, has justified its claim to the title "Mistress of the Seas". In writing of Dover, it must not be forgotten that it was from this port that Capt. Webb set out to swim the 21 miles to Calais, in 1875, a feat which he successfully accomplished in 21¾ hours.

THE most rebarkable feature of the tremendous pounding which Dover has taken both from land and air was the small number of casualties which amazingly totalled less than 2,000 with only about 250 killed. This was due, entirely, I think, to the almost perfect organization which was built up by those in charge of the area. Kent, Sussex and Surrey, were divided into 12 regional areas. Over each there was a regional commander, and under him a number of controllers and sub-controllers. The regional set-up was designed when invasion was expected, so that if any section of the three counties became isolated there would be one man in that section in supreme command. So far as Dover was concerned, and its immediate area, it was all handled from one control room. The controller, himself, very kindly came down and explained just how the system operated during the four years it was vitally necessary to the safety of the area. There were two long tables on which were a number of telephones. There were always two or three men on duty. Immediately one of the watchers from an observation post noted that shelling had started, the control room was notified and all men in responsible positions immediately summoned. Thus sitting at a long green baize-topped table would be the Chief Warden, the Borough Surveyor, the Medical Health Officer, the Chief of Police, Chief of the Fire Department, the Manager of the Public Utilities, and the chief of the Ambulance Brigade. Immediately a shell fell the exact area would be relayed to the control room, and each of the officials I have named would get in touch with his subordinates and rush aid to the spot. There were first aid posts scattered all over the area, and underground, fully-equipped hospitals at key points. We were taken through one of these hospitals, where the matron and nurses were still on duty. It was equipped with absolutely everything, and the doctor in charge of it could be on the spot two minutes after he was summoned. At the control room they had a gas-decontaminator room, operated by electricity, with an auxiliary engine service if the electric plant was damaged, also their own broadcasting system. It was a most complete system of protection, and according to the controller had never failed once. The control room was not underground, but was down about six steps below the road. It had not been hit but the building next door had been completely demolished.

I SPENT a day in Dover through the kindness of the British Ministry of Information, of which Mr. Brendan Bracken is the head. I was accompanied by Mr. R. H. Thomson of the Thomson newspapers, and we were in the immediate personal charge of Mr. Manning of the Tunbridge Wells branch of the M.O.I. After we had seen the town, we were taken over by the Navy and shown some of the things they were doing. On that particular day the weather was very bad, and shipping was tossing about in the harbor, but in fine weather about 30 landing craft travel back and forth to France carrying supplies to the Allies. The scenes at the docks were very interesting, and there was activity everywhere. We lunched at the castle atop "the white cliffs," with the admiral in charge of the Dover area. After lunch were taken down into the very heart of the cliffs, and shown all the offices, which are manned by Wrens. We were 270 feet down in the heart of the chalk cliffs. We descended by a stone spiral stairway which had been built by French prisoners during the Napoleonic wars. Luckily, we did not have to climb the steps. I am afraid that would have been too much right after one of the admiral's delightful luncheons. We were taken through a long maze of passages and eventually found ourselves on a lower level and our car waiting for us. One of the most interesting spots, was "the look-out," where on a ledge were powerful glasses through which on a clear day the admiral and his officers had a good view of the French coast. Before leaving to catch our train we were taken to see some of the Dover air-raid shelters, one of which holds 1600 people. There are many of them. This took us past the famous Burlington Hotel, which is just a shell. The Lord Warden, strangely enough, has escaped without any serious damage. When I saw it, it recalled to my mind that at the moment Mr. Winston Churchill is the Lord Warden of the Cinque ports. The story of Dover is a thrilling one and as one gazes on the widespread damage, one is again filled with admiration for the British people. They carried on, their normal lives as far as possible. All through those terrible four years, one of the cinemas and one music hall kept going steadily. How the people endured the terrific shelling and remained sane, I do not know. I saw the nose of a shell, which alone weighed 600 lbs. But the people are happy today. The worst is over and they are looking forward with hope and joy to the day of victory.

A Bible Message

And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth. John bare witness of him, and cried, saying, This was he of whom I spake, He that cometh after me is preferred before me: for he was before me. And of his fullness have all we received, and grace for grace. For the law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ.

No man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him....

The next day John seeth Jesus coming unto him, and saith, Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world. (John 1: 14-18, 29.)

Letter To The Editor

WHAT DO GREEK INITIALS MEAN?

Sir,—Please do the readers of your splendid journal the service of explaining what the initials ELAS and EAM mean in Greek affairs.

The writer has been asking everyone whom he has met in the past few days, only to find another as ignorant as himself.

I am, yours very truly,

WM. SYNE.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The E.L.A.S. is the Greek People's Army of Liberation, also known as 'the partisans.' The E.A.M. stands for Ethnikon Apeleftherotikon Metopon or National Liberation Front, which is the army of the resistance organization. The use of these initials in news reports is admittedly confusing, but it cannot be avoided without sacrificing a measure of accuracy and concision.

Reporter Reviews Canadian Battles In Holland

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE FIRST CANADIAN ARMY IN HOLLAND, Dec. 20—(CP)—In one month's savage fighting, Canadian troops, aided in the later phases by British forces of the First Canadian Army, cleared the Germans from the Schelde Estuary and opened the way to the great port of Antwerp, which became a vast Allied supply base for the western front.

While the Schelde battle was going on, other troops of the Canadian Army with formations of the British Second Army engaged Germans in southwest Holland and drove them north of the Rhine. These victories on the Schelde and in southwest Holland were described by Field Marshal Sir Bernard Montgomery Dec. 18 as the finest operation of the western front campaign. They gave the Allies the supply port and laid the foundation for the big offensive into Germany.

Started In October

The Schelde battle began in early October, after the Canadian Army had captured all the Channel ports, with the cxeption of Dunkerque. It was western troops of the 3rd Division who launched the first assault on the Schelde, defended by the German 64th division in the pocket south of the Estuary and the 70th division north of Antwerp and on South Beveland island, which lies along the north side of the Estuary. German coast defence troops bolstered the enemy force.

On Oct. 6, the Regina Rifles, the Canadian Scottish and the Royal Winnipeg Rifles crossed the Leopold Canal into the Schelde pocket. They met extremely heavy opposition and for five days here was bloody fighting in the bridgehead. At times the Canadians held only the 10-foot wide dike on the north side of the canal. But the valiant Westerners hung on to that bridgehead in a "little Arnhem" stand that is a highlight in heroism for the Canadians' campaign in the west.

Highlanders In

Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, the Canadian Corps commander here, was acting as army commander, while Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar was recovering from an illness at that time, and when this strong opposition he sent the Highland brigade against the pocket at another point. The Highlanders landed from the sea southeast of Breskens in an attack which caught the Germans completely by surprise. A beachhead was won and other Canadian troops reinforced this success, attacking north and west into the pocket.

Meanwhile, the 2nd division had cleared the Germans from the northern outskirts of Antwerp and from a section of the Turnhout-Antwerp canal. It followed this up by striking north, driving the enemy back towards Bergen Op Zoom. The division cut the causeway running from the Dutch mainland to South Beveland island and by mid-October was ready to thrust along the causeway to South Beveland.

But the flank of the 2nd had to be screened and southwest Holland had to be cleared up too. So the 4th Division, with British, Polish and American divisions, launched an attack northeast of Antwerp, while the 2nd British Army put in a coordinated attack westward from the Nijmegen salient.

Co-ordinated Atttack

The attack began on October 20 and two days later the key town of Esschen, east of the Beveland causeway and right on the flank of the 2nd Division, was captured by troops of the 4th Division. The advance was pressed north from there to Bergen Op Zoom, Roosendaal and Breda by the Canadian Army, while the Second Amy took Hertogenbosch and Tilburg. This two-way thrust shattered the defence line of the 15th Army in southwest Holland and 40,000 enemy troops rapidly withdrew north of the Lower Rhine.

When the 4th Division captured Esschen, the Highlanders of the 3rd Division fought their way into Breskens, on the south shore of the mouth of the Schelde opposite Flushing. Then the 3rd fought westward through the pocket, capturing Schoondike, Oostburg, Sluis and destroying the last remnant of the 64th Division at Knocke and Heyst on the North Sea coast.

The battle ground was the worst in Europe. It was Polder country—dead-flat reclaimed land, criss-crossed with dikes. Large areas were flooded and the Canadians had to battle their way from dike to dike sometimes knee deep in mud and water. The weather was cold and every day was foggy, grayland bleak. Air support was restricted and because of the flat nature of the district good artillery observation was difficult.

The infantry again bore the heavy burden of the battle, for it was practically impossible to use tanks in the polders.

Dike Warfare

On Oct. 24, the 2nd Division struck out along the causeway leading to South Beveland and they faced the same difficulties as the 3rd did in the pocket. They fought a vicious dike war, mile after muddy mile along Beveland. But they kept up reelentless pressure and steadily drove back troops of the 70th Division A ship canal crossing Beveland was a major obstacle but the 2nd Division made an assault crossing at night over this 300-foot waterway and pushed on to Goes, the principal town of Beveland, and to the causeway leading to Walcheren Island.

By the end of October, the 3rd Division had captured all the German batteries which could fire on the estuary from the south side and were mopping up around Knocke and Heyst.

The successes of the 2nd Division on South Beveland were bolstered by an assault landing made by troops of the British 52nd Lowland Division who crossed the Schelde in amphibious vehicles to go ashore on the southeast tip of the island on October 26. After a few days the two forces linked up and swept through the rest of the island.

Schelde Battle Won

The climax of the Schelde battle came on Nov. 1 when British Commandos and other troops of 52nd Division made the third sea-borne attack of the operation. They sailed from Breskens and landed right at Flushing. Three hours after this landing more British Commandos were landed by the Royal Navy at West Kappelle on the western tip of Walcheren Island. The navy suffered heavily from coastal gun fire but the Commandos got ashore.

With these two forces on Walcheren, in addition to Canadian infantry who had won a bridgehead on Walcheren at the end of the causeway leading from South Beveland, the end came rapidly. Flushing was captured; Middelburg and Weere were taken; Walcheren, which had been more than half flooded weeks before when Royal Air Force heavy bombers burst the coastal dikes, was entirely overrun.

Canadians also occupied North Beveland and Tholen, two other Dutch islands.

But once the Schelde pocket was cleared and South Beveland and Walcheren captured, the estuary was open. The Royal Navy minesweepers went to work immediately and within afew weeks Allied convoy swere sailing into the vast harbor of Antwerp, which had been captured intact by British troops of the Second Army in early September when that Army rolled through Belgium.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

The deadlock that has continued for weeks in the Ladies' City Five Pin League between Westclox and Outboard Marines for first place was broken at last Monday night when the Big Bens could only win one game out of three from the third-place Merry Macs while Outboards were running wild to make a clean sweep at the expense of the Empressettes. As a result the Outboard outfit are now two points ahead of last season's winners. They made sure of their three points from Empressettes by coming through with a 3200 effort the highest team score of the season while in the second game they put together 1175, the highest team single game score. Marion Timm sparked the drive with 833, her string including singles of 303 and 306 and Betty Castle came through with 718 to make the thing sure. Westclox were beaten four pins by the Merry Macs in the first game and after rallying to take the second were again knocked off in the third. Marg Hawthorne with 736 tried to save the day for the Big Bens but with the exception of Marg Selkirk's 621 got little support from the rest of the cast.

There should be plenty of interesting basketball at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium tonight when a House League double-header will be staged. Chief interest centres in the second game on the twin bill which brings together the two undefeated members of the loop, Gord Johnston's Lions and Clarence Davern's Cougars. Johnston's outfit has won four straight games and with Joe Stewart added to the roster the Lions are tough opposition. The Cougars, however, have shown plenty of scoring punch in their previous starts and with Don McTavish, Spud Turner and Clarence Davern to pile up the points for them the new entry will probably take a lot of beating. It should develop into the best men's game of the season. The first game on the bill will see Ray Routley's Panthers tangle with Roy Johnston's Tigers and that, too, should be quite a ball game. Tonight's double-header will be the last games in the loop for a week, until next Wednesday, in fact, when Trojans and Cougars are billed to tie into each other in a single game.

A Notable Victory

Twenty years ago tonight the Peterborough hockey team surprised the sporting world by knocking off the famous Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, Allan Cup holders and amateur champions of Canada 3 goals to 2 after 20 minutes overtime in the final game for the S.P.A. championship in the old Arena Gardens in Toronto. It was one of the most sensational victories in which a Peterborough hockey club was ever engaged. The Greyhounds were considered the class of the amateur world with Flat Walsh in goal, Babe Donnelly and Stan Brown on defence and Phillips, Woodruff and Gloomy Lessard on the forward line but the Petes matched speed with speed and battled them all along the line. There was no score in the first period. Early in the second Donnelly scored for the Soo on a pass from Lessard and 10 minutes later Frankie Collins evened it up by firing a goal on a passing play with Ranger and Ace Bailey. It was the Petes who went ahead in the third session with Ranger doing the trick on a pass from Snap Parker. Seven minutes later Woodruff scored at close range, with Phillips getting the assist to sew up the game and the figures remained at 2-2 until the first minutes of the fourth five-minute overtime period when Bailey set up a scoring play for Bert McLeod and the big defense player rapped home the goal that made the Petes the most talked of hockey team in the country.

Discussing the new Junior B setup Ken Colling says in his Belleville sport column: "The outlook for junior hockey in this district is undoubtedly the best since Hitler invaded Poland. Yesterday six clubs went to the post when group No. 2 in the junior O.H.A. convened here to clear the decks for the coming puck season. Those ardent hockey fans can rest assured of seeing a strong group with plenty of good junior hockey on the season's menu. The teams entered included Tweed, Stirling-Marmora, Trenton and Belleville from last season along with Campbellford and a combined team from Hastings and Norwood making a six club loop. This season will see three squads of "combines" as Jerry Quinn, Tweed's hockey mentor, told the meeting he was anticipating some player strength from nearby Madoc, while the Hastings entry, who play their games on the large Norwood ice surface, will draw playing material from that village as well as Havelock. Then there is the usual Stirling-Marmora combination back to defend their laurels as group winners last spring."

Just Isn't Done

"Port Colborne Junior "A" hockey sponsors apparently discovered to their dismay that you might as well butt your head against a stone wall as attempt to compete against import-packed clubs such as Oshawa, St. Mike's, St. Kitts and Galt, unless you have a pro hook-up, are backed by a wealthy Dominion-wide business organization or have a preparatory-school eligibility clause to help you," says Chick Appel in the Stratford Beacon-Herald. "Winning but one game in seven starts, Messrs. Magee and Dwor finally gave up the ghost, according to an announcement quoting Charles Magee. The Port sponsors can't be accused of not trying to ice a team equal in calibre to the others, because they had assembled quite a few boys, but when three of them were forced to return to their original place of employment through selective service regulations, there was little else they could do but fold up in despair. It may mean a break for the surviving clubs, because Gonie McGowan had a few lads on the Ports who could catch places on other teams, and you can expect St. Catharines and Galt to scramble for them. Port Colborne may now adopt a sensible action and confine their efforts to junior "B" and juvenile hockey, and even the latter may be doubtful, because their junior "A" players are barred from minor hockey now that they have participated in three or more O.H.A. games."

* * * * * *

Detroit Red Wings took over second place in the National Hockey League race last night when they invaded Boston and knocked off the Bruins 6 to 3. The game was a whole lot tighter than the final score would indicate for until less than a minute to go the Wings were in front by only one goal. Then rookie Eddie Bruneteau fired two quick counters within a few seconds to make the final margin decisive. The goal in the last period that put the Red Wings ahead and represented the deciding marker was drilled by Flash Hollett who gets a real kick out of beating his old teammates. Hollett's boast that the Bruins have not beaten the Wings since he was traded by Art Ross to Detroit is still holding good and the defence star certainly works his head off to see that his old team bites the dust every time it meets the Adams' outfit.

* * * * * *

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Bill Cowley broke into the scoring column with an assist against Detroit last night and is now tied with Toe Blake for the N.H.L. scoring leadership.... The United States Army football squad has been voted the team of the year for 1944, with the St. Louis Cards ball club running second in the voting.... Tommy Gorman's squawk that N.H.L. players are out to get Maurice Richard will leave everybody cold.... There are a lot of crude performers in the N.H.L. who are out to get everybody of course but Richard is in no more danger than the rest of the players.... Bobby Hewitson's comment that N.H.L. patrons are not getting as much hockey as they are paying for hits the mark right in the middle.... They are planking down high prices to see a lot of run-of-the-mine performers, many of whom would not be carrying the sticks for professional teams under ordinary conditions.

Outboards Push Two Points Up On Westclox

Outboard Marines went two points up on Westclox in the battle for the Ladies' Five Pin League leadership Monday night by rolling 3200 pins to take three straight games from the Empressettes while the Big Bens were being beaten two out of three by the third-place Merry Macs.

Marion Timm of Outboard Marines had high three with the fine score of 833, with singles of 303 and 306. Marg. Hawhorne was second with 736 and other good scores were Betty Castle 718, L. Vincent 669, Marg. Selkirk 621, P. Coleman 603, D. Pearson 603 and B. Smylie 602.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Insult was added to injury for the Washington Senators of the American Baseball League when the annual Associated Press poll was announced at New York. After finishing a poor last in the league race, the Senators were voted "the flop of the year." Notre Dame football team was voted the second-worst "bust" of 1944, while the Navy grid team was picked as the third biggest disappointment and Detroit Tigers were in fourth place in the balloting because of their last-day pennant-losing reverse last season.

Tommy Gorman of Montreal Canadiens last night raised a plaint that players of other N.H.L. clubs were being sent out on the ice to trip, hold and wrestle Maurice Richard, starry right-winger of the Habitants. Gorman said he had made a formal protest to League President Mervyn Dutton.

Every member of the Ottawa team except the goaltender fattened his scoring average last night as Commandos defeated Hull Volants 11-8 in a Quebec Senior Hockey League fixture on Ottawa ice.

Barriefield Bears remained undefeated in Kingston Hockey League warfare when they racked up their seventh consecutive victory last night at the expense of Victorias, the score being 5-1. In the curtain-raiser Headquarters played their best hockey of the campaign to turn back the Queen's University team 2-0 and take over sole possession of second place.

Tommy Bell, a fighting terror out of Youngstown, O., earned himself a Jan. 16 bout with Ray (Sugar) Robinson by blasting Cleveland's Chuck Hunter all over the ring at Cleveland last night in a 10-rounder before 6,482 at the Arena.

There were no knockdowns, but Bell had Hunter on the verge of a knockout in the sixth and ninth rounds.

In his first start since last June, Bell needed a couple of rounds to perfect his timing. The welter then waded into the former National Amateur Lightweight champion with machine-gun speed.

OTTAWA, Dec. 20 (CP)—Ottawa Commandos defeated Hull Volants 11-8 last night in a Quebec Senior Hockey League fixture which turned out to be a scoring picnic. NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP). — Col. Bill Bingham, head of the college football rules committee, said the other night: "If the pro game is better than the college game, there's nothing the colleges can do about it. Adopting pros' rules won't help the college game."

All last summer Piedemont League baseball scribes campaigned for a new press box to replace the inadequate coop atop the Newport News stand. . . . Nothing at all happened. . . . Then one day last fall a hurricane came along, uprooted a few sections of fence and shaved the press box off the stands, smashing it to bits. . . . Opening-day ceremonies next spring likely will include three cheers for a hurricane.

What's in a Name?
A Tribute To A Famous Corps Of The Canadian Army

Members of the RCASC wear an eight-pointed star containing the motto of the Order of the Garter, "Honi soit qui mal y pense". This motto owes its origin, by legend, to Edward III, who picked up a garter dropped by the Countess of Salisbury at a ball and placed it on his own knee, remarking to his courtiers "Shamed be he who thinks evil of it."

Royal Canadian Army Service Corps

What's in the name of the RCASC?

Speed, urgency, timing . . . and courageous determination! The Army Service Corps has the job of getting the supplies to where they're needed, when they're needed. And whether it's food, fuel, ammunition, men, or any of the materials with which battles are fought and wars are won . . . supplies must get through!

Their long and brilliant record of service dates to Cromwell's time, when that renowned English leader organized the first supply system. Down through the ages, the gallant men and officers of the Army Service Corps have earned their hard-won honours in all our wars . . . fighting not only the enemy, but besting as well the elements, the snipers' slugs . . . shells . . . and conquering again and again their greatest enemy, the racing hands of the clock.

The name of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps is rich in meaning. The selfless work of the Corps' gallant officers and men throughout the years has made the name rank with the finest . . . for efficiency, courage, and devotion to duty.

Hold Buffalo To 2-all Draw

By The Canadian Press.

St. Louis Flyers, Western Division cellar-dwellers, turned in their best performance of the season on home ice last night to hold Buffalo Bisons Eastern Division leaders, to a 2-2 draw in the only scheduled American Hockey League game.

Flyers were minus three regular players and Coach Happ Emms as they broke a four-game losing streak in games against Bisons.

Buffalo opened the scoring toward the end of the first period when a lucky shot by Ed Emerton caromed off thesticks of two Buffalo players before landing in the net.

Billy Kendall evened the score in the first minute of the second period, but Buffalo went ahead again as Gordan Davidson scored on a major penalty shot before the session closed. Freddie Hergert scored the tying goal with less than three minutes to go.

Nelson To Tangle With Sam Snead

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 20. — (AP).—The greatest golf match of the year is in the making, a war bond promotion featuring Byron Nelson, 1944's No. 1 golfer, and Slammin' Sam Snead, the hottest man in the game at present.

Nelson has won a majority of the big tournaments, about $45,000 in war bonds, has a scoring average of less than 70 a round for 1944, and has just been named "athlete of the year" in the annual Associated Press poll.

The big match probably will be played in Los Angeles under P.G.A. auspices, to promote sale of war bonds.

Browns Provided Sports Surprise

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP).—St. Louis Browns' capture of their first American League pennant was proclaimed today the biggest sports surprise of 1944 in the annual year-end poll by the Associated Press.

Virtually all the 83 sport writers participating in the poll mentioned the Browns' achievement with 40 ranking it first. Altogether the Browns received 141 points, 48 more than Army's 59-0 football rout of Notre Dame last month.

This touchdown parade earned 22 first-place ballots and numerous second and third-place votes for 93 points.

Far behind in third place with 12 points was Bob Hamilton's feat of winning the P.G.A. golf championship. Hamilton, an "unknown" from Evansville, Ind., beat the great Bryon Nelson, one up in a final that shocked the pro golf world.

TORONTO, Dec 20 — (CP). — If Vernon Huck, 17-year-old goalie of Notre Dame Hounds in Winnipeg, appears in an N.H.L. goal within the next few year he will qualify as one of our modern Horatio Alger, Jr., characters....Huck has been signed by Toronto Maple Leafs after appearing in exactly eight games of organized hockey. He will probably have to take his ice schooling for the next couple of years in the 'Peg, since the Manitoba hockey body has banned export of his particular type of hockey commodity. Usually, Leaf "futures" were taken East to play with one of the Toronto junior farm clubs.

Distance detracts:

Prospects for a top-flight hockey loop on the West Coast after the war aren't so bright, says Carl (Vancouver News-Herald) Robertson. The game will have quite a revival when peace returns, out the remoteness of the Coast will make it almost impossible to establish a Pacific Coast League as number two professional circuit. N.H.L. teams won't want to send players so far away for seasoning, and would prefer to have them closer home.... That might have some bearing on the situation, but if promoters want to throw their weight behind the plan, there should not be too much difficulty. The old Coast Loop operated quite successfully several years, and didn't have the advantage of modern-day travel.

Bauer Baedeker:

The Bauer family of Waterloo, Que., gets around it seems. The five Bauer brothers, who have kept Waterloo quite prominent on the hockey map for years, all are in the Services now, still travelling. Most notd of the quintette is elder brother Bobby, former Boston Bruin and member of the 1942 Allan Cup winners, Ottawa R.C.A.F. Flyers. Youngster Dave played with Oshawa Generals last spring after seasoning with St. Michael's College of Toronto. Eugene, Raymond, and Jerome aren't quite as well known.

Here and there:

Everybody seemed anxious to make Dean Griffin feel at home when he went to Calgary to live. Even Al Ritchie, Regina coach and former football associate of the Griffing, wrote to friends in Calgary telling them to cultivate Griff's acquaintance and "make him feel at home." Calgarians expect the galloping Griffing to put their city on the football map.... Harness racing is flying high in the Maritimes right now. A new racing circuit has been formed in Eastern New Brunswick....Winnipeg is going for basketball in a big way, and 2,200 fans turned out for the final game of the autumn season the other day.

Hollett Sparks Detroit To Win

By FRED KERNER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

If there's one man on Detroit Red Wings who'll make every effort to see Wings come out on top when they play Boston Bruins, it's the motor city's team captain, Bill Hollett—the 32-year-old defenceman who has earned the nickname, "Flash."

After deadlocking the Bruins three times at Boston last night Wings rapped home four tallies in the final period to score a 6-3 victory and take over second place in the National Hockey League standing, ahead of Toronto Maple Leafs. For the record, Flash Hollett scored the winning goal.

The feud between Hollett and Art Ross' Bruins started last year when Ross traded him to Detroit for Pat (Boxcar) Egan. Since then Bruins and Wings have met 11 times, and the Beantown boys have not won any of them.

It was in Boston that Flash developed into one of the most sensational puck-carriers in all time, and though he carried the weight of the Bruins in their weak seasons, Art Ross let him go in a deal that most people still wonder about. Hollett is making good his "beat Bruins" promise, and takes great pride in doing it.

Last night the Rossmen gave Jack Adams' boys a tough fight for two periods. With goals by Herbie Cain, Kenny Smith and Pat Egan, Bruins held a 3-2 edge going into the last stanza, but Rookie Steve Wochy soon tied it up, and minutes later Hollett plunked the winning counter past young goalie Harvey Bennett.

Eddie Bruneteau added two-goal insurance unassisted in the last minute of play.

New York Rangers are at Chicago tonight and then travel east to Detroit to meet Wings on Thursday.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press.

Bill Cowley, Boston, moved into a first-place tie with the idle Toe Blake, Montreal Canadiens, for the National Hockey League scoring leadership by collecting one point as Bruins took a 6-3 defeat from Detroit last night. Herbie Cain, Boston, picked up one point to tie for fifth place with Clint Smith, Chicago, and Syd Howe, Detroit. Other scoring leaders were idle.

The leaders:

Interesting line in "None But the Lonely Heart," as spoken by Ethel Barrymore: "Love isn't for the poor. No time for it" . . . It is reported that Donald Crisp will come to Ottawa for a spell of work for our government after he finishes in "Valley of Decision" . . . Interesting situation aired in a Montreal court. A couple was shown to seats by an usher. Another couple showed up a few minutes later, claiming the seats and pointing out a coat that had been placed on one of them as evidence of previous occupation. A face-slapping bee developed. Judgment hasn't been rendered yet . . . In "Son of Lassie" the three-months-old son of Lassie plays the title role until replaced by Lassie later in the film.

Teresa Wright, wife of Niven Busch, a writer, gave birth to a son . . . It will cost Jon Hall $5,000 to get a new nose. The tip was sliced off the first one during that Dorsey brawl. That's paying through the nose for high jinks . . . The USA cigarette shortage gave rise to this story: A boss, in critical tones, said "Is that your butt on the office floor?" to the office boy. "That's all right, sir," replied the office boy. "You can have it. You saw it first" . . . When and if the censors pass the British film, "Fanny by Gaslight," you'll see an excellent job of film making and gasp at how broad United Kingdom producers are when compared with the Americans . . . An actor asked a new movie star to marry him. "And if I refuse," she asked, "will you kill yourself?" The actor bowed. "That," he answered gallantly, "is my usual custom" . . . The UNRRA has its own film head, William H. Wells. The Canadian government has already contributed $50,000 to the motion picture activities of the international agency and it is not unlikely that the National Film Board will help serve the UNRRA.

There will be another Boys' Town picture made soon, to be called "Seven Letters to Boys' Town . . . All films of Canada's armed forces in action are shipped to Ottawa for censorship, rough cutting and distribution to the newsreel companies. These films will be edited after the war to provide a concise and comprehensive record of Canada's part in this war for the generations of to-morrow . . . Maurice Golden is a talent scout for MGM studios. He discovered Greta Christensen, an 18-year-old beauty, but his studio didn't want her. The story has a double happy ending, since RKO signed her and Golden just became her husband . . . Judy Garland is wonderful in "Meet Me In St. Louis."

Hamilton Beats St. Catharines

By The Canadian Press.

Atfer a lengthy lapse, O.H.A. senior hockey came to the fore last night at St. Catharines where the Hamilton Majors solidified their hold on first place with a 4-1 victory over Saints, their closest rivals. Hamilton's ace snipers, John Conick and Dillon Brady, leaped to the top of the individual scoring table with 12 points each. The previous pace-setters, Doc Dafoe and Red Carr, both of Toronto Staffords, now are second with 10 points apiece.

The team record for the Majors stands at three victories and one tied game, with no defeat, for seven points, against Saints' four points on two victories and three setbacks. Staffords are third in the standing with three points.

Conick last night scored two of Hamilton's four counters and added an assist while Brady was responsible for three assists. Majors' other goals went to Doug Runions and Dinning. For St. Catharines, Adamson scored on a set-up by Benchley.

Canadian Wins Victoria Cross In Italian Fight

By WILLIAM BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC, Dec. 20 — (CP Cable). — News that Pte. Ernest Alvia (Smokey) Smith of New Westminster, B.C., has been awarded the Victoria Cross thrilled men of his unit, the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada when they heard about it.

News of the award, for "dogged determination" and "superb gallantry" shown by Smith in holding a bridgehead across the Savio River north of Cesena against a determined German counter-attack last October 21, was conveyed to the unit yesterday by the Canadian Press.

As the news radiated from regimental headquarters to companies and platoons, "One for Smokey" was quaffed by the boys whose only regret was that the authorities had not left the 30-year-old veteran with the regiment until the award was announced, so the event could be celebrated together.

Not Sent Back.

In view of the 8th Army's practice that men who earn the V.C—the Empire's highest award for valor—are not sent back to the front line the Seaforths expect they will not see Smith again until after the war.

Smith and several other men crossed the Savio to establish the bridgehead when they were attacked by three Panzer tanks, supported by two self-propelled guns and 30 infantry. Pte. Bob Blair, Prince George, B.C., one of the men, was wounded and saved from capture by Smith, who used a tommy-gun and Piat mortar to account for at least one Panther tank and kill at least 10 Germans.

Eventually Canadian reinforcements got across and the bridgehead was saved.

"It sure will be something to tell my grandchildren," said Blair, the only one of Smokey's group left with the regiment "Not everyone has had his life saved by a V.C."

Smith also saved the life of another comrade, Pte. Kenny W. Ballard, Vancouver Piat gunner, when they were charged by the enemy.

The Seaforths were tickled that the first Canadian private soldier to win the V.C. in this war was a member of their unit. Incidentally in flying back to Britain last week Smith also became the first private soldier to return by air from this theatre. He is the Seaforths' first V.C. either of the First Great War or this war.

Decorated Monday.

(A London dispatch said Smith received his V.C. from the King at a private investiture in Buckingham Palace on Monday. He said he was "pleased" to take the decoration home to his mother for a "Christmas present.")

Smith is the 114th man and the eighth Canadian to win the V.C. in this war. Five of the eight Canadians were from British Columbia.

Other Canadian V.C.'s of this war:

Lt.-Col. C. Cecil I. Merritt, of Vancouver, now a prisoner of war in Germany, for heroism on the beach of Dieppe, August 19, 1942.

Capt. F. T. Peters of Prince Edward Island and Nelson, B.C., recognized when his Royal Navy ship forced the boom of Oran during North African landings, November 8, 1942. He died later.

Maj. Paul Triquet, Cabano, Que., recognized for bravery with the Royal 22nd Regiment at Casa Berardi, Italy, December 14, 1943.

Maj. Charles Ferguson Hoey, of Duncan, B.C., recognized posthumously for service with the British Army in the India-Burma campaign in February, 1944.

Maj. John Keefer Mahony, 33, of New Westminster, B.C., for continuing successful direction of the holding of an Italian bridgehead, May 24, 1944, after being wounded three times.

Flt. Lt. David E. (Bud) Hornell, 34, Mimico, Ont., for pressing home a successful attack on a U-boat in June, 1944, which cost his life.

Maj. David Vivian Currie, 32, of Moose Jaw, Sask., and Owen Sound, Ont., for blocking and holding one of the main German escape routes out of the Falaise pocket August 20, 1944.

English Remove Land Mines Guarding Coast

By JOHN DAUPHINEE,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Dec. 20 —(CP) — The complexion of the south coast has changed. The war paint is being peeled off.

The biggest change for the Sussex coast is that most of the Canadians have gone. Month after month they helped guard Britain against any possible German invasion attempt and trained for D-day. Sussex became known to Englishmen as a "Canadian colony."

The Canadians were popular while in England but even more popular now.

"We liked them fine while they were here," one elderly, white-haired woman told me as she looked out across the channel from Brighton. "Now they've cleared out the French coast and the buzz-bombs don't fly over any more. We like them better still."

She smiled as she pointed to the beach. Soldiers were using bulldozers to locate land mines moved from their original positions by waves and tides. Near the piers the army's mine-detectors don't work because of the steel piles.

There are still defences in the Brighton-Hove area. The concrete obstructions on the shore side of the promenade are still in place—but the wired barbed wire entangements are coming down.

There are still Canadian officers and men in the streets, mostly on week-ends. And there are scores of "new Canadians" living in Brighton and Hove— the British wives the soldiers married while stationed on the coast.

All Specialists.

Six young British servicemen — Three R.A.F., two Army and one Royal Navy rating — were in the train compartment in which I went to Brighton. The conversation turned to Canada.

Two of the Airmen had served in Canada during the war. They said they thought they might decide to live there after discharge.

"Canada is wizard," said the yonug fellow who had a year at Patricia Bay, near Victoria.

"Mind you, Englands all right, but you can't get ahead fast enough. I'm going to try the Paciifc Coast."

"Not for me," said the Navy man "I was a builder before the war, and I know my trade. Canada is like the States, too many specialists. I wouldn't be happy if I was on a job where I had to do only one thing—like shingling, for instance. I'm going to stay here where people take more pride in their work."

Famous Auction.

Christies of Oxford Street probably is the world's most famous auction house. Its specialty always has been objects d'art— paintings, period furniture, old porcelain and silver. And even in wartime it still goes in for that sort of thing.

But now and again it branches out. The goods differ through the names of prominent people remain. We liked this advertisement, clipped from a London newspaper, as illustrating the scope of Christie's business and the extent of one wartime shortage:

"On Monday—

"Fine wines, spirits and liqueurs, the properties of the Rt. Hon. Lord Faringdon, Sir William Burrell, Bt., the Worshipful Company of Fishmongers, Major-General P. Neame, V.C., C.B., D.S.O., Sir Samuel Scott, Bt., deceased, and others; also choice cigars, the properties of Sir Alec Black, Bt., deceased, Montague L. Meyer, Esq., and others.

"Samples of the cigars may be had on paying for same on Thursday and Friday preceding."

Interpreters

LIVERPOOL, England, Dec. 20—(CP).—Escorts who travelled back to Liverpool with several hundred evacuee children returning from Wales had in some cases to act as interpreters. The children had been in Wales so long they could speak only Welsh and their parents couldn't understand them.

Fairmount Women Hold Meeting At Home Of Mrs. H. M. McBain

FAIRMOUNT, Dec. 20 — (ENS)— The December meeting was held at the home of Mrs. H. M. S. McBain, with a large attendance. Rev. J. F. Everson was present and took charge of the election of officers. All the old officers were re-elected, with the exception of the following: First Vice-President, Mrs. James Seymour; Second Vice-President, Mrs. R. K. Earle; Treasurer, Mrs. W. Windrem; Missionary Monthly Secretary, Miss Jean Hanbidge.

Mrs. J. F. Everson was in charge of the devotional period. Scripture reading from Luke 2, followed by a very interesting article on "A Star-Light Night Centuries Ago." Rev. J. F. Everson led in prayer.

The roll call was answered by a Christmas thought. Mrs. R. Earle gave a very satisfactory financial report, showing that the allocation had been reached, together with the fifteen per cent. increase this year. Mrs. R. F. McIndoo gave a paper on Christmas message, and Mrs. James Seymour a talk on Temperance.

It was decided that the new study book, "West of the Date Line," would be used in 1945.

Mrs. Earle took charge of the following program. An introduction to the program, written by Mary Etta McPherson was read by Miss Helen Earle. Mrs. W. Fair read an article on "How We Should Observe the Birth of Christ." Mrs. C. Seymour, a paper on "The Christmas of the New Order." A duet was rendered by Mrs. R. F. McIndoo and Mrs. H. McBain. ## Dismiss Charge Drunk Driving Without calling upon the defence for evidence Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning dismissed a drunk charge against Gordon Stackhouse, Norwood.

The dismissal was made on motion of defence counsel T. J. Carley, K.C., who argued that the crown had failed to show that Stackhouse was driving his car on the night of November 24 when it crashed into a ditch on Highway 45 three miles south of Norwood.

Provincial Constable Archie Grayling testified that he was called around 9:30 o'clock on November 24 to investigate an accident on the Hastings-Norwood road. Marks on the road showed that Stackhouse's car had shot off the highway into a three-foot ditch, ran along the ditch 59 feet, collided with a stump and came to rest 13 feet further on.

He noticed that the glass in the windshield had been broken on the right hand side.

"I saw the accused at his home in Norwood around 10:30 o'clock that night," said Constable Grayling. "He had his head bandaged and smelled very strong of beer. I asked him about the accident and he said first that he thought he might have been driving the car and then said that everything was vague and thought some one else had been driving. He said everything was vague. His mind was clear as to what had happened in Hastings up to 6 o'clock that evening but after that he couldn't remember."

On Right Side

To Mr. Carley Constable Grayling said that from the injury on Stackhouse's head and the broken windshield on the right hand side it would suggest that Stackhouse's head must have struck the windshield and that he was on the right hand side of the front seat when the accident happened.

"That was my opinion at first," the officer said.

Dr. Robert Atkinson, Norwood, who saw Stackhouse about 10:45 o'clock that night said that the accused had a cut on his head that was bleeding freely and required four stitches to close. He was in a dazed condition.

"What about his condition as regards sobriety?" asked Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

"He smelled very highly of beer. It was difficult to say whether his dazed condition was the result of the accident or drinking too much beer."

Arthur McWilliams, Hastings beverage room waiter, testified that Stackhouse had come into the beverage room around 8:10 o'clock on the night of the accident and had had a glass of beer. McWilliams said he had refused to serve the accused any more beer because in his opinion he had too much.

"He had more than enough to be driving a car," the witness stated.

This concluded the crown's case and Mr. Carley moved for dismissal.

Remarking that the driver of the car might have "hiked across the fields" after the accident, Magistrate Gee dismissed the charge, remarking that he did not think it necessary to take up any more time with the case.

City Asks Nicholls Board To Join In Hospital Petition

The assessment department is being asked to prepare a list of properties in the Monaghan fringe which may be properly designated as farm land according to the annexation agreement. Such parcels are subject to fixed assessment for five years, but in asking the council Monday night for formal authority to extend the collection of garbage into the new area Alderman Swanston said he agreed with Alderman Bradburn that some arrangement should be made regarding the tax on agricultural land.

City Solicitor Huycke informed the council that Nicholls Hospital Board would have to join in the petition to the Legislature for the repeal of the private act incorporating the hospital.

A motion by Aldermen Bradburn and Cotton advised the secretary of the hospital board to consult Mr. Huycke.

On Alderman Sullivan's recommendation a light was ordered for Donegal street, north of Brock street, but a proposal to place several lights in Victoria Park bumped into the fact of the county's ownership of the property. Permission for boys and girls to use the slope for skiing should first be obtained from the county.

And then, Alderman Bradburn suggested, the city would probably become liable for any accident.

"We have no control of the park," Alderman Curtis said.

"Yes, but the people of the city get the most benefit of it," Mayor Hamilton replied.

"They used to pay us $100 a year to keep up the park and spend at the very least $200," Alderman Curtis said, and that estimate was obviously below the actual expenditure.

Mayor Hamilton stated that the Council was not going to ignore the county, and the present understanding "and protocol" is that the county authorities will be asked for permission to place several lights in the park.

"We don't want repetition of the tree affair" said the Mayor, alluding to an incident of several years ago when some representative of the council forgot the existence of the county's rights.

Woman Faces Traffic Charge

Mrs. Rose Sopha, R.R. 1, Havelock, faced a careless driving charge in police court this morning as the result of an accident on Highway 7, eight or nine miles east of Peterborough on the morning of December 2.

The charge was laid by Provincial Constable Price Morris who prosecuted the case while Mrs. Sopha was defended by T. J. Carley, K.C.

Roy Horne, Norwood, who works in Peterborough, testified that on the morning of the accident he was driving toward Peterborough when he saw another car approaching from the north and "well into the middle of the road". He thought there was room to pass but there was a collision and his car was damaged to the extent of $250.

To Mr. Carley the witness said that he thought Mrs. Sopha's car was over the middle of the road and did not answer when Mr. Carley asked him why if he were sure of that before the accident he had not stopped. Horne said that he had six passengers in his Chevrolet sedan and that he was driving at from 35 to 40 miles an hour at the time of the accident. Mrs. Sopha was driving more slowly, he said.

The case is proceeding. A charge of assault against Charles Kelly was adjourned for a week.

Turkeys On Market Sell At 47 Cents

Lively demand cleared the local market of turkeys early this morning at the ceiling of 47 cents a pound, probably an indication of continuing activity up to the end of the pre-Christmas week. The prices was fixed and the only element of uncertainty preceding the arrival of the first farmers rested with the poultry volume. A fair supply of turkeys was offered. All but a remnant few were gone by 10.30 o'clock.

Geese were 36 cents, ducks 36 cents a pound, and chickens were plentiful around the same price, but weakening slightly towards noon. Some of the later buying was down to 33 and 32 cents a pound.

Magistrate Given Lesson In The Art Of Shooting Craps As Police Give Evidence Following Raid In City

Acknowledging that he hadn't the foggiest notion of how the game known in Harlem as African Golf and more commonly called craps was played, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court Tuesday afternoon, asked a member of the anti-gambling squad of the provincial police who was giving evidence to explain the extricacies of the dice pastime.

Provincial Constable Edgar Legate, Toronto, was testifying in a joint charge against Spiros Zakos, William Ward and Donald Conway of operating a common gaming house at the Plaza Billiards, Charlotte street and was telling the court of what he said he had seen in the basement of the place on the night of December 7 when he was asked to describe the manner in which the game of craps was played The officer complified and His Worship was initiated into the mysteries of shooting for a point, crapping, fading and all the other features of the dice diversion.

Constable Legate, the first witness called by the crown, said that he had gone into the Plaza Billiards on the night in question and had first watched some other men playing an electric pinball machine in the pool-room. Legate said that the players did not get a win and that he had then tried his luck. He said he put in 25 nickels without winning any free games but that on the 26th attempt, the signs indicated that he had won eight free games.

Legate swore that he had played two of these games and had then called Donald Conway and pointed out to him that he had six free games on the board. Conway had gone away and returned with 30 cents which he paid to the witness.

The provincial constable said that he had noticed a number of men go to the back of the pool-room and go down stairs and that he went down himself. He said that there was a light at the foot of the stairs and at the front of the basement there was another light and underneath it were a number of men around a table top that was resting on the floor.

Claims Craps Played

Legate testified that when he got to the front of the basement there were some eleven men there and eight of them he said were playing craps. The provincial constable said that William Ward was not using the dice himself but that he was covering bets and side-bets on the roll of the dice. When a player would bet $5 that he would make his point, the witness said that Ward would cover the bet. If the player won, the accused paid of but it the man with the dice lost, Ward would keep the money, the witness said. There was no bet under a dollar.

The officer swore that he watched the game for some time and then went upstairs and met Corp. Gordon Tomlinson of the Provincial Police, to arrange for the time of the raid. Then he returned to the basement. Constable Legate said that prior to his going to the Plaza Billiards Corp. Tomlinson had given him a $10 bill and that both officers had made a note of the serial number. After his return to the basement the witness said that he made several side bets on the roll of the dice and that these had been covered by Ward. Constable Legate said that he placed the $10 bill he spoke of on the table and said that he wanted to make a $2 bet. Ward had taken the bill, given him eight dollars change, placed $2 on the table and covered them with $2 more.

The office said that he had noticed Ward from time to time take bills of larger denomination and put them inside his coat.

"Break It Up"

Constable Legate said that play continued until a noise was heard upstairs. A few seconds after Chief Constable John Thompson of the city police department came down the stairs and as he appeared in the light at the floor of the stairway some one shouted: "Cops—break it up." Officer Legate said that after the police arrived he had seen some one put something on a joist in the basement, and later Constable C. J. McGillen had searched that spot and had found a set of white dice. The witness said that the dice used in the game had been white.

The witness said that when Ward was told to put his money on the table he had produced $197 from his trouser's pocket and $150 which he said was his own money from a special pocket in the right sleeve of his coat. Ward had been allowed to keep the latter sum.

Cross-examined by T. J. Carley, K.C., Constable Legate said that he knew what a "tilt" meant in regard to the pinball machine and agreed that if there were six tilts the player should be entitled to 30 cents back. The machine, he said, would not show six tilts at once.

Witness said that he had seen one other man cover some bets but that with that exception, so far as he had seen, all the bets were covered by Ward.

"There was no rake-off?" asked Mr. Carley and Constable Legate answered that there was not.

Keep Track Of Number

Corp. William Gordon Tomlinson of the Provincial Police stated that he had instructed Constable Legate to investigate Plaza Billiards and on the way down to Peterborough had given Legate a $10 bill. Both officers wrote down the number of this bill in their note books, and Corp. Tomlinson told the court what the number was. Corp. Tomlinson said that he had gone into the Palaza Billiards shortly before 11 o'clock that night and had met Constable Legate there. Later witness returned with Chief John Thompson, Inspector J. F. Reid, Detective John Stevenson and four uniformed officers of the Peterborough police department. Spiros Zakos was in the store at the front and Corp. Tomlinson said that he told Zakos who he was, produced a search order and ordered the accused to remain where he was. Detective Stevenson took charge of Zakos and witness said that he went down into the basement and saw a bunch of men scattering away from a table at the front.

The witness said that Ward had been placed under arrest and asked to put his money on the table. Corp. Tomlinson said that Ward had $197 in his trouser pocket and $150 in tens and twenties in a special pocket inside his right sleeve. He claimed the latter sum as his own and was allowed to keep that amount. Among the $10 bills from the accused's trouser pocket was the $10 that had been given by the witness to Constable Legate. The money was produced in court by the witness and entered as an exhibit as was also a set of dice which the witness said had been given him by Constable C. J. McGillen of the city police force.

In cross-examination Mr. Carley asked the witness if he had not had an opportunity to watch Spiros Zakos for some time and if it were not true that he had seen nothing in his actions that indicated gambling. "I would not say that," returned the witness. "There were several punch boards there."

Mr. Carley demanded that the witness go ahead and tell everything about the punch boards but Corp. Tomlinson demurred. "They are connected with another charge," he said.

However Magistrate Langley ruled that the witness should answer and Corp. Tomlinson said that he had seen several people play the punch-boards and had seen Zakos collect from them. He himself had asked the accused if he could play the boards and Zakos had handed them to him and he had paid the accused for his games.

At this stage an adjournment of the case until January 4th was agreed upon.

A charge against William Ward of conducting a common gaming house and against Zakos in connection with the punchboards were also enlarged until the same day.

Ontario Unit Gains Foothold

By WILLIAM BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC, Dec. 17. — (Delayed).— (CP Cable.) — West coast and Ontario infantrymen on the right flank of the Canadian Naviglio Canal bridgehead gained a narrow foothold over the Munio canal, which is between the Naviglio and the Senio river, last night (Saturday) while troops on the left flank scored a 500-yard gain.

To-day (Sunday) troops in the centre hurled back a German counter-attack, the 15th since the brideghead was established Dec. 12.

A Free-For-All.

The troops on the right flank of the bridgehead, which extends from the Bagnacavallo area to a point south of the Ravenna-Ferrara highway, became weary of sitting only 25 feet away from the enemy on the west side of the dyked bank and a 24-hour grenade-vs.-potato-masher free-forall. Capt. Dave Ames of Vancouver managed to infiltrate into the west bank positions, take 12 Germans prisoner and consolidate the positions.

Downstream, to the right, Maj. Alec Beckingham of Kingston, tried to do likewise but the plan did not work. Then Capt. Jock MacNeil of St. Thomas, sent a platoon through the position held by Capt. Ames' men, under orders to work along the canal bank to their objective.

The enemy tried infiltration tactics against the toehold gained by Capt. Ames men on the west bank and against Maj. Beckingham's force on the east bank but after a brief skirmish the Germans fell back. The Canadians were supported by Manitoba tanks unders Majors Bob Graham of Belleville, and Bill Millroy of Calgary.

Suicide Troops

On the left flank, a 500-yard gain brought Ontario, Quebec and Maritime troops under Capt. Benny Potts of Kingston, to positions commanding the Vecchia canal southeast of Bagnacavallo Saturday afternoon. Others of the same unit under J. E. Pickard of Halifax, N.S., already overlooked the Vecchia several hundred yards down stream.

Capt. Potts' men met the Germans in close contact fighting and the Germans retreated leaving 40 dead. Canadian German stretcher-bearers were busy with enemy casualties, too. Capt. Potts' losses were two men wounded. The Canadians took only seven prisoners, indicative of the high calibre of the enemy troops opposing the Canadians—Germans who believe in fighting to the last man and the last round of ammunition. This is typical throughout the sector.

The German counter-attack was against positions held by men under Maj. Henri Tellier of Montreal. Tanks operating in the Germans' rear were held off by Canadian artillery and the French-speaking troops beat back the attack after a two-hour fight.

Troops of a Toronto armored reconnaissance battalion under Maj. G. A. Burton of Toronto, supported by Ottawa Valley infantry under Capt. P. A. M. Neill of Pembroke, Ont., probed north between the Naviglio and Munio Canals in the direction of Highway 6—the Ravenna-Ferrara road. New Brunswick tanks continued to mop up in the area immediately south of the highway and east of Naviglio.

Intensity of enemy artillery fire has not diminished. Despite an Allied air umbrella, the Germans continued to hurl shells and bombs at practically every conceivable target. They had ample opportunity to tape the whole area and register their guns and multi-barrelled mortars before the Canadians established the bridgehead.

"This land is as flat as a pancake," one commanding officer commented as his farmhouse headquarters rocked with the blast of shelling. "And that's not maple syrup they're pouring on."

Hasty Pees Officer Wounded 2nd Time

TRENTON, Dec. 20— (CP)— Maj. T. S. Ketcheson, second in command of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, has been reported wounded in action for the second time according to official information received from Ottawa by his father, Walter Ketcheson.

He was first wounded last February in Italy and at that time suffered shrapnel wounds in the leg and neck. He spent about a month in hospital.

Maj. Ketcheson was with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment several years prior to the outbreak of war and left for overseas with the first battalion in December, 1939, as captain. Shortly after his arrival in England he was promoted.

74th Annual Meeting of Shareholders THE DOMINION BANK

Experience of Enemy Countries is Warning Against Propaganda Now Rife in Canada, Declares C. H. Carlisle, President

Presenting Financial Statement, Robert Rae, General Manager, Notes Steady Progress

Calls on All Citizens to Join in Spirit of Co-operation to Meet Our Problems

At the 74th Annual Meeting of The Dominion Bank, held at the Head Office in Toronto on Wednesday, December the 13th, the President and the General Manager addressed the Shareholders.

The President, Mr. C. H. Carlisle, was in the Chair.

BANK'S YEAR REVIEWED BY THE GENERAL MANAGER, ROBERT RAE

Mr. Rae said he was gratified to report another year of steady progress. The Profits for the year were $925,000., an increase of $11,000 from a year ago.

After paying the dividends, $560,000, making a contribution of $110,000 to the Officers' Pension Fund, writing $150,000 off Bank Premises, providing $834,508.29 for Dominion Government taxation, the balance at credit of Profit and Loss Account was increased by $106,000 and now stands at $1,071,000.

A reservation of $412,000 has been made for additional taxes in respect of the fiscal year ended 30th October, 1943. This sum was arrived at after consultation with officials of the Department of Finance. Our Dominion taxes for 1943, including the provision of $439,019.03 reported in last year's statement, accordingly, totalled $851,019.03 and for 1944, $834,508.29. The refundable portion now stands at $172,946.34.

Turning to the Balance Sheet, Notes of the Bank in Circulation were $1,462,000, a decrease of $618,000. Under the provisions of the new Bank Act, after 31st December, 1944, note liability will be reduced to 25% of capital.

Substantial Increase in Deposits

Total Deposits amounted to $247,839,000, an increase of $50,121,000. Non-interest bearing deposits are up $18,671,000, interest bearing deposits increased $34,835,000, Dominion and Provincial Government deposits decreased by $3,386,000.

Cash Assets—$48,290,000—equalled 19.01 per cent of public liabilities, and the readily realizable assets, including Government, Municipal and other Bonds, and Call and Short Loans, amounted to $196,754,000, or 77.46 per cent of public liabilities, as compared with 74.58 per cent in 1943.

Investments total $143,636,000, an increase of $38,869,000, of which $139,419,000 is in Dominion and Provincial Government securities, $79,122,000 maturing within the next two years, and including Dominion of Canada Deposit Certificates of $57,480,000 bearing interest at ¾ of 1% per annum.

Commercial and Other Loans

Call and Short Loans in Canada, $1,325,000, representing advances against readily marketable securities, show an increase of $203,000, while Call and Short Loans elsewhere than in Canada, $3,402,000, decreased $1,033,000.

Commercial Loans increased by $5,520,000 and now stand at $65,759,000.

"Post-war conditions and the steps which should be taken to meet them", said Mr. Rae, "are the subject of many divergent views; of one thing we may be sure—the Canadian Banks are in a strong position and will do their part in solving the difficulties which will confront us. If our citizens are united in a strong resolve to meet these problems in a spirit of fair play and co-operation, we need not fear for the future of our Country."

Mr. Rae pointed out that over six hundred members of the Staff were in the active services and mentioned with regret that fifty-two have made the supreme sacrifice, six have been reported missing and eight are prisoners of war.

MR. C. H. CARLISLE, PRESIDENT DISCUSSES THE NATION'S POST-WAR PROBLEMS

Mr. Carlisle referred to the seventh decennial revision of The Bank Act, and some of the proposals made and rejected. The principal revisions made to The Bank Act, he said, were as follows: The Bank Act, as revised, extended the Banks' charters for the usual period of ten years. The maximum legal rate of interest or discount was reduced from 7% to 6%. Section 88 of The Bank Act was amended to simplify its operations. The right of the chartered banks to re-issue notes after January 1st next was withdrawn. Bank shares were reduced from a par value of $100.00 per share to a par value of $10.00 per share. These were enacted with only six dissenting votes, by a parliament consisting of 245 members. He continued:

"The Inner Reserves proved to be the most contentious subject. The long experience of the chartered banks has proven the necessity of such reserves and the fairness of the methods of their operations. During acute or long depressions these reserves must be adequate if banks are to remain solvent. The Inner Reserves are set up out of the banks' earnings, and are subject to taxation before being distributed to shareholders. Also, the money thus reserved remains active in the banks' business."

Canada's Post-War Problems

"Post-war problems," said Mr. Carlisle, "must be dealt with fairly, efficiently and with a high degree of permanency. Not only has our country been disorganized by war, but the major countries of the world have been disorganized and damaged to an unprecedented extent. Hatred has been established. Huge debts have been created that will require the maximum effort of several generations to liquidate. New philosophies have been presented—many of them the antithesis of the sound principles of democracy and good government.

"The major tasks will be adjustments between and among nations. State boundaries will be changed. Many of the new governments will be modified so that they may better fit into a more homogeneous, constructive and friendly society. Trade relations must be established on a more equitable basis than has yet existed. A monetary system must be created so as to enable and make possible commercial intercourse throughout the world. Reconstruction must take place in devastated territories, and aid must be given to those who have been left destitute by the war. This is a major work, which requires the best in statesmanship and unselfish effort of the many nations involved. Canada will be called upon to share proportionately in this responsibility.

"It is likely safe to state that from 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 of our men and women now in war employment or in the armed forces must be re-established. Gainful employment must be provided for all who require it. Ample hospitalization and nursing must be provided for the sick and the injured. Pensions must be established for dependents, and for those incapacitated. Some of these charges will be recurring for many years; the total will be a material sum. It would appear that even three years after the war we shall have an annual expenditure of $2,500 millons, or over five times the taxes collected for the fiscal year ended March 31st, 1939."

Finding a Solution

"Can we solve our present problems? I am quite sure that we can. We have abundant natural resources, many undeveloped; a healthy, intelligent, industrious, proud and free people second to none, who have built this great expansive territory into a great nation. If our people and industries are free from restrictive and class legislation, and maintain a united effort, then and then only will Canada continue her way of progress and meet her every obligation.

"Will we solve our present problems? That depends! They will not be solved if we add unduly to our present debt; unless we have free and competitive industry; unless we have freedom in choosing our way in life and each has the opportunity to share proportionately in the things we produce; unless we see to it that individual effort is not destroyed by destroying individual responsibility; unless we have government that will enact law for the protection of our people as a whole, and enforce that law equitably, irrespective of race, creed, religion or locality; unless we have compulsory incorporation of all organized groups or societies that affect our people generally, thereby bringing them under governmental jurisdiction, with equal rights, equal responsibilities."

Misleading Propaganda

Other conditions were that politicians cease their misleading propaganda, causing people to believe that post-war conditions will be free from want, free from fear, free from unemployment, free from depressions; that people will enjoy higher standards of living; that we shall have shorter working hours—which means less production at higher costs; that if we can finance war production we can finance peace production. There is little in common between war production and peace production. War production is highly specialized. Its turnover is rapid. The goods produced are for immediate consumption. There is practically no selling expense, no advertising. Financing is largely supplied by the government. To provide this production we have had to raise, through taxation and borrowing, billions of dollars, the repayment of which is an obligation not only of the present generaton but of succeedng generations. Domestic production has not been operated along these lines—nor can it be. We are at a loss, as well as those who have made and are making these promises would be at a loss, to know how to proceed to implement them. If they are implemented even to a small degree, it must be done through greater economy, greater effort, greater expansion of our trade—both domestic and foreign, a lower cost of production, a lower cost of living and a willingness to receive a less wage, a lower profit.

We must have a radical revision of our present tax laws whereby duplication of taxes is eliminated; whereby the system is simplified; whereby taxes levied are not so excessive that they retard personal and corporate activity. It is obvious that only a reasonable and equitable tax will increase tax income, as it gives a greater incentive to both individual and business for greater effort, a greater expansion and greater employment. Our present taxation system is one of emergency and one for war requirements. It is efficient for the purpose it serves, and much credit is due to our Minister of Finance and his associates for their successful war financing at very low rates. But war taxation does not lend itself to post-war or peacetime conditions. A change is essential.

Responsibility of Organizations

"Both industrial and labour organizations should be beneficial and constructive, in expanding markets, creating more constant employment, lowering the cost of living and causing a general improvement in the worker's condition; in improving quality of product, creating a better service, providing a greater economy and an ever-increasing effort, to earn public confidence and support. Management and labour have much in common. They both depend on the same source for their remuneration. The maintenance of a company's financial position, the expansion of its business, its ability to carry on is surely of mutual interest and responsibility both to the employer and to the employee. In cases where disputes arise, strikes could be avoided and losses prevented if such disputes were referred to our established courts for litigation, as is the common practice in all other disputes. We can, with confidence, accept the judgments of our courts, as they are free from coercion or political interference.

"In thirty-four years' experience in Canadian industry I have found the employee co-operative and fair. The danger to individual and governmental freedom and security does not lie in the labour organization itself, but in its maladministration. Over a period of years certain officials of labour organizations have secured and are attempting to secure a greater control over labour, over industry and over politics.

"When an organization or organizations are created for the purpose of controlling mass voting in accordance with the views and wishes of the officials of such an organization, such a condition is not desirable. The "closed shop" and "exclusive bargaining right" exclude the worker from employment in a plant so governed unless he joins the particular labour organization possessing those rights—notwithstanding that he may disagree with the principles employed. He is hired and paid by the company, but his operations are controlled by the union. He has little relief for employment elsewhere, as the "closed shop" practice is general. In a free country he is not free to choose his own employment.

"It is practices such as these that prove detrimental to labour, to labour organizations and to the public.

"The maximum of goodwill, the maximum of efficiency, the maximum of public co-operation can only be gained when industrial organizations, labour and labour unions will plan unselfishly together, whereby the greatest economy, the highest efficiency and the maximum production may be achieved, and out of these achievements a fair and equitable distribution may be had of earnings, distributed in dividends or in wages.

Results of Socialization

"Socialistic and Communistic propaganda is rife throughout Canada. Its advocates hold out many inducements which may be taken for betterment, but not at any time in history have policies such as those advocated proven successful, beneficial or permanent. Socialism progresses to its final stage of regimentation and dictatorship. Socialistic Germany rapidly reached dictatorship under Hitler. A similar process in Italy culminated in the dictatorship of Mussolini. Neither the people of Germany nor the people of Italy have prospered under these dictatorships; nor can they be happy in their almost total destruction. We are fighting in foreign countries a costly war to prevent such regimentation involving our country. At the same time we must be on guard not to permit to be created within our own State an equal socialization with equal results.

Constitutional Safeguards

"The rights and responsibilities of each province in Canada are set forth in the British North America Act. Any attempt at abridgement of such rights is fully protected by our courts. A greater right assumed by the province than that permitted by the British North America Act leads to discord and disunity. It is quite evident that if we are to continue our Federal Government that each province must conform to the laws of that government. We must not overlook the penalty of civil war caused by secession of the Southern States, nor the disintegration of France—torn asunder by different political parties and by different groups, selfish in purpose. Similar conditions can happen in Canada unless we cease our nagging criticism and replace it with a spirit of better understanding and co-operation."

'Sign' Language Guides Fighters In Battle Area

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY, Dec. 20 — (CP) — The "sign language" on the Canadian and British sectors on the Western Front has put a lot of English words into battle-dress and given them some weird twists.

This is the language on the hundreds of signs nailed to trees or stuck in the ground along the roads giving directions, telling about the mines and bridges, marking convoy routes and giving just about any information a driver needs to get from one place to another.

Most prevalent and one which makes you breathe easier when you see it reads: "Road and verges cleared to eight feet." It simply means that the sappers have been along this road and that they have swept the road of enemy mines and also cleared the shoulders for eight feet. "Bailey steep ramp" is another. The translation is "Bailey bridge ahead; the ramp leading to it is steep, so take it easy."

"Diversion" used to mean a pleasant pastime, but here it means "detour," generally over a rough road. There are all kinds of abbreviations for which you almost need a code guide. For instance "POL" means "petrol, oil and lubricants"; "Sups" means "supplies"; "POW" is "prisoner of war cage."

Directions to units are given by signs with numbers and combinations of colors and once you learn the system you are all right. But it can take years. The army cannot mark the way to units, however, for security reasons, so they have to follow the number-color method.

Convoy routes are marked with a variety of names and you get them "Kangaroo up" or "Pipe down." That simply means you can follow the "kangaroo" signs up to the front or the "pipe" signs back to the rear areas. The latter has nothing to do with keeping quiet.

The Canadians are the most prolific sign painters in the whole Allied force. You see more signs in this area than anywhere—direction signs, traffic control and traffic caution signs, tactical signs showing the way to units and when the Victory Loan campaign was on there were signs like "Bonds not Blondes."

Most effective sign by a long shot are ones like "dust draws shellfire," "highway under enemy observation for one mile," "keep ducking and keep going—enemy fire ahead."

Diplomats Study State Department's Polish Policy

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—(CP)—Diplomats of all countries today studied the state department's pronouncement of policy toward Poland many agreed it should clear the air a little.

But the Senate, in an angry mood over recent state department appointments, clamored for a declaration of foreign policy by President Roosevelt as the one thing likely to bring order out of chaos.

That declaration may come at any time. The President has remained silent through the recent weeks of bitter controversy over British intervention in Greece and Italy and Prime Minister Churchill's Commons speech favoring the Soviet demands for Polish territory.

The Senate, instead of going home this week for Christmas, is locked in acrimonious debate over the appointments involved in the state department shake-up incidental to the resignation of Secretary Cordell Hull.

Their criticism is closely intermingled with the events in Greece, Italy and Poland, involving sharp criticism of British policy and charges that Mr. Churchill is dominating American foreign policy.

No Comments

Yesterday the new Secretary of State, Edward Stettinius, gave his press conference a prepared statement of policy toward Poland.

He read it but did not comment on it other than to say it was being transmitted to other governments but had been prepared without consultation with British diplomats.

The statement referred to United States policy on a world security organization to maintain peace, and to its aim to assist, with other countries, in the rehabilitation of devastated countries.

This was interpreted by some as virtual endorsation of the British government's announced attitude toward Poland, and by others as opposing any partition of Poland as now proposed.

How it will be interpreted in the Senate is expected to be made known today when the members of that body in dwindling numbers, resume their battle over the approval of the six men selected as assistants to Mr. Stettinius.

Strangely enough this battle was precipitated by Senator Claude Pepper (Dem.-Fla.) who has consistently supported the administration.

He has moved a resolution which would defer approval of the state department appointees until the 79th Congress assembles early in January.

In this he is opposed by the veteran Senator Tom Connally (Dem.-Tex.), chairman of the foreign relations committee which approved the appointments by one vote.

Those whose appointments are challenged are the veteran diplomat, Joseph C. Grew, former ambassador to Tokyo, selected as undersecretary of state; and five proposed assistant secretaries, Nelson Rockefeller, William L. Clayton, Archibald MacLeish, Brig.-Gen. Julius C. Holmes and James C. Dunn. They are charged with being too friendly to powerful commercial interests, and to British diplomacy.

Police Discover $35,000 Hidden In House

HAMILTON, Dec. 20 — (CP) — About $35,000 in bonds and cash was accidentally discovered by police yesterday when they visited an east end home here to remove an elderly woman, whose husband has been living on a pension, to hospital.

Police reported the house was cold and cheerless, empty of food. Police said the husband was just as astounded as police to discover in one room bonds hidden under a mattress, a considerable amount of cash in an old box under the flooring, and eight bank books with balance of more than $2,000 in each. Trunks forced open produced further cash and bonds. Money was found hidden in almost every room.

Chief Constable Joseph R. Crocker, refusing to divulge the couple's name, said: "The husband knew absolutely nothing about the wealth possessed by his wife as she had kept her business affairs strictly private at all times." He added the bonds were all-gilt-edged security, properly registered in her name.

The husband later told police he recalled his wife many years ago had fallen heir to certain legacies but had not disclosed particulars to him.

Ethiopia Signs

What has
ELECTRIC WATER PUMPING
to do with
"WINNING THE PEACE"?

Down on the farm, in many parts of Canada, the quiet, thrifty, electric water pump has been helping win the war. It has stepped up output—for well-watered cattle give increased yield. It has promoted farm efficiency—speeding and lightening work, releasing help for other farm tasks. It has demonstrated how electricity can lighten old jobs and shoulder new ones! And it is teaching us a lesson in winning the peace!

For electricity is an outstanding Canadian asset. Already more electric power per capita is used here than in any other country in the world—and five times our present output can be produced if all available water power is harnessed.

By extending the use of this abundant electricity when peace returns . . . by applying it, increasingly, in our homes and industries . . . by utilizing it to light our highways, electrify transportation, brighten our cities and free them from smoke . . . by spreading its benefits to more and more farms—much can be done to carry our nation prosperously and happily through the after-Victory years!

Canada has the power—but its future use needs planning NOW! Not for a moment may we relax our war effort—yet preparation can be made for action ahead—for modernization, for the maintenance of high levels of employment and a high standard of living!

In war and peace, for 52 years, Canadian General Electric has been "Canada's Greatest Electrical Workshop." Leaders today in war production, the men and women of C.G.E. will lead tomorrow in the production of "everything electrical" for peace!
